PM Drafts Plan For CBC Shake-up

OTTAWA (CP) — A major shake-up of the CBC's embattled administration is expected to be announced Monday in the government's white paper on broadcasting.

The document will formulate new policies and propose many legislative changes. It was largely drafted by Prime Minister Pearson and drawn partly from a series of official reports that criticized the CBC brass.

Reliable informants say the government plans to revamp the power structure at the CBC's massive new headquarters here, wryly called "the Kremlin" by program people. At the same time, the CBC will be promised extra cash from federal coffers.

The white paper will directly affect the careers of Canada's top two broadcasters, both appointed in 1958 by the Diefenbaker government.

CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet, 58-year-old electrical engineer who joined the Crown corporation at its inception in 1935, reportedly will have his powers reduced to those of a figure-head or may be replaced altogether.

MAY LEAVE

Andrew Stewart, 62-year-old chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors and former University of Alta. president, is expected to return to academic life shortly.

Amendments to the Broadcasting Act are expected to boost and delineate the respective powers of the BBG and the CBC board of directors.

The white paper, to be tabled in the Commons shortly after Monday's sitting opens by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, reportedly will propose a new system to finance CBC operations.

Demand "Color" Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Demands were made in the legislature Thursday for an inquiry into alleged discrimination because of color by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) said the college had defaulted in the responsibilities it has for determining medical qualifications and had exercised "racial discrimination based on color," particularly toward Dr. Krishna Balchwal, a native of India.

Dr. Balchwal last year war refused a licence to practise medicine in Ontario but the reason has not been made public. It was because of his color, says the NDP.

"There should be a public inquiry in the province of Ontario as to whether the charge we are making is true or not."

Wednesday, Premier Robarts announced in the legislature that a three-man committee has been appointed by the province to review reasons why the college has refused to licence some Asian doctors.

Charge Maine Mother Repeated Murder of Her Three Children

FAIRFIELD, Me. (AP) — A Fairfield mother was charged with murder Friday in the drownings of her three children, just as she had been 12 years ago when her first three children drowned.

At that time, Mrs. Constance Fisher, now 37, was found insane. A grand jury declined to indict her and she spent five years in a mental hospital. She was discharged as completely cured in 1959.

Mrs. Fisher showed no emotion as a judge explained to her the three warrants charging her with the murder of Kathleen Louise, 6, Michael Jon, 4, and Nathalie Rose, nine months in their rural home at Fairfield Centre Thursday.

She entered no plea and was held without bail.

In 1954, when she drowned her first three children, whose ages were 6, 4 and 11 months, Mrs. Fisher attempted suicide by drinking shampoo. Her husband, now 45, found her unconscious then, too.

Montreal Police Prevent Separatist Demonstration

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans by a militant separatist group to mark Dominion Day with a spectacular protest against Confederation foundered Friday on the rock of 250 policemen.

At Jeanne Mance Park they were to surround the statue of Sir Georges Etienne Cartier, denounce him as a traitor to French Canada and "pronounce the death sentence on Confederation."

But the group was unable to get into the police-ringed Lafontaine Park and at least 50, mostly youths, were detained for questioning.

Four newspaper men and one newspaper woman, who were watching the activity of policemen, were rounded up themselves by security-conscious police.

After 15 minutes of questioning and identification they were released. Several others who had been standing with them, mostly holding cameras, were unable to prove their bona fides as newspaper men and were not immediately released.

Squads of motorcycle police, mounted police and helmeted riot police in trucks clamped a security ring round the park and allowed no one to enter.

Senior officers used walkie-talkies and radio trucks to direct a blanket coverage of the area, with police converging on any group larger than five.

Reggie Chartrand, former boxer and leader of Chevaliers, was not present. He had said previously he would not attend because he still was under a $100 court bond to keep the peace until Aug. 25, following demonstrations last year.

Two or three of his followers managed to slip into the park to keep the date, but they were spotted and taken to jail.

They wore black sweatshirts with Quebec Libre on the front and Chevaliers de l'independance on the back.

Assistant Chief Inspector Jean-Paul Guindon, who controlled the police cordon at the park, said:

"These people did not apply for a permit to hold a parade, therefore, they will not be allowed to parade. They also did not apply for a permit to hold a meeting here so they will not be allowed to do that either."

Tito Purges Secret Police Demoting Longtime Friend

BELGRADE (AP) — Vice-President Aleksandar Rankovic of Yugoslavia, one of the most powerful figures in this independent Communist country, has been stripped of virtually all public functions after being accused of dominating a power-hungry and obstructionist secret police organization.

Rankovic was one of two casualties of a crackdown on the secret police announced Friday by his longtime ally, President Tito. The other was Svetislav Stefanovic, a member of the Communist party central committee and former secret police head.

Stefanovic, 56, was expelled from the party. Rankovic was allowed instead to submit his resignation as one of three party secretaries to the central committee.

Demand Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs with their hearts set on a two-month summer recess had to settle Thursday for a three-day holiday weekend.

Opposition demands for an immediate jump in the $75-a-month old age pension to $100 again blocked passage of the Canada Assistance Plan.

The long recess is still expected to start some time next week but the assistance plan, still at the second-reading stage, comes up first thing Monday.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and other members read letters from older constituents pointing out the difficulty of living on $75 monthly pensions.

Mr. Douglas said he understood Health Minister MacEachen wished to propose some additional measures to help the elderly. However, he wasn't going to allow him to speak because the minister would automatically, in accordance with Commons rules, close the debate.

The minister never did get to speak and there were still NDP members indicating a desire to speak when the Commons rose about 6 p.m.

The Commons approved without debate a resolution proposing establishment of a federal agency to regulate the livestock feed industry in Eastern Canada and British Columbia. The bill was given first reading.

Greene Defends Dairies

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Greene said Thursday Ontario dairies aren't the ogres they seem to be in the present dispute over the price farmers get for their milk.

He said the federal government had used 1965 figures in making sure the dairies would be able to pay farmers $3.25 for every hundred pounds of manufactured milk.

The dairies have been complaining that costs have risen since then and also that they suffered losses in 1965. Mr. Greene said the dairies wanted to make up this loss in 1966 and one way was to increase the cost to the farmers of transporting his milk.

Mr. Greene made the statements before the Senate finance committee which approved a bill setting up a new dairy commission.

The federal government had done all it could to assure farmers of getting $4 for every hundredweight of milk.

In addition to making sure processors would be able to pay $3.25 for each hundredweight, the federal government was paying a direct 75-cent subsidy to the farmer.

North Korea Will Aid Viet Cong

TOKYO (Reuters) — North Korea announced today it will send "volunteers" to fight on the side of the Viet Cong in Viet Nam.

An official statement issued through the North Korean central news agency denounced this week's U.S. bombing of installations in Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital, and the major port of Haiphong.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny hot weather is likely to persist through the holiday weekend in southern and central Ontario as a high pressure area remains practically stationary over the Great Lakes and eastern United States. As the hot spell continues both temperatures and humidity are edging slowly upward and afternoon readings in the low 90s are forecast for most places in Ontario today.

LONDON (CP)—The United States bombing of North Vietnamese fuel dumps has resulted in strong repercussions in Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government.

The man who earned a victory of sorts in termination of the 45-day seamen's strike had hoped to appease his vociferous left wing by disowning American bombings in the suburbs of Hanoi and Haiphong.

In the vital struggle over the future of the British economy, Wilson must maintain close relations with President Johnson. Britain depends heavily on United States military and economic assistance.

Johnson, however, is reported not too pleased with Wilson's performance. In Wilson's view, Britain must think less of its world role and more of its own national survival—exports before guns and British prestige in faraway places.

But the left-wingers will not be put off. They argue that Johnson is a vicious aggressor and the Vietnamese are innocent victims. They tend to vent their anger against the West instead of the East—they fire their criticism at Washington and not Moscow and Peking.

They have threatened to stage what may become an effective House of Commons filibuster, to delay the passage of vital legislation unless Wilson agrees to an immediate debate on Viet Nam based on their motion that Britain should seek a complete separation from American policy in Viet Nam.

Wilson's government is unlikely to fall on this issue but the outcome could prove highly embarrassing. For next week Wilson entertains Prime Minister Georges Pompidou and Foreign Minister Couve de Murville of France. It would not do to have these visitors, who are led by what a Wilson cabinet colleague called the "bad ally" de Gaulle, witness the turmoil in Wilson's own backyard.

In former years, Wilson might have rushed off to Moscow hopeful of sympathy from Kremlin leaders. But President de Gaulle, the more favored European, has already been there and no Viet Nam solution has emerged. Wilson cannot hope to achieve more.

His left-wingers demand that he go immediately to Washington and tell Johnson off—a move which Johnson is unlikely to appreciate. A Johnson - Wilson meeting has already been agreed to in Washington at some unspecified date after mid-July.

Wilson wants to adhere to that timetable. And even if he goes then, he is unlikely to change Johnson's view.

Canada Observes Birthday With Colorful Celebrations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Athletes competed, a new Miss Dominion of Canada was crowned, a separatist demonstration fizzled and Newfoundlanders remembered their war dead as Canada entered its 99th year as a dominion Friday.

Thousands hit the road for resort country under sunny skies in all but British Columbia and Manitoba. The Canadian Highway Safety Council has predicted 85 persons will die in highway mishaps during the three-day holiday weekend.

In Newfoundland, an eternal flame was lit at St. John's in memory of 286 members of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment who died July 1, 1916, at Beaumont-Hamel during the battle of the Somme. Another 386 of the 783-man regiment was wounded.

A force of 250 Montreal policemen nipped a demonstration by separatist Chevaliers de l'independance (Knights of Independence) against Confederation. About 50 persons were taken into custody.

3-Month Output Up Sharply

OTTAWA (CP)—National output jumped dramatically in the first three months of 1966 before Finance Minister Sharp moved to dampen down the overheated economy.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday the total value of all end-product goods and services produced in Canada in January, February and March was $12,748,000,000.

But converting this figure to an annual rate, taking into account normal seasonal fluctuations, DBS put the gross national product at the equivalent of $55,712,000,000 for the first quarter of 1966.

This was substantially higher than the corresponding figure of $50,196,000,000 for the first quarter of 1965, and the actual result of $51,996,000,000 for the whole of last year. In the final quarter of 1965, the rate was equivalent to a figure of $53,-

Torpedo Boats Hit By U. S.

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. ships and warplanes sank three North Vietnamese torpedo boats in a two - hour engagement in the Gulf of Tonkin, the U.S. command announced today.

Enemy gunners, firing from the boats, damaged a U.S. plane in the fighting Friday, but the pilot landed safely aboard the carrier Constellation. U.S. ships took 18 North Vietnamese crew members aboard after the Communist boats sank.

The naval battle took place 60 miles outside the port of Haiphong in international waters. It began when Communists patrol boats closed in at high speeds on U.S. ships patrolling the area, the navy said.

Cape Breton Will Become Key In Nuclear Power Development

HALIFAX (CP)—Cape Breton Island, long a producer of the conventional industrial ingredients of coal and steel, is about to become an important corner of the developing nuclear age.

With one plant already under construction and another on the drawing boards, Cape Breton will be the centre of heavy water production in Canada.

Canadian General Electric Co. this week selected the Point Tupper area of Cape Breton as a site for its $65,000,000 heavy water plant. Deiterium of Canada Ltd. already is building a $30,000,000 heavy water plant in the coal town of Glace Bay.

"Nova Scotia will take a leading place in the age of nuclear energy," Premier Robert L. Stanfield said in commenting on CGE's decision to establish its plant on the Strait of Canso.

The province's thrust into the nuclear world has provided a sorely-needed boost for Cape Breton, long beset by economic doldrums in coal mining and steel production.

Said Mr. Stanfield: "Establishment of the heavy water plant . . . will require an investment of some $85,000,000—by far the largest single investment in Nova Scotia during the last half of the century.

"The new heavy water plant, in addition to the one being built by Deuterium of Canada Ltd., may well result in making Nova Scotia the heavy water centre of the world."

The heavy water plants have already provided 2,000 construction jobs at Glace Bay and 900 more jobs are expected at Point Tupper. Each heavy water plant will employ more than 200 persons when completed.

Chairman G. I. Smith of the Nova Scotia Power Commission said a power plant to serve the Point Tupper Heavy water plant would cost about $17,000,000 and produce about 82,000 kilowatts.

There are indications the latest heavy water announcement may set off a chain-reaction of industrial development in the Strait of Canso area.

A statement from the Canadian headquarters in Toronto of British-American Oil Co. said discussions are being held with the Nova Scotia Power Commission concerning the possibility of building a refinery at Point Tupper.

The refinery would join the coal industry in fuelling the power plant, expected to supply about 1,100,000 pounds of steam per hour in addition to electrical energy.

Baptist Pastor Accepts Call To Montreal

Rev. Stuart R. Mulligan, pastor of Parkdale Baptist Church for the past two years, has accepted a call to Chomedey Baptist Church in suburban Montreal.

Mr. Mulligan has preached his last service and leaves immediately to take up his new duties.

Friends and members of the congregation gathered recently to pay tribute of Mr. and Mrs. Mulligan's work. Mrs. A. Donald likened Mrs. Mulligan to a vine which clings and gives strength to the tree (Christ's Church). Mr. A. Donald spoke of Pastor Mulligan's resistance to compromise of the truth of the scriptures. A time of fellowship followed and a farewell gift was presented.

Slow Growth Of Vegetation Irks Board

TRENTON — The Trenton Parks' Board has taken over the open space at the intersection of Dixon Drive, Byron Street and Stella Crescent and will be grading this area this summer. Top soil will be added and the area seeded in the fall.

The members of the board, meeting Wednesday night, expressed their dissatisfaction with the growth of Crown Vetch in the Stanley Heights park, and the secretary, Marion Baker was asked to contact the Aero-Conn Company of Toronto to have their experts rule on what should be done to encourage the growth of vegetation in this park. Aero-Conn was paid $2,000 last year to grade the park and plant the Crown Vetch as a means of preventing the sand from blowing around the adjacent sub-division. The board will not pay the company the remaining $2,000 called for in the contract until a satisfactory answer to the problem is forthcoming.

Hanna Park is ready for tourists, with parking space for trailers available. Gilbert Humphrey is park attendant this year. Drinking water, toilet facilities and open fireplaces are provided for those who rent space for their trailers.

The board voted to install a six foot, chain-link fence in Cottrell Park on Dixon Drive, between houses and the park. Parks' gardener, Bart Boers was asked to get prices for spraying poison ivy in Hanna Park and on Mount Pelion where the growth is said to be luxuriant. The board means to buy more picnic tables for the various parks under its jurisdiction.

Meanwhile Grade 13 students finished their examinations on June 21 but won't know their results until the middle of August.

Montreal Loads Ship a Day For Russia

MONTREAL (CP)—An average of one Russia-bound ship a day, each carrying an average of 13,000 tons of wheat, is clearing the port of Montreal, slowly eating into the grain surplus that mounted during the longshoremen's strike here last month.

A total of 14 ships carrying 170,000 tons have left for Russian ports since the strike ended June 16. Most of them were idle in this port for the 39 days the strike lasted.

Capt. D. P. Atherton, marine superintendent for March Shipping, agents for the Russian grain ships, says about 70 per cent of the ships carrying the grain are Russian and the rest are under charter to that country.

He said the surplus now has been reduced so there is no overloading of the elevators and railway facilities but said a near-emergency existed during the last days of the strike.

Five Russian ships now are in port, either loading or waiting to be loaded. Twenty ships are in five Quebec ports for loading grain—Montreal, Sorel, Trois-Rivieres Quebec City and Baie Comeau.

The grain shipments to Russia are under a previous agreement with Canada. John Livingstone of the Canadian Wheat Board here said there has been no information yet on details for shipping a new order of 336,000,000 bushels over a three-year span.

Lunar Probe Is Too Fast

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Lunar Explorer is in orbit about the earth today, its goal of becoming the first U.S. moon satellite dashed by a hot-burning rocket engine.

The Explorer blasted away from Cape Kennedy Fri. The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the probe did well at the outset of the intended three-day, 246,000-mile journey.

But late Friday, analysis of tracking signals showed that the second stage of the Delta booster rocket had produced too much energy.

MOVED TOO FAST

It wasn't much but it shoved the Explorer into space at a speed of 25,710 miles an hour—38 miles too fast.

A ground station commanded the retro to fire 6½ hours after launching — instead of the 74 hours originally intended. This shifted the Explorer out of a path that was carrying it toward a useless orbit about the sun and put it into a looping earth orbit ranging from about 18,600 to 280,000 miles above the earth.

Charge Verdi Promoter With 'Kiting' Cheque

A police spokesman said the charge involves increasing the face value of a certified cheque to $25,000 from $25 and using it as a deposit in the purchase of a milling and lumber firm in Hanover, about 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Olan was arrested by Montreal police Thursday. He is president of La Compagnie des Grandes Premieres de Montreal, which brought Italy's Teatro Regio di Parma to Montreal for the two-week festival. The last performance was staged Thursday night. It opened June 21.

Police said the Ontario officers will escort Olan to Toronto today for identification and then transfer him to Owen Sound where he is expected to appear in magistrate's court Monday.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, Laurent Baranes, who arranged contract details for the festival, was arrested by Montreal police Wednesday and charged with failing to pay $68 in traffic fines.

Following the company's last performance, Olan said that instead of making an estimated profit of $80,000 he lost $100,000.

A dispute between the opera company and Olan over financial arrangements erupted when the cast claimed it had not been paid $59,000 owing to them at the end of last Sunday's performance.

The company was scheduled to spend two weeks at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre but the show has been cancelled.

Says Court Erred in Refusing Bail

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—An appeals court decided Friday a lower court erred in refusing bail to a Canadian accused of participation in a $423,000 robbery of a Brink's Inc., vault in Syracuse, N.Y., in October.

The Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court reversed the decision of Judge Elmer N. Gale of Onondaga County Court that denied bail to Joel Singer, 23, of Chomedy, Que., a Montreal suburb.

The division ruled the case should be returned to Onondaga County Court in Syracuse.

Singer, arrested Dec. 5 in Montreal, was one of seven persons indicted for the robbery. The others have not been named.

He is chaged with first-degree grand larceny and third-degree burglary. His hearing has been postponed indefinitely.

Police said a 20-millimetre anti-tank weapon was used to blast open the Brinks vault.

OFF TO A FAST START — Mario DuHamel, 4½, son of outstanding Canadian motorcycle racer Yvon DuHamel of Montreal, has been riding his own miniature model cycle since he was two years of age. The DuHamels were in Belleville last night for the Dominion Day motorcycle event at the fairgrounds.

Noted Motorcyclist's Son 'Veteran' Rider at Four

Mario Du Hamel has been riding a motorcycle since he was two years old. Not the regular high-powered variety, of course, but a special miniature model provided for the 4½ year-old enthusiast by his father, outstanding Canadian motorcyclist Yvon DuHamel of Montreal.

Mario and his mother accompany Yvon to many of the racing competitions which he enters. They travel in a van-type vehicle that has all the conveniences of a home.

Rated as one of the top Canadian motorcycle racers, Yvon last night captured one of the three class events held at the Dominion Day competition at the fairgrounds, and finished third in the other event in which he was entered. He was not eligible, as an expert driver, to race in the third class.

Employment News

By R. T. Voss,
Supervisor, Special Services

Students have now completed another school year. For those who have graduated it is the end of High School, for the remainder, it is to be hoped they will continue until they do graduate.

At present, there are in National Employment Service files here, graduate students, anxiously seeking employment.

In the technical area, there are Grade 12 graduates in auto-mechanics, electronics and electricity, eager to obtain employment or apprenticeships in these skills, in which they have specialized at school.

Regarding clerical work, there are young men and young ladies graduates of Grade 12 and some of Grade 13, who are seeking employment in various types of office work as clerks, typists, stenographers, book- keepers, tellers, receptionists, etc.

These fine young people are having difficulty finding employment locally.

NES has been successful in placing a number of bright Grade 13 male graduates with a large out-of-town organization, which encourages further education and will pay 70 percent of university fees.

OPENINGS SCARCE

During counselling sessions with Special Services, graduate students, are very frank in expressing their despondency with the lack of employment opportunities locally. Quite a number ask for work out-of-town, these are usually of a very high calibre looking for a career, as opposed to a job.

Another factor which disturbs young people during the final stages of an employment interview, is that employers make remarks such as "We will call you tomorrow"—"You will refinitely hear from us in the next three or four days", — "We will be in contact with you again next week for sure."

These remarks should not be made lightly. Students are not yet acclimatized to the techniques of modern business. They believe what they are told, and when these promises to contact them are delayed — or not kept — they are disillusioned.

Frequently, they wait three or four weeks for an employer to "call", not knowing quite what to do. When they have been counselled to call the employer, they are no further ahead, being told "You are still being considered" or other nebulous or evasive answers.

It is to be hoped employers will make a sincere effort to help these young people, by contacting us at the National Employment Service.

There are two young people who are handicapped being unable to walk. One, a young man, is confined to a wheelchair, the second, a young lady, has a little more mobility. Both can type and have commercial training. Whilst they are physically handicapped, they are not vocationally handicapped and can do, and are eager to do, a good job for an employer.

three international beauty pageants in the coming year—the Miss Universe, Miss World and Miss International contests.

In Ottawa, Parliament Hill became a giant outdoor television studio Friday night as more than 300 Canadian artists sang and danced in a Dominion Day program.

About 5,000 persons watched, including Governor-General and Mme. Vanier, Prime Minister Pearson and State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

Earlier, Gov.-Gen. Vanier, in his annual July 1 address, called on Canadians to cherish and develop the spirit which has already accomplished so much in Canada.

Dignitaries, including Revenue Minister E. J. Benson, were in Kingston to dedicate the Spirit of Sir John A., a locomotive built there in 1913 and named after Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister. The locomotive, donated by Canadian Pacific Railway, was installed in the city's Confederation Park.

Municipal Board Has Approved New Bridge at College Street

The much-talked-about College Street bridge will soon be a reality.

Notice of approval of the project was received this week at city hall from the Ontario Municipal Board. Total cost of the project is $356,000 of which $237,334 will be paid by the city.

The bylaw now must go before council for the third reading. In the meantime, city engineer Wilbur Purcell said the calling of tenders is tentatively scheduled for July 28. "We hope to get started with the work early in September and it should be in operation by early summer of 1967 at the latest."

Mayor Jack Ellis said the tentative schedule is to have the piers in place by late October and the beams up by late November.

He said that consulting engineers Damis and Smith, Toronto, report they are ahead of schedule in approvals from the Department of Highways and with their drafting and engineering phases of the project.

Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson says the required land acquisition schedule is in process now and concrete proposals to land owners involved should be made shortly.

Ald. Jack Allin, long-time outspoken exponent of the project, said "it's like a dream come true."

"I'm pretty happy about the thing. I've been advocating this ever since I came back on council and I've gained some good support from some of the other aldermen."

The soil investigations and drainage plans for the projects are completed and have been submitted to the engineering department.

The new four-lane concrete bridge will be constructed in the same location as the present one-lane bridge. College St. itself will be four lanes from the bridge to Cannifton Rd.

Want Dealers in Explosives To Tell Police of All Sales

OTTAWA (CP)—Paul Chartier came within seconds of assassinating many members of Parliament with a crude $5 bomb, a coroner's inquest was told Thursday.

The jury called for new legislation that would require dealers in explosives to report all their sales to police.

The jury found that Chartier died of hemorrhage and shock about 2:53 p.m., May 18, when a home-made bomb he carried went off prematurely in a washroom near the packed Commons chamber.

Explosives experts testified the safety fuse on his copper tube device measured only two or three inches and that it must have burned in 10 or 11 seconds.

Because of a simple error of arithmetic by Chartier and wrong information given him by a woman who sold him 10 sticks of dynamite at 25 cents apiece, Chartier apparently believed his short fuse would last 25 seconds.

The jury's verdict said he apparently intended to hurl the shrapnel - type bomb into the Commons to kill as many MPs as possible.

The two-day inquest ended at 10:32 p.m. Thursday night after 37 witnesses were heard and 51 exhibits placed in evidence.

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, said the verdict was based on the evidence and was reasonable. He shared the five jurors' concern over the unlicensed, unrestricted sale of high explosives to strangers.

Crown Attorney John Cassells told the jury that two sections of the Criminal Code, the Ontario Mining Act and various municipal bylaws deal with various aspects of the use of explosives.

The Mining Act requires that dynamite fuses be at least three feet long, giving the user two minutes to leave the blasting area.

Section 80 of the Criminal Code provides a five-year prison penalty for possession of a bomb or for making or possessing an explosive substance for an unlawful purpose.

Section 77 of the code makes it a legal duty for anyone having an explosive substance to "use reasonable care" to prevent deaths, injuries or property damage.

Both the Crown attorney and Dr. Cotnam advised the jury against recommending tighter security measures on Parliament Hill. Security would never be 100-per-cent effective and stringent measures would be repugnant in a democracy, they said. A deranged assassin could always evade security nets.

Explosives experts testified that Chartier's bomb was the crude work of a rank amateur. He had jammed four to eight ounces of dynamite in an eight-inch copper pipe.

The fuse burned twice as fast as Chartier had expected and ignited the bomb as he was to leave the washroom.

Speeches, letters and an uncompleted autobiography found in his shabby Toronto rooming house indicated that Chartier blamed "rotten" MPs for poverty, scandals, corruption, injustice and domination of Canada by capitalists.

The rambling, confused autobiography said he faced hardship and ill health because of over-indulgence in sex relations and over-reliance on undetermined pills.

760,000,000 for the whole year.

On a per capita basis, national output was running in the first three months of this year at an annual rate of $2,815, compared with $2,582 in the first quarter of 1965.

A main feature of the statistics bureau's detailed analysis of the economy in its latest report was the effect of introduction of the Canada Pension Plan, for which contributions started Jan. 1.

In addition to starting a strong build-up of cash funds in the hands of the governments involved, the plan meant an increase in labor income even though employers' contributions to the pension fund aren't available to the employees.

Other features in the first quarter of the year were the upward thrust of prices, mainly in meats and other foodstuffs, a boost in exports while imports dragged with the effects of the Ontario trucking strike and a booming consumer demand for durable goods.

cepted the resignation and told him to submit his resignation as vice-president to parliament. He also is a member of the Yugoslav Nuclear Commission, but is not expected to hold the position long.

Rankovic, 57, was considered one of the three top leaders of Yugoslavia, along with Tito and Edward Kardelj, chief party theoritician and parliamentary president. He was thought a possible successor to the 74-year-old Tito.

But Tito revealed at the meeting that a power-conscious element of the secret service, using methods reminiscent of Stalin, was interfering with the central committee and obstructing decisions of both the state and the party.

Rankovic and Stefanovic have directly or indirectly run the secret counter-espionage and internal security organization for two decades.

The central committee called for a re-organization of the secret police. Some ousters of more minor officials were expected.

Leg Fractured

A 20-year-old service station attendant was admitted to Belleville General Hospital early Friday morning as a result of a mishap at the BA service station on Highway 14 just north of the 401.

David Casey, of R. R. 1, Halloway, was serving a customer at the station's gasoline pumps around 1 a.m. when he was struck by a vehicle. He was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with a fractured right leg.

Holiday Accident Toll Small

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Dominion Day holiday started with few accidental traffic deaths across Canada since 6 p.m. Thursday, local times.

With less than two days remaining in the 78-hour weekend 15 highway deaths have been reported. The Canadian Highway Safety Council had predicted 85 would die in traffic mishaps during the holiday.

A Canadian Press survey so far has tabulated at least 22 accidental deaths. These include the 15 traffic deaths, six drownings and one fire death.

In 1963, the last three-day Dominion Day weekend, there was a record toll of 172 deaths, 85 on roads. During this year's three-day Victoria Day weekend in May there were 129 fatalities, 80 in traffic accidents.

Of this weekend's total, Ontario has registered six traffic deaths and three drownings. Quebec had two road fatalities and the fire death and New Brunswick two road deaths and a drowning.

Manitoba and Alberta each reported two traffic fatalities, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia each one drowning and British Columbia one highway death.

Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island were fatality-free.

A Costly Strike

Forty-five days after the beginning of their strike British seamen are beginning the immense task of moving some 900 ships immobilized by their walkout. Presumably the vessels still contain their original cargoes and must therefore be unloaded as well.

For the seamen it may be a hollow victory. They have won a substantial cut in working hours for the same pay, leading to a 40-hour week next year, and will still have 48 days' annual leave. But they have won it at great cost to the country. Britain can ill afford the loss in trade and overseas earnings which the walkout caused.

For the shipowners the strike has been a hard lesson. Transatlantic traffic is feeling the competition of the airlines and some companies recently invested heavily in refitting their vessels.

On the other hand the shorter working hours the seamen have earned may be a spur to increased efficiency. Much will depend on the seamen themselves. Having won substantial concessions they should now get to work with a will if Britain's economy is to be restored to anything like its formal level.

While there was evidence the strike was prolonged unnecessarily (Prime Minister Wilson placed responsibility for this on communist elements in the Seamen's Union) it was also clear that many of the seamen were irked by their enforced idleness and were anxious to return to work.

Museum Plan

The possibility of establishing a series of regional museums in Hastings County, under a museums' board, is one that should commend itself to Belleville citizens interested in maintaining the county museum here on an economical basis and in preserving its contents for posterity.

A committee has been set up to study this issue. It will meet with the museum advisor of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information, with County Council and with the municipalities of Belleville and Trenton.

As things stand, Hastings County Museum may have the dubious distinction of being the only museum in Canada to close in 1967. That is the word from T. S. Ransom, past president of Hastings County Historical Society and museum chairman.

Museums at Bancroft and at O'Hara's Mills near Madoc are reported in the planning stage, a factor which may facilitate the centralization of museum administration that is envisaged. Hastings County Museum in Church Street is one of the cultural attractions of this area, and as such is worthy of more widespread public support.

School Band's Tour

School choirs and bands are in the news these days. Napanee for example has had a visit from the Sodus Swing Choir, a group of young people from the Lake Ontario community between Oswego and Rochester, across the border in New York.

And planning already for one of its most ambitious tours thus far is the Saltfleet High School Concert Band from the Hamilton area. The 72-student band — half boys and half girls, in trim blue blazers and white slacks and skirts — will make its first stop at Expo 67 next year before embarking on a European tour.

From Expo the band will go to the Welsh Eisteddfod and festivals in England, France, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. The group, which has built up an enviable reputation in festivals in this country, will also perform for Canadian forces in Germany.

The trip will cost about $40,000, toward which each band member is contributing $375. Two buses and a large truck will be used to transport the group and its equipment while in Europe. Travelling with them will be eight chaperones.

This is the third trip overseas for the band. It is interesting to note that between now and its departure for Europe, band leader George Houslander is booking the band in as many concerts as possible outside the school. What a catch the group would be for Belleville sometime this fall or winter.

Milk Price Up

It was inevitable we suppose that the price of milk should be raised, what with the tractor demonstrations and the other valid intimations that production costs are hitting hard at the farming community.

Nevertheless, it is the consumer who has to pay — not for the first time; nor is it likely to be the last. As a staple food for thousands of families, the raising of the price of milk in this area by three cents to 30 cents is a particularly hard blow to consumers.

It is just one more sacrifice the consumer must make for inflation masquerading under the title of "prosperity," in a country whose citizens collectively are in debt to the tune of $7 billion.

Ottawa Offbeat

Ralph Cowan Is Terror of Canada's Sacred Cows

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The more you, as a taxpayer, listen to that maverick Toronto Liberal, Ralph Cowan, MP for York Humber, the more dollar-and-sense-making he sounds.

They dismiss him — or, more correctly, like to pretend they're dismissing him — as a "Neanderthal," as they call him.

They discount, downgrade and denigrate him as a "political primitive," scornful of what they regard as his "quaint, old-fashioned ideas" that the taxpayer should be considered if not consulted when they're busy dreaming up new and fancy ways to spend his money.

Ralph Cowan doesn't put it quite that way.

He says it better.

"The poor guy's always getting his neck caught in their wringer — the least they could do is let him go through with his shirt on."

To help the poor guy keep his shirt, Ralph Cowan, since his first day in Parliament, has been impatient to dismember what he calls "that money-devouring monster," the CBC, and distribute its parts, for a price, to the private TV and radio networks and stations.

FILM FANTASY

He regards it as fantastic that CBC should spend an annual hundred million or more tax dollars when independently objective public opinion polls and surveys show most taxpayers are listening to Canda's privately operated radio stations and watching American television channels.

And he considers what he calls the "fantasy of the Seven Days fiasco" — with the managed managing the management — as conclusive proof that CBC believes it has "the divine right to spend."

Now Ralph Cowan's after State Secretary Judy LaMarsh and her plan to invest $10,000,000 of the taxpayers' vanishing treasure in a government-sponsored feature film industry.

La Judy's so overboard for the idea that she has threatened in the Commons to impose embargoes against the long-established but now financially uncertain American and British film industry if Canadians don't care for the government-backed feature fare.

What makes her think the taxpayers are going to pay to see Canadian films, he asks, when she herself admits to preferring American TV — and it is free.

Isn't it great, he laughed wryly in the Commons the other night, that the taxpayers have all this money to toss around.

"It's terrific," he said, "this cynicism we have that we can throw $10,000,000 to the artistic longhairs while telling our old people we're too broke to give them another $25 for their pinchpenny $75 pensions."

Anyway, he insists, private and community enterprise can always do the cultural thing better—look at what and how artistically well Stratford did with Shakespeare!

EVER ENOUGH

The taxpayers, cried Cowan, need a federally bankrolled film industry like they need another strike on the Quebec waterfront.

Well, how badly do they need a Canadian Hollywood?

And has the Federal Government been tight-fisted with what Mr. Cowan calls the artistic longhairs?

The CBC makes a great deal of film — most of its actuality news is on celluloid. Other programs, too.

And the Finance Department Estimates this year show the taxpayers subsidizing CBC with $113,848,000.

Then there's the National Film Board.

It long has been in the business of making films, many of them features and featurettes, and some of them for CBC.

Cost?

Again the Finance Department Estimates tell the dollar story.

That makes a total of $121,137,200, much of it for film-making.

So who needs another $10,000,000?

The very thought of it sends shivers down the Cowan spine.

Government spending for culture, he has found, from studying the Finance Estimates, tends to get wildly out of hand.

Like the National Centre for the Performing Arts in Ottawa which, initially, was estimated only two years ago at $9,000,000 and currently is costing $33,000,000 with still all kinds of costly frills and flounces to be tidied up and no dollar end in sight.

Craving for Lettuce Likely Just a Quirk

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was interested in a letter you published about a person's craving for lettuce. For several years I had a slight desire for lettuce, and this grew until I wanted more than a head a day.

I also had some other symptoms and it was discovered that I had a severe iron deficiency. After a number of iron injections I lost my craving for lettuce. Couldn't there be a relationship between the two? — J. W.

Sometimes a hunger for some certain food may — I said may — mean something, but usually not. Mostly it's a quirk of appetite rather than Nature telling you that something vital is missing in your diet.

In North America (this does not apply to all parts of the world) we have a vast variety of foods. If we had one-tenth or one-fiftieth of the number of foods, we would still have enough to supply all the necessary elements of nutrition.

People go in for all sorts of special diets that are supposed to cure or prevent things — or are just supposed to be healthful. They spend money on carrot juice machines, seaweed, cabbage juice, various kinds of seeds, wheat germ, grain with the bran included, grain with the bran removed, or you name it.

Trick diets have become a fad, a fetish, a hobby. It's probably a harmless one except for the expense, and if people want to spend their money on such notions, that's up to them.

I'm also very much in favor of a well-balanced diet for everybody, but I don't care whether people get their leafy vegetables from bibb lettuce (which I like) or from dandelion greens they picked in the backyard.

Lettuce has a bit of iron, but parsley, endive and green leafy vegetables have five times more of it. Thus, I cannot help suggesting that your taste for lettuce wasn't a very accurate guage as to what you needed. A hunger for, say, spinach, would have been better.

True enough, your anemia (iron deficiency) may have led you to feel that you "needed something" in your diet, but the fact is that quirks of appetite aren't particularly reliable guides.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been treated for water on the knees and arthritis, and had cortisone injected three times. But my knees remain stiff and I dread going up steps. Is it harmful to have the water removed? — Mrs. A. A.

Fluid in the knee joints is not uncommon when there has been degenerative joint change, the wear-and-tear type of arthritis that doesn't usually occur until age 50 or later. Such fluid accumulation is possible in other joints, but the knees are more likely to be affected.

This fluid or water on the knee is more alarming than serious. If there is a great deal of it, it can be withdrawn, and this is not a dangerous procedure. Irritation of the joint is usually the cause.

However, the fluid may come and go by itself in some cases, and in that instance allergy to certain foods has been suspected. If this happens, you might watch your diet and note whether certain foods are followed by increasing fluid.

Note to Mrs. L. L.: Yes, after childbirth, it is often necessary to have a different diaphragm fitted. Don't turst the old one unless your doctor has found it to fit properly.

Letter to the Editor

Whither Canada's Indians?

Editor,
The Intelligencer

On November 25, 1965, The Intelligencer published a thoughtful and challenging editorial on Indians in Canada. It referred to the Indians in their special slough of despond, the 450 Indians who marched in Kenora, the discrimination against Indians in employment, and the sessions of "Iroquois Speak" in Toronto and in Ottawa.

There was a strong recommendation for a Royal Commission to be set up to investigate the conditions, make recommendations, and try to move towards improved conditions for Indians.

Seven months have passed and many of the recommendations made at the "Iroquois Speak" were accepted by the Federal government, particularly our hope for the formation of an Indians and Northern Affairs Ministry and that Hon. Arthur Laing would head it. During his brief period in office the $112,000,000 home improvement program has been launched, there has been active effort in giving grants to certain elected Indian Act band councils, and an effort by the Indian Affairs Branch to achieve something constructive.

However the progress, if there is progress, is not matching the progress backwards. The life expectancy of Indians goes steadily down and now stands at 34 years. The employment of Indians in Saskatchewan has dropped to about 10 percent of the Indians being able to support themselves. The gap between earning enough to survive and not earning enough is widening, particularly among those living in the part of Canada north of the CPR mainline.

It is sad to relate that we are now going to spend $2 million of Indian money on a false propaganda program at Expo 1967. We are not going to tell the truth about the desperate circumstances of Indians, but present cheerful propaganda that we are surviving, mutliplying and doing alright. This is a great waste when Indian babies are starving, and 19 years is the life expectancy in the Northwest Territories.

To suggest that Indians will participate in the white man's elections is a ridiculous hope. In Caughnawaga, the most progressive and enlightened of Indian reservations, with the average Indian earning $100 to $225 per week, only eight voted out of some 3,000 voters. Indians, after frequent betrayals, have very little faith in the white man.

My own experience is that the Indian who sits up on his hind feet and begs from the government, who gives in to the government wishes, and obeys the plans of the Ottawa offices, is showered with salaries, expenses, honors and importance. The fact that the plans are destructive to Indians does not matter to the misinformed and misguided government, and the bought Indian does not worry once he has sold out. But once you stand up and speak anything in the way of opposition, criticism, or constructive comment, you are put into a corner, your correspondence is photostated and forwarded all over the place to be used against you and the atmosphere is very bad.

In Caughnawaga, for example Taio Tekane Horn is engaged in a battle with the powerful group guided by the local Roman-Catholic priest. And recently, the council in power permitted a huge garbage dump on the reserve in return for an alleged payment of some $23 per week, did nothing to oppose issuance of an illegal liquor licence which was later cancelled, and has instigated all sorts of police actions against those opposing it.

While we are in the right, have justice on our side, and have pointed out many wrong doings of the present council, the government supports it because it goes along with the government. One man alone has a total of 11 different appointments under the government and in special associations. He is one of those who meet with stern opposition from the Longhouse people, but as they do not vote and he is one of the Roman-Catholic Indians who does vote he presently controls the reserve.

This type of interference and support of certain types of Indians in the elected council is making it difficult to awaken Indians to the heavy responsibility, the necessary moral reform, the duty to future generations. A Royal Commission will resolve nothing. Rather, less interference would help a great deal.

There are black clouds ahead for Indians in Canada.

The population, now at 250,000 of Indian status and perhaps 200,000 to 300,000 of Metis status but of Indian character, is increasing at a rate of 4 percent per year, doubling every 14 years.

The cost for those of Indian status now exceeds only $300,000 every day, and is skyrocketing while the numbers increase at a stiffer pace.

In Saskatchewan Premier Thatcher comments that 80 to 90 percent of all Indians, or people of Indian blood, need financial welfare, aid and free medical care. He is shocked by the increased numbers and demands for attention. In Saskatchewan only 900 out of 50,000 have steady employment!

In Quebec the problem grows rapidly. There is much unrest in Caughnawaga, while throughout Canada there is a smouldering hatred and anxiety on Indian reserves.

Kahn-Tineta Horn,
Caughnawaga, P.Q.

Editor's Note: Miss Kahn-Tineta Horn is a Mohawk and a frequent commentator on Indian affairs. Last year she addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and during the past 12 months visited some 40 Indian reserves.

Missing the Point

Montreal Le Presse

The main trouble with CBC public affairs shows, on the English network at least, is that too many producers know only the forms: Controversy: acrimony, provocation, entrapment of public figures into thoughtless statements.

The battle of Marston Moor was fought 322 years ago today—in 1644—seven miles west of York, England. The Parliamentary armies, numbering 27,000, defeated the 18,000-man Royalist force under Prince Rupert, wiping out most of it by nightfall. Although Prince Rupert escaped with 6,000 men to rejoin King Charles in southern England, the Northern Army, the main hope of the Royalists, was destroyed. The rest of the King's forces were defeated and disarmed the following year and Charles was tried and executed in 1649.

School Kids Get Ulcers

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

"Even in the kindest and gentlest of schools, children are afraid, many of them a great deal of the time, some of them almost all the time. Children live all the time in the class room under a kind of tension that most adults have long forgotten."

These are the words of John Holt, an exceptionally perceptive teacher and educational researcher, in his illuminating book, How Children Fail, which in only two years has already become a classic of empathy between teacher and pupil.

How right he was may be gathered from the recent report of a psychologist that "an astounding number" of elementary school children throughout the United States are developing ulcers.

Dr. H. Gerthon Morgan, Director of the Institute of Child Study at the University of Maryland, said academically bright children, under pressure to excel from their families, their communities, their teachers or from within themselves, became quite upset and often had nightmares because of it.

It has long been a failing of elders to seek success and aggrandizement by proxy of their youngsters. But the war of nerves in which children are currently pushed and prodded to achieve grades, rank and honors is so damaging that it must surely be regarded as a new and deadly phenomenon.

More appalling, if possible, are the adult attitudes that have brought this state of affairs about: a deficient respect for the individual child, and either inability or unwillingness to put oneself in his place. As Mr. Holt says, "We must set a limit to the tension that we put children under."

Physical and mental health are even more basic than education to the happy development of human personality.

A CENTENNIAL CONTRIBUTION

"Only once in a hundred years is one invited to the celebration of a centenary." — The Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter.

Lo! Another six months — Canada's centenary of confederation will be here!

Many are the projects being planned and prepared in its honor.

In our midst, one, among others, is sponsored by a group of Belleville artists, known as "The Canadiana '67 Group of Painters" a part of The Belleville Art Association, who are painting and sketching many authentic, historical buildings and sites of the Qiunte District.

"We hope to display this collection during the centenary at various public places in and about Belleville; such as shopping plazas, motels, restaurants, banks, libraries and stores," says the chairman, Mrs. Lewis (Muriel) Andrews, 125 Victoria Ave., the originator of this idea, who wishes to extend an invitation of welcome to all interested artists. Phone: (962-0600).

"This group is not a closed group," Mrs. Andrews adds, "but offers an opportunity for participating artists to contribute toward a pictorial record of Canada's past as played in our vicinity, and by so doing remember our forefathers who, as one well expressed it 'paid the price of what we are'."

Thus, as an invited observer, we with pleasure accompanied Mrs. Andrews along with Mrs. Robert Williamson, Mrs. Thornton Brown, and Mrs. W. L. Peddie, artist members, on a field-trip to Picton, where in spite of the rain, they "worked" anyway.

Among sites visited and painted were the Registry Office; District Court House and Goal on Union Street, which, began in 1832, is one of the province's oldest remaining public buildings; Rickarton Castle Hotel, built in the mid-1800's is supposedly a scaled down replica of Warwick Castle in England; Glenora (once Stone Mills) where John A. Macdonald's father operated the flour and carding mill when this was a bustling community in the early 1800's and had a plaster mill, a moulding shop, hotel and Little Giant Water Wheel foundry, now the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests Fisheries Research Station.

"Waupoos is the Indian name for a rabbit . . . Marysburgh, (first settled township) has turned a settler's home (circa 1820) "The Rose House" into a museum. An "Old Dutch Burying Ground" is nearby . . . Milford, named for its numerous mills as a lumber centre (on the banks of the Black River, P.E.'s largest stream) was known as a "wild town" due to sailors and lumbermen "living it up in the town" . . .

"Bloomfield, named in 1833, a Quaker centre, once had three meeting houses. Hops, first planted in 1844 reached its peak in 1891 when 269,101 pounds were harvested. Many homes have hop kilns out behind . . . Demorestville, founded by a school teacher, with 400 inhabitants once became (in the 1840's) the second largest community in the county; with two churches, three stores, two taverns, one wagon-maker, one blacksmith, two tailors and two shoemakers . . .the Kente Mission with headquarters near Lake Consecon (an Indian word for pickeral), set up in 1668, took in the north shore of Lake Ontario . . . the Mohawk physician, Oronhyatekha (Dr. Peter Martin), Oxford educated friend of King Edward VII and supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters set up Forester's Island as the site of an orphanage by the Order."

"As we listened to this group's worded tapestry of historical research of the past, Canada's coming centenary took on a meaning of greater significance along with Edmund Burke's remark:

"People will not look forward to posterity who never look back to their ancestors."

We are told that a similar field-trip was made to Deseronto by this group some time ago, and the Deseronto authorities were so pleased with one painting that it was purchased and hangs today in the Deseronto Library as a contribution toward their centennial effort.

The painting was by Mrs. Andrews, who, after graduating from the Ontario College of Art studied one year at the Cleveland School of Art, and since has studied with various Canadian artists, and now has a studio in Belleville.

For the last six or seven years she taught in Odessa, Napanee, Deseronto, Wellington and Hillier, under the Community Programs Division, Department of Education, and in Guelph, Ridgetown and Kemptville for the Regional Skill Courses in the summer.

A busy wife and mother of two teenagers, John and Mary, Mrs. Andrew's ambition is to live up to the motto: "Nulla dies sina linea" ("Not a day without a line").

Family Reunion

(HOLMES FAMILY)

QUEENSBORO — On Saturday, the 42nd annual reunion of the Holmes family was held in Tweed Memorial Park.

About 80 members of the family gathered. They came from Larder Lake, Ottawa, Carp, Oshawa, Stirling, Trenton, Codrington, Tweed, Madoc and Queensboro.

Dinner was served at noon and the young people spent the afternoon swimming, while the older ones enjoyed visiting.

The officers for next year are: president, Percy Manchester of Ottawa; 1st vice-president, Ross Fleming of Madoc; 2nd vice-president, Durwood Holmes of Thomasburg; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Lynn of Tweed.

A minute's silence was held in memory of Mrs. Dan Bird and Mrs. Earl Wannamaker, who had passed away since last reunion.

Letters were read from Mrs. Bertha Black of Plentywood, Montana; Mrs. Egbert Fordyce of Farwell, Michigan, and Mrs. Norman Kerry of South Mountain, Ontario.

Prizes were given to Mrs. Mac McGuire of Larder Lake for the woman coming the farthest, to Mr. Walter Blackburn of Larder Lake for the man coming the farthest, to Mr. John Holmes of Stirling for the oldest man, to Mrs. Edmund Groves for the oldest woman present. Youngest babies were Jeanne Diane, daughter of Barbara and Don Martin and Debbie Lee, daughter of Leslie and James Woof.

It was decided to hold the reunion at the same time and in the same place next year.

Odd Fellows, Rebekahs Lay Wreaths

STIRLING — The annual decorating day and memorial service of Stirling Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 239 and Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 was held on Sunday. The members gathered at the I.O.O.F. Hall on Charlotte Street. Earl Fox was marshal and Malcolm Sharp and Ralph Parks were flag bearers.

The Rebekah members, assembled at the cemetery, laid a floral basket in memory of the deceased Sisters. Mrs. Lillian Johnson, Mrs. Ilene Dafoe and Mrs. Helen Hulin were in charge.

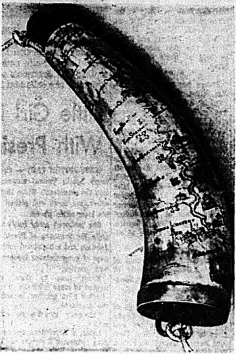
Know Your Antiques



Revolutionary soldiers fighting for independence used powder horns of cow horn like this elaborately decorated example. A map of the Albany, N.Y., area was scratched on the horn.

(Max Hess Collection, Allentown, Pa.)

Animal Horns Were Prized By 18th Century Soldiers

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Buffalo or cow horns were prized by the 18th century soldiers because a waterproof powder horn could be made from the horns.

A metal or wooden plug was inserted at the open bottom of the horn. The tip was cut off for a spout and a cap was made for it. Gun powder was kept in the handy, dry horn. European powder horns were often made from cow, bullock or ox horns. Elaborate engraving was added by the owner. Lines were scratched into the surface and sometimes colors were rubbed into the lines.

Forts, maps, buildings, birds, animals, flowers, and the owner's name and the date were the favored designs. The powder horn was replaced by the metal or leather powder flask about 1830.

Q. "Bigelow and Kennard" and "handel" are names I hear whenever Tiffany type lamps are discussed. When and where did they work?

A. Bigelow Brothers and Kennard worked in Boston, Massachusetts about 1845. They were manufacturers of coin silver.

Recent information has led us to believe that later, about 1890, they also made Tiffany type lamps with leaded shades.

Handel lamps are the "newest" antique for the collector of "art noveau." Philip J. Handel worked in Meriden, Connecticut about 1885 and in New York City about 1900. His firm made many types of art glass, gas, and electric lamps. Some of Handel's lamps had shades of leaded glass. Others had a specially prepared glass shade with painted designs. When the light was turned on, the picture showed through the shade. Handel worked until the 1930's.

Q. What are Wavecrest, Kelva, and Nakara boxes?

A. The C.F. Monroe Company of Meridan, Connecticut decorated a white glassware made by the Pairpont Manufacturing Company of New Bedford, Massachusetts. The glass was painted a pale pastel and decorated with flowers, designs, or scenes. The three names were used on pieces of this glassware. Kelva was used about 1904, Wavecrest after 1898, and Nakara about the same time.

Most of the wares were made into ladies' dresser sets, jewel boxes, powder boxes, hair receivers, and other such wares. Many of the boxes were lined in gold, rose or gray satin.

Very few pieces of Kelva, Nakara or Wavecrest are labelled. The collector must learn to recognize the distinctive shape and decoration of the boxes.

LUND, Sweden — The similarity in the names of Lund and London is more than coincidence.

Canute the Great wasn't quite powerful enough to stay the tide when he placed his throne on the beach and ordered the ocean to stand off. But the old Viking did have the mightiest empire in Northern Europe in the eleventh century. It ranged over Denmark, Norway, the Shetland Islands, and much of Sweden and England, including London.

Lund was founded to be Canute's London in Scandinavia and within a century had become its commercial, political, cultural and religious capital. For four centuries, until the Reformation, its bishops or kings continued to hold sway over much of northern Europe.

As its influence waned in other spheres, Lund came in for a new boom. Just 300 years ago its university was founded. With 15,000 students today — five times as many as it had a decade ago — the university is more than half again as large as Oxford, Cambridge or Heidelberg.

ATMOSPHERE UNCHANGED

But as a city, Lund is only half the size of those, and has lost none of the atmosphere laid on by nearly 1,000 years as a Viking capital, bishopric, and college town.

Lund lies 15 minutes by road inland from the port of Malmo, which in turn is 35 minutes by hydrofoil, or wheels-up wheels-down by SAS, from Copenhagen. It is in Sweden's southernmost province of Scania, a comely land of rolling farms and regal chateaux which, despite having given Wisconsin and Minnesota a good number of its citizens, still is the most densely populated of Sweden's provinces. Lund, like Malmo (with which it will ultimately become a huge urban area), is once again booming beyond even Canute's wildest dreams.

But the boom — mostly in desperately needed student facilities — is outside the magic circle of the old inner city, where the past of cobbled streets step-gabled houses, half-timbered shops with wrought signs, and ivy - covered university buildings, is lovingly preserved.

In the centre of it stands Lund's historic cathedral, started in Canute's time, Scandinavia's finest Romanesque edifice. Its sandstone walls are nine feet thick. The crypt holds the remains of nine centuries of bishops and kings.

The cathedral's most famous attraction is its astronomical clock, wound once every 50 years. Built by an unknown German artisan in the fourteenth century, it was rediscovered in pieces in the basement and loft of the cathedral 43 years ago. It was reassembled with a new calendar dial that computes the dates of everything from moon phases to feast days until 2123, all of it in an elaborate Latin code that would take an IBM machine a while to crack.

On the hour figures of the three wise kings emerge, parade and bow before the Virgin and Child, and a mechanical lute plays a melodious old Christmas carol. Not a few visitors feel like applauding.

FINEST MUSEUM

Lund has perhaps Sweden's finest cultural museum. Its forte is an outdoor museum of 32 buildings assembled from all over Sweden. They range from patrician houses and blacksmith shops to barns and wooden country churches with separate triangular bell towers, the latter all the vogue in modern church architecture but as old as Christianity in Scandinavia.

Lund's Archive of Decorative Art is unique. Here famous masterworks are traced from preliminary sketches through rough outlines, plaster miniatures and finished replicas.

Every four years, in May, Lund has a blast, a gay fund-raising carnival wherein the students doff their dinky white caps to splash themselves with makeup and crazy costumes. Homemade floats, parades, bands, political lampoons and general carousing through the streets bring as many as 100,000 visitors a day.

The 150 or so chateaux scattered through Scania — including one on the largest private estate in Europe — date to the province's earlier golden age when it was the fortress of Sweden. Some were bastions, others monasteries or convents. Later they became private museums. Half a dozen are open to the public, including the one known as Bosjokloster, in the centre of the province.

Owned by Counte Carl-Philip Bonde, Bosjokloster is a one-time convent built around a court, and rests on a bucolic peninsula between the two arms of the glittering lake called Ringsjon. Manicured lawns and gardens slope to the waters. The gleaming white step-gabled mansion with its orange tile roofs brings to life the fairytale quality of the countryside.

MODERN MALMO

There is nothing fairytale or bucolic about modern Malmo. It has become the commercial centre of Scania, handling so much travel and transshipment from industrial Sweden that it will probably soon be joined by a bridge - tunnel complex to Copenhagen and have a unified international airport. It could become the busiest in Europe—if Sweden and Denmark can stop kicking the political football around and decide which one it will be in.

Facilities are being expanded so Malmo's shipyards soon will be building the world's largest ships. Limhamn, a fishing village 20 years ago, is now the city's main industrial complex, its horizon lined with oil tanks and smoking chimneys. Apartments and self-contained communities are rising in seemingly endless rows far beyond the city limits.

Yet Malmo has made a good job of it. The city, Sweden's third largest, has an even commercial and residential pace about it. Much of its area is charming green park land, and in its downtown streets there is an even blend of old houses and new ones peaceful squares and shiny - windowed shopping streets.

The picturesque canals that wind through the city once were the moats of mighty Malmohus Castle. Its red brick turrets, keeps, and walls still are beautifully preserved and ready to stand guard against the Danes across Ore Sound again.

And if they don't settle that airport problem they may need it, along with another Canute the Great to bring Scandinavia's history back full circle to another unification.

Successful Living

Must Not Tolerate Attempt at Blackmail

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I am 15. I had been going with Don, also 15. He worked for a local man who is married with two kids.

One night Don and I went into the back of his boss' shop. We watched TV for a while and generally fooled around. Before we knew it we had gone too far — almost all the way. It was the first time for me and I'll never let it happen again.

What neither of us knew was that Jim (the boss) had a tape recorder rigged up. He now has the tape and is holding it over my head. He says if I don't do what he wants me to and if I tell a soul about the recording he'll play it to my folks.

Jim has been making passes at me. What should I do? Please help me. — SCARED.

DEAR SCARED: This is blackmail — a crime; a far worse one than anything you and Don could dream up.

The only way to foil a blackmailer is to get to the people he threatens to tell, first. And tell them.

These people are your parents, who love you. They can recall incidents in their youth when they behaved at less than their best, and will not be as unforgiving as you might think. If it terrifies you to open the subject, show them my letter for a starter. Believe me, this is the only way.

DEAR DORIS: Would social workers take children from a mother who says she loves them, because she has no means of supporting them, or would social aid be given to help her out?

In this case the mother was 17 when she married a heavy drinker. She left him, taking their two children, and lived with another man who stole to support them because of no job. He is in a penitentiary for a few years. She had a third child which was put out for adoption, and the two oldest placed with the paternal and maternal grandparents.

I would appreciate hearing your views on this. — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: Children are not taken from a loving mother due to lack of funds to support them; she is helped, financially and otherwise, to keep the home together. So that's that question taken care of.

But there's more to this case than meets the eye — if you need any more. Does a man have to steal if he hasn't a job? How did the mother fail? There must have been a mighty good reason for dealing out the children to grandparents. Might it occur to you that there was some moral or mental instability here?

Children are taken from parents only as a last resort. If there is constant quarelling; physical abuse; serious illness; or any other situation which means little ones are neglected or treated cruelly, they may be moved to capable foster parents, temporarily or permanently.

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION: My cousin's daughter is to be married and I have decided to have a recipe shower for her. Each guest will be asked to bring a recipe for a main course and a dessert. I will ask the groom's mother to bring some of her son's favorite's so that his new wife will be able to "feed him right." I know very few of the people who know the bride and I could not ask for gifts from ones who are nearly strangers to her, yet I do want to entertain for her. This ought to do it, I think. Now for your help — have you any bride-type recipes that you could send for the nucleus of the recipe scrap book that we will make as part of the entertainment? Mrs. S. B.

ANSWER: I have mailed several former releases to you. The following will be helpful to other June brides and their new husbands.

BEEF STEW FOR TWO (for 2 meals)

I am suggesting that you make a double quantity. Use half for current meal and refrigerate remainder for a dinner for 2 or three days hence. I claim beef stew tastes better the second time it is served.

1½ lbs. boneless beef, cut in 1" cubes (chuck or shin)
3 cups hot water
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ clove garlic, minced
½ medium onion, sliced
1 small bay leaf, crumbled
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
4 carrots, halved
4 small onions
4 small potatoes

Brown meat thoroughly in a little butter on all sides (about 30 minutes) in heavy saucepan. Add all ingredients except vegetables. Cover tightly and simmer about 2½ hours until tender. Add vegetables; cook 30 minutes longer until vegetables are tender. If you wish to thicken broth, remove solids from stew to hot platter. Slowly stir in ½ cup water and ¼ cup flour stirred to a smooth paste. Bring to boil and boil for 1 minute. Taste, season and pour over stew. Refrigerate half for future meal.

PERCH FILLETS AU GRATIN (for 2 people)

Buy a one-pound package of perch (or other fresh frozen fillets) and ask your husband to divide it in half with strong knife. Re-freezerwrap one half and store in freezer for a future meal. Thaw remaining half and lift fillets apart and place in one layer on buttered shallow baking dish. In a small saucepan melt 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, stir in 1 tablespoon flour and ¼ teaspoon salt and when blended, add 2/3 cup milk and stir until thick. Pour over the fillets in baking dish. Sprinkle ½ cup grated cheese over top and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes or until bubbly and tinged with gold.

Little Girl in Strong With President Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Courtenay Lynda Valenti wandered into the president's White House office, sat down and picked up his inter-office phone.

She jabbered away softly despite the presence of President Johnson and a high-level conference of congressional leaders of both parties.

From time to time, she paused to stare critically at one speaker after another, including the president.

Courtenay made no comments.

Later, a Republican congressman requested a picture of "the marvellous little girl who took part in our conference." He said he'd never before attended a presidential meeting "with a little girl monitoring it."

Courtenay is 2½ years old now. But she's already had more inside moments with the president of the United States and his advisers than many a politician.

RIDES WITH LBJ

Johnson calls her a few times a week to chat. She rides in his helicopters, greets him at church, visits his ranch. And, not long ago she stood triumphantly on the front seat of the president's car while he drove. She discussed the passing countryside with him and his secretary of defence at Camp David.

The sprightly little girl with soft brown hair and brown eyes holds her own with the tall man in the White House. When he asks her to do something, she just tells him "Wait a minute, prez."

Courtenay is acknowledged as the president's "favorite girl friend." He even has an album of pictures inscribed to her that way. It contains a continuing collection of photos of Courtenay and the president taken by Johnson's favorite official photographer, Yoichi Okanoto.

Courtenay's romance with the president started when she started to walk—and that was early, "about nine or 10 months," says her father and chief press spokesman, Jack Valenti.

WON'T FADE

Getting ready to leave his post as a top presidential adviser to become president of the Motion Picture Association of America with offices a few blocks away, Valenti said:

"Whether the president sees me or not—this romance will go on." It will surmount all difficulties, geographical or otherwise, like any real romance, he predicted.

Courtenay's parents first introduced her at the White House, where they already had a big in.

Father Jack had gone to work for Johnson the day he succeeded to the presidency. And mother, Mary Margaret Wiley, had been Johnson's secretary for nine years on Capitol Hill before her marriage.

When Courtenay isn't hobnobbing at the White House, she has a coterie of little friends her own age, the sons and daughters of other prominent Washingtonians.

But when things get boring at home, she sends word:

"Tell prez I wanna go helicopter."

Ann Landers

Sharp-Tongued Wife Diminishes Own Image

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print my letter on the chance even one woman will recognize herself and stop belittling her husband.

For almost 50 years my mother has chopped up my father with her razor-sharp tongue. If anyone suggested to my mother that she is being unfaithful she would be furious, but this sort of disloyalty is the cruelest of all.

Doesn't a wife realize that every time she attacks her husband in the presence of the family, neighbors or friends she diminishes not him, but herself?

My parents are old now, but my sisters and I still dread to go home. It's heartbreaking to see my mother still ripping into dad — scolding, berating, needling, attacking. He sits in silence, never defending himself, not even bothering to correct her wild exaggerations. What a saint he must be to have taken such abuse for almost a quarter of a century!

Put this letter in your own words, Ann, but print it. It could do a lot of good. — TOO CLOSE TO COMFORT.

DEAR TOO CLOSE: Your words were excellent. And here they are — just as you wrote them. If the shoe fits, ladies — take the shoe off.

DEAR ANN: My husband's oldest brother is divorced. When he got out of the army six months ago we let him move into our two-bedroom apartment. He pays one-third of the rent and utilities.

This brother has the morals of a tomcat. He runs around with the worst chippies in town — some of them professionals. It makes me sick that he brings these tramps to our apartment and forces us to sit in the park, or in a movie or coffee shop until after midnight.

My husband says I am being childish and that it is not right to interfere in the life of an adult relative, especially since he is paying part of the rent. What do you say- — SPLIT LEVEL WIFE.

DEAR SPLIT LEVEL: Your husband is right. When you allowed the Tomcat to move in and pay part of your rent it became his place, too.

How did you manage the rent before your brother-in-law came on the scene? Invite the bum to find a place of his own immediately so you and your husband can get back to decent and respectable living.

DEA RAN NLANDERS: My husband parks himself in front of the TV 10 minutes before the game starts to make sure everything is in perfect order. The minute the game begins he turns on the radio. If you haven't heard two announcers screaming at the same time you are lucky. I can't understand one word either of them is staying. My husband insists he understands them both perfectly.

If it's a double-header or a 12- or 13- innings game I have to bring his dinner on a tray. If I utter one word, he shushes me up and says, "Later, dear." I hope the house doesn't start to burn during a game because I couldn't get the message through to him.

How can I make my husband see that he is being selfish and inconsiderate? — MARRIED TO A BASEBALL NUT.

DEAR MARRIED: You can't — and the sooner you accept the fact, the better.

I can think of worse things than having a husband in the next room listening to and looking at a baseball game. You've got high class worries, Honey.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT W. COULL

Coull – Fuzzen

The wedding ceremony was performed in Christ Church, Belleville, when Lynne Arlene Fuzzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Fuzzen, Belleville was united in marriage to Robert William Coull, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Coull of St. Catharines. Rev. Canon R. DeBlois Wright officiated at the ceremony on Saturday, June 25, at 3:30 p.m.

An overskirt ertending to a small train highlighted the overall effect. A finger-tip veil of tulle flowed from a braided wedding ring headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of of yellow roses mingled with stephanotis.

Miss Brenda Broadhurst, of Peterborough, as maid of honor and the two bridesmaids, Miss Carol Fuzzen of Malibou, California, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Mary Heard of Oakdale, were all dressed alike in yellow sheath dresses of silk shantung highlighted with overskirts of yellow and green print.

Mr. Don Krikorian was the groomsman, while Mr. Douglas Aitchison and Mr. Robert Cornelius were the ushers.

For the wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario, the bride chose a pale green suit, black and white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Lines on Life

Man What He Thinks He Is

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

A school boy was in great distress every morning, having forgotten where he put his clothes and books before he went to bed. One evening he devised a plan which he thought would solve his problem. He took a piece of paper and wrote: "The suit is on the chair, the hat is in the closet. The books are on the desk; the shoes are under the chair. And I am in bed."

Next morning he began to collect his things. They were all in their places. When he came to the last item, he went to look for himself in bed — but his search was in vain.

"Where am I?" — the bewildered cry he let fly is the question so many of us feel deeply. Perhaps we don't know where we are because we don't know who or what we are.

A man is what he thinks he is. He has it in his power to be but a little lower than the angels, or not much higher than the beasts. He has the power of faith, or the dirve for disloyalty. He can aspire or he can scoff. He can love, but he is also capable of cruel, beastly hate.

But what man feels he is, shapes his behavior. What we think of ourselves determines what we make of ourselves.

It is reported that an astronomer and a philosopher engaged in an earnest discussion. Said the astronomer:

"Astrologically speaking, what is man? He's but an unimportant speck in a far-flung universe of staggering proportions and tremendous distances."

Astrologically speaking, man is the astronomer! It is in his mind that the distances have meaning. It is man who unlocks the atom and wrests out of it the secret forces that lie within it. Only man can harness these forces. But how he shall harness them — for good or evil— is up to him," said the philosopher.

We come back again full circle. What man considers he is, determines what he will do to himself. If man is only a plaything, a tool, a fleeting whimsy of circumstances — then nothing matters. He must live for the moment — pushing, shoving, exploiting. Doomsday is at hand and all striving won't be worth a farthing!

But if he holds on to a religious definition of life, he won't become the beast he easily can be. He will see the crystal springs, not just the muddy waters. He will hear the sweet music about him, not only the rasping grunts and shrieking shouts of man-eating men.

And while he won't shut his eyes or ears to what is evil, he will be inspired to uproot what is bad and wrong. But only when he has a vision of what is good and right. It is the vision of the divine that makes us more truly human. God made man in His own image. And man becomes more human only when he acts as if he understood this.

Who are we? What are we? We are — each of us, every last one of us — children of God. And we must never forget that, not for one moment. For if we do, that's about all the time history will give us.

To live today we need to feel eternity in our hearts.

A Lift for Living

A Man Offers Prayer For Our Country

By REV. HAROLD. E. KOHN

God of our fathers, Father of all mankind, beneath whose guiding hand our forbears crossed the seas and established a great nation: We thank Thee for this land we love; for far-flung, lavish beauties of forests, mountains, plains and waters; for an abundance of natural wealth that flows from the rich earth; for fertile fields that feed a hungry world; for industries and trades that toil to meet the world's growing needs.

We praise Thee for those who, in generations past, have taken the pains and dared to die to establish and preserve our nation and its liberties. For this nation's spirit we thank Thee, Father: for freedom's soil beneath our feet and freedom's air to breathe; for free expression of religious faith; for churches where the glad Gospel of Thy grace is freely preached; for national shrines that remind us of past greatness. present duties and future opportunities; for the joyous welcome this land has extended and still holds forth to the freedom-hungry and downtrodden who seek these shores. Accept our thanks, O God, for the best of man's past brought here by native people of all parts of thw rold. For every good thing now woven into the beauty and strength of this good land; for the grandeur of all parts of the world. For these hours, and for the hope of the tomorrows we thank Thee, O God.

FORGIVE US

O Lord, forgive us where we have taken for granted, as our just due, the blessings of our country, simply because they have come so easily to most of us. Where in time of peace we have forgotten the hardships endured and the sacrifices made in time of war for our sakes, where in our comforts we have not remembered those who have made our safety possible, pardon us. If we have mistaken self righteousness for pursuit of the right, or have confused conformity with unity, or self-justification with justice, or force with moral strength, forgive us. If we have been smug and complacent with material advantages, or have allowed ourselves to become softened by our comforts, or have sought ease rather than adventure, or have been more concerned about rights than we have about duties, forgive.

O God, Ruler of all the earth, hear our prayer for our homeland that it may be always a blessing to the world. While we pray Thou wilt guard our shores from every foe, we also beseech Thee that Thou wilt protect us from enemies within. Save us from passions of fear and wrath that blind men to reason and stifle wisdom. Spare us from that arrogance that is so often the companion of bigness, wealth and power.

Let us never forget the meaning of our nation or the qualities of heroic patience and endurance that have distinguished our past and that the future will demand. Make us strong to withstand sudden shock and disappointment and to suffer a prolonged crisis. Grant us the daring and willingness to be misunderstood and criticized and to be rebuffed in our role of serving world need. Grant us the rugged courage to be critical of ourselves, of our motives and policies, without rancor against those citizens who differ from our views. Let our government always be the good and faithful servant of all our people, working for the welfare of all, and never an oppressive master.

FAITHFUL SERVANTS

We pray that our nation may be prepared for the decisive days that lie just ahead. Clarify and sharpen the vision and think ing of our leaders and make them faithful servants of Thy people's needs and of Thy purposes, eager to know and glad to do Thy holy will. May generosity of thought and conduct distinguish us in our dealings with each other and with those who live beyond our borders. May we help make the world safe for differences of opinion.

Spare us from undue pride in material greatness. We pray that not only the harvests, herds, factories and mills, barns and warehouses, laboratories of science, schools and colleges, may multiply and national wealth may prosper, but that our spiritual health may improve and the soul of our nation may grow. Temper our great power with a still greater compassion and with undiscourageable goodwill so that we may not flaunt our strength like a boasting giant but bend in tenderness and helpfulness, like a Good Samaritan, over a stricken and wounded world.

Lord of all nations, all the good we desire for this land we love we ask for all nations and all men everywhere. Hasten the day when all the world will be cleansed of hatred and war, when all the sons and daughters of earth are united in love and peace as children of one Father, when every human life is held sacred by all other souls, and every nation is a Holy Land. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Sunday School Lesson

Obedience or Defiance

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Obedience or defiance? This seems to be the problem that many face today. And if obedience, obedience to what? A spirit of defiance seems to be abroad in the land. An increasing number of people are defiant of the law. Long accepted moral standards are openly flouted. Young people are encouraged to defy the authority of their parents and teachers. Even among those who profess to believe in Him, God is more defied than obeyed. Why should people obey anything? Particularly why whould they obey the commandments of God?

This last question is raised by an agnostic professor in an Eastern university who is fond of pointing out what he considers parallels between the teachings of Jesus and the rantings of Hitler in "Mein Kampf." He makes no attempt to differentiate between the moral qualities of the two lives. It is true both Jesus and Hitler demanded absoulte allegiance from their followers, but the likeness stops there. The difference in character and purpose in the two lives is the difference between heaven and hell.

A dictator demands obedience but so does a parent, but there is a world of difference between the reasons why each makes his demands. The dictator demands obedience to impose his will on others. He seeks to break the will of his subjects. The parent demands obedience as a means of guidance. His purpose is not to break the will of his child but to develop and strengthen his character.

God does not demand obedience as a Dictator, but as a Father. The prophet Hosea hears God say, "When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son . . . It was I who taught Ephraim to walk, I took them up in my arms. . .I led them with cords of compassion, with the bands of love." (Hosea 11:1-4)

Instead of "cords of compassion," James Moffatt translates this phrase as "a harness of love." Everyone wears a harness of obedience to something, but it makes all the difference in the world whether love or some other force is holding the reins. Ambition can drive with a relentless hand. Passion can lash a person into a frenzy. But love drives with understanding and compassion.

How can men be sure that God's reins are reins of love? The Bible points back to the liberation of Israel from bondage in Egypt as evidence of God's concern for people. He wants them to be free, not slaves. The providential way in which Israel escaped from Egypt shows that God was leading them. To obey God is to find freedom. To obey sin is to be led into slavery.

Nothing has ever been written that so truly describes God's mortal laws as the ten commandments. Men do not break the ten commandments, they break themselves when they disobey them. But this is not why the Bible asks men to obey them. Men are asked to obey them out of gratitude for what God has done for them in the past. That is why Biblical ethics have been called "gratitude ethics." Men should love God because He leads them to freedom from all that would enslave them. This love should make them want to obey and serve Him.

A person living under a dictatorship has no choice but to obey. But, as Joshua made clear, obedience to God is a matter of choice. (Joshua 24:14-15) He also appealed to a sense of gratitude. God, he reminded his people, had made it possible for them to live in cities they had not built, and to eat fruit of vines they had not planted. Therefore, they should choose to serve Him.

This is what makes Jesus' demands so reasonable. He does not ask His followers to do what He was unwilling to do. The Bible speaks of His perfect obedience to God. (Philipians 2:8; Hebrews 5:8) Moreover, He asks for their obedience, He does not demand it. This means men do not have to give Him the grudging obedience they would give to a tyrant. He asks it as a friend, not as a slave-driver. (John 15:15)

Most of all, He asks for their love first, then their obedience. Always in His teachings, obedience is tied to love. (John 14:15 and 23) There is no place for love in a dictator's approach. To him love is weakness. But God's love is His greatest strength. It is this that gives Him the right to command.

Only Golds Avoid Declines In Short, Quiet Trading Week

By SEAN FINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A step-up in the war in Viet Nam and a subsequent downtrend on the New York Stock Exchange, uncertainty over the Canada Bank Act in the House of Commons and a short trading week brought declines to all sections but golds on the Toronto Stock Exchange this week.

Trading was quiet, with volume for the week at 12,049,404 shares compared with 13,525,654 shares last week. Total value of transactions was $38,584,479, compared with $51,932,606. The exchange was closed Dominion Day.

Banks moved lower, with uncertainty as to when the revised Canada Bank Act is to be presented to the Commons the leading factor in the decline.

Toronto-Dominion fell 1¾ to 62½, Royal 1¼ to 73½ and Montreal 1 to 59. Bank of Nova Scotia was off ⅛ to 70 and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¾ to 63¾.

Transportation issues also showed heavy losses, with CPR down 3¼ to 63 and Canada Steamship 1¼ to 34¼.

In other main list action, Alcan fell 2⅝ to 38¾, Distillers Seagram 1⅛ to 33¾, Weston A ⅜ to 19⅝ and Massey-Ferguson ⅛ to 33½.

Senior base metals were lower, behind losses of a point or more to some issues. Noranda was down 1⅛ to 52⅝, Inco 1⅝ to 95 and Denison 1¾ to 54. Pine Point lost 1¾ over the week to 61 and Rio Algom 1 to 26. In other base metals, Roman Corp. lost ½ to 11⅝ and Cassiar Asbestos ⅛ to 15⅝.

Scurry-Rainbow led losers in senior western oils, dropping 3⅝ to 28⅝. Banff was off 2¼ to 12¾ and Union 1⅛ to 29. Home B lost 1¼ to 19½ while the A issue dropped ¾ to 18¾ and Husky ¼ to 13¼.

Only bright spot in the list was Dome Petroleum, ahead ⅜ to 14⅝.

In golds, the only group to show gains over the week, Dome climbed 2½ to 50½ and Giant Yellowknife ⅛ to 13. Kerr-Addison dropped ⅞ to 10⅞.

In speculatives, Norgold traded 1,838,600 shares and climbed 8 to 27 cents. Jaye rose 2 cents to 87 cents on 991,800 shares. In penny oils, American Leduc dropped 1 cent to 20 cents on 75,832 shares.

On index, industrials lost 1.45 to 161.97, base metals .87 to 93.34, western oils 2.38 to 102.95 and the exchange index 1.39 to 153.92. Golds gained 2.01 to 179.39.

In Montreal, industrials lost 2.48 to 160.55, utilities 2.14 to 141.01, banks 2.00 to 119.46 and papers 1.58 to 116.43.

Park Source of Pride; Wharf Nears Completion

NAPANEE — Napanee's Centennial Park is a matter of pride to the town, and a credit to its council. It is one more step in the slow, expensive process of creating a green belt along both sides of the river which flows through the town.

The park now takes the place of an area which was an eyesore, and was the cause of much complaint. It is bordered by Centre Street on the East side, a very conspicuous spot, as everyone crossing the bridge in the old days had a view of a coal yard and egg grading station.

When the building burned about five years ago, the town acquired the property for park purposes. A free parking lot which will hold about 30 cars was constructed.

This was a difficult accomplishment, as the lot sloped steeply from the river. Fill was brought in and the parking lot levelled off.

A dock or wharf was indicated and the Federal Government agreed to build it. The town had to surrender its ownership of the land in order to acquire the dock this way.

The first step in building the new wharf was to remove the old dock and then to excavate back to the normal shore line. This has been done, and the new wharf will soon be completed.

The name "Centennial" was chosen as the result of a competition.

So far the purely functional uses of Centennial Park have been considered. In all probability the question of beautification will be taken up, and benches added for the use of those who merely wish to rest by the water. Swimming facilities are suitable only for experienced swimmers.

NAPANEE — The wharf being constructed by the Federal Government at Centennial Park in Napanee will require another ten days to complete. Arthur Bartlett estimates. Mr. Bartlett is the government inspector for the project. The Robert Mackey Construction Co. of Brockville is doing the work.

The old dock has been removed and excavation has cleared away the fill back to the original shoreline. New piling has been driven, and the framework for the new 120 foot wharf is almost completed. The ramp will be at the east end, next to the Centre Street bridge.

A mishap early last month cut off the water supply to South Napanee by the normal route for a week. During the excavating a back hoe cut the pipeline which runs under the Centre St. Bridge, and water had to be supplied to South Napanee via a fire hose going from hydrant waterworks manager Roy Lawrence explained. A skin diver was brought in from Kingston to repair the break.

The pipe carrying water to South Napanee was installed in '47 at the time the new bridge was built. The engineer had failed to mark it on the plan given to the construction company.

The wharf and ramp will be a boon to people bringing boats in on trailers. Their cars can be parked on the parking lot which was built by the town as its part in creating Centennial Park.

PRAISES CANADA

HAVANA (Reuters)—The Cuban newspaper El Mundo says Canada had a legitimate right to figure among the great nations of the world. In an article devoted to Dominion Day Friday, the newspaper describes the country's population as "cultivated, intelligent, progressive, industrious and consequently prosperous, thus forming an exemplary state."

Public School Pupils Honor Principal

DESERONTO — The pupils and teachers of the Deseronto Public School honored their principal, Peter Roach, when they bade him farewell on the last day of school. Carrying their chairs, they assembled on the lawn, grouped according to classes, and each class presented some form of entertainment for his benefit. Each of the ten rooms represented one of the ten months of the school year.

Patricia Marek read a farewell address to Mr. Roach, and Mry Hird made a presentation to him on behalf of the school, a white leather album engraved "This Is Your Life in Deseronto, '55-'66". Each form had helped to prepare the book, and teachers and others had cooperated in gathering the material. There were pictures of all the pupils and of all the members of the teaching staff.

In addition, there were original bits of writing by the pupils. Mrs. MacTavish was the moving spirit in compiling the book.

Mr. Roach was deeply touched by this tribute, and spoke of the satisfaction of his work in Deseronto.

At noon there was a staff luncheon at Dawson's Quinte Beach Motel, and the members of the staff made an informal presentation of a farewell gift to Mr. Roach, who received his degree from Queen's University in May. Their gift was bookends bearing the crest of the university.

Mr. Mrs. William McCauley, who is retiring, they made a gift of money to be used in purchasing a painting of her own choice.

The Golden Years

Keeping Old Home Was Good Move for This Retired Man

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I'm one of those stupid ones," says Thomas G. Grant. "I elected to hold on to my cantankerous old 1934 house when I retired.

"It has turned out to be one of the smartest decisions I ever made . . ."

Mr. Grant bought his house, second-hand, in 1940. He paid off the mortgage in 1960. It was frame, and painted white. It had eight rooms and two baths. It was on a 100-by-220 foot lot, with grass and trees fore and aft. It was in an neighborhood appraised as excellent in 1940, and fair in 1960.

"I knew, and still know, every good argument there is against keeping an old house when you retire," he says. "The painting, the mowing, the narrow hallways, the antique bathrooms, the decaying roof, the declining neighborhood.

"But I also knew there were two factors overriding all these arguments: One was that I knew every crazy angle of my house and my neighborhood and knew how to do battle with them . . . The other was that our two married children and their broods would come back visiting us in this big old house but couldn't come back to the pigeon coop we'd have to move to if we sold it. . ."

"DISCIPLINE" THE PLACE

So, electing to stay on, Mr. Grant set out about 18 months before his retirement to "discipline" his house and lot . . . to bring them in bounds he could control when the aches and laziness of retirement came upon him.

"I wouldn't be able to afford $400 every three years to have the house painted," he explains. "So I spent $800 to have the upper story covered with an oiled wood paneling that will never need painting, and the bottom part painted a dark grey. I can paint the bottom part myself from a stepladder, and since it's dark grey instead of white I'll have to paint only every five years . ."

Next he had a new roof, guaranteed for 15 years, put on the house, paying for this also out of his salary. Then he went after his yard. He marked off roughly 60 percent of his front and back lawn and covered it with $28 worth of ivy plants. "That cut the grass - mowing down to size," he says, "though it took the ivy about two years to get going . . ."

He bought a power lawn mower with an attachment for mulching leaves and decided he was finished with raking. An invasion of Dutch Elm disease which felled the biggest tree in his yard gave him an assist on this.

"Finally my wife and I faced up to the jackpot question — second only to our decision to throw out all annual flowers and replace them with perennials. This was whether to subdivide our house. We talked to builders, my wife shed a tear or two, and then we decided to convert part of the house into a four-room apartment — two bedrooms and bath, with a kitchen and living room. The cost was $5,300. It left Mama and me with a living room, bedroom, bath and kitchen. Which, however you figure it, was all we would ever want or use for ourselves . . ."

RENTED TO TEACHERS

The Grants took a $5,300 mortgage on their house to do the job, and having checked nearby schools in advance were able to get two woman teachers to lease the apartment for $120 a month, for a limit of nine months of each year. They rented it furnished, and equipped, because, as they explain it, "When your children grow up and leave you've got extra furniture as well as vacant bedrooms."

The $120 a month, or $1,080 a year, the Grants get for their apartment goes to pay off the mortgage . . . in about five years. Meanwhile, for three months every summer the two married children and their brood have a free motel, with extra cots, to entice them to come visiting.

"Every November, with the children gone back home and the teachers settled in again and keeping an eye on the place, Mama and I take off," according to Mr. Grant. "We try the West Coast, the Southwest, Florida — whatever strikes our fancy! We are usually gone about three months, staying in modest hotels or furnished apartments. We always go by bus. It's cheaper that way. And you see more . . ."

Guards Help Hunt Missing Youth in Bush

PICTON — A group of 100 personnel from 1st Canadian Guards, Camp Picton, have returned to the camp after assisting in the search for a 19-year-old epileptic youth who has been missing since last Saturday at Hungry Lake, 45 miles north of Kingston. Steven Haggerty of Brewer's Mills, near Kingston, is still missing.

The Guards were called in Thursday to aid in the search of the bush near the lake. The ground search was called off last night. Dragging operations and efforts of skin divers who have been searching in the murky water of the lake, have also proved fruitless.

According to the Ontario Provincial Police Detachment at Sharbot Lake, the boy failed to return from fishing on the lake last Saturday. Three friends of the youth who were at the lake, became alarmed when he did not come back and they notified the OPP. The upright boat was found. Sharbot Lake OPP said last night it is assumed the youth was drowned.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Outside of a school of mudcats there's nothing so bull-headed as a pair of Yankee fans of our immediate acquaintance.

On their mental mantels they wear life-sized statues of their heroes from the striped-suit waterboy to Mickey Mantle's chief bandage adjuster.

Mention the magic name "Yankees" and tonsilar hot air clutters the air-cooled comfort of the news room whether it be darkest evening or just after the gold of the day has chased the blue of the night.

They claim to have certain powers. They peer squint-eyed into the future without benefit of crystal ball. Around here we call it "clairhoyancy".

They've already picked the Hamilton Tiger Cats to win the Grey Cup; the Toronto Maple Leafs the Stanley Cup; George Chuvalo to win the heavyweight title; the farmers the highway endurance test; the Canadiens to finish last; Percival to coach the Olympic track team; and so on into the night.

But their tonsils skidded the other day when they selected Mickey Mantle as top-ranking one Willie Mays as an all-round baseball player. Sane-minded staffers guffawed. Even the teletypes stopped. A composing room "Giant" wanted to bring in a psychiatrist. That was out, for knowing these guys, they'd have the "doc" on the couch after three minutes.

Speaking of Willie, it was nothing short of sheer lunacy to downgrade a guy of "Say-Hey's" ability. Besides he's one of the highest paid guys ever to don baseball spikes. He banks upwards of $130,000 all sources counted and that's not "say-hay" in any man's language.

And he's worth it — and got it without threatening to play the lead in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" with Liz Taylor.

Willie is 35, a senior citizen as far as ball players go. For a guy who should be envisioning ole rockin' chair he didn't do bad last year. He was named the National League's Most Valuable Player, smashed 52 homers, his record for a season, batted in 112 runs and hit for an average of .317. And he did this while playing 157 games or all but five on the schedule.

Willie rose to some sort of climactic heights this year. The other day he became the National League's all-time homer clouter when he poled out number 523 to beat Ted Williams mark and pull himself up into third-place in the all-time homer record race.

And those Yankee-minded chuckalacks can tuck this away. Willie's defensive record is often overlooked in his story of the bat. In the last 12 years he has dropped only two flies.

And Mays is a model by which mothers of potential big league stars can use to start their offspring off on the lane that is straightish and narrowish, in spite of the fact Willie is a person by himself.

He doesn't drink or smoke. After a night game he gorges himself on a sandwich and iced tea — and hits the hay. If he went to a night club — which he never does — he'd have to show his National League credentials to the maitre-d.

He is divorced and occupies a rather palatial home in a good section of San Francisco. He spends most of his time there talking, watching television and listening to records. This may sound like Willie is a sort of lonely man but he is happy and satisfied with his existence.

But Willie is not a rich man despite his earnings and fringe benefits. He has a few investments but lives mostly from one pay cheque to another. He was always a liberal spender and like another famous athlete, Joe Louis, an easy mark for a hard luck story.

At 12 he was a batboy for the Birmingham Barons a team which had to pass the hat. Willie's share was sometimes $10. a week.

Last year he started an insurance agency feeling that at his age he had better get into something. He figures he has five or six years left in baseball.

The man who invented the basket catch and wields such a potent bludgeon; a guy who plays for the game's sake and a $125,000 salary, is, in my books, just about tops in any man's league. Show me a better player.

Watched At Meet

Percival Fools 'Spies'

TORONTO (CP)—Lloyd Percival of Toronto, suspended from coaching amateurs a week ago on a charge of giving drugs to athletes to improve their performances, showed up as a director at the Dominion Day track and field meet Friday.

But he wasn't caught coaching.

Percival was warned by the registration committee of the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada not to try coaching. The five-member committee announced the suspension of Percival, who makes his living by coaching and training athletes.

Two members of the committee, Jessie Lightwood and Doreen Davies, both of Toronto, were assigned to keep an eye on Percival during the meet.

HAD PLAN

If he was caught coaching, he was to be asked to leave the competitive area and failing this, the committee was prepared to take action against the Don Mills Track Club, sponsors of the meet and the club with which Percival worked.

But both women, who acted as meet judges, said they were too busy looking after their jobs to keep track of Percival.

"I guess I was watched," said Percival after the meet, "but I didn't notice anyone in my hip pocket."

Percival was in the competitive area as a meet director. George Denniston of Toronto, chairman of the registration committee, said Wednesday his group would take no action against Percival in this capacity.

Percival's lawyers, meanwhile, have issued a writ against the committee claiming slander and libel against him

Cementmen Take Over Top Spot

The Point Anne Cementmen climaxed their climb toward the Commercial Softball League's top spot Thursday night by whitewashing Stewart Warner 3-0.

Point Anne moved two points into the lead over the skidding Warner crew, still with three games in hand.

Hard-throwing Ron Maracle, who pitched a no-hitter on Monday, stopped Stewart Warner on just two hits. He struck out seven and walked half a dozen. Maracle's win was his sixth consecutive.

Junior Day also pitched well in defeat, allowing only four hits. He fanned four and walked a pair.

The winners netted single runs in the first, third and sixth innings with Maracle slamming a home run to account for the second marker. He also had one other hit to spark his own attack.

Rick Rosebush and Jim Horwood collected the other two Point Anne hits.

Claude Carr and Rod Turner solved Maracle's offerings for the only Stewart Warner safeties.

Lightfoots Win By Forfeit

Lightfoot Construction won a Commercial Softball battle at the CNR Thursday night by forfeit, 9-0, over Belvedere Hotel.

Belvedere was unable to field a team when fielder Jack Calnan was injured chasing a fly ball, in the third inning. Lightfoots held a 8-0 lead at that point in the game.

John French on the winners' mound gave up no hits in his three inning stint. He walked three and struck out two. His opponent on the Belvedere mound allowed five hits, walked nine and fanned two.

Sam McDowell crossed the finish line for the first time in two months, but for real endurance, it's hard to top Billy Short.

He's back in the winner's circle, for the first time in six years.

McDowell, Cleveland's sore-armed southpaw ace, pitched a two hitter and struck out 13 Friday night for his first complete game victory since May 1 as the Indians blanked California Angels 5-0.

Short, who hadn't won a game in the majors since Aug. 6, 1960, marked his return to Baltimore Orioles with a six-hit 2-0 victory over Minnesota Twins, completing a doubleheader sweep for the American League leaders.

The 28-year-old lefthander, recalled by the Orioles from the minors this week, was making his first major-league appearance in four years. He had no record in 1962, his first go-around with Baltimore, after a 3-5 rookie season with New York Yankees in 1960.

TIED TEAM-MATE

McDowell, the AL strikeout king in 1965, tied Team-mate Gary Bell for the league's single game high this year with his 13 against the Angels. He had not started a game in two weeks and had not won since June 11. He now is 6-2 for the season.

Short was ready to call it a career in the spring after failing to make the Baltimore varsity.

But Orioles' manager Hank Bauer talked him into sticking it out through the season.

The Orioles, who beat the Twins 4-1 in the twi-night opener before Short spun his shutout, stretched their league lead to five games over second-place Detroit Tigers, who divided a doubleheader with Kansas City Athletics. The Tigers took the first game 8-5, but dropped the nightcap 5-4. Chicago White Sox nipped Boston Red Sox 2-1 in 13 innings and New York Yankees topped Washington Senators 8-6.

McDowell gave up a lead-off single to Jose Cardenal in the first inning, a single to Rick Reichardt in the fifth and issued one walk.

Rocky Colativo provided the offensive punch with a two-run homer and two-run single against loser Dean Chance.

Short, given a two-run lead in the first inning, held the Twins hitless until the fourth, struck out five and didn't walk a man.

Gates Brown drove in three runs with a single and sacrifice fly as Detroit won the opener behind Dennis McLain, who ran his league-leading victory total to 12. A two-run single by pinch hitter Jim Gosger capped the Athletics' decisive three-run rally in the fourth inning of the second game.

Gary Peters scored the winning run for Chicago on catcher Mike Ryan's passed ball with two out in the 13th. Bob Locker was the winner in relief, setting down the last 13 Red Sox hitters.

Mickey Mantle cracked three hits, including his fifth homer in four games, and Joe Pepitone hit a two-run homer as the Yankees built an early 8-2 lead and held off the Senators.

Brilliant Santana Wins Crown

LONDON (CP)—Manuel Santana, a 28-year-old Spaniard, gave an elegant, authoritative and rapier-like display Ffriday and won the coveted Wimbledon lawn tennis title

Santana beat Dennis Ralston, 23, of the United States, 6-4, 11-9, 6-4, in one of the most thrilling Wimbledon finals since the Second World War.

Not since 1954, when the Czech-born Jaroslav Drobny became the last European to hold the title, has the centre court crowd roared so loudly. To the cheers of 15,000, the cheerful and relaxed Santana beat the more tense Ralston.

The Spanish government also awarded him the Golden Medal of Sporting Merit, an honor usually reserved for matadors and soccer players.

It will be Maria's fifth Wimbledon final—she won in 1959-60 and 1964 and lost to Margaret Smith of Australia last year. It will be Billie Jean's second—her previous final brought defeat, also at the hands of Margaret Smith, three years ago.

The 1966 Wimbledon also has been memorable for being the first 11 years without an Australian in either the men or women's finals.

The last Aussie in the men's singles was Owen Davidson, beaten by Santana in the semi-finals.

Ethier Stops the Cats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Bob Ethier pitched one of his best games of the B. and D. season to date and singled home a key run as Ellis Juniors nipped the Bobcats in a 3-2 squeeker at Alemite Park Thursday night.

Ethier had allowed only a scratch hit and held a 3-0 lead until the eighth frame, giving up one more safety and another run in each of the final two frames. He added 16 strike outs to his three-hit effort and walked two.

The Tabbies' Joe Barrons also hurled well, fashioning a six-hitter in a contest that did not see a clean safety until the seventh. Barrons struck out nine and walked only one.

Ellis' plated single runs in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Errors accounted for the first. A throwing error on Woods' bunt started it and two more bad throws off Jury's chop to third plated the run.

Boomhower slashed a single past third, advanced on Barker's fly ball and raced home when Ethier singled through third to make it 2-0.

Gardiner rapped a solid base knock, Woods sacrificed and Jury singled the third run across. Moon led off with a double in the eighth and a high throw on Boomhower's sacrifice appeared to draw the baseman off the bag. However, Boomhower was called out and Moon was doubled up at home on Barker's short pop fly to centre.

Ethier retired the next five men but a missed third strike put McKibbon on in the ninth. He advanced on a wild pitch and Paul Zakos singled him home. Zakos was hung up at first but the ball was dropped. A passed ball got him to second with the tying run before Etheir fanned Whyte to end it.

FADE OR HOOK AWAY FROM TROUBLE

Many golfers feel that one of the toughest things to do in golf is to hit a perfectly straight shot. I'm inclined to agree. Most shots that are planned to fly straight actually finish to the right or left.

Now, let's assume we are driving down a narrow fairway—only 60 feet in width. The golfer who plans to play a straight shot down the middle leaves himself only 30 feet to either side to accommodate a hook or a slice.

However, the golfer who plays an intentional draw shot down the right side, or an intentional fade down the left, actually leaves himself much more than 30 feet of fairway, and he knows with reasonable certainty which way his shot will bend.

If you are expert enough to fade and draw shots at will, I suggest you put this talent to use by "playing away from trouble" on your drives. If the trouble is on your right (No. 1), play a draw down that side. If trouble is on the left, play a fade down that side.

CLAIMS RECORD

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—A world record for striped bass caught on fly tackle is claimed by Russell Chatham of Black Pint, Calif., with a 36-pound 6-ounce fish he caught in San Francisco Bay. Chatham landed his catch Tuesday. A check of records disclosed it bettered the world mark of 29-6, established by outdoor writer Joe Brooks at Coos Bay, Ore., in 1948.

Alas, Twas A Bad Night For Sandy

Triple Setback

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a bad night for Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Al Jackson grabbed his spotlight, Claude Raymond snatched his earned run crown and Woody Fryman stole his thunder.

Koufax, aimed for victory No. 15 and the halfway point of a potential 30-victory season, went down to his third defeat as the Dodgers bowed to Jackson and the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 Friday night.

Jackson took the spotlight with a six-hitter—he allowed only one base runner to reach second—despite the fact the Dodger southpaw allowed one less hit. But one was Mike Shannon's two-run homer.

The two runs allowed by Koufax raised his earned run average to 1.60 and let Raymond, a native of St. Jean, Que., sneak in to the National League leadership with a 1.56 mark after preserving Houseton Astro's 2-1, 12-inning victory over Cincinnati Reds with a scoreless inning of relief work.

Fryman, meanwhile, turned in the night's best performance by pitching a one-hitter in Pittsburgh Pirates' 12-0 victory over New York Mets, facing the minimum 27 batters and hurling perfect ball after Ron Hunt stroked a leadoff single in the first.

Another strong pitching effort was made by Larry Jackson Philadelphia Phillies, who checked Chicago Cubs on eight hits, but it was not pitchers' night at San Francisco, where the Giants downed Atlanta Braves 9-5 in a game interrupted for 11 minutes by fog.

Koufax came up a loser in the seventh inning when Orlando Cepeda singled and Shannon followed with his fifth homer. Oddly, it was Koufax' third loss at home—he is 8-0 on the road and 6-3 in Dodger Stadium—but the Dodgers have been able to get him only one run in the trio of defeats.

Unbeaten Mike Cuellar, seeking victory No. 7, allowed the Reds only three hits until Raymond took over the Astros' pitching in the 12th. He had it easy, Houston scoring in the bottom of the inning on Bob Aspromonte's single and a double by Bob Lillis.

Hunt got the only hit off Fryman with a bouncer up the middle that just eluded shortstop Gene Alley. Hunt then was thrown out stealing and the 23-year-old rookie southpaw did not allow another Met to reach base in bringing his record to 6-3.

The Phillies' Jackson got all the support he needed to beat his former Cub team-mates from Bill White, who hit a homer, singled in another run and scored twice.

The fog lifted at Candlestick Park in time for every one to see the Braves hand the Giants the game in the eighth inning after building a 5-4 lead.

A wild pitch let Don Landrum score the tying run and an error let Willie McCovey cross with the go-ahead run. The Braves then presented the Giants with three more runs on a bases-loaded walk and another error.

NORMAN LEADS

CALGARY (CP) —Professional Moe Norman of Toronto carded a sparkling four-under-par 67 Friday to take the second-round lead in the 54-hole Alberta open golf tournament. He coupled his second - round score with a 70 Thursday for 137 strokes and a one-stroke lead over amateur John Kilburn of Edmonton.

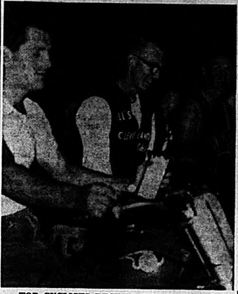
Riders Thrill Capacity Crowd



TOP CYCLISTS RECEIVE TROPHIES — Yvon DuHamel, Doug Showler, and Harold Fritz, winners of the three class competitions of last night's Dominion Day motorcycle event at the Fairgrounds, are shown during the presentation ceremony in which they received trophies and a share of $1,000 in prize money.

The roar of the crowd and the smell of grease were in the air last night at the Belleville Fair Grounds as high-powered motorcycles were pushed by their drivers at break-neck speeds around the half-mile dirt track.

The occasion was a Dominion Day motorcycle racing event, sanctioned by the Canadian Motorcycle Association and jointly sponsored by the Belleville Agricultural Society and the Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club of Belleville.

An overflow grandstand crowd was on hand for the spectacle which drew top cyclists from Canada and the United States to vie for trophies in three classes and a purse totalling some $1,000.

Romeo Hamal, 32, of Montreal was admitted to Belleville General Hospital suffering a severe leg laceration. Hamal had placed second in the second heat of the Junior 500cc class earlier in the evening.

When the track had been cleared, the event resumed, with Harold Fritz of Waterloo, Ont., taking the checkered flag, a trophy, and the winner's share of the purse. Heat winners in the Junior category had been D. Sehl of Waterdown, Ont., A. Goulet, of Maple, Ont., with Barry Whitmore of Toronto winning the consolation heat. Sehl appeared to be a certain winner in the final heat with half-track lead over the other contestants until engine trouble forced him to the sidelines.

Veteran racer Doug Showler of Cleveland, Ohio, captured the hotly contested Expert 500cc event with a win in the 6-lap final. Showler had won the first heat while Don McHugh, of Brampton, won the second, and Ab Everest of Oshawa took the consolation third heat.

In the Combined 250cc (lightweight) competition, Yvon DuHamel demonstrated to the crowd why he is rated as one of Canada's outstanding motorcyclists, first taking his heat, then capturing the final without being pressed too closely. All classes of competitors, juniors, seniors, and experts took part in this event, featuring lighter motorcycles, with junior D. Sehl of Waterdown, Ont., finishing as runner-up, followed by M. Fraser, a senior from Burlington, in third spot.

DuHamel, from Montreal, also finished third in the Expert 500 cc class final heat. DuHamel's son, 4½ year-old-Mario delighted the crowd by scooting about the track infield on a miniature motor-bike. Mario was initiated into the exciting world of motorcycling at quite an early age—he first rode his own cycle at the age of two.

Wins Canadian Title

Armbro In Full Flight

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Armbro Flight, owned by Ted, Elgin and Charles Armstrong of Brampton, won the $8,500 Canadian trotting championships at Garden City Raceway Friday night, trotting the mile in 2:02 2-5 for a 6½-length decision over Betsy Herbert.

The triumph qualifies Armbro Flight to run next Saturday in the $100,000 International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway.

Third in the four-horse field was Stemwinder, owned by Dr. A. J. Finlayson of Paris, Ont., while Nancy Brook B., owned by John F. Graham of Lindsay, Ont., was fourth.

Armbro Flight, a four-year-old mare, opened up an early lead on her three challengers and never looked back. Her time was only two-fifths of a second off the track trotting record set by Dartmouth, June 11, 1965.

A daughter of Helicopter, Canadian-owned winner of the 1963 Hambletonian trotting classic in Du Quoin, Ill., Armbro Flight returned $2.10 across the board. There was no show betting.

The victory, her 50th in 64 career starts, was worth $4,150 and boosted her lifetime earnings to $443,287, tops by any female trotter.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The daily double returned $70.30 Thursday night at Garden City Raceway when longshot Maureen S. won the first race and combined with second-race winner Reddi B. Cash.

Maureen S. paid $17.80, $7.20 and $4.30 while Reddi B. Cash returned $6.90, $3.40 and $3.10.

LISTON COMES BACK

'Hides' Horse, Trainer Fined

Gord Huntley of Toronto, trainer of Flagtower, sent the horse out for a run at Woodbine race track Monday morning but gave identifier Bob Bruce another name.

Flagtower, a three - year - old bay chestnut, was purchased for $10,000 in Kentucky but had an unimpressive record as a two-year-old after bucking his shins three times.

Exercise boy Joe Bakos was fined $25 for failing to obtain the proper name of the colt, owned by the Addison Hall Farm of Toronto.

Pitching — Woody Fryman, Pittsburgh Pirates, retired 26 men in a row after a lead-off single in the first inning, completing a one-hitter in Pittsburgh's 12-0 victory over New York Mets.

Batting—Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees, hit his fifth home run in four games and two singles, pacing New York to an 8-6 victory over Washington Senators.

TORONTO (CP) — Roberta Picco of Toronto established herself as the top North American runner in the women's one mile and 1,500-metre races Friday. Meanwhile, six Canadian records were shattered at Dominion Day meets in Toronto.

Miss Picco, 17, a native of Italy who moved to Canada seven years ago, ran the mile by herself in 85-degree heat in 4:55.3 to better the previous unofficial North American women's record of 4:56.4 set by Marie Mulder of Los Angeles last year. Toronto Don Mills club athlete also covered the first 1,500 metres of the same run in 4:35.1, lowering the previous North American record by 1.6 record by 1.6 seconds. The former mark was also held by Miss Mulder.

Neither event is recognized for record purposes among women by the Amateur Athletic Union, governing body of track and field in Canada and the United States.

Lloyd Percival of Toronto, charged several weeks ago with giving his athletes drugs to improve their performances, was meet director. The central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, which investigatied the allegations against Percival, ruled a week ago that the Don Mills Track Club must dispense with his services as professional coach.

Miss Picco also won the juvenile women's 440 in 59.9.

Four of the six Canadian records were set in the same meet and two in the Canadian relay championships Friday night.

The relay records, in a meet involving about 150 athletes from Ontario, Quebec, New York and Cleveland, were set by the Toronto Track Club and East York Track Club of Toronto in the medley distance event.

Anchored by Ergas Leps, Toronto Track Club covered laps of quarter, half, three-quarters and a mile in 9:57.8, surpassing the Canadian open and native record of 10:04.4, set by East York in 1960.

However, American Tom Carney ran third leg for Toronto Track and the team was ruled ineligible for the native mark.

East York, anchored by Dave Bailey who became the first Canadian to run a mile in less than four minutes three weeks ago in San Diego, Calif., was second in 9:58.8. East York will hold the new Canadian native mark.

RUN WITH LEPS

Running with Leps were Carney, John Reynolds and Steve Stewart. Bailey's team included Eric Boyd, Dave Quibble and Jim Smith.

Don Mills athletes set four records. The junior girls' 220-yard relay team set a Canadian native mark at 1:48, cutting 4.2 seconds from the former record. The team was anchored by Cathy Chapman of Toronto, an 18-year-old high school girl who also won the junior 80-metre hurdles, 100-yard dash and long jump.

Cam Crosby of Don Mills bettered the Canadian native and open records in the juvenile men's discus with a toss of 169 feet, six inches. The former open and native mark was 166 feet, eight inches, set by George Kenny of Toronto in 1963.

Carol Martin of Don Mills uncorked a toss of 46 feet, 9½ inches in the junior girls' shot put, bettering the former mark set last year by Joan Dahlgren of 44 feet, 9½ inches.

Bob Raftis, also of Don Mills, became the first athlete from Eastern Canada to pole vault more than 15 feet when he scaled 15 feet, one inch.

At the Belle

Walt Disney's "The Ugly Dachshund" is a Rollicking Romantic Comedy

If you have been withered by the heat wave and in need of a good laugh, Walt Disney has a cure for what ails you in his new rollicking romantic comedy, "The Ugly Dachshund," that opened an extensive engagement yesterday, the first of the July Jubilee screen hits to be presented at the Belle Theatre, Each for one solid week of swell entertainment.

"The Ugly Dachshund" is the featured motion picture in Walt Disney's "perfect program" of entertainment, which also includes the fully animated cartoon featurette, "Winnie the Pooh" and the "Honey Tree."

Two of Hollywood's brightest young stars, Dean Jones and Suzanne Pleshette, are teamed for the first time in the hilarious Technicolor feature as a pair of newlyweds, whose honeymoon cottage goes topsy turvy when four mischievous dachshunds and a confused great Dane, who thinks he, too, is a walking wiener, move in.

Sharing the stellar spotlight is veteran comedian Charlie Ruggles, whose inimitable brand of whimsy sparks the role of the family veterinarian.

The real scene stealers of this comedy caper however, are the canine performers. Four precocious dachies named Heidi, Tokey, Pesky and Norma come in for their share of the plaudits and an amazing great Dane called Diego, could well make off with the next Patsy Award (the animal equivalent of Oscar) for some truly inspired thesping.

"The Ugly Dachshund" is a guaranteed blues-chaser, with built-in appeal for the entire family. Norman Toker directs with his usual comedy flair and keeps the action moving briskly.

One sequence, in which a colorful Japanese garden party literally goes to the dogs as the household pet breaks loose and wrecks everything from the buffet table to the guests' nerves, will long be remembered as a comedy classic.

DISCUSS PACT

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League will name a three or four-man committee to work with a similar group from the American Football League to plan the union of the two leagues in 1970. NFL owners went over the points of agreement with the AFL Thursday in their first formal meeting since their June 8 peace agreement.

Eyes 3.52 Mile

Jim Ryun Could Be Greatest

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—How good is Jim Ryun?

"He could be the greatest ever," says Dyrol Burleson, a superb miler who has competed against the world's best runners in two Olympics.

"That boy is better than Peter Snell right now," the Oregonian added recently. "As for Herb Elliott, I think Ryun eventually will surpass him."

Until Ryun came along, Snell of New Zealand and Elliott of Australia, generally were hailed by the athletes themselves as the greatest in the crucible of competition. Both have retired.

Michel Jazy, the Frenchman who holds the world mile record of 3:53.6, and Ron Clarke, another mighty Australian recordbuster, are respected by the other runners, but are rated a notch below Snell and Elliott.

Snell, as a 21-year-old, won the Olympic 800 metre gold medal in 1960 and four years later captured the 800 and 1,500 metre gold medals at Tokyo. He also set world records of 3:54.1 for the mile, 1:44.3 for 800 metres and 1:45.1 for 880 yards.

Elliott set a world record of 3:54.5 for the mile in 1958, but the mark the middle distance men regard as the Mt. Everest of running now is the Australian's 3:35.6 for 1,500 metres—the metric mile—set in the 1960 Olympics at Rome. That rates as the equivalent of a 3:52 mile. Both Ryun and Jazy are setting their sights on it.

BREAKS 'BEST' RECORD

"Ryun is an amazing runner," said Burleson, who finished second to the 19-year-old Kansan's 3:58.6 winning mile in the U.S. AAU championships last week. "The half mile record he broke I considered the best on the books."

That was Snell's record until the gangling, six-foot-two, 160-pound Ryun smashed it in his first major try at the half mile in the U.S. Track and Field Federation June 10.

He undoubtedly would have been faster except that he turned his head to peek at his hopelessly outclassed competition.

In only his second two-mile race, Ryun won the event at the Los Angeles Coliseum Relays May 14 in 8:25.2, an American record and only 2.6 seconds behind Jazy's world record.

He ran his 3:53.7 mile, only one-tenth of a second off Jazy's world record, June 4 when he beat arch-rival Jim Grelle of Oregon by about 20 yards. In this race, too, he lost time by looking over his shoulder.

Ryun, who runs about 120 miles a week with daily stints of two to three hours, has become so strong and fast that he probably will kill off his rivals in the third lap of his miles.

The first schoolboy to break the four-minute mile, Ryun now has run nine sub-four minute miles.

Grelle holds the record with 20.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Victorian Era won the featured $28,250 Dominion Day Handicap at Woodbine race track Friday. It was the fourth win in six starts this year for the four-year-old bay owned by Allen Case of Toronto.

Victorian Era ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:48 4-5 to beat 1965 winner E. Day in the stretch.

Chancero, racing out of New York's Aqueduct and brought here for the handicap, placed third.

Victorian Era paid $2.80, $2.10 and $2.10 in winning $15,750 for his owner. The win moved him into 12th place among Canadian-bred money winners with a total of $142,050.

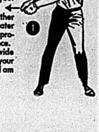
MAKES FIRST SPEECH

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey, 40, made his maiden speech in the upper chamber Thursday, introducing legislation to incorporate the Company of Young Canadians.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

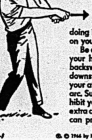
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

WIDEN YOUR SWING ARC FOR EXTRA DISTANCE.



It stands to reason that the wider your swing arc, the farther your clubhead will travel. The farther your clubhead travels, the greater the speed it can generate to produce shots of maximum distance.

I think it helps to produce a wide swing arc by fully extending your left arm on your backswing, as I am doing in No. 1, and your right arm on your follow-through (No. 2).



Be careful that you do not move your head to your right on your backswing or to your left on your downswing and follow-through in your attempts to widen your swing arc. Such lateral swaying will prohibit your taking advantage of the extra clubhead speed a wide swing can produce.

Good Guys Finish On The Bottom

Friday was listed as qualifying day for the Maple Leaf Trophy race being held today and Sunday to determine the world's limited powerboat championship.

No races were scheduled, but as a favor to the fans on hand five drivers including Palmer, agreed to stage a three-lap race at the end of the qualifying runs.

Palmer's boat sprung a leak and ended up on the bottom of Hayward Long Reach, an area of Lake Ontario's Bay of Quinte named for speedboat champion Bob Hayward of Embro, Ont., who was killed five years ago in a racing accident on the Detroit River.

Skindivers salvaged Palmer's boat, which went down in 35 feet of water.

Before starting the race, Palmer qualified for the Maple Leaf event with a time of 70.45 miles an hour for one lap around the 1½-mile course. But without his boat, he'll watch it all from dry land.

Seven other boats of the 10 which registered for Friday's runs qualified, including Cyril Smith, Peterborough, 74.84 m.p.h.; Ken Helwig, Sarnia, 72.58 m.p.h. and Paul Sparrow, Peterborough, 63.15 m.p.h.

MENTAL TESTS ORDERED

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mathew Charles Lamb, 18, charged with capital murder in the shooting of Edith Chaykoski, 20, was committed Thursday to the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene for observation. Miss Chaykoski was killed by a man wielding a shotgun as she walked with five other persons in a residential area last Saturday night. Three other persons were wounded.

Crothers Beaten In 440

NAIROBI (AP) — Bill Crothers, Markham, Ont., pharmacist who is rated the top half-miler in the world, was beaten by one tenth of a second in the 440 in an international track meet at Kenya's capital Friday.

Crothers, the Olympic 800-metre silver medal winner, was beaten to the tape by Masai tribesman Daniel Rudisha, who clocked 47:09. Crothers was timed in 48 seconds.

The events are being run in Nairobi's Jamhuri Park, where the 5,800-foot altitude took its toll.

Juergen May of East Germany, the world's third fastest miler with a clocking of 3:53.8, collapsed on the track after finishing third to Kenya's Kipchoge Keino in the mile run.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Mr. and Mrs. William Funston (the former Gail Millar) of London, Ontario, called at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sine on the occasion of their 48th wedding anniversary, and entertained them at dinner at the 'Red Lion' in Trenton. It was a surprise for Mr. and Mrs. Sine and after dinner they drove to the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Millar, where the rest of the family were present to greet them.

Mr. Bradley Latta of Kingston spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Latta.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gaudour spent the weekend with her parents at Morganston.

Master Douglas Gaudour returned home from Kingston General Hospital where he was a patient for the past two weeks.

Communion service was well attended at Wallbridge Church on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Vessey of College Hill Church was the minister.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moore of Bonarlaw were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Spencer.

Shipp Not Yet In Argo Port

AURORA, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Argonauts have lost their second top Canadian draft choice in two days at their training camp.

Randy Parker, 23, a corner linebacker from University of Toronto Blues, left camp Thursday after deciding he couldn't play professional football and pursue a career as an architect at the same time.

The Argos were told Wednesday that Ross Nicholson, a lineman from University of Western Ontario Mustangs and the team's No. 1 draft choice, quit because he did not think he could make a successful career in professional football.

Germans Dominate Rowing

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP)—Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia was knocked out of the Henley Royal Regatta Friday along with three other United States' crews in a day dominated by East German victories.

The Harvard University lightweights and St. Paul's School of Concord, N.H., won, however, and saved it from becoming an entirely black day for the Americans.

The Philadelphia crew rowed with the Turn Und Sports Club of Berlin, East Germany, but could not cope with the speedy finish of the German eight on the one-mile, 550-yard Thames River course.

The East Germans won by three-quarters of a length and meet Britain's Tideway scullers in the finals of the Grand Challenge Cup today.

Harvard defeated Britain's Wallington Rowing Club by two lengths and meets London Rowing Club in the semi-finals of the Thames Cup for eights.

Construction Roundup

Wilson Concrete of Belleville recently completed work on a novel type of project.

A dozen of Wilson's "single-T" pre-stressed concrete slabs, each 8 ft. 4 in. in width, were used to form the screen of "The 66", newest in the Lark chain of Drive-In theatres owned by Douglas Wark of Picton. To achieve the desired "screen" effect, the inward side of the slabs is then given a special spray-paint coating.

The 74-foot length of the slabs, which tower up at a slight angle towards the parking area of the drive-in, form an impressive but practical structure. The 400-ton screen was designed by Wilson engineer John Guthrie to withstand a wind velocity of 90 miles an hour.

Each slab was formed with a triangular fin at its base, giving it a 10-foot width at that end to help better distribute the tremendous stress.

Possibly the first of its type anywhere, "The 66" screen was constructed, say Wilson's, in an economical manner. It is a dramatic departure from the standard steel-frame method usually employed in similar theatre structures.

Other current Wilson projects include a DHO contract for a bridge overpass across highway 401 near Trenton, a sub-contract on the $1 million addition to a high school in North Dundas county, and a contract on a new Sylvania Electric plant near Cornwall, which will be involved in the production of color television tubes.

Water Loss Can Lead to Big Trouble

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

There's a fat list of troubles which can cause engine overheating. Some are easy to trace, while others take a lot of sweat and swearing. Like water leakage. This can be a real teaser, especially if the car loses water only when it's buzzing along on the road. If uncorrected, serious damage may be done.

Start with the radiator. Leaks there can be spotted via lime (white) stains on the core which pinpoint cracks or holes. While you're at it, make sure the petcock at the bottom is tight and dry. The same goes for all hose connections.

Next, examine the hose itself to make sure it isn't split, cracked, soft or rotting. Then move on to the water pump, heater connections and expansion plugs.

If you're still stymied, turn the job over to your mechanic. He'll check out such things as loose cylinder bolts, head warpage, gasket damage, a cracked block, etc.

From G. T.: "During idle my engine's hydraulic valve lifters are noisy and the oil pressure light is on. When I accelerate, both operate normally. Would this mean sticking valves?"

Weak oil pressure seems tobe the problem here. It could be due to a faulty pump, bearings, oil dilution or leakage.

H. B. writes: "After a recent tune-up, gas mileage on my '63 sedan seems better and the engine idles much more smoothly. But a new wrinkle has developed. The engine now misses at high speeds."

This sometimes results because spark plug gaps are set a bit too wide during a tune-up. Have them rechecked.

T. F. asks: "Does passenger car load noticeably affect gas mileage?"

It sure does. Chauffeur five 200-pounders, for example, and you'll get approximately 5 miles less per gallon.

From Y. F.: "No service dealer — and I've been to three — can tell me what started a thumping noise from my engine when it idles. The car is a '63 full-size sedan."

Since you haven't mentioned what was checked out, a positive answer is difficult, but a question may help. Has anyone checked for a worn distributor shaft?

Maurice Rollins Partner In British Housing Firm

An industrialized home building company formed in partnership with Maurice Rollins Construction opened this past week in England.

Fontaberry Insulated Homes Ltd. was formed by the existing Fontaberry Construction firm in Britain and Rollins Construction Co. Ltd., of Belleville.

The factory will have the capability of turning out some 1500 homes a year, and its production is expected to assist in reducing Britain's present housing shortage.

Canadian building materials will figure largely in the operation of the plant. British Columbia hemlock and spruce, windows from a Burlington, Ont. firm, and Canadian-made truss-plates will be among the Canadian products utilized in the construction of Fontaberry insulated homes.

The establishment of the new firm climaxes a series of negotiations between Mr. Rollins, working with officers of the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce, and directors of the English organization.

Charge Rescuer With Arson

TORONTO (CP)—The father of three children rescued by neighbors from a flaming house Friday has been charged with arson.

Augustus Langis was charged shortly after Mrs. Russell O'Sullivan and her daughter, Jocelyn, carried Ronald Langis, 6, Derek, 3, and Diane, 2, from the house.

Fire department officials estimated the damage at about $6,000.

British Steel Chiefs Fight Labor Plans

LONDON (Reuters) — British steel chiefs planned today a hard fight against the Labor government's terms announced Friday for re-nationalizing 13 major private steel companies.

The government Friday published draft legislation to put 90 per cent of Britain's steel industry under state ownership—a plan that brought howls of protest from company bosses.

They complained that Prime Minister Wilson's government had chopped £71,000,000 ($213,000,000) off the compensation price it suggested last year should be paid to 275,000 steel industry investors.

Details of the controversial bill, to be introduced in Parliament later, showed that total compensation had been brought down to £484,000,000 ($1,450,000,000).

Edward Judge, president of the British Iron and Steel Federation, said Friday night the price cut was "a breach of faith" to long-established shareholders in the industry.

British Ships Return to Sea

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's merchant ships began putting to sea again today soon after the 47-day seamen's strike officially ended at midnight Friday night.

Thirty minutes after the strike for more pay and better working conditions ended several ships slipped out of their home ports—the first since the costly, crippling walkout began.

About 100 ships were expected to sail from Britain's ports today.

In the crowded port of London four ships left within the first half hour.

Brick and Bottle Are Thrown at Queen's Limousine in Drive Through Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—A brick and a bottle were thrown at the royal car in separate incidents today as Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip drove through Belfast.

The bottle incident happened as the Queen was leaving city hall after a civic luncheon and reception. A beer bottle smashed into the roadway almost under the wheels of her maroon-colored bubble-top limousine. The car did not stop but continued its slow progress.

A couple of blocks further on, in Great Victoria Street, a thrown brick hit a fender of the car. It seemed to come from a building site where a number of men were on scaffolding. Police seized a man and led him away.

A witness of the incident near the city hall said:

"A fair-haired woman in her 80s came out of the International Hotel carrying what appeared to be a bottle wrapped in paper. As the royal car was passing, she threw it and it landed beside one of the wheels. The Duke of Edinburgh saw the incident and appeared to look startled."

Apparently not many persons saw the bottle thrown and no attempt was made to interfere with the woman. Detectives hustled her back into the hotel.

The Queen and Philip continued their drive through Sandy Row, the predominantly-Protestant area of the city, where they received a big welcome, as the city's Protestants and Roman Catholics appeared to have reached a truce for the time being.

The sun blazed down, the Union Jacks waved and massed thousands cheered as the Queen drove through the packed city streets. Around her were the tightest security precautions ever taken for a British monarch visiting part of the home territory.

Armed police were spaced every few yards along the royal route. Armored cars were held on the city's outskirts ready to move in at any hint of trouble.

MPs Back To Clean Up Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of Parliament who could have been starting a lengthy summer recess are back at work today to clean up legislation the government wants considered before any holiday.

Last week proceedings bogged down over opposition demands for an increase in the old age pension before approval is given one of the priority bills—the Canada Assistance Plan.

The assistance plan is designed to co-ordinate and extend existing federal-provincial welfare programs.

The government said there would be no pension increase granted before the summer recess, but informants said Health Minister MacEachen is ready to announce government plans for an increase for this fall.

Informants also say the government plans to follow a recommendation of a Senate-Commons committee that studied the Canada Pension Plan that some consideration be given those who now are too old ever to benefit from this plan.

The pension plan is contributory and would pay nothing to persons who have never contributed.

STUDY CROLL REPORT

The government is also said to be studying the Croll report from the Senate which recommended a guaranteed annual income for persons over 65, and legislation recently introduced in Britain along the same lines.

Death Toll Well Below Estimate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 130 persons died accidentally across Canada during the Dominion Day weekend—the second worst three-day holiday weekend toll on record.

The highest fatality total—172 deaths — was recorded during the 1963 Dominion Day weekend, the last one that stretched over 78 hours.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday, local times, also listed 55 drownings, one fire death and seven other types of accidental deaths.

This weekend's toll soared ahead of the 129 deaths reported during the 1966 three-day Victoria Day holiday in May. There were 80 road deaths then compared with 85 at Dominion Day, 1963.

QUEBEC LEADS

Quebec was the hardest-hit province with 55 fatalities, including 25 traffic, 26 drownings, the fire death, suffocation of a three-month-old baby, a man crushed when a car slipped off a jack and a farmer killed when his barn collapsed on him in a windstorm.

Ontario had 35 fatalities—18 drownings and 17 traffic deaths.

British Columbia reported five traffic deaths and three drownings and Alberta seven highway deaths and one person killed by a train.

Four persons were drowned and two killed on the roads in New Brunswick. Manitoba had three traffic deaths, a drowning and an accidental shooting.

In Nova Scotia, two persons were drowned, two died in a plane crash and one in traffic. Newfoundland had three road deaths and a drowning.

Ontario and Quebec Sizzled During Dominion Day Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Temperatures Sunday reached 97 degrees at Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and Ottawa, 93 at Montreal and 91 at Quebec. The Windsor temperature broke a 1949 record of 96 degrees.

Ontario's heat wave, started more than a week ago, was expected to break today.

Most of British Columbia and parts of the Prairies had rain and cool temperatures.

In Edmonton Saturday a procession of mounted, armored knights, ragged serfs and ermine-clad kings marched through the rain as part of an annual medieval days fair.

Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference staged their annual intrasquad game during the afternoon, and about 5,000 fans huddled under raincoats, blankets and newspapers until half-time, when the rain stopped.

Traditional office and church picnics were rained out in Vancouver.

Metropolitan Toronto's lakeshore beaches were jammed as residents tried to beat the heat. Those who left for cottages and resorts were caught in traffic jams while returning Sunday night.

An aged-old pageant was re-enacted at Shippegan, N.B., when Msgr. Camille Andre Leblanc, bishop of Bathurst, blessed a fleet of fishing and pleasure craft. About 4,000 mariners had gathered in their vessels at the Northumberland Strait port for the blessing of the fleet.

Yachtsmen in Halifax sailed the first major races of the season. Ashore, people gathered to watch artists painting on panels of a fence around a downtown redevelopment project.

In Newfoundland, July 1 is the day set aside to honor war dead. Friday was the 50th anniversary of the Battle of the Somme, where 286 members of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment were killed in a stand-up charge against a line of German machine guns.

In another part of the city 50 persons were arrested as the Chevaliers de l'Independence (Knights of Independence) staged a separatist demonstration against Confederation.

Warsaw Pact Nations May Move to Reduce Tensions

BUCHAREST, Romania (Reuters)—A seven-nation conference of East European military and Communist party leaders starts here today with the West looking on for signs of a move to relax tension in Europe.

The meeting, ostensibly of the political consultative committee of the Warsaw Pact, has brought Russia's party chief, Leonid Brezhnev, and Premier Alexei Kosygin together with their counterparts from Romania, Poland, East Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia.

But although the agenda was likely to deal mainly with Communist unity and East-West relations, there was no confirmation of this. The 11-year-old Warsaw Pact is the Communist world's answer to NATO.

Prisoners At Kingston Stage Strike

KINGSTON (CP)—About 250 of the 950 prisoners at Kingston Penitentiary remained outside their cells this morning, refusing to return after a recreation period Sunday night.

The prisoners said they were protesting pay, which ranges from 25 to 55 cents a day and food.

Warden H. F Smith said prison officials had had no premonition of the demonstration The men are able to fill out complaint forms at any time, but had submitted no complaints lately

The warden spoke to the men shortly after midnight and again this morning, but said there was no indication they were ready to return.

57 Shells Needed to Sink Ship

NEW YORK (AP)—It took a U.S. Coast Guard cutter three hours and 57 five-inch explosive shells Sunday to sink the fire-scarred British tanker Alva Cape in the Atlantic 125 miles off New York.

The Alva Cape had been ordered sunk after a collision and two fires, which claimed 37 lives, had left her a charred hulk, still loaded with 150,000 gallons of flammable naphtha.

The ship was towed gingerly from New York harbor Saturday, two weeks after the first of the two fires.

Thirty-three seamen died June 16 in the blazing aftermath of a collision in New York harbor that split the tanker's bow open and turned the water into a sea of burning naphtha.

She was ordered out of New York harbor after a second fire last Tuesday, which took the lives of four men who were trying to remove the remainder of her cargo.

SHELL SHIP

With two ocean-going tugs and two coast guard cutters standing by, the cutter Spencer began shelling the Alva Cape's starboard side early Sunday.

An explosion in her forward hold started a series of small fires that rapidly spread the length of the ship.

The Spencer threw 49 rounds before smoke that could be seen for miles made it difficult to assess the damage, the coast guard said.

The cutter then moved to the port side, fired eight more rounds, and settled back to wait for an hour while the Alva Cape listed more and more to port.

The tanker finally cracked in half as she sank, leaving a large circle of burning oil on the water She continued to break up as she dropped the 1½ miles to the bottom, the coast guard said.

China Says Raids End Limitation on Aid to Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. fighter-bombers struck another blow today at a strategic oil depot near the port of Haiphong and wrecked a surface-to-air missile (SAM) site 15 miles west of Hanoi.

While air force jets edged close to the North Vietnamese capital Sunday, navy fliers from the 7th Fleet carrier Constellation pounded the Do Son fuel depot 12 miles southeast of Haiphong for the second time in five days.

The U.S. jets returned to North Viet Nam's industrial belt while China warned it considered itself freed from "any bounds or restrictions" on aiding the North Vietnamese as a result of the American raids near Hanoi and Haiphong last week.

The Peking statement said the air attacks had brought the war to "a new and still graver stage" but did not say what, if any, new aid the Chinese would give.

As U.S. planes ranged over the north, a company of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division fought two brief battles with Viet Cong guerrillas a few miles from the Cambodian border in South Viet Nam. Simultaneously, the Viet Cong harassed a nearby U.S. special forces camp near Trai Bi.

Declaring that the country will face more damaging strikes, Frank Cousins, Britain's most powerful union leader, has quit the technology portfolio, returning to his old job as secretary of the 1,000,000 - member Transport and General Workers Union.

Accusing Wilson of breaking his word that he would not use his power to whip the unions into the government's price line, the 61-year-old Cousins maintained Sunday that Wilson's prices policy is meaningless and will merely force the government into more battles with the unions.

Wilson maintained, however, in his letter accepting Cousins' resignation, that the government will be unable to maintain full employment if wage demands are not kept within the bounds of productivity.

TOKYO (AP)—China, on the heels of a veiled threat to increase aid to North Viet Nam, charged today that the United States planned to send ground forces into Laos.

Peking radio coupled the accusation with a fresh outburst of invective following the U.S. air raids on fuel depots near Hanoi and Haiphong last Wednesday.

The Chinese foreign ministry charged the United States with "making active preparations for sending its ground forces into Laos. At the Instigation of the United States, military personnel of Thailand and South Viet Nam have successively infiltrated into the areas of central and lower Laos."

Just as in the denunciations of the U.S. air attacks, the Peking statement did not say what if anything the Chinese would do to meet the alleged American challenge.

A government statement said Sunday that last Wednesday's U.S. bombings "now has freed us from any bounds or restrictions" in supporting the North Vietnamese regime. Although the declaration contained an implied threat to increase aid to Hanoi, it made no specific commitments.

Edneys Win Bowling Crown At Kingston

Dick Edney and his wife Mary won the Limestone Mixed Pairs Tournament and The Whig-Standard Trophy at the Kingston Lawn Bowling Club Friday but their final three-game score wasn't enough to give them the victory.

Edney, who was the tournament chairman, and two other Kingston entries were all tied with identical scores of 51 after three games and the deadlock had to be broken by determining which team had the least number of points scored against them.

The Edneys had 26 against, the team of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bruce, who also finished with 51 points, had 29 and the twosome of Jim Taylor and Mae Lowe, the other team in the three-way tie, had 34.

The other three-game winner in the event was the team of Bil Duncan, Jr., and Joan Watkin with a score 48.

This marks the second time that the winners have had their names engraved on the trophy. The Edneys won the event in 1959, while it was still a rinks competition. The tournament became a team event five years ago.

Edney and his wife, who have been bowling as a team for the past 27 years, defeated Wally Lavergne and Anne Avery of Belleville 15-11 in their first match, downed Ed Dennison and Vi Matthews 18-16 in the second match and Doug Clark and Marg Wistard 20-7 in their final match.

Bruce and his wife Jean defeated Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ralph of Brockville 21-11 in their initial match, took a 19-8 decision from Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Chouinard of Trenton in the second and beat Jack Sager's Belleville team 11-10 in the third match.

Taylor and his partner downed Mr. and Mrs. Ted Barnard 21-9 in the first game, beat Mr. and Mrs. Mel Caverly from Madoc 13-11 and defeated Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox 17-14 in the last game.

The high two-game winner winners were Bill Gillespie and Lottie McAdoo, representing the host club, with a score of 56 plus 3.

A team representing the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club was the second high two game winners. Mr. and Mrs. Orolo Smith compiled a score 54 plus 6.

George Helsby and Olga Macera, also of the host club, were the high one - game winners in the second draw with a score of 41.

Atotal of 40 doubles teams competed in the tournament.

Rinks from the Belleville Club who took in the tourney were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Smith, Wally Lavergne and Mrs. Anne Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Van Tassel, Mr. and Mrs. William Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price and John Sager and Miss Marg Fairbairn.

69 Boats Through Lock Over Holiday

TRENTON — James Howard, the lockmaster at Lock No. One, reports 69 boats locked through over the weekend, and more to come with today being the American Independence Day holiday.

Mr. Howard said this was the biggest July 1 weekend in a number of years. Since navigation's opening on May 13, 175 boats have made it up the Trent.

Trenton police report only minor accidents over the weekend in spite of a bumper crop of vehicles on town streets.

The fire department was called out twice, once to a car fire and once to a grass fire.

OPP at Brighton also report only minor accidents.

Town Launches Appeal Against Judgment

TRENTON — The Town of Trenton has, through its solicitors, launched a 23 item appeal against the judgment brought down on May 30 by the Hon. Mr. Justice Landreville, against the town and in favor of the B. W. Powers and Son, Ltd. and the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Co. (of Canada), Ltd.

The appeal lists a number of instances in which the town claims the judge "erred" in not admitting certain testimony which the town had ready to present.

One item takes note that by the surveyors' act, brought down in 1887, Ontario Street and the extension in dispute, became a public highway.

The coal company used the extension for a number of years, then, town council, 1964, laid claim to the land as a public highway.

Mr. Justice Landreville said in his judgment that the town had committed trespass and awarded the plaintiff $1,300 damages and costs of the law transaction.

New Jersey Boys Making Long Journey

David and Jon said they were impressed by the extreme friendliness of Canadians . . . with the possible exception of one O.P.P. officer who discovered them cycling along Highway 401.

of several was torn off and others were armed with pieces of glass they had taken from windows. Several held broken furniture as they screamed at police.

Reformatory Superintendent G. R. Thompson said the prisoners were angered because another prisoner had been taken to an outside hospital for treatment.

He said the woman, who had been taking medicine, was encouraged by the other prisoners to refuse the prescription and demand stronger drugs.

The others apparently thought they could obtain the stronger drugs from her, the superintendent said.

SCREAMS CARRY

Police said screams from the chapel could be heard more than 100 feet away. The remaining 73 prisoners yelled encouragement from locked corridors to the 15 involved in the fight.

After the riot, four women were taken to Don jail. The three removed to hospital had deep gashes in their wrists from breaking windows with their hands.

More than 300 panes of glass were broken and furniture was reduced to debris. Office equipment was damaged and fire hoses were ripped from walls, police said.

The seven women removed by police ranged in age from 19 to 30. The others were returned to their dormitories after being subdued.

The institution was staffed by 11 persons when the riot broke out at 11:30 p.m., just before lockup time. Two matrons blocked the corridor and waited in an office until police arrived.

Reformatory officials said the fight started in a third-floor dormitory, then descended to the first floor and finally ended in the chapel.

The hands and uniforms of several police officers were stained with blood as they halted the fighting. The building, which has no air conditioning, was described as stifling hot when the outbreak occurred.

PCs and Liberals in Battle To Settle Dead-heat Election

SOURIS, P.E.I. (CP)—Neither the Progressive Conservatives nor Liberals are sparing the whip in their drive to settle the dead heat of the May 30 Prince Edward Island general election.

With the July 11 deferred election in Kings 1st drawing ar, the two parties have warmed up the campaign in the rural riding with a generous helping of promises and a volley of charges.

Deadlocked at 16 legislature seats apiece, both sides are aware that the two-member constituency holds the numerical key to the island's future government.

Premier Walter R. Shaw, 78, gave the Conservative machine its first shot of grease in early June when he appointed Keith MacKenzie, Kings 1st assemblyman candidate, public works and highways minister to replace J. Philip Matheson, who was defeated in Queens 2nd.

'THE SOURIS MANIFESTO'

Since then, Mr. Shaw, Mr. MacKenzie and Peter McAulay, candidate for councillor, have folded a revised edition of the nservative platform, one that Liberal Leader Alex B. Campbell calls "the Souris manifesto."

In addition to Conservative commitments on an increase in old-age pensions to $100 from $75 a month retroactive to April 1, which the premier says has already been implemented, rural development and universal medical care, the augmented platform includes:

A crab and shell-fishing industry, now being researched, to be based in this town of 1,500; an Irish moss processing plant to be constructed in Kings 1st; a salt mackerel processing industry for the riding; a total of eight new steel draggers for the area's fishing industry; a national park in eastern Kings County; an all-weather highway between here and Charlottetown; a vocational and fisheries ining school for eastern ngs; a reduced school tax in Souris and vicinity; and financial assistance to the Souris and eastern Kings fire departments to provide protection for rural areas.

Mr. Campbell, 33-year-old freshman Liberal leader, says his party will not engage in "auction block tactics" to woo Kings 1st voters, but will stand on its original platform and leave most of the campaign to candidates Daniel J. MacDonald and Bruce L. Stewart.

CHOSEN TO FILL SPOT

Mr. Stewart, former mayor of Souris, was chosen to fill the vacancy left by the death of Assemblyman William A. Acorn May 26, which brought about the deferred balloting. Mr. MacDonald was first elected Liberal ncillor in 1962.

Premier Shaw "is not only trying to throw dust in the eyes of the electors but is also attempting deliberately to deceive the voters by his deathbed repentance of previous indifference and neglect," Mr. Campbell told a rally at St. Charles last week.

"The Souris manifesto," he said, shows the government is not doing "what it should long since have done to encourage development in this part of the island."

The Liberal platform also included a promise to boost old-age benefits to $100 a month, as well as agricultural development and free school text books up to Grade 10.

The two leaders have exchanged heated words over campaign tactics in the May 30 election.

AIMS INTERFERENCE

Premier Shaw charged that five civil servants from Ottawa and New Brunswick were in Prince Edward Island working for the Liberal party during the campaign.

He said Mr. Campbell should tell the people "how many recently employed New Brunswickers were supplied from that province" and "whether he considers it a fair, honest principle for a neighboring province to interfere in the affairs of this province during an election campaign."

There have also been "rather sensational rumors" that out-of-province Liberal sources had provided "large financial and other forms of assistance," he said.

Mr. Campbell replied: "The cliff-hanging Conservative government must be indeed frightened when they stoop to making preposterous charges of outside intervention instead of discussing the real issues of the election.

"They talk glibly about what they call the Robichaud raiders, but they forget about the four well-paid federal members of Parliament and their senator who participated actively in their campaign along with high-salaried advertising executives from outside the province."

He denied that the New Brunswick government or Liberal party had worked for Prince Edward Island Liberals.

The effect of these promises and charges on the eligible voters of Kings 1st will be determined July 11, but the fishing and farming constituency at the province's eastern end is not unaccustomed to special attention.

The late Mr. Acorn wrenched a seat away from the Conservatives in a February, 1965, by-election, giving the Liberals a seat left vacant by the death of Conservative John R. McLean. The turnover, plus the victory of Mr. Campbell in a Prince 5th byelection, sliced the legislature majority of Mr. Shaw's government to four seats.

The Liberals must retain their two seats in Kings 1st and the Conservatives must score an upset in both if either party is to form a government with a majority. Should the riding split, leaving the legislature in a 16-to-16 tie, Mr. Shaw would be left with three foreseeable alternatives.

He could continue to govern with a minority, since one government member would likely be chosen Speaker, attempt to form a coalition with the Liberals or call a new election. The premier hinted at a coalition election night and Mr. Campbell said he would consider the idea, but there has been no further mention of coalition by either camp.

11 Canadians Share Jackpot On Irish Derby

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eleven Canadians shared an Irish Sweepstakes jackpot Saturday with tickets on the top three finishers in the Irish Derby at Dublin.

Another 160 Canadians drew prizes of about $1,300 each in the international lottery held three times yearly to aid hospitals in the Irish Republic.

The big prizes of $150,000 each, for tickets on the winning horse Sodium, went to two Vancouver residents and one each from Brantford and Burlington, Ont. Prizes of $60,000 each on the second-place horse, Charlottown, went to men in Newcastle, N.B., and Arvida, Que.

Five Canadians — from Vancouver, Terrebone, Que., Winnipeg, and two from Toronto—collected $30,000 each on Paveh, the third Derby finisher.

The total money winnings by Canadians in this second sweepstakes of the year came close to $1,078,000. Since sale of Irish Sweepstakes tickets is illegal in Canada, no estimate of the amount contributed by Canadians to the lottery was available.

The Ontario first-prize winners were George Richardson, 54, a Burlington machinists, and George Harris, 33, an industrial foreman from Brantford

Mr. Harris, 33, said he won a $312 consolation prize in the sweep three years ago and had not expected to hit again.

"Everybody told me then not to buy any more tickets because I had used up my luck."

One of his plans is for a trip to Europe. He and Mrs. Harris have three children: Christine, 9; Catherine, 4, and Caren, eight weeks old.

Another Irish Sweepstakes will be held on the Cambridgeshire Handicap to be run in England in October.

Uniform Decidedly Fashionable For Men, Women in Indonesia

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS

JAKARTA (AP) — The new look in Indonesia is militant and a uniform is decidedly fashionable for both men and women.

The militant look had its roots in martial law declared in 1957 and enforced until 1963. It really blossomed, however, following the attempted Communist coup here last Oct. 1, a coup crushed within hours by the army.

Fierce rivalry had existed between the military and the 3,000,000 pro-Chinese Communists. The army, seeing a chance to eradicate the Communists, pressed its advantage. Troops organized and supported the people in a massive search and slaughter operation that killed thousands of Communists.

The army immediately began filling all positions previously held by Communists or sympathizers with army men so that most top positions in the government now are held by the army, beginning with army strongman Lt.-Gen. Suharto and the former defence minister, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution.

These two men are in effective command of the country and are consolidating their position by steady removal of all who do not give total, unquestioning loyalty. In their place ge army officers.

At the moment, the people show no resentment toward the army for they feel it was the troops who liberated them from the Communist control. They believe the army will run the country with more liberalism and put the chaotic economy back into some semblance of order.

But how long good relations with the soldiers will last has become a nagging question, particularly in view of the increasing reports of military violence.

One Western embassy official told how he saw an army truck accidentally run into a civilian car at a crossing. Two soldiers got out and beat up the driver. Then they took rifles to the car, smashing all the windows and slashing the seats.

Armed soldiers have literally hijacked ships at the port near Jakarta. Soldiers also regularly take what they want from shops, particularly those owned by Chinese.

Nevertheless, the army is using its power to win more power. The real program begins in the small village where children, including girls, are taught how to march, fire a rifle and conduct field operations. One girl in central Java said she likes the drilling because it gave her a chance to meet and talk with her friends.

There is little recreation for youths in Indonesia; movie houses are rare and soda fountains unheard of. Daily marching at least brings them together.

The military training program is intensive, ranging up to three months a year for all level of school children.

European visitors have commented on the strong similarity between Indonesian military training for children and Nazi Germay's old program. The image became almost bizarre at the port near Jakarta where, along with propaganda broadcasts, the German march song Boden Weiler was playing. It was a Hitler favorite.

On a grassy field in Jakarta, 30 university girls marched around the field, 1919 bolt-action rifles on their shoulders. They wore brightly-colored slacks, blouses and straw hats but were unsmiling as they marched. A lean woman in army fatigues drilled them. The girls, rather than resenting the drilling, looked forward to displaying their talents in a parade

NONE SPARED

Indonesian militancy spares none. The wives of soldiers are expected to learn nearly as much as their husbands and work at it with surprising fervor. Women up to seven months pregnant march and drill with the rest, complete with combat boots, helmet and Russian rifle or sub-machine-gun.

Perhaps the greatest impact of militancy can be seen in Indonesia's students, a volatile, organized mass that carries great influence on government actions.

Student commando units have their own battalions which are the hard-core militants, the organizers and the enforcers. Para-military units, comprised of students and trained by professional soldiers, have also been organized.

The upsurge of militant organization in Indonesia is expected to continue as long as generals remain in control of the coutry—and they have no challengers at the moment.

Russian's Take Quick Tour Of Steel, Auto Plants, Falls

By TOM MITCHELL

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Russia's touring parliamentarians moved into the industrial heartland of Canada Sunday for a quick tour of steel and auto plants, with a look at Niagara Falls thrown in.

The 11-member delegation headed by Soviet Deputy Premier Dimitri Polyansky hopped from Montreal to Toronto by plane and went to the falls by bus in the evening.

They got their view of the falls during dinner at a restaurant overlooking the cataract, then made a brief tour of an Ontario Hydro plant turning out power from the Niagara River.

Today the group splits up for visits to the Ford Motor Co. plant at Oakville and Steel Co. of Canada's big mill at Hamilton.

They go to Ottawa tonight but will be back in southwestern Ontario Tuesday for visits to Toronto and Kitchener.

The group wound up a western swing Saturday and flew from Vancouver to Montreal. They spent Sunday visiting the Expo 67 world fair site where Russia is the biggest foreign exhibitor.

They also had a sort of homecoming in Montreal on board the Alexandr Pushkin, new Russian ocean liner that inaugurated to Russia-to-Montreal ship service earlier this year.

Agriculture is a main interest for the delegates. Mr. Polyansky is an agriculture school graduate and has demonstrated he is right at home on the farm.

The western portion of the visit concentrated on farming, although the party did tour a modern dairy products plant near Vancouver.

"We have been received in Canada in a brotherly way," Mr. Polyansky said in summing up the first week of the delegation's 10-day visit. "That's a graphic testimonial to the desire of our two peoples for peace."

Salad Queen To Visit City, Food Stores

It is doubtful whether Mayor Jack Ellis and eight of the city's food store managers will get the opportunity again this year to play host to a prettier and more affable personality than Miss Verna Libman.

In the coming week Miss Libman this year's Salad Queen for Ontario is visiting here to promote in the interest of the province's enterprising fruit and vegetable growers. The blonde, blue-eyed beauty from Toronto as the No. 1 public relations representative for the $80 million dollar annual produce industry stops off at 16 other centres on her tour of Ontario.

While in Belleville one of Miss Libman's duties will be to present an appropriate gift to Mayor Ellis on behalf of her sponsors. In turn the Salad Queen will receive the Freedom of the City while she is here along with a memento to remind her of Belleville hospitality. The presentation to her soon after her arrival Thursday will take place aboard Prince Edward County Warden Harold Bonter's cruiser docked at the Belleville Yacht Club for the occasion. The Warden is the local tour chairman.

Later Thursday evening Miss Libman will be guest of honor at a dinner at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel attended by civic, provincial and federal dignitaries with food editors and representatives of the local wholesale and retail food trade present.

On Friday the Salad Queen will be making personal appearances at food stores throughout the city starting at 9:30 a.m. and continuing until late afternoon. She will visit the newspaper and radio station while she is here.

Members of the local tour committee include: R. Leduc, D. Kane, N. Sidey, J. Stoneburgh, W. Gibbens, F. Bell, S. Mulholland, M. Amodeo and H. Bonter (chairman).

Hoffa Certain To Get Raise In Yearly Wage

By NEIL GILBRIDE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James R. Hoffa, Teamsters' union president, charged today that anti-labor forces in the U.S. government and "smear" tactics by American news media threaten organized labor in general and the Teamsters in particular.

Hoffa, opening the Teamsters convention with a barrage of verbal fireworks against opponents, is certain to win re-election to a new five-year term and a $25,000-a-year pay raise.

"Powerful forces have banded together to destroy this organization and its leaders," Hoffa said in a report to some 2,200 delegates representing 1,700,000 members of the world's biggest union.

"Enemies of labor work around the clock in their efforts to pass crippling anti-strike legislation, to apply anti-trust provisions to free labor and to curtail our effectiveness at the bargaining table," Hoffa said.

He made no specific reference to his own legal troubles, including jury tampering and mail fraud convictions, except to say:

"My only regret concerning the personal harassment and political vendetta of the last several years is that my family has suffered embarrassment and personal anguish."

MAY GO TO JAIL

Hoffa could be in prison before his new term is far under way if the U.S. Supreme Court rejects his appeal of the eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

His five-year mail-fraud sentence is pending before the U.S. Court of Appeals and probably also will be finally decided before Hoffa is up for re-election in 1971.

Man Awaiting Trial Escapes From Jail

To date, he has not been apprehended.

Kundeus is believed to have left the jail around noon. His disappearance was reported to local police by jail officials about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Kundeus, also known as Mike Ostrowski, was arrested June 28 by Belleville City Police on a charge of breaking and entering and was awaiting trial.

He is described as being 6 feet in height, weighing 160 pounds, with brown hair and eyes. When last seen, Kundeus was wearing a checked sports shirt, brown trousers, and brown shoes.

Firemen Busy Over Weekend, Crops Damaged

Belleville firemen were called to five fires on the weekend, two grass fires, two car fires and a truck fire.

Friday, firemen put out a fire in a truck on Coleman St. in front of Roblin's Dairy. There was heavy damage to the electrical wiring system of the truck.

Friday afternoon firemen put out a fire in the 8th concession of Thurlow on the farm of Don Sills. A fire started along the roadside and spread through the grass, unto some fence posts and into a field of hay.

Saturday, firemen put out a fire at the farm of J. Colton, Lot 87, Concession 4, Ameliasburg. Six acres of crops were burnt over in that fire.

Sunday firemen put out two car fires, one when a cigarette fell on the floor of a car as the owner went into Mark's Fish House on Front St. to have dinner, and the other when a car going by the fire hall backfired and caught fire.

Fire Chief Ted Poste said the home inspection program is coming along well. "People are responding exceptionally well. The public is being most co-operative."

Three Youths Hurt as Auto Hits Railing

Three Belleville youths received out-patient treatment at Belleville General Hospital Sunday after they were involved in a one-car mishap on highway 14.

David and Joseph Raycroft, both 16, and Kevin Dustin, 17, were taken to hospital by City and LaSalle Ambulaces after their southbound car went out of control about three miles north of Belleville and struck a guard rail.

The incident occurred around noon on Sunday.

tabled in the Commons this afternoon by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

Informants say the white paper proposes a major shakeup of the CBC's embattled administration. CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet, the 58-year-old electrical engineer who joined the Crown corporation when it was organized in 1935, is expected to have his powers reduced.

The white paper also is expected to propose a new method of financing the CBC under which the corporation would get fixed amounts from Parliament every five years instead of every year as at present so it will have more independence and flexibility in planning its budgets.

The government also wants first reading given to Bank Act amendments so the bill can be studied during the summer and a start made on legislation to set up a national medical insurance program.

Other bills on the schedule are to amend the Income Tax Act and the Crop Insurance Act and to provide for the national arts centre.

The government must also win approval for a money supply bill to pay expenses during the recess.

Best bet now is that the recess will start late this week.

WILL DEMONSTRATE

BRANTFORD (CP) — The Brantford Labor Council Sunday announced plans for a July 8 demonstration against the use of injunctions in labor disputes. Fred Jennings, council president, said a motorcade will be followed by a public meeting.

Japs Invest in Canada

Japanese trade with Canada, and particularly with British Columbia, has been growing apace.

For example, there is Japanese capital in the lumber and fishing industries on the west coast. Japanese technical skills are also going into development projects in these and other spheres in Canada.

Now this peaceful infiltration of the Canadian economy by an old enemy is being carried a stage further. A Tokyo announcement says the Japan Petroleum Exploration Company Ltd. (Japex) and Pinnacle Petroleums Ltd., of Calgary, have agreed on joint development of petroleum resources in Canada.

The agreement authorizes Japex to acquire 863,000 of the 1,725,000 voting shares of the Canadian firm. The Japanese company will supply funds totalling $3,750,000 for joint projects by the two concerns.

The agreement is said to be subject to approval by the Japanese government, but presumably this, as well as the sanction of Ottawa, is only a formality.

Canada has plenty of room for investment by overseas interests. United States investment is one of the dominant factors in our economic life, and talk of limiting it lest it lead to our complete absorption cannot blind us to the fact that without it Canada would not be where it is today. However, investment by other countries, such as Japan, helps to strike a balance in the amount of foreign influence exercised on the economy, while at the same time helping to maintain business momentum in Canada.

What's in a Name

An old newspaper axiom is contained in the phrase, "Names Make News". Thus we can understand with what absorbing interest parents and children have been studying the primary schools' promotion lists.

For one thing, what a boon they are to parents in doubt as to what name they should bestow upon a new child. And then, the names themselves are a fascinating study. Often the surname is what claims the attention, and invariably the parents have given sons and daughters christian names that harmonize perfectly with the family name.

Here is a selection of such names, taken at random from last week's lists, and starting with a couple straight from Greek mythology, Kathy Eros and Deborah Ptolemy.

Robert Melbourne is a name with a fine ring to it, and there is a Heather Melbourne, and as likely as not they are brother ad sister. And how about Bobby, Carolyn and Jaclyn Salisbury, and the Rhodenizers, Denise and Weston. And Bobby Mondeville, now there is a name that stops you in your tracks.

Roberta Lancaster and Janna Murkittrick are two more names that command attention And there are shorter ones that also catch the eye and roll easily off the tongue — like Shawn Nex, Lee Stratton, Holly Ristau, Dawn Yateman, Arliss Thiessen, Jill Farmer and Candace Clark.

What a wealth of interest there is in names. They are as varied as the underlying personalities of the youngsters, and mark them as the individuals they are in a society that is not as conformist as might be supposed.

Pinnacle Street Drag

Now that Pinnacle Street at last has been transformed into a smooth and efficient thoroughfare new traffic problems have arisen.

As might have been expected, the temptation to speed is too much for the young bloods. In cars and on motor-cycles they forget they are driving within the confines of the city and imagine they are performing at the Mohawk dragstrip at Deseronto.

If anything the motor-cyclists represent the greater menace. Evenings they are out in force, and their antics as they pull away from the lights on the corner here at Bridge have to be seen to be believed.

Belleville police should get an eyeful if they station themselves at the corner here, on Bridge and Pinnacle, anytime between 6 p.m. and midnight.

Speaking of Names

Stratford has a new building for the young people's education and it is called Romeo Public School.

The school replaces one built in 1873. As for its unusual name, we presume it was inspired by Shakespeare's immortal lover. We wonder what the boys thing of such a name for their school.

Perhaps Stratford, with its theatrical tradition and link with the great bard, is establishing a trend. Before long the city may have schools named after such fateful characters as Macbeth and Othello!

Diabetes Insipidus Makes Victim Thirsty

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My seven-year-old grandson drinks an excessive amount of water. He has diabetes insipidus. Can anything be done to correct it? — Mrs. B. K.

The child drinks because he is abnormally thirsty.

Diabetes insipidus is not related to sugar diabetes, or diabetes mellitus, and it is far less common. However, it is a problem.

Basically it involves a disorder of the posterior part of the tiny pituitary gland. There is a deficiency of a hormone which controls the release of water from the body. Large amounts of urine are passed; the patient, naturally, becomes thirsty as fluid is lost from the body, so he drinks vasts quantities. This may amount to gallons per day.

Exactly what causes the condition is not known; evidently it can be hereditary in some cases; others not.

Treatment falls into three categories.

First: The administration of a pituitary hormone called vasopressin (prepared in an oil suspension, and given by injection). Frequency of injections varies quite widely, from one every other day to several in a single day.

Second: Pituitary substance can be made into a sort of snuff, and either blown into the nose, or snuffed into the nostrils. This is effective but the drawback which sometimes interferes is the possibility of irritation of the nasal membranes.

Third: A more recent treatment is use of drugs which are effective in reducing swelling — drugs on the order of chlorthiazide. These can be taken by mouth. Dosage has to be regulated by your physician.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently read about the 10-year-old girl who wants a pet but her father gets asthma from animals. My father has asthma, too. I got a guinea pig last August and it doesn't bother my father at all. I am also 10 years old, and I keep my pet in a box in our family room. — R. T.

Thank you. What bothers one person may not bother another. One reader suggested a chameleon as a pet.

Note to Mrs. E. H. S.: Yes, worry and tension very decidedly can have a great deal to do with a flare -up of colitis.

Dear Dr. Molner: How much water should a person drink a day? Is it possible to drink too much? My mother-in-law drinks a lot because she says it "flushes out the kidneys." I should think to much would be hard on the kidneys. — K.B.

It is possible to drink too much water, but in practice it is extremely unlikely, and I have never known a specific case of this in my many years of medicine.

An adult needs about two quarts a day. This varies, depending on how much one perspires, how hard he works, etc. If you are thirsty, two or three times as much is quite reasonable.

This means water in all forms, soup, coffee, tea, pop, milk, vegetables and fruit, and even the water in meat, because there is some.

Drinking lots of water helps by keeping the urine dilute and hence less likely to let kidney stones form, or other forms of irritation. If you want to call that "flushing out the kidneys," I guess you can. Plenty of fresh fluids (water) is easier on the kidneys than too little.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes—The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Strictly Personal

Technology Versus Anarchy

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What we commonly call a "drama" is a conflict between two opposing forces; if the drama is a "tragedy," it ends in defeat for both the forces. What then, would you say, is the central drama of our age, and how do we prevent it from turning into a tragedy?

Many people would say that it is the conflict, or confrontation, between the East and the West, between the forces of Russian and Chinese communism on the one hand, and Western capitalism on the other.

My own view is that the central drama of our age is that between the world's technological unity and its political anarchy. It has really little to do with the ideologies of communism or capitalism as such. And the drama will be converted into tragedy if the political quarrel is allowed to tear apart the technical unity.

This view is tersely expressed in a forthcoming book on world Prof. Emile Benoit of the Col-School of Business. Prof. Benoit writes graphically:

"We now live in a world in which all men are so close that only a few minutes' communicating, orbiting or shooting time separates them — . . .Yet we are still trying to make do with a system of international relations based on a much earlier order."

This obsolescent system, he points out, consists of "scores of independent, self - centred nation-states, each claiming the absolute rights of a Machievellian 'sovereign' to do what its own interest appeared to dictate, to withdraw from (or ignore) prior agreements when inconvenient, and to be bound solely by its own judgment in international disputes — including disputes about the meaning of its promises and agreements."

Yet the fact remains that such "sovereignty" is false and illusory All nations are increasingly interdependent, in both military and non-military ways. As the globe shrinks in time and space, all peoples across the world are actually closer together than the American colonists were at the time of our Revolution. The land, the sea and the air belong to everybody these days — for the power to destroy and contaminate extends over the whole earth and its atmosphere.

Moreover, as Prof. Benoit explains, because both we and our enemies can kill millions of each other almost instantaneously, "what has occurred is a mass exchange of hostages, leaving the population of the world's major cities subject to sudden slaughter . . . This is interdependence on a new plane of intensity: to an unbelievable and gruesome degree, we now depend on each other's leaders to be rational, to be predictable, to be sane." And that is all we can depend on to avoid tragedy.

The first Jesuit martyr in Huronia, Antoine Daniel, was murdered by Iroquois Indians 318 years ago today —in 1648—just after saying mass at Teanaostaiae mission, Simcoe county, Ontario. Father Daniel arrived in Canada at Cape Breton in 1632, aged 31, and was assigned to the Huronia mission with Brebeuf, who was himself martyred with Lalement the following year. All three became saints of the Roman Catholic church in 1930.

Canadiana Treasure at Lakehead

Fort William Times-Journal

One of the best potential Centennial displays in this part of Canada is to be found on Highway 61 about two miles north of the junction with Highway 130. In a huge three-storey barn, recently reconstructed, rests a treasure house of articles large and small which have been a part of Canadian life in the last hundred years. It is doubtful if there is a comparable collection of its kind elsewhere in Canda.

There are sleighs and buggies that were in use 80 to 90 years ago. Old Copp stoves and early type heaters of every description.

A blacksmith's forge which was in operation a hundred year ago. A square grand piano, made by the Emerson Company around 1850. Several of the first talking machines. China that graced tables when Canada was founded.

A sewing machine that preceded the old ones with foot pedals. First telephones that hung on Thunder Bay walls. Early-type bowling pins. ancient plows. Flat irons of every description. Very old rocking chairs. Complete sets of early dining room furniture. School desks with attached benches on which sat little pupils in the in the 1880's. Marble - topped tables and commodes. The earliest radios. Horse collars and harness. Stately clocks that stood high. A player piano. Hair curling machine for madam in the last century. Brass bedsteads. One of the first outboard motors. A knife sharpener and cleaner made by an English firm on High Holborne, London over a centruy ago.

An old mill stone. Carl Fischer music instruction books. Silver mesh bag which milady swung jauntily in the nineties. Very old coal-oil lamps and lanterns. Hand -made canoe. Fancy spittoon with foot pedal. Rare willow ware.

Ladies shoes fashionable in 1890, high and laced to the top. Skates of the 1870 period. Sleigh bells. Hanging lamps with pulleys. Round rulers made of heavy hardwood. Music cabinets. Beautifully wrought tea-wagons used early in this century. Hand-hewn baby's cradle. Washing machines going back to the kind one rocked. Old fashioned clothes wringers. A sign from George Ellett's general store in Kaministiquia when he first opened it. Primitive cash register.

The impressive feature of this Centennial museum is that all of it is the work of one dedicated man — Fred F. Goodfellow of Fort William. Inspired by Sadie Miller, beloved teacher at the Fort William Collegiate for many years, Mr. Goodfellow has devoted all his spare time to the project.

Foreign Aid Program Lags

Vancouver Sun

For all the well - advertised good intentions of the great industrial countries toward the under-developed nations of the world, the flow of foreign aid capital has been stagnant since 1961. This is grimly illustrated in figures released in the United Nations World Economic Survey for 1965.

In each of these two years the total aid from the Western and Communist countries was $9.1 billion. But in fact, that from the West had fallen from $8.1 billion in 1961 to $7.9 billion in 1965, while that from the Communists — exclusive of aid to Cuba — had risen from $1 billion to $1.2 billion.

Worse, the combined public debt of the recipient countries rose from $9 billion in 1955 to $33 billion in 1964. By the latter year, the outflow of interest and profit payments was accounting for more than half the net inflow of grants and loans.

What happened to the generous impulse which combined with enlightened self-interest up to a decade ago?

Apathy due to complacency can explain a lot. Even in Canada, however, the public has never been fully sold by their governments on the necessity for a helping hand to the needy nations. The Organization for Ecoomic Co-operation and Devlopment, of which Canada is a member, accepted 1 per cent of gross national product as a target for member countries. In 1964, the average contribution fell to .65 per cent, while in Canada it is currently .50 percent.

No doubt a certain amount of disillusionment with the lack of progress on the part of some of the recipient countries helps to cause apathy. It is hard to explain, however, why so enlightened and international a spirit as Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign affairs committee, has allowed that committee to work off its grievances, and his own, against U.S Vietnamese policy by crippling President Johnson's foreign aid bill.

The committee has cut the total for development loans and upped the interest rate, as well as reducing the president's requested five-year authorization to a one-year term.

The World Bank estimates the poor nations could usefully absorb $3.4 billion more than they now get. This would bring the West's contribution about up to the 1 percent proposed by OECD.

Canada, which has persistently lagged in giving, can afford to set a generous example — unless affluence has dulled conscience too far.

Desert Is Tapped for Water

St. Catharines Standard

Contrary to popular belief, it does rain in the desert. The trouble is that between 70 and 100 percent of desert rain is lost by evaporation. Technicians at the United States Water Conservation Laboratory believe they have found a way of harvesting a large proportion of the rain that falls in desert storms by spraying a silicone compound on the sand. The water-repellent silicone holds the rainfall above the ground, where it can be gravity-drained into reservoirs. Yield from a half-inch rainfall on a small plot of typical desert which had been "siliconed" proved to be 93 percent. The problem which still remains is how to make the silicone crust permanent.

Other scientists are at work tapping water that lies under the desert in huge reservoirs which have been gradually filled by seepage over thousands of years. The Saudi Arabian desert for instance — one of the driest areas of the world — cover enormous quantities of underground water, and a water development scheme has now been started there under the technical umbrella of the funds-in-trust agreement between Saudi Arabia and the UNESCO Food and Agriculture Organization.

The location and efficient use of underground water will mean drinking water for the nomadic tribes and their flocks, the strengthening of town life, the possibility of industrial development and the expansion of irrigated agriculture in settled farming areas. Water from the desert sounds unrealistic, but the evidence is that it can be accomplished for the welfare of man.

Critics Eye B-B Body

Quebec l'Action

The co-chairman of the Commission of Inquiry on Bilingualism and Biculturalism has just received a question as impertinent as . . . pertinent! Gerald Fortin, professor of sociology at Laval University, stated that the famous B-B commission, whose least fault is not to last so long that Canada will have changed before its report is ready, is falling under the control of sociologists "who have nothing Canadian about them." This is clear, sharp and embarrassing.

It was quite well known at the outset that a malaise existed, without which the commission of inquiry would not have had to be created. It is thus not a simple description of the misunderstandings that the commissioners must produce, but an analysis in depth.

The fact that they had recourse to sociologists in proceeding towards this analysis inspires great confidence, but the criticisms from Mr. Fortin have the result of putting this analysis in doubt.

In his opinion, English-Canadian sociologists are American in training and mentality, using methods from beyond our borders, and are notably behind the French sociologists.

This sociology permits us to hope for a valid analysis, but we share his scepticism on the subject of sociologists who could not evaluate such an intimate communion of thought.

Unions on Bandwagon

The Globe and Mail

The Seaway workers allowed themselves to be coaxed back to work with a Government-inspired 30 per cent wage increase over two years. This nice round figure also held great appeal for 95,000 railway workers, whose negotiators broke off talks on a more modest increase in order to readjust their demands.

Now we hear that Toronto Cartage Association has applied to Metro Licensing Commission for an increase in rates for moving vans, cartage vehicles and dump trucks. They suggest increases averaging 30 per cent.

It could be nothing more thain coincidence, of course, but 30 does seems to be an alarmingly fashionable figure these days.

Unfriendly Eyes

Hamilton Spectator

It is surprising how many people have their eyes on the CPR these days. And most are not friendly eyes, particularly in the more remote spots in northern Ontario and on the prairies. Many people are convinced that the CPR is trying to back out of the passenger business altogether to concentrate on freight — which doesn't talk and make complaints — and on its lucrative investments.

suade Wilson from legislation to curb the union's wage demands. When that failed, he stepped out.

Cousins has in fact been under public criticism for failing to do much as technology minister to speed industrial efficiency through more productive use of manpower.

The Viet Nam issue, and the strong outburst of the left wing against Wilson's continuing support of President Johnson of general Viet Nam policy, may also have been a factor in Cousins' decision to break openly on wage policy. He now has a free hand to join with the left in open defiance of Wilson's programs.

Cousins' break is neatly timed with publication today of the government's prices and incomes bill involving demands that unions give the prices board notice before they seek higher wages. The same demand is imposed on management trying to increase prices.

Wilson's supporters maintain that the prime minister's willingness to accept Cousin's resignation rather than bow to the left wing will strengthen the pound and increase world confidence in Britain's economic future.

However, there is public questioning whether the government's policy will work. The Guardian maintains the cabinet will be stronger without Cousins. The Times suggests the left-wingers now have a formidable new leader if Cousins is ready to take the reins. The Telegraph figures Cousins will gain great stature among trade unions, adding to Wilson's troubles.

Whatever the outcome, the outlook spells more trouble for Wilson. He won the March 31 election with 363 members in the 630-seat house, a comfortable margin. But about 80 or 90 of the socialists follow the radical left.

George Brown, deputy prime minister, said Sunday that if the government's prices policy doesn't work, the country will be faced with "an agonizing reappraisal" of its whole wage and price structure.

But despite this warning Wilson may go slow in his wage-restraint policy, knowing that full revolt by the unions could so entangle the country that the Labor government could well be destroyed in the ensuing turmoil.

Many Summer Events Keep Residents of County Busy

PICTON (Staff)— This has been one of the busiest weekends this town and county has seen for a long while — many summer events and cool beaches brought tourists and visitors from throughout a wide area. Streets in Picton since Thursday have been almost impossible to drive and shoppers by the hundreds have been crowding the sidewalks.

While most of the excitement was centred on the world championship boat races on Hayward Long Reach, crowds held back from there on Friday to escape the scorching heat and attended one of the many fine county beaches. At the Outlet Provincial Park all 400 campsites were full and the overflowed crowd of some 175 campers were sent to the Sandbanks Park. Since Friday night camp officials have had to send campers to private camps.

Games nights were also held throughout the weekend followed by displays of fireworks both in Wellington and Picton and sponsored by Royal Canadian Legion Branches. Friday night in Picton also saw a parade and official opening of the sportsman show sponsored by the Kinsmen Club of Picton. There hundreds saw exhibits of sporting and outdoors equipment and special hobby displays. Friday evening after the hot sun had disappeared and things had cooled off somewhat hundreds of teen-agers gathered in front of Benson Park for a fresh air street dance to a rock and roll band. The dance was sponsored by the Picton and district teen-set.

MINOR ACCIDENTS

Two minor accidents were reported by O.P.P. Picton detachment over the weekend both accidents occurred on West Lake Road near Outlet Beach. Both accidents involved only one car and there were no injuries. Friday night about 7:45 a car driven by Lawrence Deighton missed a stop sign and continued across the road and crashed into a checkerboard sign. Charges have been laid by OPP under Highway traffic act. About 11:30 Saturday a car driven by Victor Lowe travelling toward the outlet on West Lake Road left the road went through a ditch and into a field. OPP also are laying charges on this one.

A volkswagon van caught fire on Sunday afternoon about 3 PM on Black Creek Road about four miles out of Picton. There was no one in the vehicle when the fire was reported and Camp Picton Fire Department fought the flames. The Van according to OPP was reported stolen from Toronto and police are still investigating the cause of the blaze.

relations with the government, the statement said.

The leading advocate of moderation in the council, THICH (Venerable) Tam Chau, warned he would resign his post as chairman of the church's political arm, the Buddhist Institute, unless reason prevails. His main rival, the extremist chief Thich Tri Quang, ignored the warning and continued his anti-government hunger strike for the 26th day. He remained under arrest in a Saigon clinic.

In the next 14 days, the Buddhists apparently hope Premier Nguyen Cao Ky will carry out his pledges of leniency for those his forces arrested in quelling Buddhist dissidence in Saigon and the northern provinces.

Polyansky Says Russia Against Any Future War

By TOM MITCHELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada has taken a sensible position in deciding not to send troops to Viet Nam but should be taking active steps to bring an end to the war.

The 49-year-old deputy premier, who has shown workhorse stamina through the first seven days of a 10-day tour, covered the whole field of international relations in an hour-long interview Saturday as an RCAF Yukon plane carried the party to Montreal from Vancouver.

"The prestige of the United States has fallen to a very low ebb" since the extension of bombing raids to the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong, he said through his interpreter.

Western allies were beginning to protest. "I am sure the time will come when they will voice their objections in no uncertain terms."

"Canada should take active measures to halt this war," he added.

FEARS GERMANY

Mr. Polyansky expressed fear about Germany, saying West Germany now is on the same path as Germany in 1933-34, undergoing rearmament and seeking to get nuclear weapons.

Germany has unleashed eight wars in the last 100 years, he said, and because Russia lost 20,000,000 lives during the last war she is taking a firm stand and is sternly against any possible future war.

But Viet Nam could have far-reaching consequences, he added. "The thunderclouds have already appeared on the horizon."

The United States should let common sense override prestige considerations and pull its troops out of Viet Nam, he said.

Mr. Polyansky said his tour of Canada so far has been a complete success. The delegates had been warmly received and the visit was another step toward better U.S.S.R. - Canada relations.

"This is a graphic testimonial of the desire of the two peoples for peace," Mr. Polyansky said.

The deputy premier, who will stay on in Canada for about another week after the parliamentarians leave, said he will concentrate on Western wheat growing during the last part of his visit. Soil erosion in the wheat belt would be a prime topic.

RESORT ICEBOX COOKIES

You can make these before you leave for the cottage and shape and wrap and take and stash away in the refrigerator for unexpected carfuls of swimmers. Or you can make them on a cold or rainy morning at the cottage when it is too miserable to be outside.

Resort to these at your summer resort in an emergency.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Breaded Veal Kidneys and Bacon; Steam Fried Onions; Buttered Noodles; Lettuce, Apple and Sliced Olive Salad with French Dressing; Lattice Bing Cherry Pie; Tea.

RESORT ICEBOX COOKIES (approximately 6 to 8 dozen):

1 cup shortening (use ½ butter and ½ shortening for good flavor), ½ cup light brown sugar, 1½ cups granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3½ teaspoons single-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup finely chopped walnuts, 1/3 cup finely chopped drained maraschino cherries.

Into beater bowl measure shortening (or shortening and butter) and the two sugars and beat until light. Add eggs and beat until foamy. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Beat in. Add chopped walnuts and cherries.

(Now I will tell you how to roll and wrap and store these. Below I will give you three variations.)

Divide dough into four equal parts. Spread four 15" sheets of wax paper on counter and put quarter of dough on each. Cover top with one side of wax paper and roll it back and forth to make a smooth roll 1½" in diameter. Wrap and chill in refrigerator (or freeze). Continue until all cookie dough is rolled and wrapped. Chill until hard — preferably overnight.

Slice cold rolls of dough ¼" thick and place on greased cookie sheet or ungreased teflon cookie sheet 1½" apart. They spread a little. (This dough is pliable and easily shaped so if it crumbles or splits at the edges press it back into shape by hand.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 8 minutes but watch them and do not burn one cookie. Lift from pan with narrow spatula to cake rack. Makes 6 to 8 dozen — size depending on thickness.

Variations: 1) Make one wax-paper-wrapped roll of dough as above. 2) Before putting quarter of dough on wax paper sprinkle it with finely chopped walnuts, then roll dough back and forth, enclosed in wax paper, to coat one roll with nuts. 3) Sprinkle third sheet of wax paper with ½ to 1 teaspoon cinnamon and coat one roll of cookie dough with this spice. This was a popular variation here. 4) Coat fourth roll of dough with dessicated cocoanut by sprinkling wax paper with about ½ cup of it and rolling dough back and forth in it. Chill all rolls until hard before slicing and baking as above.

LADIES INVEST

MONTREAL (CP) — "The club is designed to make us financially secure, not rich," says Mrs. David Jacobs, vice-president of an exclusive club of Montreal women who put their pin money in the stock market. Housewives who are members must read financial pages and study annual business reports. All profits are re-invested.

PASSE IS ULTRA

The time has come to take a long backward look. It's camp to be mid-Victorian. Nothing is as new today, as yester-year's fads, innovations and furnishings — and what could be more pre-you-and-me than a Victorian spool table, hanging shelf or whatnot?

Quaint in and out of the city summer house or winter cabin setting, unique in town.

I hope you have been sewing and saving spools like mad (or we can cheat a little and buy all the empty spools we need) for about five dozen uniformly sized ones will be required. To give added interest, the spools that come right next to the shelves should be somewhat larger than the rest. Therefore, where three shelves are used, 20 of the 60 spools would be a larger size.

The shelves themselves need to be small and sturdy—approximately 6 inches by 8 inches is rather neat and manageable.

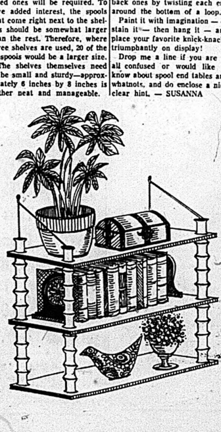
Bore holes in all corners and use heavy wire for stringing the shelves and spools together. Wire should be stiff enough so that one needs a pair of pliers to bend it.

Use one length of wire for each side. Leave the wire extending straight up 12 inches to 14 inches above the top shelf and then thread it down through the front of the three shelves, allowing seven spools between each shelf. Take it across the bottom and up the back repeating the whole process as you go. Place one larger spool only at each of the four corners right on top.

Form a loop for hanging on each of the back wires about 10 inches above the top shelf. Secure the front wires to the two back ones by twisting each end around the bottom of a loop.

Paint it with imagination — or stain it — then hang it — and place your favorite knick-knacks triumphantly on display!

Drop me a line if you are at all confused or would like to know about spool end tables and whatnots, and do enclose a nice clear hint. — SUSANNA



Mrs. J. Buchanan Retires As Homemaker Director

Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, supervisor of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross Homemaker service for the past 18 years, retired on July 1. Mrs. Jean Boyce succeeds her as supervisor.

Mrs. Buchanan has held the post of supervisor since the service in Belleville began in 1948. Under her direction, this department of the Red Cross has steadily grown in number of personnel and scope of work, until there are now 18 homemakers employed, caring for both motherless families and the needs of senior citizens.

During her career, Mrs. Buchanan placed homemakers in 3,947 homes where the mother was temporarily absent because of illness. Red Cross homemakers, during the last 18 years, have been responsible for the care of 7,988 children. Ten years ago, senior citizens care was included in the service, and since that time 818 older people have had a homemaker's assistant.

MEN READ WOMAN'S PAGE

MONTREAL (CP) — Just as many men as women read the women's pages of newspapers now, says George H. Beebe, editor of the Miami Herald. Interviewed here, he said more education and more women in the labor market brought the interests of both sexes closer together. He has two men working on the women's pages of his paper.

Odd Fellows, Rebekahs Hold Picnic

Ideal weather greeted Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, their families and friends at Cove Beach, Sunday for their fourth annual I.O.O.F. picnic. Host lodges, Belleville I.O.O.F. No. 81 and Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 welcomed those who came from all around district 47.

Many enjoyed the beach, swimming and playing horse shoes. Races and contests of all kinds were held with everyone given an opportunity to participate. Dash, egg throwing, shoe kicking, ball throwing, marble and spoon and women's nail driving brought prizes to the winners. A gum scramble and drinks and ice cream were given to the children.

Winners of the C. P. and T. draw were Brian Bonsor, 430 Dundas St. W., Belleville and Rose Reppi of Bath.

After these events, all sat down to a picnic supper after which more swimming and a time of fellowship was spent. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the committee in charge and all those who assisted in any way.

Successful Living

Demanding Parents Use Unfair Tactics

DEAR DORIS: I have plans to get married but my parents are dead set against it. I am 18, the man 25, and a successful business man, although he didn't have the best of educations (but neither did my parents.)

They think nothing below an engineer, lawyer or teacher is good enough for me. We emigrated from Europe 15 years ago, and my boy friend came from the same country. We have much in common; he treats me like a queen, he has read all kinds of books and I am able to tell him anything.

DORIS CLARK

Miss Clark, I have tried going with others, just to please them, but I get sick of them after two or three dates. I don't even want to kiss them good night.

I mentioned that I wanted to get married and my mother cried and refused to eat until I promised to break up with him. Why? Every one else says how good hearted he is and what a good husband he'll make. — PULLED TWO WAYS.

DEAR PULLED: Look: Fifteen years ago your mother and dad risked all they had to come to this land of plenty and give themselves and you a fresh start. They dreamed that their daughter would have every good thing.

For those who don't have a college education (especially parents) there is sometimes a desperate wish to make up for all they lack by educating their offspring or marrying them to Big Shots. Sometimes this means they have their values mixed up.

Your mother used unfair tarctis. With a better perspective she'd be coneidering her girl's feelings; she'd be realizing that by now you should have some say in the matter. You may agree to postpone marriage, but don't promise never to marry this man; since he may indeed be the one for you.

Mentally Retarded Constitute Three Per Cent of Population

By HELEN WALLACE
Of The London Free Press

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—They've been called "idiots," "fools," "morons, "imbeciles" and "creatures filled with Satan.

During the Reformation they were persecuted because, it was said, they were "possessed by the devil."

Until the beginning of this century they were institutionalized because it was thought they incited others to crime, alcoholism, prostitution, arson and illegitimacy.

They are the mentally retarded—the statistical three per cent of the population now considered intellectually impaired. The simplest definition of mental retardation calls it "a condition of arrested or incomplete development of the mind."

Today more than 100 pathological conditions are known to cause this retardation.

Most parents, when told their child is retarded, respond with shock, followed by disbelief, says Dr. Donald B. Zarfas, director of mental retardation services for Ontar$o.

Then comes guilt as parents blame themselves or others for the condition. They may seize on a minor accident, point to some distant relative who wasn't quite "right," blame each other or even the doctor who delivered the baby.

Saddest of all, Dr. Zarfas says, are parents who embark on a therapeutic shopping tour, going from doctor to doctor hoping for a more optimistic diagnosis.

HOME OR INSTITUTION—?

Two London mothers, each with a retarded child, admit their experiences correspond with the stages described by the doctor. Mrs. A has kept her daughter at home; Mrs. B decided to commit her son, now 13, to an institution.

"Right from the start we knew something was wrong," says Mrs. A. "Our baby was a preemie, and had difficulty breathing when she was born.

"Between six and nine months she wasn't sitting up. I kept comparing her to our other children, she was so much slower. One day I saw an American newspaper with a medical column describing PKU (phenyl-keton-uria, a progressive form of retardation which if discovered in the first months after birth can be arrested). The symptoms tied in with everything we thought wrong with our daughter."

Mrs. A mentioned it to her doctor but he said there was nothing to it. She wrote for more information and when the information arrived four months later she was positive her child had PKU.

"We took her to a specialist where tests confirmed she had PKU and from there went to the Children's Psychiatric Research Institute."

It's difficult for Mrs. A not to think about what might have been if the condition had been caught in time, or if the child had been taken to a specialist earlier.

FELT SELF-PITY

Mrs. A went through a period of self-pity but "you can only cry so long."

There was never any thought of putting the daughter in an institution. "We had no behavior problems with her, she fits in well with the family and I think she has drawn us all closer together."

The little girl plays with neighborhood children about half her age. But they'll soon start school and outgrow her and she'll have to find another younger group.

Mrs. A says neighborhood reaction has been wonderful, with the exception of a woman who had a fixation about germs and thought the girl was a germ-carrier. She moved away.

The family have no long-range plans for their child.

"We just go from year to year. I hope she can go from the Opportunity Workshop in London to some simple job. When she grows up . . . well, we'll just have to depend on the older children if anything happens to my husband or me."

Mrs. A describes her daughter, now eight, as "an exceedingly happy and loving little girl."

"I have told her her brain has been hurt and it wasn't hard for her to accept it; she just does."

Mrs. B learned at her son's six-month checkup that he was retarded. She wanted to keep him at home but soon had three younger sons to cope with and her husband is a salesman who is away weekdays. A doctor advised an institution.

BECAME PROBLEM

"He got to be quite a problem. He could sense there were things he couldn't do that his brothers could and this frustrated him. He ran away from home constantly and was always in hospital for drinking odd things like turpentine."

When he was seven he was sent to the Ontario Hospital school at Orillia and then transferred to Cedar Springs school for the retarded here. He has been away almost six years but comes home for a visit once a month.

At one time Mrs. B considered bringing him home "but I thought, what do you do for them when they're older?"

"I can't put the responsibility on the other children. If I did bring him home for a few years and he had to go back, what would I have proved?

"I don't see how I could have raised the other children otherwise. If he had been the youngest and I knew more about children, I might have done differently. I feel he could have been taught more, learned to read and write, but it would have been at the expense of the other children. You have to think about that."

Written for the Associated Press
By ROBERT KOSTOFF
Buffalo Courier-Express

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y (AP) — Going over Niagara Falls in a rubber raft isn't as terrifying as it's cooked up to be, says Jean Lussier, 74-year-old conqueror of Horseshoe Falls.

Now. 38 years later, Lussier recalls the trip as a comparatively mild one and says he wasn't nervous at all. Sitting in his small apartment here, he recalled Sunday details of the trip he took July 4, 1928, over the falls on the Canadian side.

He can recite verbatim a spiel he used when lecturing to accompany a film made of the event. Written by a promotion man, it contained references to the bottom of his ball being caved in by rocks and told about him going over the brink upside down and being trapped behind the thundering falls.

But it's all bunk, Lussier said.

He said he designed his ball so well that it went over upright, just as he had planned. There was an easy descent and when he reached the water at the bottom of the fall he slid easily into it with the cascading water.

The descent under water was easy until the ball crashed, with very little shock, against the bottom, he said. The ball then shot to the top, where he was picked up and came out of the ball to the wild cheers of 150,000 spectators.

He said he was not nervous about going over the falls because he had worked in circuses doing various stunts.

The idea of going over the falls came to him while he was working in a rubber factory. He designed the ball six feet in diameter, composed of 32 compartments constructed around a steel frame and weighted at the bottom. With him harnessed inside the riding compartment, the conveyance weighed 1,037 pounds.

Lussier constructed the ball in a garage in Akron, Ohio, finishing it July 1, 1928. Two days later, he slipped the ball into the city of Niagara Falls and hid it in a garage. He recalls that although it was against the law to go over the falls, several policemen visited him and looked over the ball.

Lussier said he believes the days of daredevils going over the falls may be at an end.

He said he believes the reason is that there is not much money to be made going over the falls now. The glory is no longer as great, because there are three living persons who have conquered the falls.

The other two are Nathan Boya, who went over in a rubber ball designed after Lussier's, and Roger Woodward, a boy who was swept over in a lifejacket.

THE SLENDER THREAD — For some 245,000 Arab refugees crowded into the Gaza Strip life depends on the slender rations doled out by the United Nations Relief and Works Agency. The Palestinian refugee (left) is receiving a 15-day supply of rations. He gets 11 pounds of Canadian flour, a glassful of soybean oil, a bit less than a pound of beans and about a cupful each or rice and sugar. The cake of soap is for one month.

Gaza Strip Is Untidy Corner Festering Under Desert Sun

The Gaza Strip is the home of 400,000 Arabs, three-quarters of whom are refugees still hoping some day to return to their former homes in what now is Israel. A Canadian Press reporter describes the problems raised by diminishing international interest in their plight.

By CARL MOLLINS

GAZA (CP) — The Gaza Strip is a septic growth created by war, patched up by international politics but festering uncertainly in the desert sun.

This untidy corner of the Mediterranean shoreline is overpopulated and underprivileged. It has an excess of administrators and a dearth of work, a surfeit of soldiers and a want of security.

Twenty-two millionaires are said to thrive in the 120 or so square miles of the strip. Half that many people occupy together 120 square feet of floor space in one of the mud-brick hovels of the eight Gaza refugee villages.

The strip, a remnant of Palestine 28 miles long and three to seven miles wide, is the crowded home of about 400,000 Arabs, 301,879 of them registered refugees whose leaders insist that Gaza is a temporary home. The Palestine Liberation Organization is pledged to lead the way back across the 1948 armistice demarcation line into the land now named Israel.

The place is a pawn in Arab-Israeli hostility, one of the world's bargaining counters in vote-trading at the United Nations. International civil servants and soldiers are here to care for the populace and keep the peace.

But it is 17 years since the Arab-Israeli war brought the UN Relief and Works Agency and truce supervisors to Gaza, almost 10 years since the UN Emergency Force came to support the supervisors after the 1956 Israeli invasion of Sinai.

So the world, after dispatching forces to tranquillize the Gaza problem, begins to believe the problem is dead rather than dormant. Neglect means less money for tranquillizers and the problem begins to stir again.

UNWRA's funds are 10 per cent below the budget that would maintain minimal services. UNEF's budget is cut by 20 per cent.

One result is that 23,000 Gaza infants have received no UNWRA ration cards, which means their families' rations must spread more meagerly.

Another outcome is that UNEF's manpower has been cut by 600 to 3,959, which means the frontier watch is spread more thinly.

DISCONTENT GROWS

Less food intensifies discontent and seems to give more purpose to the training of an estimated 45,000 men of the Palestine Liberation Army in the strip.

"We have lost all faith in the United Nations," says a refugee leader. "The establishment of the PLA (two years ago) has reawakened our hopes."

Fewer UNEF troops could increase the chances of a clash between Arab and Israeli. The record shows armed Israeli patrols violate the international frontier in Sinai on average once a week, the armistice demarcation line along the Gaza Strip once a month.

The UN report also records increased Arab military activity, including violations of the 500-metre buffer zone on the Arab side of the ditch that marks the Gaza border.

"The violations of the restricted zone have not only shown an increase but have been more deliberate due to the increased activity of the Palestine Liberation Army in the Gaza Strip," says the UNEF report.

So far, UNEF soldiers have been able to persuade patrols from both sides to turn back and exchanges of gunfire between Arabs and Israelis have been few.

HARD ON TROOPS

Maj.-Gen Indarjit Rikhye, Indian commander of UNEF, says reorganization after the manpower cuts this year has maintained the force's efficiency.

But a company commander on the armistice line protests privately that the endurance of his men is being taxed because they have been made responsible for a longer stretch of frontier.

The pressures and tensions on the strip are not always obvious.

If you turn your back on the motor traffic that scatters the goats and donkeys on the road from Rafah to King's Gate, the place seems little changed from biblical times.

Camel trains glide by as they have along this coastal caravan route for thousands of years. A bearded Arab tills the arid earth with a triangular wooden plow. Veiled women balance graceful water jugs on their heads and reveal their marital status at the same time—jugs upright for married women, tilted at an angle for maidens.

But the camels, plowmen and women on the move must pass through checkpoints manned by security police of the Egyptian administration and watch out for truckloads of Palestine Liberation Army men on manoeuvres — blunt reminders that Gaza is an armed camp.

Along these roadsides in late afternoon, schoolboys sit in the sand with scribblers doing homework in the open because there is not enough space or light in the homes.

His knowledge of the Palestine "homeland" is inbred but second hand. His learning will urge him to escape the present uncertainty — either forcibly across the frontier or tranquilly through a peaceable settlement.

Tomorrow: Refugees follow Samson's example.

LINK WITH THE PAST — Some parts of the Gaza Strip seem little changed from biblical times. Reporter Carl Mollins stops for a cigarette with an Arab plowman who still tills the earth using a camel to pull a crude wooden plow.

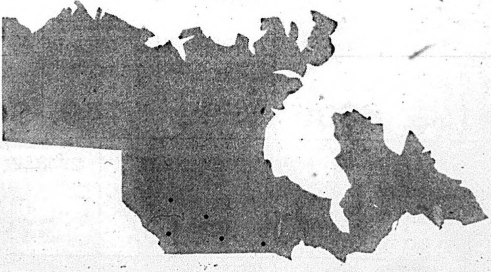
Many years ago, part of Canada was missing.

This part.



When you look back, Canada has done a lot of filling in, hasn't it?

Take a look at the top map. 100 years ago, the wide open spaces were exactly that. East was east and west was west, and the twain weren't meeting.

That's where we came in: Canadian Pacific.

Our people built a railway. Over plains and hills and rivers and through the mountains. Across a wild land people said could never be lived in at all.

When the last spike was driven in 1885, east and west were joined together. Today the nation thrives and grows. It looks forward to a bright future.

You may think we sound proud of our past. We are. But we're excited about our future.

And yours.

Canadian Pacific
Serving you in so many ways.

Dr. Pauline Jewett Favors Sending the Best Delegates To Undeveloped Countries

BRANTFORD (CP) — The World Federalists of Canada adopted a resolution at their annual convention Saturday urging the Canadian government to support publicly the proposals of United Nations Secretary-General U Thant for dealing with the Viet Nam war.

The Thant proposals call for cessation of bombing in North Viet Nam, scaling down of all military activities in South Viet Nam and opening of discussions by all parties.

Dr. Pauline Jewett, professor of political science at Carleton University and former Liberal MP for Northumberland, Saturday criticized the assigning of former politicians as diplomats in underdeveloped countries in Africa and Asia.

She said the experienced and thoughtful senior diplomat should not be going to the United States and other advanced Western countries while less experienced representatives are sent to underdeveloped countries.

'SEND HIM TO PARIS'

"If I had to send an ex-politician anywhere I'd send him to Paris or London," she said. "Our whole emphasis on trying to interpret the United States to France, for example—or France to Britain—is absolutely passe, unnecessary, presumptuous and foolish.

"We fill our Paris office with people who should be in Africa. France doesn't need understanding. France can look after herself. And it's far more important to have key people in Ghana than in Washington. We are nowhere near our potential in Africa and Asia."

Dr. Jewett recommended that the department of external affairs be changed to the department of world affairs and that activities listed in the World Federalists' brief to the government be placed under its jurisdiction.

Rabbi Gunther Plaut of Toronto was elected president of the Federalists, succeeding Prof. C. S. Burchill of Victoria, president since 1963. Other members of the executive include:

Dr. Digby McLaren, Ottawa, executive vice-president; William Mowle, Brantford; vice-president; Dr. Ward Neale, Ottawa, secretary; John Craven, Ottawa, treasurer.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stewart and Mr. John Stewart one day recently, were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morden and Mary Lou, Mr. Glen Eastwood and daughter Linda, all of Greenwood.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Finch were, his mother, Mrs. Mabel Begg, Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Finch, Miss Peggy Rowe and Glen Finch, all of Campbellford to celebrate with them, the 23rd anniversary of their wedding.

SPECIAL SERVICE

A layman's service, for the congregation of Stanwood United Church and Rylstone United Church was held in the Stanwood Church on Sunday morning. Canada Had $396 Million Deficit in First 3 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had a $396,000,000 deficit in its balance of international payments during the first three months of 1966, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

It was larger than the $394,000,000 deficit in the final three months of 1965 but not as great as a $401,000,000 deficit in January, February and March last year. For the whole of last year the deficit was $1,136,000,000.

DBS said the deficit for the first quarter this year was similar to the deficit for the same period last year, but there was a $40,000,000 improvement in the merchandise trade deficit and a widening of $35,000,000 deficit in payments abroad for services.

"The new high levels of international trade in the quarter are in part a direct accompaniment of the rising pace of economic activity in North America," DBS said.

"But they also reflect certain special influences which contributed to containing the deficit under such strong conditions of demand. Among these were greatly expanded trade in automobiles and parts, sales of wheat to China and the USSR, and some net retarding effects upon imports from a labor dispute in the trucking trades in Ontario."

Merchandise exports in the first three months of 1966 totalled $2,218,000,000, but imports amounted to $2,216,000,000, leaving a $2,000,000 deficit in merchandise trade.

Non - merchandise trade — travel receipts and expenditures, payments for freight and insurance, and payment of interest and dividends, as examples—left a deficit of $394,000,000 to bring the over-all balance of international payments on current account to $396,000,000.

Official holdings of gold and foreign exchange, and Canada's net balance with the International Monetary Fund, were reduced by $139,000,000 in the quarter, while there was a capital inflow of $257,000,000 into Canada.

The reduction in foreign exchange reserves during the quarter was almost as much as the build-up in reserves that occurred in all of 1965, $157,000,000. But there had been an accumulation of $226,000,000 in the third quarter last year, and the government has been trying to keep its gold and U.S. dollar holdings down to about $2,500,000,000.

The capital movements saw a big build-up in long-term investment in Canada, $464,000,000 for the quarter compared with $121,000,000 in the first three months last year and $808,000,000 for the whole of 1965. There was a net capital outflow of $207,000,000 in short - term investment during the first quarter of 1966, compared with an inflow of $208,000,000 in the same period of 1965.

Central Figure In Opera Dispute Now in Jail

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Samuel Olan, Montreal financier and central figure in an international opera dispute, was brought here Saturday to face a charge of uttering a forged cheque in 1964.

Governor James Fenton of the Grey County jail said Olan, 60, was still in the jail late Sunday but declined to state whether bail had been set. It was believed Olan was due for a hearing today.

Olan was arrested Thursday at Montreal in connection with the alleged raising of the face value of a cheque to $25,000 from $25 at Hanover, Ont., in 1964.

He had been in the news recently in a dispute with the touring Teatro Regio di Parma, an Italian opera company brought to Montreal to appear in an opera festival that flopped.

Olan backed the production, saying he did it as an anniversary gift for his 32-year-old Italian wife Maria.

Made-to-Order June Weather Gives West Bumper-Crop Look

By ALLEN SACKMANN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Made-to-order weather in June has brought out the bumper crop look that has become familiar in the Prairie grain belt.

Brilliant sunshine interspersed with heavy rain showers coaxed along the lagging crops into the critical second stage of growth with necessary sub-soil reserves still intact.

A. M. Runciman, president of the United Grain Growers, says a tour across the Prairies confirms speculation that the grain-growing region may be in line for its fifth consecutive bumper crop. Only isolated pockets mar the over-all picture of adequate moisture and excellent crop prospects.

"The crop prospects are nothing less than very good," he said after a trip through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Heavy September rains and substantial snowfalls were the harbingers of this year's bright agricultural picture. Although precipitation was largely below normal over most of the Prairies this spring, its adverse effects were mitigated by unusually cool weather.

Crops fell somewhat behind but the June heat provided the needed push to hasten development.

WARM WEATHER NEEDED

"What we need most is good warm weather over the province," says Alberta statistician T. L. Williams of the department of agriculture.

Bleakest places on the Prairies are sections of the hard-hit Peace River country. In the Manning area, 300 miles northwest of Edmonton, no rain had been received to mid-June and drought conditions were described as extreme. It would be the fourth straight crop failure for sections of the normally lush Peace River country.

Some areas of all provinces, missed by the widespread June thunderstorms, will soon need surface moisture to keep crops developing.

It is the sub-soil moisture, built up last fall and during the winter, that has kept prospects bright for a big crop.

Statistics prepared by the meteorological branch of the federal department of transport for The Canadian Press show that precipitation across the Prairies ranged from near normal in Saskatchewan to 16 per cent above average in Manitoba for the period from Aug. 1, 1965, to April 30 this year.

MORE WHEAT SOWN

It is similar to last year's situation which developed into the third largest wheat crop in history. With Prairie wheat acreages estimated at 29,087,000 acres—up 4.7 per cent from last year—continuing favorable conditions could see a near-record yield.

And good crops are needed to supply the wheat sold by the Canadian Wheat Board, including an $800,000,000 sale to the Soviet Union in late June.

Precipitation was 10 to 12 per cent above normal during the period of Aug. 1 to Feb. 28 but the excess dropped during the abnormally dry month of March in southern Alberta and Saskatchewan. An intense blizzard that hit Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan resulted in precipitation of 50 per cent above normal for these areas.

April dawned dry, particularly in the flood - threatened Red River valley of Manitoba. The southeastern Prairies were hit by wet, soggy snow in mid-month with some sections, notably southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba, reporting more than twice normal precipitation.

By the end of April, Alberta had had 10.37 inches of precipitation since Aug. 1 for an average of five per cent above normal.

The central part of the province was slightly worse off than normal. East of Red Deer, in the Vermilion area, surface moisture was depleted, but Mr. Runciman says a June rain put the sheen back on the grain fields.

In Saskatchewan, where about two-thirds of the Prairies' wheat is produced, the usually dry southwestern corner was in the best shape with 9.87 inches of precipitation to April 30 compared with a normal of 7.24. Southeast Saskatchewan also had moisture on the plus side of normal while the northern part of the province was near normal.

Manitoba was sopping, with the western part of the province recording 13.05 inches of moisture compared with an average 10.80 inches. The eastern section had 13.72 compared with 12.34.

Although moisture conditions are good—a vital ingredient in a bumper year—this year's crop isn't money in the bank yet. Warm maturing weather during July and August must include additional moisture so that heads fill out.

Last year's record crop prospects took a nose dive because of a prolonged wet spell that knocked grades and yields.

Despite the adverse harvest, the 677,917,000 - bushel wheat crop was 13 per cent higher than 1964 and 43 per cent higher than the 10-year average. This year's wheat acreage is 1,200,000 acres more than last year as farmers boosted stubble seeding and cut back on some coarse grains.

Barley is the only coarse grain getting more attention from farmers than last year with an estimated 5,919,000 acres. Oats, rye and oilseed crops are down from last year.

SPORTS SLICES

HAYWARD REACH — Roostertails in perfect alignment they roared over the finish line, the purring roar of their engines melding into a nautical symphonic whole that in my mind made speedboat history.

It was, in my memory, one of the rarest off-beat world records ever established in sports history.

The Prince Edward Yacht Club, albeit entries in its inaugural World Limited Speedboat Regatta did not see any nautical miles records established, can take a bow that inadvertently, its classic established something unique in the world of sport.

Two boats roared over the finish line neck-and-neck, in this case bow-and-bow in the first dead heat in speedboat history.

Believe it or not, these boats surged over the finish line at 77.4 miles per hour as though they were held together by an invisible cross bar.

We of the press sweltering in a 90-degree sun-exposed area could scarcely believe our eyes. Opinions differed, but nobody was sure.

Then from the elite-cluttered gallery above came the announcement, "A Dead Heat." How the multi-mixed board of judges, governors and whatnot came to their decision, I do not know. Suffice it to say "they were the governing brass, both sexes" and we of the public prints had to abide by their multiple decision.

However, by lack of photo-cameras (of all things at a speedboat race) some 80 eyes, a round guess, and from all angles, decided it was a "dead heat". So be it.

But that's only half the story.

It climaxed one of the most fantastic sequence of events I have ever seen in the realm of sport.

It happened in the first heat of the Grand Prix, secondary perhaps to the Maple Leaf Limited Power Boat Championship feature event of the regatta.

It had, so to speak, a David and Goliath touch, and one that people from Wellington should take with pride.

The "Goliath" and overall winner was "Miss Washington, D. C." owned by Gene Henderson. His boat was a .280 cc.

The first heat was a race that staggered the imagination. The field of seven was left behind. It developed into a two-boat race.

It was a thriller. First one took the lead, then the other. To the credit of Mike Thomas who drove "Miss Washington, DC," it must be said he gave his competition "135" rival the breaks. Mike took the "outside course" and the wide sweeps. Johnny Palmer hugged the inner side and established himself as one of the best drivers to show himself in Canadian competition.

Johnny had bad luck earlier in the day on Saturday. His boat "Slocum" out of Collingwood twisted a shaft and lost its propellor. He took over as driver for MacDonald, two times high-points winner in Canada.

Wins 100 At Mosport

Heimrath Sets Lap Mark

JARVIS, Ont. (CP)—Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto, driving a McLaren-Ford, won the featured 100-mile motor race at Harewood Acres Saturday, breaking the 1.9-mile lap record in doing so.

Heimrath broke the mark by about one second, completing the course in 1:9.8 minutes at an average speed of 99.25 miles an hour.

In second place was George Eaton of Toronto in a seven-litre Ford-Cobra. One lap behind in third place was Rudi Bartling of Toronto in a Porsche RS 61.

Nat Adams, of Hamilton, current points leader in the standings for the Canadian racing driver's championship, was fourth in a Cooper-Ford.

George Fejer left the race after 13 laps when an overheated engine in his Chevrolet Chinook forced him out.

WANDERERS WIN

TORONTO (CP) — The touring Bermuda Wanderers defeated Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club by 10 wickets in a cricket match Saturday.

Alberta Open Won By Norman

CALGARY (CP) — Professional Moe Norman of Toronto went to an extra hole Saturday, winning the Alberta open golf championship and $1,000.

Amateur John Kilburn of Edmonton finished in second place while professional Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., placed third. His three-day total of 215 was worth $600.

Norman had a 77 Saturday to go with earlier rounds of 70 and 67. Kilburn had rounds of 68, 70 and 76.

Panasiuk, whose three-round score of 215 was worth $600, won a berth in the $200,000 world open tournament in England later this year. Norman had qualified previously for a berth in the same tournament.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who went into the final round with a pair of 70s, soared to a 78 Saturday and won $375 with a 218.

Defending - champion Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg slipped to a 74 and a three-day total of 219. He collected $200.

High-Flying Birds Lead By Seven

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Are Baltimore Orioles about to break open the American League pennant race before it can get started?

The high - flying Orioles extended their latest winning streak to seven Sunday with a 4-2 victory over Minnesota Twins that stretched their league lead to seven games going into today's traditional staging point for the pennant scramble.

July 4 leaders have gone on to win the flag more than 60 per cent of the time. Last year Minnesota and Cleveland Indians were tied for first place July 4, three games ahead of the pack. The Twins took the lead the next day and never lost it again.

Baltimore gained 1½ games on each of its closest pursuers—Detroit Tigers and Cleveland—Sunday when both dropped doubleheaders. Kansas City Athletics stunned the second - place Tigers 3-0 and 10-4 while California Angels swept Cleveland 10-2 and 4-3, dropping the third-place Indians eight games off the pace.

WIN IN 11TH

New York Yankees nipped Washington Senators 6-5 on Bobby Richardson's 11th-inning homer and Chicago White Sox divided a doubleheader with Boston, beating the Red Sox 3-2 after losing the first game 5-2.

In Saturday's action, Detroit defeated Kansas City 7-3, Washington swamped New York 10-5, Chicago blanked Boston 6-0, Cleveland downed California 5-2 and Baltimore edged Minnesota 6-5 and 3-2.

Russ Snyder, the American League's leading hitter with a .337 mark, sent the Orioles ahead 3-2 Sunday with a two-out single in the seventh inning. Boog Powell and Brooks Robinson each belted his 16th homer as the Orioles won their 10th game in the last 11.

Lew Krausse, Kansas City's former bonus baby, blanked the Tigers for 8 1-3 innings and Jack Aker completed the first-game shutout. Jim Nash, making his major league debut, then held Detroit hitless until the fifth inning of the nightcap but needed relief help in the seventh.

Danny Cater led the Athletics' attack, scoring one run and driving in another in the opener and delivering four more in the second game with a single and three-run homer.

DRIVES TWO HOME

Rick Reichardt drilled his 15th homer in the sixth inning of the Angels-Indians nightcap, tying the score 3-3, and knocked in the go-ahead run with a ground-out in the eighth.

Jim Fregosi, who doubled and scored the tie - breaker, had capped a seven-run rally in the second inning of the opener with a three - run homer.

Mickey Mantle's eighth home run in his last six games and homers by Hector Lopez and Elston Howard paced the Yankees to a 5-0 lead at Washington. The Senators, however, came back with two runs in the eighth before tying it on Ed Brinkman's three-run homer in the ninth. Richardson led off the 11th with his winning homer off Ron Kline.

The White Sox spotted Boston a 2-0 lead in the second game, then came back as Lee Elia delivered two runs with a single and sacrifice fly.

Two Chicago errors and a wild pitch by Hoyt Wilhelm helped the Red Sox score all their runs in the seventh inning of the opener, overcoming a 2-0 deficit. Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring single sent the Red Sox ahead. Tommy Agee had given the White Sox the lead with a two-run homer in the sixth.

Minor Teams Lose Three On Weekend

Belleville Minor Baseball teams had a rough time on the weekend, losing three games in as many EOBA starts. Peterborough wiped out Belleville in two peewee contests, and Oshawa downed Belleville in tyke.

PETERBOROUGH 9, BELLEVILLE LIONS CLUB 0

Peterborough hurler McFadden stopped Belleville on two hits in romping to an easy victory. He got plenty of support at the plate, with his team giving him more than enough runs. McFadden fanned 10 and walked only three.

Belleville used four pitchers, Dave Wood, Al Wood, Michael Goegan and Paul Wolfe. They gave up seven hits, walked eight, and managed only two strikeouts between them.

PETERBOROUGH 5, BELLEVILLE HOLY ROSARY 2

Peterborough notched four runs in the first two frames and then hung on to grab the win.

Jeff Gilmour allowed five hits in pitching the Peterborough win. He struck out 14 and walked three.

Austin Wilson and Wayne Andrews were combed for nine hits on the Belleville mound. They whiffed five and walked six.

OSHAWA 5, BOOTH TV 4

T. Blair hurled the Oshawa tyke win. He gave up three hits, walked one and struck out six.

Belleville's Ron McTaggart allowed four hits in defeat. He fanned six and walked two.

The contest was all even at four runs each in the seventh inning. Dave Sheridan slammed a two-out home run to win the ball game for Oshawa.

Henley Royal Regatta

E. Germans Capture Five Titles

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP)—Along this famous competitive piece of water where one cheers and applauds politely according to the school tie, the talk today is about those amazing East Germans.

And, perhaps, they'll go on talking about them for a long time because they came here Saturday and did what nobody else has done since the Henley Royal Regatta began in 1839. They entered six crews and rowed off with five titles.

It was almost as if the British were merely playing host to everybody. Of nine events open to foreign crews, seven were were taken by overseas competitors.

For the second successive year Germany won the grand prize, the Grand Challenge Cup for eight-oared boats. This year it was the East Germans, last year their western neighbors from the famous Kiel - Ratzeburg Club, who didn't come this year.

The TSC Berlin crew outdistanced the American Olympic champion Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia Friday and Saturday beat the Tidewater Scullers of Britain, considered the finest British eight in the last 15 years to compete for the cup.

CAN'T TOUCH THEM

The Germans set a pace that none could touch and beat the Vesper crew by half a length in six minutes, 35 seconds.

Of nine crews sent by the United States, only one came away victorious. The Harvard University lightweight crew beat the Isis Boat Club of Oxford University in 6:57 by three-quarters of a length to take the Thames Challenge Cup for eights.

The amazing East Germans swept these other events:

Jorge Lucke and Heinz Jurgen of TSC Berlin beat Britons Ray Easterling and Jerry McCarthy by two lengths for the Silver Goblets for pairs without cox.

The coxed four of Dynamo Potsdam easily defeated the Copenhagen Rowing Club of Denmark for the Prince Philip Challenge Cup.

WIN DOUBLE SCULLS

In the double sculls, the TSC Berlin crew of Manfred Haake and Joachim Brueckhaendler beat Britons Nick Cooper and Arnold Cook by 3¾ lengths.

The Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup for schoolboy eights went to Emanuel School of London by 1 1-3 lengths in 6:55 over the Halcyon Boat Club of St. Paul's School in Concord, N.H. The British crew is considered the finest schoolboy crew ever to have rowed in England.

The Stewards Challenge Cup went to the Danish coxless four of the Vik Rowing Club, the Olympic champions, who won a hard-fought race with a British four from Derby Rowing Club. The Danes won by a length in 7:17.

The Norwich Union Rowing Club of England took the Wyfold Challenge Cup for coxless fours, in which overseas challengers South Kent School of Connecticut and Viking of South Africa were eliminated in early rounds.

Hot Leafs Win Three Of Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs won the battle of home runs Sunday but Toledo Mud Hens scrambled to a 13-11 victory to salvage the final game of a four-game series with the surging Leafs.

The Leafs, who trailed 12-3 as late as the fifth inning, had the winning run on base in the ninth when catcher Owen Johnson grounded out with the bases loaded

In all Toronto got home runs from Stan Johnson, Tony Horton, Russ Gibson, Jim Russin and Mike Andrews and its 16 hits also included three doubles and a triple.

The big blow for the Mud Hens was a grand slam homer by Frank Fernandez in the first inning when Toledo scored five runs on a single hit. Wayne Comer and Bobby Murcer also had home runs for Toledo.

JETS DOWN BISONS

In other games Sunday, Columbus Jets defeated Buffalo Bisons 8-4, Jacksonville Suns downed Rochester Red Wings 5-2 and Richmond Braves swept a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs, 10-6 and 6-3.

Saturday, Gary Waslewski won his 11th game of the season for Toronto—tops in the league—as the Leafs edged Toledo 4-3; Rochester swept a doubleheader from Jacksonville 5-3 and 7-4, Richmond defeated Syracuse 4-1 and Columbus edged Buffalo 2-1.

Errors Mar Pitching Duel

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

All the game's errors in the fifth inning marred a great pitching duel between Clair Leahy and Carl Stacey at Alemite Park Saturday night and gave the Bobcats a 4-0 victory over the Picton Kinsmen.

Bobcats moved into the B. and D. softball loop's top spot with the win but Trudeau Motors, two points back, have three games in hand.

Leahy, the 'Cats' deliberate right-hander, and Stacey, still pitching with one arm in a cast, matched pitch for pitch most of the night.

Temple's crew got their initial hit off Stacey on Zakos' too-hot-to-handle shot to short opening the fifth. It was a scoreless game at the time. Stacey made Picton's first miscue himself, hitting Whyte on the back in a hurried attempt to get him at first, putting two on with none out.

Guernsey threw into the outfield trying to get Zakos going to third on a wild pitch and it was 1-0. Stacey fanned the next two men but Carson dropped Meraw's routine fly to right, scoring another. Meraw reached third on a passed ball and dug for home on a steal attempt. Guernsey dropped the throw and the Bobcats had a 3-0 lead, on one infield hit and four errors.

They added another in the sixth on a walk, Mowat's pop double and McKibbon's ground out.

Leahy gave up two first-frame singles then retired the next 21 batters in a row before walking Carson and allowing a pinch-hit single in the eighth. That was all he did give up, fanning eight and getting errorless support.

Stacey also allowed just three hits, striking out nine and walking four. Both pitchers worked knee piches to near perfection, getting most of their strikeouts in this manner, and leading to some arguments for plate umpire Charlie Horne.

Lem Mowat doubled, Paul Zakos and Terry LeSage getting singles for the winners' hit total. Leo St. Denis, Ron Weese and Dave Lockwood looked after the Picton singles.

Opposing shortstops St. Denis and LeSage came up with several fielding gems.

Picton's chance to get back into contention came in the eighth. Carson walked and Lockwood singled, putting men on first and third. C. Stacey blasted a shot at third, Carson was tagged out off the bag, and MacDonald hit a fly ball to end the threat.

Five Wins In Two Days
And Ethier Pitched 'Em All

A tremendous five-game pitching performance by lefty Bob Ethier carried Belleville Ellis Juniors to a hard-fought tournament championship in Owen Sound this weekend.

BOB ETHIER

Ethier pitched all five Belleville games, two on Saturday and three yesterday, and according to team manager Paul Russell, was "terrific".

On Saturday, Ellis' blanked Zephyr 3-0 and defeated Galt 4-2.

Belleville's three Sunday victories were by identical 2-1 scores, coming over Dobbinton, Owen Sound and Merlin, in that order.

They scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh against Dobbinton, trailed 1-0 and scored two in the seventh against Owen Sound and repeated the feat in the titular game against Merlin.

The club's first four games were seven-inning affairs while the championship tilt was over nine innings.

There were 28 teams in the three-day tournament, ranging from Intermediate "B" clubs down.

Ellis' had only nine ball players for the tournament trip, minus regulars Art Barker, Terry Wellsley and Wayne Woods.

Pitcher Grand-Slams Twice In Game

Cloninger Connects

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Do you remember touching the bases," Joe Torre asked pitcher Tony Cloninger as they shook hands at home plate.

"I don't remember a single one," Cloninger replied.

Cloninger was flying high as he rounded the bases after becoming the first player in National League history to hit two grand-slam homers in one game while leading Atlanta Braves to a 17-3 victory over San Francisco Giants Sunday.

"It was a thrill to hit the first grand - slam," said Cloninger. "But the second one was unbelievable."

Cloninger hit grand-slam No. in the first inning on a 3-2 pitch by Bob Priddy and connected for No. 2 on an 0-1 pich by Ray Sadecki in the fourth inning.

DRIVES IN ANOTHER

The six-foot, 200-pound right-hander also singled in another run and, besides becoming the first National Leaguer to hit two grand-slams, he added the following records for pitchers to his collection:

—Became the first pitcher in either league ever to hit two grand-slams. Four American League players connected for two before Cloninger, but none was a pitcher.

—Set a major league record for most runs batted in by driving in nine, breaking the record of seven set by Vic Raschi of New York Yankees in 1953.

—Tied the major League record by hitting two home runs in one game for the second time in a season. Cloninger hit two against New York Mets earlier in the year and joined Don Newcombe as the only National League pitchers ever to accomplish that feat.

CARDS BLANK DODGERS

While Cloninger was tearing up the record book, St. Louis Cardinals shut out Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0, Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-1, Philadelphia Phillies whipped Chicago Cubs 6-2 and Pittsburgh Pirates outlasted New York Mets 8-7 before the Mets outslugged the Pirates 9-8 in the nightcap.

In Saturday's action, New York edged Pittsburgh 4-3, Philadelphia defeated Chicago 12-9, Houston downed Cincinnati 8-5 and 6-3, Atlanta beat San Francisco 3-1 and Los Angeles wo 7-2 over St. Louis.

Cloinger, bringing his record to 9-7, also got homer-run support from team - mates Rico Carty and Hank Aaron, who upped his major league leading total to 25. And he surrendered homers to Sadecki and Tom Haller while allowing the Giants seven hits.

Larry Jaster pitched a three-hitter for the Cardinals, outduelling Don Drysdale, who gave up six hits and took his 11th loss against five victories. Mike Shannon's triple and a single by Dal Maxvill produced the first St. Louis run in the fifth inning and Lou Brock homered in the ninth.

Chuck Harrison provided all of the Astros' runs with a homer in the fourth inning following singles by Jim Wynn and Felix Mantilla. Larry Dierker, tagged for Don Pavletich's homer in the second inning, checked the Reds on five hits. Hank Fisher lost it, his third without a victory since being acquired from Atlanta.

Bill White smacked a double and a two-run homer, scored two runs and stole a base for the Phillies while Richie Allen chipped in with a run-scoring double and a bases - empty homer. Bob Buhl got the victory against his former Cub team-mates, winning his fourth in a row with relief help from Darold Knowles in the ninth.

Ed Bressoud hit a grand-slam homer and Ed Kranepool a solo shot for the Mets in the opener but the Pirates won it with a 16-hit attack tha included homers by Jim Pagliaroni, Gene Alley and Donn Clendenon.

Willie Sargell hit two homers and Bill Mazeroski one for Pittsburgh in the nightcap but the Mets won with a six-run fifth inning built on run-producing singles by Kranepool, John Stephenson ad Bressoud, a two-run double by Jerry Grote and Chuck Hiller's run-scoring double.

First Dead Heat Features Event

American Boat Wins Maple Leaf Trophy

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

HAYWARD REACH — The Americans tacked another world star on their sports Old Glory and the Canadian Boating Federation got a smart slap on the wrist here over the holiday weekend.

A sleek blue-bellied nautical water-witch from south of the border "Miss Washington D.C." won the world limited power boat championship and the Maple Leaf Trophy.

And the saucy wave-splitting sprite, a .266 cubic inch job powered with a 327 cc Chevrolet engine owned by Gene Henderson, could have lapped the field a half-dozen times had the driver put some weight on his foot.

Mike Thomas of Harvey Cedars, N.J., sent his "Miss" roaring over the fifteen-lap ten mile course at average speed of 77.068 miles per hour, to take the gold and the glory. He also took home the O'Keefe Trophy by winning the Grand Prix event.

And the Prince Edward Yacht Club has the honor of staging an event unique in the history of sport. For the first time in the history of power-boat racing two boats "Miss Washington" and Don MacDonald's "Colorflame" of Toronto raced the first dead heat at 77 m.p.h.

DISAPPOINTING CROWD

"Colorflame" was driven by Johnny Palmer, well-known Wellington driver, now of Collingwood before a disappointing crowd.

The MacDonald boat was of the 150-cc class hydroplane powered by a Ford Falcon engine.

The two boats had everyone on their feet in the first heat of the Grand Prix. Thomas in a sportsmanlike gesture took the outer course with his heavier boat. The lead changed hands several times before the boats straightened away for the last lap. It looked like a single boat with twin engines.

The racing committee after deliberation officially announced the event as a "dead heat".

It was the only threat to Thomas in the three days of trials and racing. He took "Miss Washington" to seven straight victories here. Last year the boat was tops in its class in the United States.

But MacDonald and Palmer had some consolation. The "Colorflame" won the "Sweet Sixteen" event winning two straight heats.

In the premier Maple Leaf Trophy event of three heats each covering ten miles Thomas took the first on Saturday at an average speed of 71.856 mph finishing 30 seconds ahead of second-place "No-Kum" piloted by Lloyd Young of Collingwood.

LAPPED THE FIELD

In Sunday's two final heats, Miss Washingto lapped three boats in each heat to roar across the finish line far ahead of the field.

In the first heat Thomas won in 12.59 for an average speed of 69.2 mph. He was followed in order by John Palmer of Collingwood, Ken Sparrow, Peterborough, Ken Helwig of Sarnia and Young.

He won the third heat in 13.07 for an average speed of 68.571 and was followed by Helwig, Palmer and Sparrow in that order.

In Saturday's heat Helwig and Sparrow were disqualified for jumping the starter's gun.

Helwig punched a hole in the bottom of his boat two feet long during Sunday's Grand Prix event. He said it was caused by the pounding of the rough water.

Racing conditions were not exactly ideal. On Sunday The Reach had its usual "gentle ripple" but it covered a nautical "jinx" to all hydroplane drivers. This reporter was taken for a ride and almost jarred loose from the toupee. A speedboat on a heaving under swell is no place for people with bridgework.

The dangerous swell evaporated any ideas the Thomas-Henderson combo may have had for a new world speed record. The current mark is 153.67.

The crowd and entries were disappointingly small for the hosting Prince Edward Yacht Club. The crowd-dotted shorelines and slopes of the Reach that featured the Harmsworth races a few years ago were not in evidence. The 150cc class was cancelled through lack of entries.

Press row rumors had it that there had been a lack of co-operation among the various forces in charge of the racing classic. One that persisted was that the event might have been called off only for the last-minute four-boats entries rushed from Detroit where the Gold Cup race was being run.

Yacht Club Commodore Jack Hartwick made no bones about his disappointment. He didn't pull any verbal punches.

He charged the Canadian Boating Federation with letting his club down entry-wise. "The Federation" he said, "was in charge of lining up boats for us. At one time we had 32 entries and were promised 75. We wind up with a handful."

Commodore Hartwick promised some changes next year. "We are thinking seriously of pulling out of the Federation and re-affiliating with the American Power Boat Association. At least, we'll get some co-operation from this body."

Dean Jones and Suzanne Pleshette are doing the teaching. "The Ugly Dachshund" with the added special Walt Disney Technicolor Multiple-reel Carton "Winnie The Pooh", is showing Tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and evening at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Now you listen to me . . .! Rory Calhoun listens as Terry Moore reprimands him in this scene from "Black Spurs", the new A. C. Lyles production for Paramount which opens Tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Calhoun plays a bounty hunter and Miss Moore portrays the girl of his dreams. Filmed in Technicolor, "Black Spurs" also stars Linda Darnell, Scott Brady and Lon Chaney. 2nd feature attraction, also in color, "The Sands of Kalahari stars Stuart Whitman, Stanley Baker and Susannah York.

AT THE PARK — "Frankie's" famous "fawty-faw" goes "six times rooty-toot-toot" and sends "Johnny" to glory and immortality in this re-enactment of the famous folk ballad for Edward Small's producion "Frankie and Johnny," United Artists release in Technicolor now showing for its first showings at the air-conditioned Park Theatre. Elvis Presley is the ill-starred "Johnny" and St. Louis' pistol-packin' mamma is Donna Douglas. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

Bud Collyer Recalls Happy Memories of Thirty Years

By BUD COLLYER
(For Cynthia Lowry)

This star of CBS' To Tell The Truth has been in broadcasting for more than three decades — primarily as an actor—including 14 years as the radio voice of Superman.

NEW YORK (AP) — Show business has always been exciting, rewarding, stimulating and challenging. It has always been somewhat like the Chameleon — subject to instant change.

Thirty years ago it was radio that was lucrative and booming. The greater an actor's skill in creating a mood for a listener with only his voice and a helpful sound - effects engineer, the greater the demand for his services.

I have many happy memories of performing on Cavalcade of America, The March of Time, Gangbusters, My True Story, Pretty Kitty Kelly, The Road of Life, The Goldbergs, Superman and others, with some of the finest actors and actresses the profession will ever know.

Since we were never seen, we could work on an unlimited number of shows merely by changes of voice or accent.

I will remember the quick change another actor and myself had to make one evening on Cavalcade of America. In those days, magnetic tape had not yet been invented and we always had a second "live" broadcast three hours after the original to accommodate the three-hour differential of the Pacific time zone.

DIDN'T SHOW UP

On this particular evening, we had finished the first broadcast at 8:30 p.m. and were due back to repeat at 11:00 p.m. One actor, who shall be nameless, went home after the first show and went to bed forgetfully. The repeat was already started when his absence was noted by a fellow actor.

In a strangled whisper he asked me if I could do a French accent. We never said "no" to anything. It worked so well that not even the director realized our friend was missing.

And then, almost overnight, everything changed? Television's birth made it necessary not only to be heard, but to be seen as well. No longer could we hold scripts in our hands and read lines—now the material had to be memorized or ad-libbed or put on so-called "idiot cards" or electronic prompting devices. Lights were bright and hot and makeup was essential. Careers came and went in a wink and overexposure became a disease devoutly to be avoided.

LIFE IS HECTIC

It was frantic, it was hectic, it was swift and, at times, it was discouraging. It was a time to discard old methods and tricks and to learn new techniques. There was no chance to cover up for a missing friend.

It was a far greater responsibility than it ever had been before, but with the responsibility came very real opportunity for growth.

Television is still a comparative infant among the creative arts.

One day it will reach maturity. Some day it will father happy children of its own and those reruns will be a thing of the past.

Saga of Show Biz Star: Had Everything, Blew It

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Harry Richman, he of the jaunty straw hat and the lisping "yeth, thir", is the latest show business figure to join the ranks of memoir writers. The title sets the tone for his autobiography: "A hell of a life" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $4.95).

Oddly for a performer who was universally admired within the profession, Richman never scored with the mass audience. His films were failures, and he never made a hit in radio. By the time television came along, he had lost his voice and his nerve.

Yet fellow stars who saw him in his heyday in night clubs and Broadway shows will testify there was no greater seller of songs. His book is written with Richard Gehman.

His saga is one of those show biz tales of a star who had everything and blew it. A few years ago he found his voice raspy and bookings scarce.

LOST CONFIDENCE

"I had around $8,000 to show for a lifetime of work during which I'd earned around $13,000,000," he says. "And no prospects. And all my nerve gone. I did the ostrich act then; I went away and hid in a gloomy old house in Santa Monica. I paid a year's rent on it and shut myself in, and all I did all day long was sit and stare at television."

Friends rescued him from seclusion and he began to play a few dates, managing a semblance of his once robust voice. Now he lives with his memories in a small house in the Toluca Lake district, a few miles from Hollywood.

Richman writes of his love affairs, and ascent to fame and his hobnobbing with prohibition-era vangsters.

Ann Landers

Sexless Marriage Can Still Be Fulfilling

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I married 18 months ago, for the first time. I was 33 years of age and had had no previous sex experience. My husband is a wonderful man and we get along well together. When I told my friends and family that I waited a long time for the right man to come along I wasn't kidding.

ANN LANDERS

Last December my husband had an accident which has left him impotent. At first the doctor thought it might be temporary, but now we know that his disability is permanent. What I'd like to know, Ann, is this: Do you think we can have a good marriage under these abnormal conditions? I dread the thought of a divorce because I know I would suffer great loneliness without my husband. He insists that I am being cheated out of a vital part of marriage and that he would not blame me if I left him. (This attitude is typical of his unselfishness.)

I can't take the chance of revealing my identity for obvious reasons. Will you please refine this letter and make it printable? — MRS. ANONYMOUS.

DEAR MRS.: I didn't have to "refine" your letter. It is printable as you wrote it.

When you took your marriage vows, you agreed to stay at the side of your beloved "in sickness and in health." Well —this is sickness. A woman who marries at 33 with no previous sex experience has either a very low sex drive or lofty standards, coupled with beautiful self-discipline — or all three. Whatever the combination, it can be called back into service.

I suggest that you adopt a couple of children and adjust to the abnormality. You can have a full life in spite of it. The operative word is "sublimation." Easy? Of course not, but certainly not impossible.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband just told me to write to Ann Landers about the problem we are having around here. So here I am.

We have two teen-age children, plus one who will be a teen-ager in a few years. I am 43 years old, but I am young in spirit. Our oldest boy and girl are at the phone-grabbing stage and they both do a lot of talking after supper. When the phone rings during the evening, it's usually for one of them, so I don't answer. When they are out, I do answer — and this is where the problem comes in.

The children's teen-age friends seem to enjoy talking to me. I'm not ashamed to admit that I can talk with them for hours about nothing in particular and I love it! Is this so terrible? My husband seems to think it is. In fact, last night he came right out and told me to act my age.

I enjoy my own teen-agers and I work with other teens at the Red Cross centre. Teen-agers today are a great bunch and I see nothing wrong in being friendly to them when they telephone. I'd like your opinion. — YOUNG AT HEART.

DEAR HEART: If a teen-ager calls specifically to talk to you when your children are at home, you can then be sure that you are on solid ground. When they call and ask for Jimmie or Suzy, exchange a few pleasant sentences and get off the horn, Mother.

I think it's terrific that you feel so warmly toward your children's friends, but honestly, Doll, the kids really don't phone to talk to you.

The Trots

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP)—Ed Arthur, whose Kwik Kat was beaten by a neck in last Saturday's $3,000 Invitational Pace, didn't wait to make his move in Saturday night's feature.

Arthur, from Otterville, Ont., took the five-year-old Torrid-Kitty Hal Horse to the top at the three quarters and coasted home for a one-length victory over outsider Wiscoy Rebel in 2:03 2-5 and paid $4.80.

The four-year-old mare by Joe Dale out of Empress Harmony, with John Sutherland driving, paced the mile in 2:03 2-5 to break the previous track mark of 2:04.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Noble Victory won the $50,000 American trotting championship Saturday night in world record - equalling time and earned the right to represent the United States in the $100,000 Roosevelt International.

The International will be trotted next Saturday night, with Noble Victory, recently syndicated for $1,000,000 by Kenneth D. Owen of Houston, Tex., opposing a hand - picked contingent of six European horses and Armbro Flight of Canada.

Armbro Flight, owned by Ted, Elgin and Charles Armstropg of Brampton, earned a berth in the International by winning the Canadian trotting championship at St. Catharines Friday.

Stanley Dancer sent Noble Victory over the 1¼ miles in 2:31 2-5, matching the world standard set by Speedy Scot in the same race in 1964.

In earning first money of $25,000, he finished three quarters of a length in front of the lightly - regarded Worthy Scot. Three lengths back in third place came Perfect Freight, who had beaten many of the same horses a week ago in the $86,111 Realization Trot.

Jes R. Hoot was another three lengths back in fourth place. Favored All Aflame, the big disappointment, ended up eighth.

As the second choice, Noble Victory paid $5.80, $4.00 and $3.40 for his second triumph in six starts this year.

The winner, owned by Aldage Danis of Buckingnam, ..., paced the mile in 2:06 3-5 and paid $26.80 to win.

Cracks World Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Elaine Tanner of Vancouver, swimming in pouring rain and without benefit of competition, cracked the world record for the 220-yard individual medley Sunday.

The 15-year-old girl, swimming in a time trial at the conclusion of the two-day B.C. open and age group swimming championships, covered the distance in 2:33.3.

She shaved three-tenths of a second off the listed world record of Donna de Varona of Santa Clara, Calif., and was one-tenth faster than the record set several weeks ago by Claudia Kolb, also of Santa Clara. Miss Kolb's time qualified for a world record, but was not as yet listed in the record book.

Howard Firby of North Vancouver, Miss Tanner's coach, said the rain and lack of competition made the feat doubly difficult for her.

Miss Tanner, a British Empire Games hopeful, earlier set three Canadian records in the B.C. championships.

She lopped an amazing 8.2 seconds off the Canadian record in the women's 440-yard individual medley set last year by team-mate Jane Hughes.

She finished in 5:30.1 compared with Miss Hughes' mark of 5:38.3.

In Friday's events, she set records in the 110-yard backstroke with a time of 1:09.5 and the 220-yard butterfly, finishing the course in 2:34.1. She won every event she entered.

Miss Boys won the senior women's three-metre event with 317.55 points and the senior tower with 257.15 points. She had earlier taken the one-metre event for 14-year-old girls.

Veteran Driver Killed

DETROIT (AP)—Death rode with the top United States speedboat drivers again Sunday as veteran Chuck Thompson, 54, was killed when his hydroplane flew apart on the Detroit River during the Gold Cup race.

Fellow drivers, saddened by the second tragedy to hit their ranks in two weeks, voted along with boat owners to resume the race today.

Three drivers were killed June 19 in the President's Cup race at Washington, D.C.

Many of the 300,000 spectators who lined the river along the three-mile course screamed as Thompson's boat disintegrated seconds after he crossed the starting line at more than 100 miles an hour in what for him was a third heat.

A helicopter plucked him from the water, Physicians applied mouth to mouth resuscitation but it was in vain.

Referee Bill Newton said Thompson's 7,800 - pound boat, Smirnoff, "seemed to become airborne momentarily and then smacked down hard on the water."

Officials at first cancelled the meet. Two hours later, however, the race committee, boat owners and drivers decided to resume the race today at the point where it was Sunday.

Thompson, one of speedboat racing's most popular figures, was cheated out of an unachieved ambition—to win the Gold Cup. In a career which extended back to 1933, he had won every other major hydroplane racing crown. It was his 12th try for the title.

Thompson and Mira Slovak of Los Angeles, in Tahoe Miss, each had won his first two heats with ease.

They did not meet each other until the third preliminary heat and the crowd was set for a duel. The two were expected to fight it out for the point lead before going into the fourth and championship heat.

The start of the third heat ran into trouble as driver Bill Sterett of Owensboro, Ky., was tossed from his Chrysler Crew moments after it began. Sterett was pulled from the water.

Slovak grabbed a tiny lead as the boats surged across the starting line with Thompson in hot pursuit. The five boats in the heat were directly in front of the reviewing stands when Thompson's boat was seen in trouble.

Pieces of the boat sailed 100 feet into the air.

Pre-race favorite Bill Muncey of Seattle, Wash., had a narrow escape in the opening heat when his Miss U.S. ran into choppy water and threw him against the steering wheel and on to the bow of the craft.

Tahoe Miss, with two wins in its two heats Sunday, had 800 points and was in the favorite's position as the race resumed today.

Canadians Win Annual At Bisley

By JIM ANDERSON

BISLEY, England (CP)—Canadian marksmen who start competition in the Bisley meet today finished their final warm-up shoot with a good omen Sunday.

The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's 18-man team won its annual match against the North London Rifle Club for the first time since 1959.

At ranges of 900 and 1,000 yards they defeated Britain's top rifle club by 1,054 points against 1,033.

The DCRA's shooting captain, Maj. R. W. Hampton of Alliston, Ont., said after the match this year's team is the strongest he has seen in his 16 trips to the annual two-week competition of British and Commonwealth marksmen.

The team has had 10 days of stiff training and practice at Bisley—four more than in previous years. Maj. Hampton said the extra preparation gives the Canadians a good chance for a strong showing.

START TODAY

They start shooting in minor events today and meet their first major test Friday.

About 1,000 Commonwealth marksmen mostly from Britain, are shooting for about 150 trophies, medals and prizes in the 97th Bisley meet.

Canada has the largest overseas contingent with the usual three teams—the DCRA group, 12 men from regular army units in Canada and Germany and 12 army cadets.

One member of the service team, Sgt. Joe Daigle, 35, of the Van Doos will be defending three individual prizes he won last year—the Players Cup, the service rifle championship and the Queen Mary Prize.

The top individual events are the Queen's Elimhination Prize and the grand aggregate, won last year by RCAF Flt. Lt. Robert Pitcairn of Portage la Prairie, Man.

Canada has won the Queen's Prize nine times since it started 106 years ago. The last Canadian to win it was accountant Norman Beckett of Ancaster, Ont., in 1961.

Brabham Wins Two Grand Prix

RHEIMS, France (AP)—Australian Jack Brabham had a perfect two days of motor racing this weekend.

The former world champion won the European Grand Prix for Formula One cars Sunday and won the French Grand Prix for Formula Two cars Saturday.

The victory Sunday put him in the lead for the world championship with 12 points, two more than Italian Lorenzo Bandini whose Ferrari led almost two - thirds of the race but dropped out with a broken throttle cable.

In both races Brabham was driving cars of his own design. The Formula One racer is powered by a Repco engine while the smaller Formula Two machine has a Japanese Honda engine.

Brabham held the world championship in 1959 and 1960.

NAME TRAINER

MONTREAL (CP)—Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, announced Saturday that Larry Aubut has been named trainer of the club. The Decathlon

Two Shatter World Mark

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Bill Toomey, in hospital for five weeks early this year, and Russ Hodge, his Olympian roommate, both shattered the world decathlon record Sunday.

Toomey, 27, scored 8,234 points to win the 48th U.S. Amateur Athletic Union decathlon title and Hodge was second with 8,130. Both broke the world mark of 8,089 points set by C. K. Yang of Formosa in 1963.

Toomey, Hodge and Dave Thoreson, third - place finisher with 7,475 points, were roommates the last three weeks in Goleta, Calif., while training for the two-day, 10-event test.

Toomey achieved lifetime bests in five events just six months after becoming ill early this year with mononucleosis and hepatitis in Germany where he was training.

HAND WITHERED

His father, Dick Toomey, said Bill injured the median nerve ni hisright wrist in an accident about five years ago, lost almost all feeling and the hand withered.

"He built it back with therapy and eventually learned to type 100 words a minute.

Bill says the hand is 75 per cent good now, but he seldom talks about it. . ."

Toomey's lifetime bests in the meet were a 10.3 seconds in the 100 metres, 25 feet six inches in the long jump, 45 feet 8¾ inches in the shot put, a six-foot 4½-inch high jump and a 147 - foot 5½ - inch toss in the discus.

The climax was his 4:30 in the 1,500 metres. He needed only a 4.4 to break the world mark.

The Tracks

Ice Water, ridden by Avelino Gomez, covered the 1 1-16 mile race in 1:44 1-5 and paid $16.80, $6.70 and $2.70.

Favored Stevie B. Good, a colt owned by E. C. Pasquale of Toronto which has defeated Queen's Plate winner Titled Hero three times, finished third. Kerensa was second.

Daily double of Dream Peeper in the first and Roman Scandal in the second paid $62.10. The fifth-race exactor of Runaways and Mr. Colon paid $13.40.

TORONTO SPLITS

COLCHESTER, England (CP)—The Toronto Cricket Club took a win and a draw during the weekend in the first two matches of its English tour. The Canadians defeated a local team from Earls Cone, Essex, Saturday and drew with Colchester Sunday.

North Viet Nam Torpedo Boats Are Attacked

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy fighter - bombers attacked two North Vietnamese torpedo boats off Haiphong early today as the air war against the north continued without letup.

One of the two A-4 Skyhawks that caught the torpedo boats 38 miles southeast of the main North Vietnamese port was shot down, but the pilot was plucked from the Gulf of Tonkin by a rescue helicopter. A U.S. spokesman said he did not know whether the torpedo boats were hit.

Navy and air force planes flew a record 91 multi-plane missions against North Viet Nam Monday. The targets included an oil storage area 19 miles southeast of Haiphong.

An estimated 250 to 300 planes made the raids, a number which a qualified officer said was above the average for the 16-month air campaign against the North. But it was not a record number for a single day's raid.

The navy planes also hit an oil storage area 25 miles west of Thanh Hoa, down the coast, as the intensified assault on North Viet Nam's fuel supplies continued.

U.S. military headquarters reported relatively little ground action in South Viet Nam, but it appeared that the enemy may have set their sights on isolaed special forces camps for the vicory that has so far been denied them in the 1966 monsoon season. Viet Cong raiders made four attacks on the lonely outposts in the last three days.

About 500 guerrillas kept the Trai Bi special forces camp 65 miles northwest of Saigon under fire for 1½ hours Monday until air strikes drove them off. A U.S. spokesman reported light casualties among the Vietnamese and U.S. defenders.

Artillery fire beat back an attack by about 150 Viet Cong against the camp Sunday night. About the same time other guerrillas attacked the Duc Co special forces camp 210 miles north of Saigon with no more success.

Saturday night, the Viet Cong made a hit-and-run raid on the Plei Djereng special forces camp 20 miles farther north.

Meanwhile, two U.S. marine companies came under fire from an estimated 250 Viet Cong 17 miles southwest of Da Nang.

Planes attacked the enemy positions for an hour and artillery pounded the Viet Cong through the night. By morning the marines counted 78 enemy bodies. Their own casualties were reported light. U.S. bombers hit suspected guerrilla strongholds near Da Nang and close to the Cambodian border.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime bid for more popular support today by installing an 80-member civilian military advisory council to help the ruling generals govern South Viet Nam.

Romania Opposes Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

BUCHAREST (AP)—A summit meeting of Soviet bloc leaders continued today amid indications of a new clash between the Soviet Union and Romania over control of the Warsaw Pact's military forces.

Romania's official press gave no progress report on the meeting of the Communist counterpart to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Soviet press made no mention of dissension and treated the meeting as a reaffirmation of solidarity.

The seven - nation meeting opened Monday at the former royal palace and continued there today but there apparently was a delay. At 9 a.m. and again at 10, spokesmen said the meeting had resumed. But it was 11 a.m. before the delegation arrived.

There were strong indications that a compromise over control of the member nations' armies had broken down.

The Soviet Union has been trying to obtain tighter control over approximately 1,000,000 troops committed to the alliance. Romania has insisted that small pact members have a louder voice.

Official spokesmen reported that the first meeting lasted about 45 minutes. But actually, it developed into a three-hour confrontation between the Russians and the Romanians.

Within 1½ hours of the meeting's opening the Bulgarian, Czech, East German, Hungarian an Polish delegations had departed. That left only the Russians, led by Communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev, and the Romanians, headed by party boss Nicolai Ceausescu.

Romanians have said privately that the alliance's military commander, Soviet Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, now has no authority over their 200,000 troops and they have no intention of giving him any.

BACKS GROUP PLANS

OTTAWA (CP)—Better medical care for the public and better practice of medicine for doctors could flow from development of group medical practice, says a study for the royal commission on health services issued Monday. The study by Dr. J. A. Boan of the University of Saskatchewan proposes that a national advisory board comprising medical and lay persons be established to encourage and supervise this development.

Queen Warmly Greeted

Orangemen Try to Make Up For Block-Tossing Incident

BELFAST (CP) — Loyal Orangemen gave the Queen and Prince Philip a rousing show of affection today in the final hours of their incident-marked visit to Northern Ireland.

A 17-year-old apprentice plumber and a 44-year-old chambermaid were charged with trying to injure or alarm the Queen by tossing objects at the royal limousine as it drove through the capital Monday.

"I had no intention of harming anyone—I just done it for a protest," the young plumber, John Francis Morgan, was quoted by police as saying after his arrest for dropping a 12-pound cement block on the Queen's car from the fourth floor of a building under reconstruction. It dented the hood of the Rolls-Royce, but would have smashed the glass canopy over the royal couple if it had landed a few feet farther back.

Police quickly arrested Morgan in the building and had to smuggle him out the back to protect him from a howling crowd.

Two minutes earlier a woman had hurled a beer bottle at the car. It burst near the wheels but caused no damage.

Iris Carruthers of England, the chambermaid, was quoted by a constable in court as having told police after her arrest: "If I wanted to have attacked the Queen personally I could have chosen the bridge . . . where she was exposed to proper view."

Both the plumber and chambermaid were bound over in magistrate's court until July 18.

The composure of the royal couple seemed jarred briefly by the cement block attack, but the Queen was all smiles again Monday night at a ceremony on Belfast's military parade ground to mark the 50th anniversary of the First World War Battle of the Somme.

July 4 Is Made Occasion For Protests Against U.S.

LONDON (AP) — "Americans get out of Viet Nam" was the familiar rallying cry as chanting crowds staged July 4 protest demonstrations around the world.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was the target of some 5,000 Japanese leftists as he arrived in Japan for an economic conference. Police slipped him out of the Osaka airport by a back road.

In Paris, about 25 Americans began a march on the U.S. Embassy to deliver a protest petition and French Communists moved in and swept the group into a fist-swinging clash with police. The crowd of 700 applauded when an American girl held aloft a burning American flag "as a symbol for what's happening in Viet Nam—for the Americans to get out."

British police stopped an attempt to burn the American flag at the U.S. Embassy in London where U.S. Ambassador David Bruce was holding a reception marking U.S Independence Day. Two supporters of the British pacifist Committee of 100 crashed the party but were hustled out when one of them proposed a toast "to the dead and dying in Hanoi and Haiphong and the American withdrawal from Viet Nam."

In Philadelphia, cradle of American independence, about 400 demonstrators marched with placards protesting the Viet Nam war. Across the street, Undersecretary of State George W.

CBC Wants More Public Money To Aid Canadian Programming

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation wants more public money to beef up its Canadian programming and to enable it to make greater efforts in the color television field.

The publicly-owned corporation's annual report, tabled in the Commons, sets out short- and long-term objectives and says "if these are to be met without reducing the existing level of service, additional public funds will be required."

Several of the objectives concern increasing Canadian TV programming in the evening hours with a consequent reduction in programming from United States networks.

"All our history shows that Canadianism carries a price tag and broadcasting is no exception; if the national broadcasting service is to play the part in our country's life that it should, its dependence on commerical revenues must decrease."

Reporting its financial position for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1966, the corporation said operating expenses totalled $133,447,000, and another $713,000 went to repay loans to the federal treasury.

Parliament provided an operating grant of $97,044,000, gross advertising revenues totalled $33,563,000 and other revenues amounted to $795,000. After allowing $4,739,000 in unexpended funds.

The report says a new chapter in Canadian broadcasting is about to open with a declaration of government broadcasting policy in a white paper and continuing Commons committee examination of broadcasting, films and assistance to the arts.

Among its objectives, the CBC says more programs of substance should be broadcast on French and English TV networks in the peak evening hours —8 to 10 p.m.—which now are almost exclusively used for light entertainment "of the commercial type."

On color television, the CBC says it should keep pace with other broadcasting organization in such technical developments as color, stereo FM and satellite transmission.

Would Give Wider Powers to BBG And Revamp CBC

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — A shakeup of Canadian broadcasting that will confer wider powers on the Board of Broadcast Governors and revamp the CBC hierarchy is being proposed by the federal government.

Its white paper on broadcasting, tabled in the Commons Monday, will be debated by the Commons broadcasting committee this fall before legislation is drafted.

The policy paper immediately raised questions about the future of two kingpins of the business — BBG Chairman Dr. Andrew Stewart and CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet.

Their appointments, and those of other senior men in both organizations, lapse when the revised Broadcasting Act is proclaimed, probably late this year if State Secretary Judy LaMarsh's plans are achieved.

The paper's proposals would:

—Give the BBG authority to license stations, instead of merely making recommendations to the cabinet as at present. There would be provision for formal appeals to the cabinet against board decisions.

—Increase to five from three the board's permanent membership, with the five required only to consult the part-time membership which could be composed of as many as seven persons. There are 12 part-time members at present.

—Split the present functions of the CBC president, with the president remaining responsible for over-all policy as board chairman and a new position of chief executive officer created to handle day-to-day operations. Unlike the senior vice-president —a

Pension Increase Possible

By STUART LAKE

Health Minister MacEachen is belived ready to announce government plans to increase the income of needy old-age pensioners when the bill gets by this parliamentary hurdle.

If the minister does intend to make such a statement during the debate, under Commons rules he can only do so after all other MPs have made their speeches.

Conservative and New Democratic Party members have kept the debate alive for more than a week. They say they want to convince Mr. MacEachen the government should increase the present $75 old-age pension to $100 a month immediately.

If the minister plans to boost the pension, he can announce it any day during the time set aside in the Commons for statements by ministers, say opposition members.

The government's house leader, George McIlraith, indicated Monday night the government may shelve the assistance plan today and bring in other legislation the government wants passed before the Commons takes its summer recess.

LIST BUSINESS

Listed as business for today were a resolution preceding legislation amending the Bank Act, a resolution preceding the government's medical care legislation, second reading of bills to amend the Income Tax Act and to create the National Arts Centre, and the assistance plan.

He said press reports indicated Mr. MacEachen would announce assistance for old-age pensioners with income below $1,260. The assistance would be given only after a means test.

The Conservative leader said his party wanted a $100 pension without a means test, which he described as "a denial of the rights of free men."

David Lewis, deputy NDP leader, said his group also opposes a means test. "It would force the elderly person to humiliate himself by hagging with some welfare officer."

Like other opposition MPs, Mr. Lewis said he would support the Canada Assistance Plan, which co-ordinates and extends existing public welfare programs.

But he complained it sets no standards of payments to needy aged in all provinces. Programs varied from province to province.

United Appeal Budget Committee Meets to Set Campaign Goal

Belleville's United Appeal budget committee held its inaugural meeting last night at the United Community Services building on John St. in what is the first step towards streamlining agency budgets and setting a goal for the 1966 campaign.

Chairman Bob Laughlen told the committee that over the years the appeal has had a budget committee. He said the legitimacy of the requests of the 14 appeal agencies is not in question, but the budgets are reviewed "to ensure they are reasonable and are followed up to see if the programs are actively carried out.

"However," Mr. Laughlen said, "many of us (United Community Services directors) feel that if the United Appeal and Planning Council are merged there will be more time and skill available to make thorough studies of the agencies and we can now afford to examine carefully the function of the agencies and the relevance of their requests."

Mr Laughlen said Belleville is moving from an "agency - oriented" United Appeal, where the appeal has acted as the collection arm of the agencies, to a new type of committee, called The Citizens' Admission and Budget Committee. The new idea is that this community represents the donors, the 5,000 people who contribute to the appeal, and also that it represents the entire community of 32,000 people, and not the agencies as has been the case in the past.

CAPABLE OF MANAGING

"The real job of the budget committee is not to 'count ink wells' because we feel each agency is capable of managing its own affairs and of spending money wisely and efficently.

ROLE OUTLINED

"The role of the budget committee is to bring together the needs of the community, that is, what programs and services are needed, by using the available resources.

"We need less in the way of emergency relief and need to program more for the aged and more the youth. Because of recent developments in governmental organizations, the emergency relief type of service is not as necessary as it once was."

Mr. Laughlen said the job of his committee is not to wash dirty laundry in public but to help. "You'll have to remember that all the people on the boards of the agencies are just like you, volunteers.

"They work very hard and they do it for nothing. Some of these people spend 30 to 40 hours a week. They want direction from the community at large as to the kinds of things they should be doing."

UCS Director R. L. Porter said the budget committee was broken up into three groups, with about five people on each group. The committee will meet with each of the agencies and review their budgets strictly.

"Each person on the committee will pick one agency and get to know it better than the agency boards know it. They will study the agency and determine what function it is performing, what needs it is solving, and so on.

"For the next five months, the budget committee will be getting to know the agencies intimately and the programs and needse of these agencies."

Mr. Porter said "there is enough money in Belleville and the United Appeal will raise enough money, to provide a balanced network of health, welfare and recreation services.

"The goal of the budget committee as I see it, is to help to balance the existing network.

"It won't be achieved all in one year. This is the planning function, to be always looking at the needs of the community, because the needs keep changing."

position that could disappear —the chief officer would be responsible to but not a member of the board.

—Put CBC financing on a longer-term basis with five-year parliamentary grants instead of the present annual grants system.

—Limit CBC commercial advertising activities to their present ratio, a policy the government says is important both for the corporation and private broadcasters.

Dr. Stewart said in an interview Monday he sees nothing in the paper "that would prevent my staying on." He said he is willing to remain chairman, but that this is up to the government.

In recent months, there have been reports that Dr. Stewart, former president of the University of Alberta, wishes to return to academic work but agreed to stay on until government reorganization of the board.

At a press conference after tabling of the paper, Miss LaMarsh said she did not know whether Mr. Ouimet would want to continue or whether the government would reappoint him. She said he had shown a great deal of courage during the past weeks and months, presumably over the controversy about the program This Hour Has Seven Days.

NEAR RETIREMENT

Officials noted that W. E. S. Briggs, whose job of senior vice-president disappears under the proposed revision, is nearing the end of his seven-year appointment and approaching the CBC's retirement age of 60.

The chief executive officer, a position akin to a general manager, would be appointed by the new board of directors.

Should Dr. Stewart be replaced, two oft-mentioned possibilities as successor are Don Jamieson of St. John's, Nfld., a former president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, and Ralph Snelgrove, a Barrie, Ont., broadcaster and unsuccessful federal Liberal candidate.

A CBC spokesman said the corporation asked for the splitting of the president's functions and for the longer-term financing.

In proposing a larger role for the BBG, the government went part way towards adopting the recommendation of R. M. Fowler's report on the industry that a single independent authority run all broadcasting.

The major difference in the white paper is rejection of the recommendation that the regulatory agency manage the CBC.

CBC MUST COMPLY

But the CBC, which the government says until now has itself interpreted its role of promoting a national broadcasting service, will clearly be under the BBG's regulatory eye and be expected to comply with its general broadcasting policy.

The board is to set broadcasting standards for CBC and private stations on an individual basis, taking account of economic and local factors when judging applications for licences or renewals.

Quality and public service standards should not be formulated on a universal basis because private broadcasters operating in larger, more profitable markets can afford greater variety and higher quality of programming, the white paper says.

CAPT. JUNE DWYER

Captain June Dwyer Arrives To Head Salvation Army

Captain June Dwyer, formerly of Windsor, Nova Scotia, has arrived here to be the new commanding officer of the Salvation Army Citadel in Belleville.

A member of the staff of William Booth Memorial Training College in Toronto for the past three years, Captain Dwyer is no stranger to Belleville. From 1957 through 1961 she was in charge of youth work for the mid-Ontario division of the Salvation Army, headquarters which are in Belleville.

Captain Dwyer previously held a command in Liverpool, Nova Scotia, and was on the staff of a Salvation Army training college in Newfoundland. She has been in the Salvation Army organization for 14 years.

Captain Dwyer's assistant at the Belleville citadel will be Lieutenant Mabel Jean Rawlins, who graduated in June from William Booth Memorial Training College. Lieutenant Rollins graduated in arts from the University of Manitoba several years ago.

The new commanding officer and her assistant held a welcome service in the citadel this past Sunday.

Two Airmen Promoted

A Belleville native and a former resident of Belleville, both stationed at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, have received promotions. Promoted from Flight Sergeant to the rank of Warrant Officer 2, is John A. Sword, 18 Bradgate Road. Sergeant John Edward Joynson, now residing at 17 Warren Road, Trenton, has been promoted from the rank of Corporal.

June Temps Slightly Less Than Normal

Despite the torrid temperatures of the past week the Tweed Climatalogical Station reports that the mean June temperature was slightly less than normal. The mean maximum, however, was slightly higher than normal although no records were set. Highest recorded temperature was 92 degrees on June 26 which does not eclipse the 95 degrees set in June, 1963.

Precipitation for the month was only fractionally less than normal at 2.55 inches but accumulated precipitation since January fell below the normal amount of 16.10 inches to 13.99 inches.

Low rainfall and high temperatures have not caused any increase in the number of forest fires in the Tweed district. As a matter of fact, there have been less than half as many this year as in the comparable period last year.

The high temperatures and low precipitation toward the end of the month have reduced the seasonal drag which was about three weekks in May to approximately one and a half weeks by the end of June. Unless the temperatures moderate along with mire precipitation the reservoir of soil moisture will be depleted by mid-August.

Many Plants Will Be Closed At Same Time

The last two weeks in July will be a holiday time for several hundred city residents. Most Belleville industries are closing down for that period to enable their employees to go on vacation although some plants will retain skelton staffs. The holiday will stretch from Friday, July 15 to Tuesday, August 2 (Monday being Civic Holiday) for most people.

Industries closing in this period include American Optical, Amplifone, Avon Jewellery, Black Diamond Cheese, International Hardware, H. Corby Distillery, Deacon Brothers, McFarlane Gendron, Mead Johnson, Northern Electric, Stephens-Adamson Stewart-Warner and Vagden Mills.

Union Carbide and Wilson Concrete will not close and staggered holidays will also be the rule at Aluminum Star Products, Canada Cement and Deloro Stellite.

Thirty Chapters County History Now Completed

Work is proceeding on the Hastings County Council's Centennial Project — a county history. Under the direction of Gerald Boyce, the first thirty chapters of text have been prepared.

Pictures, early maps and interesting advertisements and business letterheads are still needed to complete the work.

If anyone has such material and is willing to loan it, he is asked to send it to the County Clerk's Office, County Building, Belleville, or bring it to the Hastings County Museum any day from July 11 to 15 between the hours of 9 and 5. On those days workshops on the history book are being held at the museum, 240 Church Street, Belleville.

The section of the book completed so far deals with general topics such as the Indians, the beginning of settlement, the Marmora Iron Mines, the Hastings Road, Ontario's first gold rush at Eldorado, the Belleville Riot of 1877, the Trent Canal, etc.

Later chapters will deal with the individual municipalities including Tweed, Stirling, Madoc, Marmora, Bancroft, Deseronto, Trenton and the townships.

Remand Youth One Week for Sentencing

A Deseronto youth pleaded guilty to three charges in magistrates court this morning and was remanded one week for sentencing.

Phillip Earl Maracle, 16, pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, to charges of car theft, breaking and entering and theft.

Police testified that at 9.55 p.m., June 4, Donald Alexander Forbes of 162 College St., Belleville, reported his car had been stolen from the Belleville General Hospital parking lit. Then at 10.30 p.m., Walter Brant, Tyendinaga Reserve, reported a car had been involved in an accident in front of his home. O.P.P. investigated and as a result, Maracle gave himself up to Deseronto Police June 30. He was jointly charged in the theft of the car with Bruce Henry, 19, Deseronto. Henry appeared in court last week and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report uptil July 12.

Police testified that Maracle admitted being the driver of the stolen auto. They said that on the drive down Highway 2 that night, they sideswiped a car on Dundas St E., east of Bakelite, and forced another car off the road near the Point Anne Lane. The car was rolled over on the reserve and was a complete write-off.

Then police said, Maracle and Henry went back to Shannonville and paid a man to drive them to Deseronto. Both had been drinking.

In Deseronto, Maracle and Henry broke into Carter's Pool Room and stole a quantity of cigarettes and cash. They broke a wooden panel on the back door to gain entry.

Both youths pleaded guilty to that charge also and were remanded for sentencing until July 12.

Maracle was also charged with stealing a quantity of pocket books from Frank's Cigar Store along with another Deseronto youth. Maracle pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentencing until next week. The other youth made no plea and was released on his own bail of $100 until July 12.

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN — In loving memory of a dear father, Gordon Harold Bateman suddenly killed July 5, 1963.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And secret tears still flow.
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong.
We seem to hear you whisper
Cheer up and carry on.
Each time we see your picture,
You seem to smile and say.
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We will meet again some day.

—Always remembered by son Wilfred and Doug and daughter-in-law Gloria.

BATEMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, Gordon Harold Bateman, suddenly killed July 5, 1963.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled:
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
But in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

—Always remembered by wife Betty.

BATEMAN — In loving memory of a dear brother Gordon, who passed away suddenly, July 5, 1963.

To us he has not gone away,
Nor has he travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,

BATEMAN — In loving memory of a dear brother Gordon, who passed away suddenly July 5, 1963.

3 years have passed since that sad day.
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.

—Ever remembered by sist Barbara and family.

BEATTY — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Lillian Beatty, who passed away one year ago today.

Gone is the face we loved so dear
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away from sight or speech,
But not to far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember her who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

—Ever remembered by Charlie and family.

MARACLE — In loving memory of my father, Eli Maracle who passed away nine years ago today, July 5, 1957.

Dear father, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

—Sadly missed by daughter Frances and husband Raymond Bailey.

When It Comes to Summer Job Students Are Not Particular

Several hundred Belleville high school students are in the market for summer employment these days. J. R. Staveley, Employment Relations Officer of the National Employment Service here, reports that for most of them it is a 'catch as catch can affair". They work in canning factories, as construction workers, as maids, at summer resorts, on farms, or anywhere they can.

There are, however, a few students who manage to find positions far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife. Would you believe an Insect Sampling and Rearing Aide?

Martha Musgrove, 18, is one of eight local high school students employed at the Department of Agriculture's Research Institute on Dundas Street. An Insect Sampling and Rearing Aide (I.S.R.A.), she works under the direction of B. C. Smith, on a project involving several different aspects of the habits of ladybugs.

An I.S.R.A. (and there are eighteen of them) is appointed by a committee of research officers here for a term of eleven to twenty-two weeks. University and high school students are posted on the basis of educational status, previous experience and personal suitability for the work. Eight university students are employed as Student Assistants for twenty-six weeks terms but their selection is by the Civil Service Commission in Ottawa.

An honor Grade 13 student at BCI this past year, Martha finds her work both interesting and informative. No two I.S.R.A.'s perform exactly the same operation and even though this is just her first summer at the Institute she has been involved in a variety of experiences. Fence building doesn't seem to have a great bearing on entomological research but Martha and other I.S.R.A.'s do that sort of thing on the two days a week they go into the field. Collection and observation of insects is the primary function of these expeditions, however.

WEIGHS LADYBUGS

At the Institute Martha sets up experiments, weighs ladybug larvae, feeds them (they eat aphids, by the way), and calculates statistics. Her job presents the opportunity of picking up a knowledge of entomology and related disciplines. An I.S.R.A. assists highly-trained research officers in their work, a fact which gives the student a keener appreciation of entomology and one which generates interest in the experiment.

Dr. J. S. Kelleher, Importation Officer of the Institute, says over one hundred local high school students applied to him for positions. Martha was one of the fortunate few to get the opportunity of a variety of challenging experiences. Dr. Kelleher points out that many prominent Belleville citizens passed through the Institute as students, among them Robert Temple, former M.P. for Hastings South.

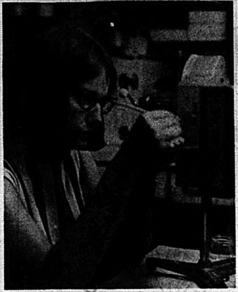
Much closer to the madding crowd than the cloistered halls of a research institution is the summer position held by Robert Snefjella. An Intelligencer sportswriter, Robert, 18, is well acquainted with strife, ignoble and otherwise.

His job takes him to ball games, motorcycle races, wrestling matches, boat races, and almost any other sporting event that takes place in the city and district. Since admission is usually free to the press this may seem a pleasant occupation but the other side of the coin shows Robert at his typewriter by 8 o'clock 6 mornings a week. In the editorial room, "The Viking" (as he is known to his colleagues) sometimes acts as a copy boy, always answers sports department phones, and once wrote the sports page column.

A citizen of Norway and the city chess champion, Robert brings considerable experience to this, his third summer with the Intelligencer. A grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary this past year, he has been writing school sports for the paper since he was in Grade 10. The hours are sometimes long but Robert wouldn't give up his job even to see the Orioles win the pennant.

There are very few lulls in his working day whether he is at a ball diamond or at his desk.

Both Martha and Robert agree that they hardly ever have a dull moment — there is always something new on the horizon and they both now know the truth of the old adage that variety is the spice of life.



ENTOMOLOGICAL RESEARCH will occupy Martha Musgrove this summer. An Insect Sampling and Rearing Aide at the Department of Agriculture's Research Institute, she is seen here at a typical task — weighing insect larvae.

District Students Selected For Youth Travel Program

Four Belleville students are among 4,000 young Canadians taking part in the third annual Centennial Youth Travel Program, jointly sponsored by the provincial and federal governments through the Centennial Commission. Robert Beecher, 17, of 28 Golfdale Road, Jocelyn McLaughlin, 16, of 272 Coleman Street, Ola Louise Pultz, 16, of 10 Highland Ave., and Beth Doreen Putman, 16, of R. R. 6 Belleville are taking part in the program this year.

Others from this area scheduled to leave July 26 from Kingston, destination Meteghan, Nova Scotia, are Robert Gary Brooks of Cloyne, Sandra Ann Denard of R. R. 2, Bloomfield, James P. McCormick of R. R. 1, Tweed, Lawrence V. McNeil of R. R. 4, Napanee, Susan E. O'Riordan of Madoc, Betty Simpson of R. R. 2, Bancroft, Joanne Mary Smith of Campbellford and Linsey Vanderwater of Trenton. Plans call for the group to begin the return trip to Ontario on August 6.

The Centennial Youth Travel Program is a summer exchange project for Canadian senior high school students. It assists teenagers from across the country to travel and visit with people in other areas in order that they may discover and appreciate the scope and diversity of Canada. The provincial and territorial departments of education, using a per capita allowance from the Centennial Commission, administer selection procedures among the students in their areas. They also organize local committees for the purpose of arranging billets and other reception features for incoming groups. The Centennial Commission underwrites the cost of travel for each group of students and co-ordinates the program at a national level.

Quinte Branch Federalists Are Endorsed

The Quinte Branch of the World Federalists of Canada, formed last fall, received unanimous approval at the annual conference of the group held in Brantford July 1 to 3.

Local delegates to the conference were Mrs. Guy Galbraith, Trenton, President of Quinte Branch, her husband, member of the speaker's bureau, and D. M. Curzon, Belleville, political action committee chairman.

World Federalists believe that a lasting world peace can best be achieved by a revision of the present United Nations charter enabling the U.N. to make, interpret, and enforce a world rule of law. They passed a resolution urging the Canadian government to publicly support the U.N. Secretary-General's proposals for immediate cessation of the bombing of North Viet Nam, the scaling down of all military activities in South Viet Nam, and the opening of discussion by all parties involved in the fighting.

A scientific analysis of the causes of war was presented to the conference by Dr. Norman Alcock of the Canadian Peace Research Institute. "The World Federalist policy of rule through law is a necessary alternative to man's present violent way of life," he said.

Other participants in this year's conference included James, Brown, M.P. for Brantford and chairman of the 70 member Canadian World Federalist Parliamentary Association, Dr. Pauline Jewett, former Liberal M.P., and Maxwell Stanley, retiring President of the International organization's U.S. affiliate.

Rabbi Gunther Plaut, Toronto, was elected Canadian World Federalist President, succeeding C. S. Burchill of Victoria. Dr. Plaut is Rabbi of Holy Blossom Temple. "All around us," he said, "are signs that even in the highest places of government the basic ideas of world federalism are finding acceptance."

Charges Russia Making Egypt Into New Cuba

The Soviet Union is pouring millions of dollars into the establishment of another Cuba in the Middle East, Dr. George J. Liban, executive director of the Zionist Organization of Canada, told Belleville Rotarians Monday.

According to Dr. Liban, Russia has supplied Egypt with 1,500 Stalin tanks and some 300 MiG fighters of superior performance to the British Centurion tanks and French Mystere jets used by Israel and acquired by the latter with "hard cash."

Czech-born Dr. Liban charged that Egypt was maintaining tension between Jews and Arabs with a military budget of $320 million, compared with Israel's $1882 million.

He said Russia is putting $900 million into the entire Mediterranean region, for the purpose of building up a military apparatus in the Middle East and keeping out the western powers.

Israel had made many overtures for peace between Jews and Arabs but had always been turned down. Egypt's President Nasser, he said wanted to destroy Israel and unite the Arab nations.

Dr. Liban cited other instances of Arab hostility, including their refusal to cooperate in an American-sponsored plan to pipe water to both Irsael and the Arab countries, and Syrian attacks on Israeli farmers in the border regions.

REFUGE PROBLEM

He blamed the Arab states for creating the Arab refugee problem, declaring they were perpetuating the situation for political ends. Yet, he said, it could be solved if only Saudi Arabia diverted some of its million dollars a day oil royalties.

Despite the trouble with its neighbors, Israel has made big strides since the state was created 18 years ago. The population, for example, has quadrupled from 600,000 to 2,500,000. Agricultural production is six times what it was in 1948 and exports have increased. Unemployment is low.

Israel's merchant fleet has 85 ships with a total tonnage of 600,000 tons, and is the seventh largest in the world. Flying time between Israel and this continent by El Al (Israeli Airlines) jets is only 10½ hours. Some 300,000 tourists visited the country last year, compared with 33,000 in 1952.

Dr. Liban said Israel has the means of producing the atom bomb, and he also referred to the country's achievements in converting salt water into fresh water for irrigation.

Rotary President Dr. J. F. McCorquodale presided.

Models of U. S. Moonships to Be Shown In C of C Exhibit at Belleville Fair

Going to the moon?

You can inspect your future moonship at the Belleville Fair.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administraiton of the United States will exhibit models of its Apollo Command and Service Module, its lunar Excursion Module and its Gemini spacecraft in the Quinte Curling Club building.

These models, and other space age equipment, will be part of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce industrial display, most of which will be devoted to the exhibition of goods made in this city.

The Chamber has had an industrial exhibit at the Fair for the past two years but this year for the first time, the entire Curling Club will be given over to its exhibits.

The display of the spacecraft models was arranged by Fred Deacon, president of the Chamber, and by John Legate, chairman of the Chamber's committees for the industrial exhibit at the fair, working in co-operation with Robert Temple, a director of the Chamber. Mr. Temple, when he was member of Parliament for South Hastings, had been a member of the steering committee of the parliamentary committee on defence and the Washington connections he had made at that time proved invaluable in arranging for the spacecraft exhibit.

This exhibit will be on display for the four days of the fair, from Aug. 15 to Aug. 18 inclusive.

The exhibit will include quarter-scale models of the Apollo Command and Service Module, which is scheduled to blast off from Cape Kennedy for the moon late in this decade, and of the Lunar Excursion Module, which will enable two of the three astronauts in the Apollo to descend to the moon's surface while the Apollo itself, in charge of the third astronaut, orbits the moon.

Apollo test flights, preparatory to the moon flight, are scheduled to begin late this year. The more familiar Gemini spacecraft, which is known so well from television and newspaper pictures, will also be represented by a quarter-scale model in the fair exhibit.

A space-suited manikin will be included in the exhibit and there will be color slides and copy panels to assist those in charge of the exhibit to explain the functioning of the various models to spectators.

During its stay in Belleville the exhibit will be under close guard, with members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment watching it day and night.

Vietnam Rumblings

The United States' bombing of oil installations on the outskirts of Hanoi has naturally provoked the ire of China.

Peking responded with hot words, but thus far it is still notably short on deeds which would suggest direct intervention in the conflict.

A Chinese government statement had this to say: "The development by U.S. imperialism of its war of aggression to a new and still graver stage has now further freed us from any bounds or restrictions in rendering support and aid (to the Viet Cong).

"In accordance with the interests and demands of the Vietnamese people we will at any time take such actions as we deem necessary. This is our unshirkable proletarian internationalist duty."

So far there is no indication of what aid China is planning beyond its present commitments. Moral support is one thing, but China is understandably reluctant to become directly involved in what would be a destructive conflict with a nuclear-armed foe, and at a time when economic problems at home are engaging the government's attention.

Meanwhile, if the United States is regarded by many as the big bad wolf of this Southeast Asian conflict, communist North Vietnam is not sleeping either. At least three and possibly five North Vietnamese regular divisions have been infiltrated into South Vietnam in recent months. This is regarded as a major escalation in Hanoi's involvement in the war.

However spoiling tactics by the Americans are said to have prevented the communists from grouping for an all-out offensive during the monsoon season. The U.S. commander, General Westmoreland, is even quoted as saying that the allies have begun to win the war.

Unfortunately, experience has shown we should be wary of such statements. In 1953 General Douglas MacArthur predicted American troops would be home from Korea by Christmas. Then came Chinese intervention and the war dragged on.

Will China intervene in Viet Nam? The immediate answer appears to be "No." But there is always the likelihood that Chinese troops may be thrown into the conflict at some stage. The U.S. bombing of the oil depots in itself should not provoke Peking's intervention.

French Bomb Tests

France's nuclear explosion in the South Pacific is reported to have been seen in the Gambia Islands 270 miles from the test site — a small atoll.

It would suggest an explosion of some magnitude when the explosion was heard and a flash of light observed at this distance. It is as if a bomb had been exploded over New York city and the flash seen from high ground say around Stirling.

And yet, by the standards set by American and Soviet tests in recent years, not to mention the awesome wartime blasts at Nagasaki and Hiroshima, the explosion was relatively weak.

Radiation consequently posed no serious threat either to the other islands of Polynesia or to the southern hemisphere at large. Officials were said to have been walking in the test area barely 10 hours after the explosion.

However, this is only the beginning. Saturday's blast was the first of six planned in the next three months. They will include what is described as a "souped-up A-bomb," the last stage before a hydrogen bomb.

A sidelight of the tests from which France must be deriving considerable satisfaction is the fact that the United States sent vessels to observe the activities. France's growing influence in the world, after the humiliations of the postwar period is being taken a stage further with this nuclear test program in the South Pacific.

Changing Times

One of the most potent elements in world politics is prestige. It is prestige and unwillingness to lose face that are behind the conflict in this world.

But memories are short, and times and circumstances change. And no more so than in the case of Germany and its relations with its former conquerors. The country may still be divided, but the situation there is less of a problem today than in the years immediately following the last war.

It is in this light that we must view the appointment of Count von Kielmansegg of West Germany to succeed General Jean Crepin of France as commander-in-chief of Allied Forces Central Europe as from July 1.

There is a certain irony in the appointment, because the German will have under his command British and American, as well as West German forces. As we said, times change — in this case just 21 years after the German surrender and the country lay in ashes.

Ottawa Offbeat

With Lesage Gone, Pearson May 'Get Tough' With Quebec

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Federal Liberals are busy selling still another "new" Prime Minister Pearson.

Which, they're free to admit, is some switch.

For six years when Premier Jean LeSage was ruling Quebec, Prime Minister Pearson, practising what he liked to call "co-operative Federalism," specialized in peaceful co-existence with all the provincial capitals.

With Quebec City above all.

In vain, Liberal Party planners, trusted lieutenants and advisers, Cabinet colleagues and any number of worried MPs and Senators warned him that he was bending over so far in his power bow to the provinces he was in peril of falling on his face.

Repeatedly they urged him to stand up straight and firm before the Federal Government let so much power slip from its failing fingers into the clutching hands of the provinces that Ottawa would find itself lacking the authority required for ruling in the national interest.

But Quebec, never satisfied, always wanted more.

DEEP CONCERN

Even the other nine provinces wondered and worried how far the erosion of federal power would go.

But the Prime Minister could not and would not draw a this-far-and-no-further line and dig in behind it.

Would not, perhaps, because he and Premier Lesage were fellow Liberals and federal Cabinet colleagues from former Prime Minister St. Laurent's eight Ottawa years.

Could not, maybe, because the federal Liberals held power by the uncertain grace of a shakey minority while the Liberals in Quebec ruled with a potent majority.

And any confrontation might be risky.

Especially when the federal Liberals had such enormous stakes in keeping Quebec sweet, with 56 of their 129 MPs from La Belle Province.

Then there was Premier Lesage's supposed political invincibility, calculated to intimidate any federal challenges from unhappy and uncertain Ottawa.

"Difficult," some of the federal Liberals used to explain in excusing their political impotence, "to confront infallibility."

Especially difficult when a truculent Premier Lesage could always whistle up those provincial toughies of his Cabinet, Rene Levesque and Paul Guerin-Lajoie if Prime Minister Pearson and his federal Liberals showed any reckless disposition to fight.

Anyway, fighting comes hard to Prime Minister Pearson. He would rather talk. Prefers to compromise. Give a little more ground if it means keeping a federal-provincial peace.

DIFFERENT NOW

But Union Nationale Premier Daniel Johnson is not a liberal

Nor, with his paper-thin if decisive majority, invincible.

Too cagey, too for any posturing as infallible.

And he is quiet where Lesage was flamboyant.

Composed, not volatile.

Pragmatic instead of doctrinaire.

Unpretentious, they say, but conceding the arrogance may come later. But not in that maddening Lesage measure.

Further, the federal Liberals, especially the Cabinet Ministers from Quebec, who for six years seemed to fade out of the power picture in the shadow of Premier Lesage, Rene Levesque and politically swinging Quebec City, now feel they're 10 feet tall and ready to take on anybody from the far side of the Ottawa River.

After all, they are old hands. They've been doing political business for three power-years now and Premier Johnson and his rookies are new, skin-of-their-teeth arrivals in the realm of authority.

So now, in the name of the national interest and the preservation of federal power, Prime Minister Pearson can draw a hard Dominion-Provincial line and dig in, defending the Treasury and the supreme authority from those raiders from the provinces.

And this, swear the newly-confident federal Liberals, is what you can count on the new "tough" Pearson to do.

To Your Good Health

Tot Fears Elevator, Do Not Make Him Ride

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 16-month-old son is deathly afraid of store elevators. When I take him shopping with me, the minute I get near an elevator he starts screaming, and I have to walk upstairs with him.

Should I make an issue of the problem and force him? — Mrs. H. J.

He's too young to tell you what frightens him. He may not even know. When he was very small he may have been frightened by being put in a small room, and the elevator reminds him of it. Or my guess may be far wide of the mark.

The fact remains that he is terrified, and I most decidedly would not force him to face such terror. I would guess that perhaps someone has argued, "After he rides in an elevator a few times and discovers that it doesn't hurt him, he'll get over being afraid."

Don't put any stock in that argument. First, he isn't old enough to indulge in such calm logic. Second, and perhaps much more important, he probably has no notion of what it is that he fears. He's just scared, period. It's an emotional matter. He may have some vague thought that the elevator is a dragon's mouth, about to swallow you both.

I'd just stay away from elevators with him, and see whether this fear doesn't wither away spontaneously in time. If it doesn't, you may need the help of a child psychologist, but I doubt that anything needs to be done now except to keep from accentuating the fear by forcing the little fellow.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send your booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." I enclose the necessary 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

X-rays showed that I have diverticulosis and my doctor put me on a special diet. I am 69, and like a glass of beer before I go to bed. Is that harmful? — Mrs. E. D.

Unless you happen to be sensitive to beer, or it causes certain symptoms such as bloating or diarrhea, then a glass at night shouldn't harm either you or diverticulosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: A doctor on TV talking about menopause, said the best thing for women to do is to exercise and cut down on smoking. What exercises are most beneficial. — Mrs. L. A.

It happens that I saw the same program, and I think you missed three little words. The doctor said "keep active and exercise," and I think it is a very good advice — if women will just realize its importance.

Medication can alleviate the more annoying physical aspects of menopause if they occur, but the mental attitude is very important, too. At menopause a woman has reached an age at which she slows down a bit physically Her family usually is grown. She isn't a go-go girl anymore.

Many times she finds herself with time on her hands, and she sits and worries, and the more she worries the worse she feels. The answer is to keep busy: physically active and intellectually devoted to new things.

Sheer exercise is just part of it, you see. There aren't any special exercises. Just remain active. Walk. Dig in the garden. Bowl. Ride a bike. Reasonable and regular exercise keeps your whole body in trim. Such activity also keeps your emotions in trim as well as your weight down.

Note to M.H.P.: Yes, some people are allergic to printer's ink, and some to paper dust. In fact, it is rather difficult to find anything that somebody isn't sensitive to.

Who Speaks for English Canada?

Orillia Packet and Times

There are 14 million or more of us, and we have built a nation in this vast country which is the envy of the world, but we have become strangers in our own land. For although we have always thought of ourselves as Canadians, our mother tongue is English. And in the Canada of today, who speaks for us?

We who have always prided ourselves on our individual freedoms and who founded our institutions on the principle of justice for all, are today branded as oppressors of our Quebec brothers and monsters of racial injustice.

Every pundit and commentator takes up the cry and heaps scorn and abuse upon us, tyrants that we are, but who speaks for us?

We who by hard work and enterprise have built a Canadian economy that is a marvel of its kind are reproached, by those who will not quit the comfortable confines of their own province, of failing to share the wealth of this vast country with them in Quebec, and our governments consider ways of punishing us for our economic temerity. Who speaks for us?

We had thought that we had defended our nation bravely in four wars, but those who would not enlist with us now brand us as war-mongering imperialists and deride our service as worse than waste.

Our every institution is ridiculed as a reactionary trapping from a colonial past, and foremost in the ranks of our baiters is the C.B.C. which we ourselves created for us.

Our flag, our national anthem, the crown, all the tiny symbols once a treasured part of our national heritage, are taken from us and destroyed as symbols of a past once glorified in, but now suddenly become shameful.

All the links of brotherhood with the world-wide Commonwealth, venerated from our earliest days in home and schoolroom, are disgraced and spat upon in the strange new land in which we find ourselves. For who speaks for us?

In a world where the English has become a universal language, we find ourselves learning French, yet no one insists that our Quebec neighbors might profitably adopt English in their schools.

Our railroad is gallicized, our radio stations spout French to a mystified audience, and our politicians demand that we consider Quebec not as a province but as a state, equal to all our other provinces lumped together, and prate of a separate Senate for Quebec.

For Quebec has identity, vitality, culture; we, the pundits asure us, have none. Les Quebecois, sont les Canadiens. But who speaks for us?

Our history is sneered at, our statues defaced, our Queen insulted, but we must understand these things as symptoms of Quebec aspirations, we are told.

Our leather-jacketed hoodlums are jailed as delinquents, but in Quebec they are interviewed and their banalities widely publicized as socially significant.

Corrupt politicians exist only in our world; in Quebec, one comprehends, patronage is a way of life and is no concern to us.

For this is Canada, the racial partnership where the partner who contributes least to the defence of the country, the wealth, the vitality of the country must be permitted to take the most out of it in cash allowances, privileges and perquisites.

This is the new Canada and in the inner councils of its government, in its press, its broadcast media, public and private, in all its vast expanses, who speaks for us?

Good Old Days on the Lakes

Time Magazine

The S.S. Richelieu was a queen in her time. The Tafts of Cincinnati were regular passengers, including the patriarchal ex-President, William Howard Taft on his way to the family's summer estate at Murray Bay. So were quebecois honeymooners. Philadelphia flappers and holidaying schoolmarms from all over, were enticed by Canada Steamship Lines' ads for a six-day St. Lawrence cruise from Montreal to the granite fiords of the Saguenay. The excursion was long enough for shipboard romance, leisurely enough for picnics around a bonfire at the 328-year-old French settlement of Tadoussac and sightseeing in Quebec City.

Her decks tiered in the weddingcake style of the old Mississippi stern-wheelers, the Richelieu was one of 23 sisters in a CSL inland fleet that, in their heyday in the 20s, carried over 1,000,000 holidayers. The large liners plied the Great Lakes from Fort William to Kingston, and before the Seaway flooded the Long Sault rapids, there was nothing quite like shooting downriver on the Rapids Prince from Prescott, Ont. to Montreal. The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston made one trip or another every year, as did the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce. The CSL fleet not only sailed through the Depression, but even through the stringencies of World War II — with a boost from the Du Ponts, who made the Saguenay cruise in the 1940s and delighted the crew by distributing nylon stockings.

After the war the Du Ponts returned to St. Moritz, and the 15-knot cruise ships, with their Edwardian elegance hastily modernized, fell out of favor. The disastrous burning of the Noronic in Toronto in 1949, with a loss of 119 lives, spelled the end for the aging Great Lakes ships and safety was an element when CSL's Chairman T. R. McLagan decided to retire the last ships in the St. Lawrence fleet this season — the Saguenay cruisers Richelieu, Tadoussac, and St. Lawrence. "The St. Lawrence is getting to be quite a big highway," said McLagan, "and we didn't care to run the risk of a collision with 400 or 500 people aboard." It is also true, from a strictly economic point of view, that there was increasingly little danger of that: on some cruises last season, as few as 30 paying customers rattled around the 410-passenger Richelieu and her slightly larger sister ships.

The city of Algiers surrendered to a French army of 37,000 men 136 years ago today—in 1830—and laid the foundations of the French empire in north Africa. The Islamic states of the Mediterranean had long engaged in piracy and the slave trade, and French settlement of Africa was undertaken as much to keep order as to Europeanize the Arabs. After the French Republican Revolution of 1848, Algeria became an administrative part of France itself. The country attained independence in 1962.

Strictly Personal

Perils of Professional Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In his diverting autobiography Morris Ernst has an amusing sketch about the social woes of a lawyer, who can't go out to a dinner party without being steered into a corner and asked for some free legal advice.

As soon as people learn he is an attorney, he writes, a strange gleam enters their eyes, and a few minutes later the conversation has taken a not-so-subtle turn to income tax, apartment leases, divorce laws, and manufacturing regulations.

Every professional faces this social hazard. I mentioned the Ernst book to an architect the other night, and a harried expression crossed his usually bland face.

"The same thing here," he shrugged. "The minute people find out that I'm an architect, they begin picking my brains furiously about their houses. I'm thinking of spending my vacation in an Eskimo igloo."

tion in an Eskimo igloo."
thinking of spending my vaca-

Let me submit that the case of the professional writer is even more dire. Not only does almost everyone have a novel or a play or a poem laid away lovingly in a dresser drawer, but everyone has a young relative who is bursting with a desire for literary fame — "if only he had the right connections."

The lawyer or the architect is asked merely to give verbal advice. The writer is requested to wade through bulky manuscripts to deliver a literary opinion — and he is met with scorn rather than thanks if his verdict is not glowingly enthusiastic.

An interminable procession of sons, nephews and cousins has been trotted out for my inspection over the years — together with their collections of grammar school scrapbooks, verses scrawled while walking in the woods at summer camp, and synopses of plays that need only the hand of a Shakespeare or a Chekhov to transform them into masterpieces.

I sometimes try to suggest weakly that a literary agent is the proper person to be sent manuscripts, but this party is met with a cold stare implying that only professional jealousy prevents me from reading the 664 pages (in spidery handwriting) of Sister's novel about Life — gained from two semesters at Bennington and four weekends in New York.

The only professional I have ever heard of who put a stop to all this free solicitation was a grim physician who followed an inflexible rule at social gatherings. Whenever a woman would ask his advice about her symptoms, he simply said: "Please strip to the waist, madam." And spent the rest of the evening merrily chatting about non-medical matters.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Western oils were the only major group to show strength in light morning trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Pacific Petroleum paced the oil group, gaining ½ to 13¼. Hudson's Bay added ⅝ at 18½ and Scurry Rainbow ¼ at 29¼ while Banff dropped to 13¼.

Bank issues, which have been fluctuating for two weeks as a result of the "on-again off-again" proposed changes to the Bank Act, led the main list lower.

Montreal and Nova Scotia dropped ½ each to 59 and 69½ and Imperial-Commerce ⅛ to 63¼. Toronto-Dominion was up ½ to 63.

Consolidated Paper was down 1 to 37½ while Chrysler gained 1 to 43 and CPR ¼ to 63¾.

Golds suffered another sharp loss on index, dropping 3.60 to 172.52. Dome declined 2 to 48½ and Kerr-Addison ⅜ to 10¼.

Base metals were fractionally lower. Denison, which added 1¼ Monday, dipped ¼ to 55.

On index, industrials were off .08 to 162.36, base metals .07 to 93.88 and the TSE .08 to 154.25. Western oils were up 1.02 to 103.99. Volume at 11 a.m. was 730,000 shares compared with 524,000 at the same time Monday.

Despite rising prices in industrial and base-metal groups, it was another dull day in trading on the exchange.

Volume reached one of its lowest points for the year with 2,346,000 shares changing hands compared with 2,832,000 Thursday. Brokers say that summer vacations are partly responsible for the low turnover. A few kay base-metal issues highlighted trading.

Denison added 1¼ at 55¼. It reached a 1966 high of 55½ before falling back. Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison stocks, gained 1⅛ to 12¾.

Among other metal issues, Falconbridge climbed 1¾ to 94¼ and Pine Point 1 to 62.

Industrials gained steadily throughout the session.

Golds were the only major group to suffer losses. Campbell Red Lake was off ¾ to 24, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 12⅛ and Kerr-Addison ¼ to 10⅜.

On index, base metals were up .61 to 93.95, western oils .02 to 102.97 and the TSE .41 to 154.33. Golds were down 3.27 to 176.12.

TRENTON — Trenton council last night voted 4 to 2 to raise $41,506 to acquire the old post office building from Crown Assets Corporation.

Voting against spending the money on the former federal building were Councillors Ross Burtt and Edward Todd, who said no one had agreed about a use for the building.

"Is the town going in for speculation?" Councillor Burtt wanted to know.

Councillor Todd said it was easier to get council to spend $50,000 than $10. He said the town could have let the building go to private enterprise and collected taxes on it.

"It's a great big white elephant," said Councillor Burtt. "If it had been any good the government would have kept it."

Councillor D. R. Fraser said he would vote to buy the building in order to give council at least a year in which to make up its mind about a use for the land, and/or the building.

On a polled vote, Councillor Burtt and Councillor Todd still voted "nay," while the remaining four councillors voted "yea."

The town will borrow $13,836 by debenture for the down payment and pay back out of current funds, $5,000 a year for five years at six per cent interest.

Life-Saving Equipment Wanted for Dock Area

TRENTON — The Recreation Committee will be asked to supply life-saving equipment for the government docks south of Bayshore Park and east of Fraser Park.

Councillor Paul Tripp said last night there were no life preservers, ropes or pike poles at either site.

Councillor Tripp asked that Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH, be asked to check water near the government dock at the bridge for pollution. He said children swimming there were "climbing all over moored boats," but that this was secondary to the pollution hazard.

The utility commission will be asked to bury hydro lines in the vicinity of the approaches to the new bridge, rather than putting lines on poles.

Councillor Tripp has asked council to alert police to the fact that youthful motorists are using Dundas Street East as a "drag strip."

Councillor Ross Burtt objected last night to long - time resident Joe Nulty being checked for using his Queen Street home for business purposes. He said it was more a "hobby" than a business for the 80-year-old former photographer. Other persons who infringe on zoning by-laws got away with it, said the councillor. The general government committee will investigate.

Seeking Way to Remedy Sewage Disposal Odor

TRENTON — If Bay Street residents spent today holding their noses, they can at least have the satisfaction of knowing that town council is concerned about the problem and is trying to figure out some way of correcting the situation . . . economically.

At town council meeting last night, Councillor Ross Burtt raised the question of the unpleasant odor coming from the sewage treatment plant and said "it was no joke" for the people living in the vicinity.

"It's the only thing on the east side the west side people haven't fought to get away from us," quipped Councillor Ed Todd.

Town engineer Eric Aldersey said the affluent was dumped from the plant on Tuesdays. He said a man could be hired to draw away the 1,000 gallons of affluent, but that this would cost the town money. Burying the affluent was no good, he said, but would only prolong the agony.

The engineer will investigate way sand means of improving the situation.

Councillor C. V. Graham raised the matter of some very ancient eggs being dumped in the sanitary landfill area last Saturday nd not covered immediately.

Councillors were agreed that the eggs should have been buried at once.

Students Boost Jobless Total

TRENTON — Owing to an influx of students looking for summer employment, unemployment in the Trenton area by the end of June was up from May totals. June 30, 463 males and 385 females were registered for jobs; May 31, the numbers were 388 males and 238 females.

But June this year was better than June, 1965, when 664 males and 566 females were registered.

Students are being placed in food processing plants, agriculture and with the Dept. of National Defence.

Canadian General Electric is continuing to build up its staff gradually, anticipating an upsurge n production by August.

"Crying needs," according to employment office manager J. K. White, are for machine shop workers, waitresses and short order cooks.

Workers Vote Not to Accept Company Offer

TRENTON — The 130 members of local 974 of the Textile Workers' Union of America, at Trent Cottons, voted yesterday not to accept a company contract. The rejection came about mostly because of the failure of the company to meet union demands for increases in women workers' wages. Company unions in Dundas and Hamilton have rejected the contract on the same grounds, a spokesman for the union said.

The present contract has until July 13 to run, and Kenneth Labelle, president of the local, voiced the hope last night that the company and union could come to some agreement before then.

'Right of Entry' Bylaw Turned Down by Council

TRENTON — For the second time in Trenton's more than 100 year history the "right of entry" by-law was raised at council last night.

Arguing against council passing this by-law, Councillor D. R. Fraser said it was odd that no one ever before in the town's history had requested the passing of this legislation, by the terms of which owners, occupants or agents would have the right to enter upon adjoining property for the purpose of affecting repairs or improvements to their own.

"Now," said the councillor, "the same company, the Quinte Realty Company, has brought the subject up two consecutive years. Everyone knows Gerald Weaver is one of the principles of this company. I'm afraid it's become an obsession with him."

Councillor Fraser said such a by-law would remove the last control the individual had over his own property rights.

The councillor charged Quinte Realty with "manufacturing a crisis," in order to force council to pass the by-law. He said it was a case of council ignoring the rights of the 14,500 persons they represent in order to satisfy one man, Mr. Weaver.

Council last year refused to pass the by-law when Mr. Fraser, who was not then a councillor, and Mr. Weaver ere involved in a property dispute.

This year, Quinte Realty "suggested" the bylaw might be passed when it refused entry to the Toronto-Dominion Bank when the bank was engaged in fixing up the former Courier - Advocate building, which is flanked by Weaver property on one side and property on which Quinte Realty has an option on the other.

Councillor Fraser said the bank had coped with the situation without having to enter adjoining property . . and in fact wanted "nothing to do with the controversial bylaw."

Voting for the bylaw last night were Councillors Ross Burtt and Douglas Kinney who "thought it was a good thing."

Voting against it were Councillors Paul Tripp, Edward Todd, C. V. Graham and Fraser.

Councillor Tripp said no one else but Quinte Realty seemed to be having trouble with their neighbors and Councillor Todd said he didn't think there was any need for such a bylaw in town.

Councillor Graham, who indicated last council meeting he would vote for the bylaw said last night he had been "mixed up" and thought it was the Toronto - Dominion Bank which wanted the bylaw passed.

Scrap Dealer Writes Letter To Council

TRENTON — Local scrap dealer Jack Zigman finds himself very much in the same situation as Mohammed . . . in reverse.

Mr. Zigman has a mountain and he doesn't want it.

He told council in a letter last night that he had discovered he'd been given a "useless" mountain when council made him a trade of land in east Trenton near the reservoir, for his Front Street lot, needed by the town for the western approach to the new bridge.

Mr. Zigman suggested council might care to draw away the mountain and use the fill for the new waterfront park.

However, as the moutain is reported to be composed of "pretty heavy gravel", (a diplomatic way of saying flat rock), council thinks it has very little use for it.

Mr. Zigman has been supplied with hydro facilities for his east side lot, but says he understood "water and hydro go together".

However, as the cost of taking water facilities to the remote lot is considered prohibitive by the utility commission, council thinks there's very little hope of getting it there in the near future.

Mr. Zigman's letter was filed.

Seventeen U.S. Boats Pass Through Lock

TRENTON — The July 4th American Independence Day holiday brought out 17 US boats to be locked through at Lock No. one. On the Trent, in all, 215 boats have gone up the Trent since navigation's opening in May. (The count was given erroneously as 175 in yestreday's paper).

Meanwhile, U.S. motorists seem to have figured a way of using their road maps to get to where they're going as only two American motorists sought assistance at the Trenton Chamber of Commerce booth yesterday. The chamber's guest book has been mislaid, or taken as a souvenir by one of the "guests", so an accurate count of inquiries is not available at present.

Building Down

TRENTON — Trenton's building totals for the first six months of the year stand at $474,320 for 90 permits issued from the office of building inspector William Anderson.

During the first six months of 1965, values were $697,477.

Belleville Firm Gets Contract To Build $242,203 School

PICTON (STAFF) — The contract for construction of Athol Township Central School was awarded last week to Hugh Murray Construction Co., of Belleville. This was the only tender received and was for $242,203 well below the preliminary estimates.

The school is scheduled for completion by December 1st. It will contain eight classrooms and an auditorium (general purpose room). Location of the new structure will be on land adjacent to the present school in Cherry Valley. Consulting engineer is H. B. Tryborn. When the new school is in operation six other township schools will be closed.

By-laws were passed recently by County Council to enlarge the township school areas of Ameliasburgh and North Marysburgh.

The Ameliasburgh portion of former Union School Sections No. 1 Murray, which the township shares with Murray Township in the united counties, and No. 5 Ameliasburgh, will now be attached to TSA Ameliasburgh. The township will purchase education from the Murray Township School Area Board for the pupils who go to the Carrying Place school, which is in Murray township, for the second term of the 1966-67 school year.

In the case of North Marysburgh, the township's portion of the former Union School Sections No. 3 Hallowell and No. 10 North Marysburgh will be detached from the Hallowell Township School Area and attached to North Marysburg T.S.A. Both by-laws are subject to final approval by the Ontario Department of Education.

Queen's Regulations Vague About Titles

DEAR DORIS: Re your reply to the lady who wishes to use her husband's military title on wedding invitations, I would say that it depended entirely on whether or not he had retained its use throughout the 20 years since his discharge.

DORIS CLARK

I believe it is customary to drop wartime titles of rank unless, of course, the holder is a 'regular.' Even then, if the holder is still young enough to accept civilian employment for a period far exceeding his length of military service, he reverts to plain 'Mister.'

There must be a great many former officers with proud records who do not use their military titles. It could be construed as 'pulling rank.' — DOUBTFUL.

DEAR DORIS: About the woman placing her husband's rank on her daughter's wedding invitations. (I know, as do you, how important importance is.)

I have checked as high as I can about it, and while I guess there is no harm in it, a man must retire with the rank of general to retain his rank. I know one man, when we all showed respect and he was being passed off as a major, he was not only hurt; he felt foolish being called major when he was a city clerk. — GOOD LUCK.

DEAR DOUBTFUL and GOOD LUCK: Here's what my Favorite Authority on Canadian Armed Services protocol says:

"There is nothing in the Queen's regulations governing this.

"Certain things are definite. A regular army officer who retires retains his rank on the basis that this has been his career. An active officer, one who is presently serving with one of the regiments, is entitled to his rank.

"However, those who retire but who remain on the reserve list of officers, have the option of retaining their rank if they so desire. This is on the basis that they still hold the Queen's commission which is for life.

"They are entitled to wear a mess kit with their last insignia of rank on proper occasions and whether or not they use their rank of office in the form of a title seems to me entirely a personal thing."

So take your pick!

DEAR DORIS: We are two girls in Grade Nine. There is a girl who went to public school with us, and was a pretty good friend of ours. She has always been loud and screechy and one to attract attention. She has been an outcast from her own class, and is seen everywhere with us.

We feel that she is gradually making us unpopular. Something about her, people naturally dislike. We don't want to hurt her feelings because she has no one to turn to after us. But we know that people are beginning to talk about us because of her. What can we do? — TWO GIRLS GROWING UNPOPULAR.

DEAR GIRLS: If the "something people dislike" is the loud noise, could you get your friend to turn down her volume? Some folks screech around simply because they are unsure of themselves. Remember Shakespeare's Hamlet saying "The lady doth protest too much, methinks."? Same thing only different.

WILL GRASS SEED GROW IN JULY?

Dear Susanna: There is a section of land beside our new house that must be planted with grass seed, even though we realize it is far too late in the season.

Some of your readers may be finding themselves in the same predicament, Suzy, and if so, maybe you could pass along to them the advice of an old farmer and seed salesman — me.

Now that July is starting, newly planted grass seed must be kept damp until it germinates. If the seed is allowed to dry out it will wither and die.

The next danger of planting so late in the season is the scorching sun on the new grass shoots.

When they reach a height a half an inch or so, to prevent them being burned up by old sol, cover them with a loose layer of hay until on in August. Then, either rake off the hay or mulch it with the mower and leave it there.

Either way your grass will be strong and green and sturdy — beautiful to behold. — Rand. MacDonald

Any relation to Old You Know Who? — SUSANNA

ONE STEP AHEAD

Dear Susanna: A few months ago I began to investigate the purchase of a clothes dryer — my very first.

Before having the appliance of my choice installed, I had my husband build a raised platform on which to set it.

In this way, the front loading opening comes to about my waist instead of my knees, which means there is no necessity for me to stoop down with armfuls of clothes as I take them from the washer into the dryer.

My neighbors think it is a wonderful idea — and I'm finding it quite a lark — being one step ahead of them, that is.—Winnie.

Home Care of Retarded Child Is Most Important

By HELEN WALLACE
of the London Free Press

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"Why should a child with a crippled head be treated differently than a child with a crippled leg?"

The question is asked by Dr. Benjamin Goldberg, director of the Children's Psychiatric Research Institute in London.

Home care for the retarded child in the early stages is important, Dr. Goldberg says.

"Families have the responsibility for child-rearing. The retarded child is first and foremost a child and should be treated as such."

Today, statistics, case studies and professional opinion indicate a trend to home care for 90 per cent of the retarded population.

Professionals say at least 75 per cent of the mentally retarded are only mildly retarded and generally could be integrated into the regular school system.

An additional 15 per cent—the moderately retarded — would benefit from special community facilities. Institutions are recommended for the remaining 10 per cent.

One of the strongest arguments for home care focuses on the mother. Since the child's future development depends to a great extent on early mother-child relationships, putting the young child in an institution is discouraged.

COMMON QUESTIONS

Some of the most common questions about retardation deal with the home-versus-institution approach. Referring to statistics and case studies, Dr. Goldberg answered them.

Q. Isn't it unfair to have a retarded child in a home with other children? Aren't the normal ones being deprived?

A. The attitude of the family to the child is reflected in the children's attitude themselves. If parents aren't fiercely protective of the child and don't spoil him, then the other children react the same way. I've heard many stories of a brother or sister of a retardate going into a helping profession—nursing, medicine or social work. Studies also indicate that families with a retarded child have a higher energy level and capacity to take stress. People become aware of a purpose in life.

Q. Aren't retarded children happier in institutions where they're with their own kind?

A. If they are happier, then they have no model for normal behavior. You can duplicate this on any social level. If you put all rich kids together, they get a restricted view of life. They have no appreciation of the whole gamut of society.

Q. What if you keep the child at home and the parents die? What happens to the child?

A. In the future we hope to see community residences for the retarded and they could move to one of these. If a child has been at home and has a good foundation, he's usually able to trust other people when it's time to leave his parents.

Q. What about mercy killing for the severely retarded child. Isn't it kinder in the end?

A. What would you use as criteria to determine who would be exterminated? Who is to decide, which characteristics will be bred out of society?

Q. Shouldn't retardates of a marriageable age be sterilized?

A. Most geneticists have agreed that if you have a random selection in society, human nature is more likely to progress in a forward direction. The random approach is as good as any. Normal people have retarded children and it's been proven that retarded couples can have a normal child. Mildly retarded parents are just as capable of caring for a family as intelligent parents.

Both Parties Must Agree To Match

PEKING (Reuters)—"Do you know each other?" asked the registrar at one of Peking's marriage offices.

The couple sitting in front of his desk replied with a firm "Yes."

The question was not as odd as it would seem to most Westerners.

Only since the Communists have been in power during the last 17 years have reforms been introduced to abolish child bethrothals and "feudal" marriages arranged by relatives or professional matchmakers.

For centuries, while these methods were in regular use, boy often did not meet girl until the bethrothal ceremony or marriage.

Now both parties must agree to the match and present themselves to the registrar together.

In he Peking East City district office, the registrar was a neat and youthful - looking woman dressed in the cotton jacket and baggy blue pants worn by almost everyone in Peking.

She asked the couple their ages, whether they knew the stipulations of the marriage law, and whether either of them had previously been married.

The bridegroom had been married before so the registrar questioned him about his divorce and how his children were being cared for.

After each answer, she turned to the bride and asked "Do you know this?"

All this is part of the Communists' drive to protect the rights of women. The marriage law of 1950 guarantees equal rights for both sexes, the protection of interests of women and children, and an end to the concubine system.

The Communists have made considerable efforts to uproot those traditional customs which gave women an inferior place in society, though they admit this has proved difficult in some rural areas.

Chinese couples must report to the district marriage office with a letter from their employers, or local residents' association, certifying that they qualify for marriage and are in good health.

After asking a few questions, the registrar enters their name in a list and presents each of them with an identical certificate, with a red flag printed on it. The certificate simply gives the names of the two people, declares that they are willing to marry each other and that they are married "in accordance with the marriage law, after examination."

GUIDES ATTEND CAMPS

Two district girls, Jillian Roulet, 1 Reynolds Cres., Belleville, and Wendy Crews, Wooler Road, Trenton, will attend Heritage Camps operated by the Provincial Associations of the Girl Guides of Canada this summer.

Miss Roulet will attend the camp in British Columbia and Miss Crews will go to New Brunswick.

The travel expenses of Guides attending these camps will be partially defrayed by a Youth Travel grant from the Canadian Centennial Commission. Each camp will have a special theme, highlighting the heritage of the area in which it is held. Campers will learn local folklore and participate in activities suitable to the site. At each camp, in addition to Guides from the area, visitors from other provinces and from the United States will be present.

Other Belleville Guides plan to attend special camps this summer. Catherine and Elizabeth Ford are going to a music camp at Doe Lake. Judy Settle will attend an international camp at Doe Lake, at which Girl Scouts from the U.S.A., as well as Eskimo girls from the Canadian north will be in attendance. Aline Skurat is going to a hiking camp with other Ontario Guides to explore the Bruce Trail from Wiarton to Lion's Head.

Naturalists Bird-watch On Ottawa

A number of the members of the Quinte Field Naturalists spent the weekend as guests of Mrs. Alma Wallis, formerly of Belleville.

Mrs. Wallis is now living at a lovely spot on the Ottawa River near the Des Joachim power development at Rolphton.

As this is north of Algonquin Park it is the nesting ground of innumerable birds. Chickadees, flickers, red bellied sapsuckers and cedar waxwings were nesting wthin a stone's throw of the house. There were hundreds of white throated sparrows calling their Canada song from the surrounding forest and a lone whipper-will sang at night.

One amusing trip was taken to the township dump where Mrs. Wallis was able to get a picture of a large black bear heading for the dump in search of his supper.

The party were also taken on tours of the Des Joachim power house and the atomic power station where they learned of the newer and better uses being made of uranium.

Fire Season Takes Woman To the Scene

VICTORIA (CP)—Men fighting forest fires don't like having a photographer interrupt them at their work.

But the complaints seem to soften when they discover the dungaree - clad photographer is a woman.

Every fire season, Barbara Davies lugs her camera equipment aboard a helicopter bound for the scene of the latest fire.

She's chief photographer of the British Columbia forest service. And in addition to photographing fires from the air, she often lands in an open spot close to the flames and hikes through the bush with her gear to the fire line.

One advantage in being a woman is that she can use her powers of feminine persuasion to get the pilot to fly just a little closer to the fire. The hazards are greater but so are the pictures.

This year Miss Davies may be going into even more hazardous situations. She will shoot pictures for a full-length film the service is planning.

Miss Davies, whose job includes taking still photos for newspapers and maagzines, learned the basic techniques while serving as a corporal in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force in Britain.

The forest service has a library of 160 films, many shot by her, that are lent to schools, service clubs and other groups.

Total Blind Girl Earns Master'sDegre

WINNIPEG (CP)—Minor inconveniences that have plagued her university career didn't stop Diane Leibel of Regina from earning a master's degree in social work at the University of Manitoba this year.

The 24-year-old student, who has three degrees to her credit despite total blindness, says her studying load was not much different than other students but special problems kept cropping up.

Miss Leibel cites, as an example, the time when a braille translation of a book didn't show up until after the exam had been written.

The other handicap was finding people to translate material on to tape. Other students were glad to help during the year, she says, but were too busy with their own studying to translate at the crucial exam time.

Despite the problems, she predicts that a higher percentage of blind students soon will seek a university education and additional services will be made available for them.

"If you are blind, there are no good opportunities unless you go to university," she says.

Her personal plans include a summer vacation in Regina and then a return to Winnipeg to seek employment this fall.

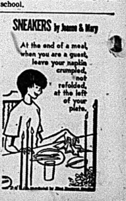
SNEAKERS by Jeanne & Mary



At the end of a meal, when you are a guest, leave your napkin crumpled, not refolded, at the left of your plate.

Ann Landers

This Father's Problem More Than Indigestion

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our children are three and four years old. They are bright and active and, I believe, quite well-behaved for their ages.

ANN LANDERS

My husband wants me to have dinner with him in the dining room every evening, just the two of us. The children, he says, should be fed in the kitchen before he gets home. According to him, a man who works hard all day is entitled to a quiet, relaxing dinner. He says the children are noisy and messy and that they give him indigestion.

I would like to know what you think about this. And please tell me what to do. — PICKET FENCE.

DEAR PICKET: A father who is unable to tolerate the sight and sound of his children at mealtime is an emotional basket case. I fell terribly sorry for him.

Feed the children in the dining room before their father come home. Sit with them so they will not feel completely abandoned during meal time. Urge your husband to see a psychiatrist before he creates such a huge gulf between himself and his children that it can never be bridged.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have read your column for years but this is the first time I have become angry enough to write. My anger is not directed at you, but at some of the so-called intellectual elite of our country — the college crowd who, at the ripe old age of 20, think they know all the answers.

I was especially teed off by the little chick who wrote, "The girl who gives her body gives nothing of significance because it is the gift of the mind that counts." And I liked your answer, advising her not to give her mind away too often because she didn't have much to spare.

Doesn't the nitwit realize that the mind and the body are one? The body is not capable of registering a feeling, or an idea. Every physical impulse must reach us through the mind. The brain decides what we do about our feelings — whether to scream when he turn an ankle, cry when we get slapped, or give in to a smooth talker who wants to drag every girl to bed for the same reason he wants to knock down all the pins in the bowling alley.

The college girl who scoffed at virginity as the most overrated virtue since Queen Vivtoria should be told that the girl who waits until marriage proves that she had enough self-control to wait — and that's worth something these days. — WITHERED OLD LADY OF 27.

DEAR LADY: That chick you referred to certainly produced a heap of mail from angry co-eds. Chickie said a survey in her dorm revealed that 85 per cent of the girls were make-outs and 15 per cent were hold-outs.

"Not so," screamed the letters from many, many campuses. And I am inclined to agree with the protesters.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A family friend is being married next month. Today my husband received an invitation to a bachelor's party. At the bottom of the "invitation" was written this message. "Donation for golf clubs for the groom — $8.00 please."

We have never heard of such a thing and wonder if this is a new trend? — JUST FOLKS.

DEAR FOLKS: The word "donation" suggests that the groom is a charity case. Is he?

It is proper for invited guests to pool resources and buy a gift for a bride or a groom, but to request a "donation" by mail is in abominable taste. I hope your husband sent his regrets.

Sunday School Picnics

ALLIANCE CHURCH

In spite of almost over-powering heat from the cloudless sky, approximately 300 tiny tots, teenagers, adults and parents met on a recent Saturday afternoon at the Alliance Church for their yearly church and Sunday School picnic at Tweed Park.

Promptly on the hour of 2.30 the cohort of cars, led by a jam-packed bus, wended its way to the appointed spot, faces aglow with anticipation. Once there the searing heat was forgotten in the enjoyment of sports, which included swimming, races and a zesty ball game.

Supper was served at 5 o'clock, including tempting sandwiches, delicious home-made cakes of various kinds, and cookies, soft drinks, coffee and an abundance of ice cream.

Following the repast, all enjoyed the accordion music provided by Linda Miller, with the crowd joining in singing favorite gospel choruses. After the sing-song, the pastor, the Rev. C. L. Broadhurst gave a short message along spiritual line.

Climaxing hours filled with happiness ,a peanut scramble, was held, the bus again loaded with the little ones, under the watchful eyes of the pastor, Mr. Broadhurst, the Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Ernie Vardy, assisted by other willing workers, careful that all were safely aboard, feeling that the day had been one to remember, with each one thinking ahead to the Daily Vacation Bible School, not too far in the future.

QUICK SUMMER DISHES

You or your husband can be the canopener in this case. The idea is to have planned for canned goods on the emergency shelf to keep your equilibrium and serenity in the event of unexpected guests arriving at your home in the city or at your summer cottage.

The cans of food are: vegetable soup, salmon, tomatoes, potatoes. These are made into a delicious main course as you will plainly see as you read on.

QUICK AND EASY SALMON LOAF (serves 5 or 6):

NOTE:

This recipe appeared here in 1958 and has been a steadily requested recipe ever since.

Into a bowl tip a one-pound can red salmon, including liquid, bones and skin. With your fingers break the bones to a mush. Add one can undiluted vegetable soup, ½ cup breadcrumbs and 3 eggs. Mix to blend. Turn into well-buttered loaf pan and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until firm — about 45 minutes. Serve with White Sauce — see below.

As soon as the salmon is in the oven prepare —

CASSEROLE OF TOMATOES:

Tip one 20-oz. can tomatoes into a baking dish. Stir in ¼ cup packaged breadcrumbs and 1 onion chopped finely. Sprinkle liberally with salt. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, remove from heat, and stir in 6 tablespoons packaged breadcrumbs. Spread evenly over tomatoes. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons grated cheese, preferably Parmesan, on top. Put in the oven with the salmon loaf and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until bubbly and golden.

As soon as the tomato dish is in the oven, prepare —

OVEN FRIED CANNED POTATOES:

Open a 20-oz. can potatoes, drain well, and cut them into halves or thirds. Melt 2 or 3 tablespoons butter in medium-small shallow baking dish. Add cut potato pieces and turn them over in the butter. Sprinkle moderately with salt and sparingly with pepper. Put them in the oven along with the salmon loaf and tomato dish to heat through and brown. But when salmon and tomato dishes are baked and removed from oven, turn top burner on and turn over potato pieces and brown them a little more under top burner.

TUESDAY Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Chicken Pot Pie with Hot Biscuits; Buttered Spinach; Celery and Carrot Sticks; Maple Walnut Parfait; Icebox Cookies (see Mon.); Coffee.

NOTE:

Do not leave canned potato pieces in oven too long or they harden and dry out.

If desired, to serve over Salmon Loaf, make White Sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons margarine or cooking oil and stir in 2½ tablespoons flour and ¾ teaspoon salt until blended. Stir in 1½ cups milk until thick. Chopped chives or parsley make a good addition to this sauce when it is served over salmon.

Marmora Schools Hold Graduation Exercises

Graduation dinner for grade 8 students of Marmora Public School was held Tuesday evening in St. Andrew's United Church Hall.

Economic Welfare of Nurses Advanced at Convention

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—There is an urgent need to improve the economic welfare of the nurse, Isobel MacLeod, president of the Canadian Nurses' Association, said at the opening of the association's bienniel meeting Monday.

"Nurses feel that they too have a right to better salaries, better hours, better conditions of work," she said.

"But as a profession, we have been inhibited by a guilty feeling that pressing for our rights somehow conflicts with the professional ethic of 'putting the patient first' ".

The Canadian association claims 80,000 members.

Mrs. MacLeod said: "The use of modern bargaining methods is consistent with a healthy self-respect and the dignity of the nursing profession.

ENGAGED EXPERT

Mrs. MacLeod said the national organization recently hired an industrial relations expert and that several of the provincial associations have also done so as collective bargaining had to proceed on the provincial level.

The president also mentioned the necessity of offering both university degrees in nursing and diploma courses that are not "prolonged by service in hospitals in lieu of fees and government grants."

In a later interview she said a statement defining the function and purpose of the nurse is being prepared by the executive committee for release within a few months.

A plan for the streamlining of the organization was to be presented later Monday.

It calls for smaller executive committees to meet frequently with employed experts to formulate and authorize faster policy decisions and will be voted on later in the week.

Cow Can Eat 100 Pounds Grass a Day

OTTAWA (CP)—A cow is a living lawn mower. She can consume 100 pounds of grass a day, without any of the power roar that bothers the neighbors Saturday morning.

Grass is an oh-boy treat for most cows, but each one has other little diet quirks, says a bulletin of the Consumers Association of Canada. A farmer who plays a cow's fodder her way can count on up to 5,000 quarts of milk a year from her.

If you're looking for a gentle milk cow, you'll find two-thirds of Canada's dairy animals in Ontario and Quebec. Of all the milk that all the cows in the country produce, one-third is gulped down straight and the rest goes into all those dairy goodies.

Milk has many dandy ingredients, like riboflavin, protein, thiamine and vitamins A and C, to mention only a few. It gives us 87 per cent water, 3.5 per cent protein, five per cent carbohydrates and 3.5 per cent fat.

BCIVS PROMOTED TO GRADE XII

Students' names are arranged alphabetically within the classifications indicated.

Students whose names appear in the Honors groups have obtained an average of at least 75% on the aggregate and not less than 50% in any subject.

Where a subject is listed in brackets following a student's name it indicates that the student has failed in this subject.

Some students who have failed in not more than two subjects and who have met other requirements have been advised to consider attending summer school in order to improve their standing. A six-weeks summer session, sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education, will be held at Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute, beginning on July 4th. Transportation is provided by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board for students attending this course on the recommendation of their principal.

Students who have failed to obtain clear promotion are invited to discuss their program of studies for next year with the Principal or Director of Guidance as soon as possible or during the last week in August.

The strike action at Labrador City was taken in defiance of the union executive who cautioned the men not to walk out.

OFFICIAL RESIGNS

Tom Burgess, international representative of the Steelworkers local here representing hourly-paid employees, resigned Saturday after the men voted 97-per-cent approval for strike action. However, he remained an officer of the local.

Mr. House said in St. John's Monday the company had followed the requirements of the provincial Labor Relations Act "meticulously" and "there's no question under the act that a strike would be illegal."

SAY MAO LEADS

TOKYO (AP) — China asserted Monday that Mao Tse-tung is giving direct leadership to China's current purge of anti-party and anti-socialist elements, and that the dissidents had rejected his criticism. The first public statement that Mao was personally participating came in Red Flag, the organ of the central committee of the Chinese Communist party.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

There aint no such thing as gratitude, especially among a pair of Mantle monkeys of my acquaintance who are always within shouting distance of the sports emporium — and always shouting.

These news rooms simians staged a two-man raid on this reporter's Taj Mahal yesterday morning, their faces grimacing with unholy glee. One clutched a life-size picture of their hero to his bosom. The other tonsiled a dissertation on the life, career and antics of one Charles Vernon Mantle.

Then both swung into a rack-n-roll chorus;

"Mantle's on the Move,
Our Mickey's in the Groove
Hi-Ho the Derry-Ho, etc.

As I said, there aint no such thing as gratitude.

Why, these miniature King Kongs wouldn't give a confederate four-dollar bill to see the Civil War staged with the original cast.

Or would they?

Their blood is so thick with Yankee corpuscles, they start singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" every time they nick themselves shaving.

As I said there aint no such thing as gratitude.

The earlier head-long dash of the Yankees down the American League slopes to the doorstep of the janitor's quarters had these guys weeping tears of crocodilian proportions.

They had everybody — well almost everybody — feeling sorry for them. Their plight was pitiful. Why they even had that hard-boiled city editor Claude Tice, chief medicine man of the Cleveland Indians, dabbing at his eyes occasionally . . . or was it a misplaced fly?

I may have a strange make-up. I cannot watch human suffering. The picture of these two chimps — whoops — strong young men gradually being reduced to tear-sodden wrecks was more than I could stand.

I decided to do something about it.

The opportunity came when this two-geared brain trust made slighting remarks anent the baseball prowess of one Willie "Say-Hey" Mays, I happen to have the greatest respect for Willie's playing ability — and as a human being.

This, was the by-forked opportunity to not only defend my hero but resurrect this pair from their skidding mental conditions.

I explained in this column why I believed Willie was a better all-round player than Mantle. A lot of the copy was drafted with typewriter-in-cheek but it had the desired effect.

How on earth was I to know that someone would send the Great Mick a copy of the columnar assault? And how was I to know that the great Yankee-outfielder would snap out of a hitting slump, and add another item to his record collection?

As I said there aint no such thing as gratitude.

Do you think those banana-loving bab — Oops — nuts came to me in due appreciation of what I had done for them — and Mantle. They did not.

Two grinning mugs looking like Hallowe'en pumpkin faces poked themselves inside the door this morning. "How do yuh like that" they chortled. "How about that Mickey?"

Not a word about what I did to help bring the Mick out of the hitting doldrums. Only, "Who's the greatest now, wise guy?"

As I said there aint no such thing as gratitude.

Pointers Win It In Seventh

A three-run rally in the bottom of the seventh gave Point Anne Cementmen a 4-3 nod over Belvedere Hotel and kept them alone in first place in the Commercial Softball League last night.

Belvedere jumped ahead 3-0 in the fifth on "Pug" Kellar's three-run double to tie it in the seventh and the winning run came home on Eric Maher's fly ball.

Ron Maracle stretched his personal winning streak and the Cementmen's as well with a seven-hit pitching performance. He struck out four and walked two.

Larry McMaster pitched six-hit ball for Belvedere, fanning three · ıı walking four.

Eric Maher collected two of the Point Anne hits with Jim Horwood, Glen Maracle and Vern Whaler getting the others.

Cliff Hineman had "two up" for the Hotelmen, "Pug" Kellar hit his home run, Jim Muir, George Perry, Al Andrews and Larry McMaster a hit each.

"Dumb Plays", Fined

CLEVELAND (AP) — Smarting under a seven-game losing streak, manager Sam Mele of Minnesota Twins said Monday he is imposing two more fines for "dumb plays."

"That's five fines I've handed out this season, two for breaking rules and three for dumb plays," Mele said.

"I didn't say five different players have been fined. I said five fines. But I won't say who has been fined or for what."

It's possible the fines for five weekend games which Minnesota lost to Baltimore would be slapped on shortstop Zoilo Versalles, last-year's most valuable player in the league.

He struck out during Saturday's doubleheader and watched while the Orioles' catcher chased the ball, instead of darting to first.

In Sunday's game he was picked off second base when he didn't get back in time after a fly ball to centre field.

A's "Catfish" Clips Orioles' String

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Catfish Hunter beat the heat in the seventh inning but Fritz Peterson didn't cool off until the eighth.

Kansas City's Hunter, working with only two days' rest in 95-degree weather at Baltimore Monday, pitched six strong innings as the Athletics snapped the American League - leading Orioles' winning streak at seven with a 9-6 victory.

New York's Peterson, meanwhile, rivalled the 95 - degree temperature at Yankee Stadium by pitching 7 1-3 perfect innings in a 5-2 victory over Chicago White Sox that gained the Yanks a split of their holiday doubleheader.

Hunter, 20 years old and Kansas City's biggest winner with eight victories, yielded four hits and three runs—two of them unearned—before going out for a pinch hitter in the seventh, when Dick Green's three-run homer gave the Athletics their winning margin.

Manager Alvin Dark said he hadn't planned on Hunter going all the way because of the heat and the young right-hander's lack of rest. Hunter beat Detroit Tigers 6-4 in his previous start last Friday.

STYMIES FIRST 22

Peterson, a 24-year-old rookie, retired the first 22 batters he faced before his own error ended the string and John Romano's single broke up the no-hit bid. He finished with a two-hitter and his seventh victory in 13 decisions.

"I started to realize what was happening in the middle of the fifth," Peterson said. "I was going to change my uniform—it was dirty and soaking wet—but I decided not to take any chances."

The young left-hander, a fast worker who has said, "I like to get a game over with so I can find out who won," dispatched the White Sox on 87 pitches. Only 20 were called balls.

The White Sox took the first game 5-0 behind the six-hit pitching of left-hander Gary Peters.

Elsewhere, California Angels whipped Detroit Tigers 11-6, Minnesota Twins edged Cleveland Indians 5-4 and Washington Senators divided a twin bill with Boston Red Sox, winning the first 6-4 and losing the nightcap 1-0.

SENDS HOME FIVE

The Athletics, who have won four of their last five, jumped to a 9-3 lead over the Orioles, Green leading the way with five RBI. He batted twice during a six-run rally in the fifth, driving in the first run with a single and delivering another when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

Russ Snyder homered for the Orioles, who closed the gap with three runs in the ninth.

Peterson threw wildly after fielding Jerry Adair's roller with one out in the eighth and Romano followed with his ground single. Ken Berry then doubled in one run and Lee Elia sent across the other with a sacrifice fly.

Peterson's third-inning single triggered a three-run rally, Lou Clinton singling across a pair, and Jake Gibbs knocked in two more with a single in the fifth as the Yankees rolled up a 5-0 lead in the second game.

HOMERS INSIDE PARK

Don Buford unloaded a two-run inside-the-park homer and J. C. Martin rapped two run-scoring singles, leading Chicago's first-game attack.

The Angels struck for five runs in the eighth inning, Jose Cardenal and Jim Fregosi capping the rally with homers, and handed the Tigers their third consecutive setback. Cardenal hit a three-run homer, Fregosi a two-run shot. Joe Adcock and Jack Warner also homered for California.

Bob Allison pinch hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie, and Dwight Siebler rescued winner Jim Kaat in the ninth as the Twins ended a seven - game losing streak. Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run homer for Minnesota and Fred Whitfield clubbed a three-run homer for the Indians.

The Red Sox nipped Washington in the nightcap as Lee Stange scattered three hits and George Scott stroked a run-scoring single in the first inning. The Senators scored all their runs in the second inning of the opener, eKn McMullen's homer triggering the outburst.

Cheesemen Shade Lightfoots

The tail-end Black Diamond Cheese squad blew a 3-0 first-frame lead but came back to nudge Lightfoot Construction 6-5 in another close Commercial Softball League tilt last night.

Each of the three games played last night was decided by a single run.

Lightfoots picked away with two in the second, one in the fourth and two in the sixth to deadlock it 5-5.

In the bottom of the seventh, two walks sandwiched around Francis' single loaded the bases for the Cheesemen. Lightfoots switched pitchers and after getting one out on a short fly, winning hurler Ken Leveck singled home the game-ending run.

Leveck let the Lightfoots down on five hits, striking out 11 while walking six.

Loser John French gave up six of seven hits, whiffing three and walking four before George Young finished up.

Jack Douglas and Ken Leveck rapped a pair of singles each for the victors. Doug Lucas had a double, Jack Francis and Ross Empey a single each.

Don Smith picked up two Lightfoot singles, Frank "Shiner" Murray, Don Dolan and Rusty Garvin getting the others.

Black Diamond's win pulled the club to within two points of City Hotel and within four of Belvedere and the Lightfoots.

S. Warner Blew Lead, Snatch Win

Stewart Warner blew a 5-1 sixth-inning lead and trailed in overtime before pulling out an eight-inning 8-7 win over City Hotel last night.

The victory kept the Warnermen in the Commercial Softball loop's second spot, two points behind Point Anne.

Doug Ellis on the Stewart Warner mound had a one-hitter going until the seventh when City scored five runs, aided by two walks and as many errors. The home club tied it 6-6 in the bottom of the seventh.

City tallied one in the top of the eighth but again the home club rallied, putting together four singles, by Bertrim, Glancey, Rowbotham and Wanamaker to plate a pair for the win.

Ellis hurled five-hit ball, whiffing eight and walking five, to get the decision.

Dave Feeney allowed 13 hits, struck out three and passed five in defeat.

Doug Ellis also sparked his own attack by slamming two doubles and a single. Lyle Wanamaker, who drove in the winning marker, had a double and single, Chuck Rowbotham and Keith Bertrim a pair of base hits each. Rod Turner added a double, Pat Glancey, Hylie Bryant and Gary Gow a single each.

City Hotel hits, all good for one base, were shared by Billy McGuire, Doug Moreau, Bob Brooks, Tom Coolen and Dave Feeney.

DETROIT (AP)—Soft spoken Mira Slovak figured he let the crowd down Monday while winning the Gold Cup, the world series of powerboat racing.

Slovak, who set a sizzling pace as he won his first three heats in the tragedy-marked weekend, played it safe and drove at a snail's pace in the final event, piling up just enough points to win the cup.

"I knew the fans wanted to see a red-hot finish, but I felt I owed more to my racing team and to the boat owners," said the driver of the victorious Tahoe Miss.

"The cup meant more to me than five fast laps around the Detroit River course," the 37-year-old Czechoslovakian refugee said.

Slovak went into the final heat with 1,200 points as the result of three heat triumphs Sunday and Monday. Dixie Cola, driven by Fred Alter of Detroit, was next with 900 which pretty well left Slovak in the driver's seat.

The Los Angeles driver took the lead at the start of the final heat. He was then content to sit back and let the others battle it out while he settled for fifth place and 127 points which assured him the title with 1,327 points. Runner-up Dixie Cola had 1,200.

Slovak and ill - fated Chuck Thompson, veteran Detroit boat driver, appeared to be headed into a two-man showdown for the Gold Cup title Sunday when Thompson's unlimited hydroplane flew apart during a heat as he and Slovak battled it out.

"Half the fun of winning the cup went out the window when Church was killed," Slovak told his victory news conference. "He was a great asset to racing."

Slovak said the drivers, who had seen death dip into their ranks in their last two races—at Washington, D.C., June 19 and Sunday in the Gold Cup—were not jittery Monday.

"They are all pros," he said. "Naturally Chuck's death was in the back of all our minds, but so far as I know none of us eased up at all, became overcautious or had any other bad reaction to Chuck's death."

"Cats" Drub Madoc 11-1

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

MADOC — If the Temple Bobcats were anxious about the scarcity of runs and hits in their last few B. and D. softball contests, they stopped worrying about their drought here last night.

They swamped Madoc 11-1 behind a 14-hit attack.

The victory put the 'Cats four points ahead of second place Trudeau Motors in the battle for first place. Trudeaus have four games in hand.

The winners started the massacre in the first frame, with two runs and added three in the third, one in the fourth, two in the sixth and three in the ninth.

Rick Locke scored four Bobcat runs, and Terry Lesage notched three, as the top half of the batting order hit the ball hard.

Bobcat lead-off hitter Paul Meraw was two for five with a pair of base hits. Rick Locke slammed a double and two singles in four tries, and Terry Lesage slammed two hits in six trips to the plate. Cleanup hitter Lem Mowat blasted a home run, double and single in five times at bat. Paul Zakos and Jim Whyte lined two singles each.

Madoc got their only run in the fifth on three consecutive Bobcat errors. In all, they managed six hits off Bobcat pitcher Joe Barrons.

Barrons fanned eight and walked one.

Madoc starter Larry Griffin was pounded for eight runs and nine hits in his six-inning stint. Reliever Garry Owens gave up five hits and three runs in the last three frames. They managed three strike outs between them.

Harold Bailey of Madoc slammed a double and single, and Bill Hughes hit two singles, while Brian Gray and Larry Griffin hit singles.

Following the game, Madoc coach Charlie Hamilton allegedly refused to pay the umpires, after he had been ejected earlier from the game.

$100,000 Trot

Armbro Flight Entered

BRAMPTON (CP) — Armbro Flight's name was formally dropped in the entry box Monday night for Saturday night's $100,000 International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway in Westbury, N.Y.

The International is a 1¼-mile event which annually brings together the top trotting horses from six nations.

The four-year-old world record holder for the mile trot owned and bred by Elgin, Ted and Charles Armstrong of Brampton, won the right to represent Canada in this year's International with a convincing 6½-length victory last Friday night in the Canadian championship at Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines.

Her world record of 1:59.1 was set last Sept. 20 on a half-mile track at Delaware, Ohio.

The entry of the mare was made with John Cashman, race secretary at Roosevelt. It cleared up widespread doubts that Armbro Flight would appear.

Only one other Canadian-owned horse, Tie Silk, owned by the Miron Brothers Stable of St. Augustine, Que, has won the International. That was in 1962.

LEG WAS INJURED

"The mare's left foreleg seemed to have been injured three weeks ago following a race in New York," said Dr. Glen Brown, Armstrong farm manager of Armbro Flight. "But it has responded well enough to treatment for successful racing since then and we expect it will be fine by race time Saturday as well."

Rivals in the International include the five-year-old French mare, Roquepine, and last year's International winner, Pluvier III of Sweden.

Noble Victory, owned by a syndicate based in Hanover, Pa., but including M. J. Webster of Brantford, will represent the United States. Also entered are German-owned Pick Wick and another French horse, Ouioco.

82 Athletes Attended Clinic

Says Track, Field Plan Must Continue

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—The director of a 5½-day track and field clinic conducted here last week expects several graduates to compete July 15 and 16 in the British Empire Games trials.

"But I don't really care if they win—at least this year," says Geoff Dyson, director of the Royal Canadian Legion sports training plan. "The plan is to develop a broad base for a national team and this is the first step."

Branches of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada nominated 240 athletes and the field was reduced to 82 before the clinic began.

"Theoretically, these were the best," Dyson said. "They worked hard and learned quickly. These are the people who will help make Canada an international power in track and field."

"When I am back in England, I will be watching with interest."

Dyson resigns his post in January, 1968, to become director of athletic education at Winchester College, 60 miles from London. He came to Canada in 1963 to help initiate a Legion program to develop track and field.

MUST CONTINUE

"After I'm gone," he said in an interview, "the program will continue. It must continue or all the effort expended in five years will have been wasted.

Dyson's portfolio was explicit —"to teach teachers and coach coaches," he said, "but that isn't enough."

"It takes something more to produce champions. It takes more competition on a better level; it takes more interest in areas where interest has been scanty; it takes improved indoor facilities to help overcome your Siberian climate."

Optimism is almost a trademark with Dyson, who ran his 82 charges, aged 15 to 19, through concentrated sessions of practice, physical examinations, lectures and films.

"There may be no limit to the heights Canada can reach in international athletics," he said. "I believe the Second World War has done for Canada what the First World War did for the United States—help provide an affluence and a standard of living that provides more room for frills."

CITES STANDARD

Canada will begin to realize it is making international progress, Dyson said, "when you start to find standouts in Cinderella sports—the hammer, the broad jump, the triple jump."

"Someday, you will even be able to send relay teams to international competitions. By that, I don't mean you'll be able to enter relays, but you'll be able to enter teams in relays. Up to now, except on rare occasions, your teams have been too small, composed mainly of your national stars.

"Fairly soon, I hope, you'll find more people qualifying for finals. Your point totals in international meets probably will climb considerably because the base from which your teams come will be broader."

Dyson is committed to attending a world conference on sport in education at London this month and will miss the Canadian championships, to be staged at the University of Alberta grounds where his clinic was conducted.

"If youngsters do not overwhelm everybody at this meet," he cautioned, "do not be discouraged. It will take time.

"But Canada has time. This is a young country, remember, and your athletic potential is unlimited.

"I have many days I wish I could remain here to help in the development of these youngsters."

Santo Hurt, But Bludgeon Healthy

Four In Six

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A plastic shield covers Ron Santo's left cheek, but National League pitchers could use a cover to shield them from Santo.

The all-star third baseman returned to Chicago's lineup Monday for the first time since June 26 and rapped four hits in six at-bats as the last-place Cubs split a doubleheader with second-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

Santo collected two singles and a homer in the Cubs' 7-5 first-game loss, then came back with a run-scoring single that snapped a tie and sent the Cubs to a 6-4 victory in the second game called because of darkness after 7½ innings.

The hits extended Santo's consecutive game streak to 27, which is the longest in the majors this season and ties the Cub record set by Hack Wilson in 1929.

The 26-year-old slugger accomplished all that in his first appearance since a pitch from New York's Jack Fisher fractured his left cheek bone June 26.

HAD DOCTOR'S OKAY

"The doctor said if I could see I could play," said Santo, whose cheek was protected by a special plastic shield. "My left eye looks pretty bad, but I could see."

Santo proved it in the seventh inning of the nightcap with two Cubs on base, the game tied 4-4 and darkness moving in on light-less Wrigley Field.

"I set myself to hit Don Cardwell's first pitch if it were anywhere near the plate," Santo related. "It was getting dark and I knew in my own mind that the umpires were going to call the game. His first pitch was a fast ball, and I let go at it. It was a great thrill."

The single increased Santo's average to .319, fifth best in the league, and gave him an average of .388 during his streak, which started June 1.

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Francisco Giants 6-2 before losing 3-2, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Cincinnati Reds 2-1, Atlanta Braves edged Houston Astros 3-2 and New York Mets swept Philadelphia Phillies 9-6 and 8-1.

The Pirates won the opener, despite Santo's two singles and a homer, on the three-run homer of Willie Stargell and the two-run blast of Gene Alley.

Santo was hitless in the nightcap until his seventh-inning single. Glen Beckert, who led off the inning with a double, scored the tie-breaking run. Donn Clendenon hit two homers for the Pirates earlier.

Home runs by Phil Gallano, Lou Brock and Mike Shannon sent San Francisco's Juan Marichal to his fourth defeat against 13 victories. Curt Flood added a two-run single for the Cardinals, who defeated Marichal for the second time in six days.

The Giants came back in the nightcap as Gaylord Perry scattered seven hits for his 12th victory against one defeat. Shannon recorded only the second homer off Perry this season, but Perry helped his own cause by lashing two singles, scoring one run and driving in another.

Los Angeles' Don Sutton pitched a five-hitter and won his first game since June 2. The Dodgers snapped a tie and sent the Reds to their sixth straight defeat when Ron Fairly doubled in the sixth and scored as John Roseboro singled.

Joe Torre tripled and scored on Frank Bolling's ground-out in the seventh inning, breaking Atlata's 2-2 tie with Houston. Torre also doubled across a run in the first inning in helping Ken Johnson with a four-hitter.

Ron Swoboda smashed a homer and a triple, driving in five runs in New York's first-game triumph which halted Philadelphia's six-game winning streak. Bob Shaw didn't finish but still gained his fifth victory in six decisions with the Mets.

Al Luplow propelled the Mets in the second game with a three-run homer in the second inning. Swoboda added a run-scoring single. Jack Fisher blanked the Phillies until the eighth when Bill White singled in a run.

British Open

130 Tee Off Tomorrow!

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP)—A field of 130 golfers went through their final day of practice today preparing for the British open golf championship.

The 72-hole test over Muirfield's 6,887-yard, par-71 course gets under way Wednesday and the top professionals and amateurs are trying to get the feel of the fairways.

Among those who toured the course Monday were Doug Sanders, Julius Boros, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

Sanders was somewhat surprised at the wild rough which crowds the fairways here.

"Just let me have the lost ball and hay concession and I'll be the leading money winner," he cracked.

Boros, nursing an injured elbow, hesitated to challenge the roughs.

"I got into the rough but hit another ball each time rather than play out of it," Boros explained.

Nicklaus and Player spent Monday in 18 holes of match play against two teen-agers, British Amateur champ Bobby Cole of South Africa and Pete Townsend of Britain.

The pros won 2 and 1 but were impressed by the youngsters.

Midgets Nip Frankford 6-4, Peewees Tie

Belleville nipped Frankford 6-4 in an EOBA Midget contest at the fairgrounds last night. The winners scored four runs in the sixth inning of the seven inning game to pull out the decision. In another game, Belleville Holy Rosary peewees tied with Cobourg 3-3.

Wayne McTaggart, with relief from Ted Shaw in the fourth, was the Belleville midgets starter. They gave up five hits, walked six and struck out 15.

McCauley of Frankford was the losing pitcher. He was tagged with seven hits while walking five and fanning two.

Clifford Scott banged a double and single, and Wayne McTaggart stroked to base hits to lead Belleville. Ted Shaw, Dale Duvall and Rod Ridley singled.

Cook, Danton, McCauley and Adams hit for Frankford.

In the peewee tilt, Cobourg rallied for a last inning run to gain the tie.

John Mulvihill went all the way on the Belleville mound. He struck out 9, walked four and gave up four hits.

Cobourg's Livingstone whiffed ten, walked five and gave up only three hits.

Danny Lupinette tripled and singled for Belleville. Rick Meagher had a base hit.

Planes Halt Acme Rally To Win 9-5

Cannifton Plane's built an early lead and cut short a Belleville rally in the ninth to clip the Acme Electric crew 9-5 in a South Hastings Baseball game at the Fairgrounds.

Belleville, trailing 9-1 scored four in the ninth - too late and too little.

Butch Clapp pitched the win, tagged for 11 hits, fanning 11 and handing out three free passes.

Keith Dickey started for Belleville, followed to the hill by Stratton and Campbell. They also gave up 11 hits, whiffed five and walked four.

Ron Urch led the Cannifton hit parade with a double and a brace of singles. Larry Adams contributed a triple and single and Don Forsythe a double. Singles by Eric Emerson, Hugh Petrie, Phillips, Butch Clapp and John Tweedy rounded out the hit total.

Jack O'Neil's triple was Belleville's only extra-base blow. Glenn Reynolds and Ron Davis and two singles each, Claude Carr, Keith Dickey, Roly Belanger, Terry Casselman, Howard Skelly and Gord Campbell splitting the others.

The same two clubs meet again here Friday, at the Fairgrounds, at 8.30.

The Chiefs went down 6-0 and 3-2 to Buffalo Bisons while all other clubs split. Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Rochester Red Wings 6-5 in the first but lost the second 3-2 in eight innings, Richmond Braves trounced Jacksonville Suns 12-2 then lost the nightcap 4-1 and Columbus Jets shutout Toledo Mud Hens 4-0 but dropped the second game 12-8.

The games did not alter the standings as the Jets remained 3½ games ahead of Rochester with Jacksonville and Toronto tied for third five games off the pace.

Shipp Will Play, If He's Needed

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Billy Shipp, 36-year-old tackle with Toronto Argonauts, wants to retire but said Monday he will play in the Eastern Football Conference this season if his team needs him.

"They've lost quite a few guys," said Shipp. "I told them I want to retire but I don't want to leave them in a bind. . . . Argos have been good to me and I'll help them if I can. But I would like to retire. You just reach a point where you get tired. And it would be better for my family. We never get much chance to do anything together."

Shipp, a native of Mobile, Ala., became a Canadian citizen in 1963 and is employed by a distillery. He lives in Toronto.

Doctors To Hold Dope Tests

LONDON (AP)—A panel of 25 British doctors are standing by to carry out dope tests on soccer players in the World Cup tournament.

The doctors have told the World Soccer Federation they can detect stimulants in a player's bloodsteam up to 48 hours after they are taken.

A committee of the federation meets today to consider the doctors' report and decide whether to act on it. The World Cup tournament starts next Monday.

There could be snags. A source close to the federation said officials are reluctant to take steps that could be carried on into international games, and even league games within countries, after the World Cup competition is over.

Dope-testing has never been a feature of soccer anywhere. Some of the countries competing for the World Cup, particularly Italy and Argentina, are reported strongly opposed to starting it.

Edward G. Robinson Recovers From Car Mishap

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Edward G Robinson set aside the sketch he was making of the verdant grounds of his Beverly Hills home. He commented to a visitor:

"I'm a lucky s.o.b."

Though tough as steel in his film roles, Robinson is in reality a gentle, art-loving man who is not given to strong statement. But his comment about his luck seemed apt. Four weeks ago he suffered facial, chest and abdominal injuries in a car mishap. A man of 72 years with a history of heart trouble, he seemed in grave danger.

But today he is recovering nicely and says he'll return to acting in three or four weeks.

The accident happened June 8 as Robinson was driving home from an art exhibit.

"After looking at the paintings, I felt a little drowsy," he recalled. "I decided I would drive on home and take a nap. On the way, I felt as though I wanted to stop and have a little sleep. I almost did, but I decided I would continue.

"That was my mistake. Mark my words: If you ever feel sleepy while driving, pull over to the side of the road and sleep!"

NEARLY HOME

Two blocks from his house, Robinson dozed at the wheel. His car jumped the curb and came to a jolting halt in a front yard. His chin and scalp were severely cut and he had internal injuries.

Robinson's recovery was amazingly fast. He left the hospital two weeks later. He continues his recuperation at home, sketching a bit and answering the thousands of get-well messages.

Among them was a note from Frank Sinatra, who sent a skate-board. The message: "Gangster: Use this instead of your car. Or if you don't want to, I'll have one of my gang drive you."

Robinson was philosophical about the entire incident.

"Yes, it was rough; the loss of your health is the worst thing that can happen to you," he said. "But you know, it might make me a better actor. . . . Any anguish or travail that you go through adds to your understanding of the human character I may have found out something I can use in future roles."

VISITED BIRTHPLACE

Robinson had recently returned from Europe, where he filmed The Biggest Bundle Of Them All. After completing the MGM film in Rome, he visited Bucharest, Romania, where he was born.

"I wanted to see my parents' home and my school," he said. "I don't think I located the house, but I believe I found the school, which is now used for girls. The names are gone from the schools; they now have numbers, as you might expect from a Communist regime. But I found the people friendly, the country beautiful and the food marvellous."

Regally Sexy Greer Garson In First Movie in 5 Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The blue eyes are amiling, the red hair piled high and handsome. Greer Garson, still regally sexy, is starring in her first movie in five years.

Where has she been?

"I've been kind of busy—my life has broadened out," said the onetime MGM star who now rides the New Mexico range in summer and serves on the Dallas Symphony board in winter.

"I'm happy to say there's been a steady stream of scripts my way, but you should see them. Everything is downbeat."

Impeccably costumed as a wealthy society woman, Greer sat in an apartment-size dressing room at the Disney studio.

"In one script I would have been an impoverished, worldly Italian lady whose son is a wastrel and whose daughter is about to become a nymphomaniac. In another, a homicidal children's nurse. And in another, a solitary recluse who has murdered a series of companions.

"Several producers said it would be a great thing professionally for me to make such a surprising switch. I don't think everything should be lollipops and roses—life isn't. It's interesting to do a life that has gone wrong and try to understand why, but these were characters with just shock value."

PLAYS LIFE

The screen's Oscar - winning Mrs. Miniver — nominated six other times for the Academy Award — is back to play Fred MacMurray's understanding wife in The Happiest Millionaire. MacMurray portrays Philadelphia's late Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, who collects alligators and stages boxing matches in his stables.

Except for minor appearances in Pepe and The Singing Nun, this is Miss Garson's first film since Sunrise at Campobello.

In 1949 the London-reared actress was married to wealthy businessman E. E. (Buddy) Fogelson. In summer they live on their Forked Lighting Ranch, in Indian Pueblo country 40 miles southeast of Santa Fe, and raise huge Santa Gertrudis cattle. Greer said she helps ride fence in blue jeans, boots and western saddle. "I live that real way-out country life."

The Fogelsons also have a home in Dallas where she leads "the life of a proper citizen."

Miss Garson said she'd like to do more movies. Just so long as they're not downbeat.

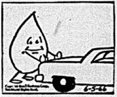
Your Car



Car Needs Adequate Liquid Diet

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Gas can satisfy your engine's vitamin "go" requirements, but it takes a well-balanced diet to keep the car healthy. Adequate liquids are especially important. Fortunately when one is lacking, the symptoms which develop help in diagnosing the exact deficiency. And the treatment is usually as simple as the prevention.

Valve or bearing noise, feverhigh temperatures and low oil pressure will tell you when the engine is running without enough oil.

If auto transmission fluid is low, warning signs can be many — slippage, rough shifts, heavy gas appetite and pepless performance are the common ailments.

Brake ills can be a bit trickier. They creep up gradually as fluid becomes low and may reach the danger point before you fully realize the brakes are in bad shape.

Even a low gas tank level hurts car health. It promotes condensation, which means that more water gets into the fuel line. Hard starts, stalling, missing — and, in winter, gas line freezeup — can result.

E. R. asks: "My left front tire has a slow leak and loses about five pounds a week. My father insists this handicaps steering. Does it?"

He's right. The softer tire creates more rolling resistance and in forward motion, the car tends to bear or steer toward this side.

C. Q. writes: "On the average car, is shock absorber life generally equal at all four wheels?"

Since the front pair bear the greater burden, they're usually first to fail.

From T. T.: "What can be done about vacuum-powered windshield wipers which have gradually slowed down and move too sluggishly for heavy rain?"

Very often this is due to a clogged, collapsed or cracked hose through which vacuum power is fed from the booster pump or manifold.

L. H. asks: "If all four wheel brakes drag — as mnie seem to be doig — would this show that there is something wrong with the pedal action?"

Probably. And the probabilities are: no pedal free-play, a binding pedal shaft, a faulty pedal return spring.

Given Five Days' Sentence For Theft

NAPANEE — Farmers in the second concession of Richmond complained to the OPP in Napanee that gasoline was being stolen from their vehicles. The police arrested Joseph Rheal Lalonde, 23, of Greenfield, and his passenger, Joseph Bellefville, 28, of Alexandria.

Both appeared before Magistrate R. C. Jackson who gave them identical sentences, five days in jail for theft of gasoline, and five days for attempted theft, the sentences to run consecutively. Both pleaded guilty to the charges.

In addition, because he was driving while his licence was under suspension, Lalonde must pay a fine of $100 plus costs of the court, and his car was impounded for three months.

Constables Ed Ford and Gordon Clarke investigated.

Afternoon Unit UCW Sponsor Rose Tea

DESERONTO — The rose tea held in the garden of Mrs. James A. Dawson of Fourth Street last week, was enjoyed by the good crowd which attended. The event was sponsored by the afternoon unit of the Deseronto U.C.W.

The garden itself was lovely, and gay garden umbrellas added to the party atmosphere. The quartet tables which were most popular, were in the shade of a huge willow. Each table had at its centre a bowl containing a single choice rose from the garden of Mrs. K. Pettis. Convener Mrs. Rockwell Hawley, was assisted by Mrs. George Cole, Mrs. William Stewart, and Mrs. George Stuart.

Mrs. Douglas Cole was responsible for making the many cups of tea, and Mrs. William Hamilton, Mrs. D. L. Allport, and Mrs. H. L. Travers arranged the plates of delicious food.

The table of baked goods was well supplied and well patronized. It was in charge of Mrs. Ethel Vandewater, Mrs. Herb Aylsworth, Mrs. William Sills, and Mrs. Norman Davis.

Tenders Will Be Called for H. S. Addition

NAPANEE — Tenders for the addition to the Napanee District Secondary School will be opened at a special meeting of the board July 14. The meeting will be attended by the architect, H. H. Roberts, and a representative of the Department of Public Works of the federal government in addition to all board members.

Final permission from the federal government was forwarded to Napanee last week by the Department of Education in Toronto.

There is need for haste in the building program. When school closed, the N.D.S.S. had pproximtely 1150 pupils. There is a normal annual increase in the neighborhood of 100, and this year there will be 88 more from Tamworth, and about 30 from Amherst Island, where the continuation schools have been closed. Final approvel for Sheffield to join the Napanee District School Area was given by the County council at the June session.

Arrangements are now in progress to have space in the present building converted so that four temporary classrooms will be ready for September. The old cafeteria is being divided to provide two classrooms, and two storage rooms have been cleared out and will be made ready for classes. Carpenters are now at work making these changes.

The Board has acquired the former Gibbard Ball Park, and has been worried for fear children might be injured climbing around the bleachers, which had fallen into disrepair. This structure has been torn down. The ground will be cleared off and levelled, and portable bleachers will be purchased to be used in sports events. These will be stored in the school when not in use.

Firefighters' Assoc. Sponsors Teen Dance

NAPANEE — The only event in Napanee marking Dominion Day was a dance for 'teenagers organized by the Napanee Firefighters' Association held in the armory that evening. Although the dance was not advertised, at least 150 young people, and enough older folk to see what was going on, had a right good time, dancing to the music of the Tarantulas of Deseronto.

Reg. Vick, the vice-president of the Association, says that all the members are more than pleased with the number who attended and with their good behavior. Napanee was well represented, but the news had spread and there were young folk from Deseronto and from other smaller nearby communities. As many of the Firefighters as possible were on hand.

The Firefighters' Association has secured the use of the armory for each Friday evening through the summer months, and they hope to hold a dance each time.

Officers of the Association this year are: Harold Martin, president; Reg. Vick, vice-president; George Hawley, secretary; and Alfred King, treasurer.

The Trots

The longshot, Flying Kathryn returned $26.50 and combined with Mr. Galophone for a $74.40 exactor.

The daily double of Avalon Jo Jo and Raw Yankee paid $33.70.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—It was an evening of surprises for most of the 2,765 trotting fans Monday as no less than nine longshots recorded double-figure payoffs for their performances at Western Fair Raceway.

Payoffs ranged from $64.80 for Miss Reta's win in the fifth race to $10.40 for the place showing of Sally Grattan, also in the fifth.

In the fourth, Oakie Bars went off at 30-1 and finished second to complete a $186 exactor with winner Alex Hardy. Oakie Bars paid $21.80.

Jeffry Volo in the second paid $19.20 for its win and was also the back end of a $75.50 daily double with Miss Easter Van Who, winner in the first.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Barra Billy, leased by John R. Reid of Ailsa Craig, Ont., Monday won his third start at Buffalo Raceway, paying $8, $3.40 and $2.80 in the Independence Day featured eighth race.

Del Manges, top dash winner for the third straight season, brought the five-year-old, which has been first or second in his last four starts, to a 1½-length win from a third-place position in the stretch.

Ron Turcotte got his 35th victory earlier when he drove Movie Land to first place. Turcotte is four victories behind Manges but tops the percentage roster with a .377 average.

MONTREAL (CP) — Murray Mir, a bay colt guided by Marcel Dostie, set a Canadian record when he won the second division of the Dufferin Stakes for two-year-old trotters with a time of 2:08 at Richelieu Park Monday night.

Murray Mir, owned by Adrien and Gerard Miron of St. Augustin, Que., broke the Canadian record of 2:08 1-5 set by Proud Vic Sept. 6, 1965, at Richelieu. Proud Vic was also owned by the Miron brothers.

Murray Mir also set a track record for two-year-olds. The colt started from the coveted rail position in the eighth race and stayed on top most of the way to finish four lengths in front of Drummond R.C. Rocket Mir, another Miron-owned horse, finished third.

Jackpot Lobell, a bay colt steered by Duncan MacTavish, took the first half of the stakes in the sixth race with a time of 2:15 3-5.

The trot attracted a total of 18 starters and had to be raced off in two divisions. Each race carried a purse of $7,130.

Murray Mir's victory was worth $3,567 and brought the colt's winnings to $9,155 for the 1966 season.

Sports Briefs

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros are the second major league baseball team to surge past the 1,000,000 attendance mark this season. Attendance for 45 home games through Monday was 1,032,381. There are 36 home games remaining. The Astros drew 1,228,698 fans last season. Los Angeles Dodgers topped the 1,000,000 mark earlier this season.

NEW YORK (AP)—Pickwick of West Germany and Carmelo of Italy, the last of six European trotters entered in Saturday's $100,000 International Trot arrived from Rome by plane Monday. The horses will go to Roosevelt Raceway later this weak. Armbro Flight, the Canadian champion, also is entered in the race.

RICHLANDS, Va. (AP) — Famed drag strip driver Doug Rose underwent amputation of both legs to the knees Monday after his jet powered Green Monster smashed into a guard rail at Cedar Hill Raceway. His car smashed into the rail 50 yards from the finish. Hospital officials said his condition was good.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Brazil's World Cup Soccer team defeated Stockholm Aik 4-2 in an exhibition game Monday night.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Giddings, owned by Sol Wagman of Toronto, won the featured $3,200 sixth race at Woodbine Monday, running the 1 1-16 mile in 1:44 1-5.

Ridden by Avelino Gomez, who also scored in the day's first race with Pointe Noire, Dr. Giddings staged a head-to-head duel with Windkin in the stretch and finally won by a nose.

Dr. Giddings paid $2.70, $2.50 and $2.40. He combined with Windkin for an $11.80 exactor.

The daily double of Pointe Noire and Ecoliere in the second returned $11. A crowd of 7,848 waged $526,519.

BOSTON (AP)—Mrr. Clyde Loclear's Happy Voter and Camalin stable's Taunton finished a head apart in the $10,000-added Mayflower Stakes at Suffolk Downs Monday in a race that ended up with an unscheduled added starter.

Colin Campbell's Curzon was third, five lengths away in the six-furlong race was completed in 1:12.

Just as the horses were reaching the finish line, a stranger angled across the track from the paddock lane.

Happy Voter hit the newcomer and spun him sideways between himself and Taunton.

Misak's Gal, the trailer, had to be pulled to one side by Tommy Sisum, but the horse could not avoid the trespasser and again he was spun around.

He still remained on his feet, throwing some newspaper in the air. Police said he identified himself as Theodore Luppino of Boston.

Frank Iannelli, who rode Happy Voter, said: "I thought it was the patrol judge who fell out of his stand."

Happy Voter paid $12.40, $5.00 and $2.80.

BAN WON'T BE USED

NORWICH, England (AP)—There's a penalty of £5 if you are caught napping in the Norwich public library. "We really don't object to it but that's not what a reading room is for," said a librarian. But he added: "Anyone caught after the bylaw is passed will probably be shaken, warned and let off."

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Recently the Point Anne United Church Women held a going-away party at the church for the Rev. Gerard and his wife and family. The party was attended by members of the congregation and their families.

Chairman for the evening was Lawrence Horwood. A gift of sterling cuff links and tie clip was presented to Mr. Gerard by Mrs. Lawrence Horwood. Mrs. Edward Weatherdon gave Mrs. Gerard a cup and saucer and Mrs. Charles Sedore gave the children gifts from the congregation. Mr. and Mrs. Gerard are moving to Hartford, Connecticut, where he will be on staff of Hartford University and he will also study for his doctorate.

Mrs. Morley Akey is in hospital.

Mrs. Harvey Scott recently underwent surgery in Belleville General Hospital.

The members of the senior classes of the public school enjoyed a trip by bus to Ottawa. They were met at the Capital by Mr. Lee Grills, the local Member of Parliament. He pointed out different points of interest, and a guide took them on the tour to the towers. They also visited the headquarters of the Mounted Police and saw the stables and horses. After lunch in a park the students saw the museum, the Mint, and the war museum. They even had time to do some shopping at a new plaza before boarding the bus for the return trip.

Dale Akey was injured on Saturday when he accidently jabbed a spear in his foot. He was given first aid by Canada Cement employees and removed by ambulance to hospital where the spear had to be removed surgically. He was admitted to hospital and was discharged the following day.

Members of the congregation of St. John's held their picnic at Crystal Beach at Madoc on Sunday afternoon. The breeze from the lake made the day quite pleasant despite the soaring temperatures. The children were issued tickets and enjoyed themselves immensely in the water. Everyone had a picnic supper.

Mr. and Mrs. James Horwood and children spent the weekend camping at Crystal Beach.

Perry Ellis has taken a position in Peterborough with the General Electric Company.

SEEK TAXLESS GARBAGE

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — An attempt has been made by the First Baptist Church supported by 19 other Welland congregations to have the local garbage tax repealed in the case of churches and synagogues. A letter from the church's lawyer said "we feel the removal of the garbage tax would be one way of ensuring a very small donation from each and every homeowner in (the) city towards the support of our churches."

THEY WATCH, WAIT, WORK FOR DAY OF REVENGE — The day of revenge against Israel is the obsession of the 300,000 Arab refugees crowded into the Gaza Strip and 1,000,000 fellow exiles in other Arab countries. About one-third find work, like the Arabs (right) making bricks at a Canadian base. The others sit in idleness dependent on United Nations relief. (CP Photo)

Foes in Land of Philistines Prepare to Smite Israelites

Following a biblical example, thousands of Arab refugees in the Gaza Strip prepare hopefully for the day when they will mount an attack on neighboring Israel. Conditions in the strip are explored by a Canadian Press reporter.

By CARL MOLLINS

GAZA (CP) — In Gaza Town, they point out an unkempt garden square near the railway station and say it is the place the captive Samson slew thousands of his enemies in a final fury of vengeance.

It was here on the southeastern shore of the Mediterranean that the biblical strong man of Dan — betrayed, blinded and rendered impotent in defeat—let time restore his strength and feed his anger until he was ready to smite the Philistines.

Three thousand years later, new exiles from the fertile land of Samson, blinded by obsessive memories of defeat and a goading sense of injustice, build their strength in Gaza and nourish a passion for revenge against the Israelites.

For the time being, the 300,000 Palestine refugees cramming the Gaza Strip only talk and train for the moment when they and 1,000,000 fellow exiles tensing against other frontiers of Israel would burst in upon the enemy.

Stripped to basics, the situation is only slightly changed from the direct and violent way men settled disputes in Samson's day.

Now, a longer time is needed to acquire more elaborate weapons and learn how to use them.

The Palestinians have the time, though 17 years have passed since the Arab-Israeli war. They are getting the weapons, from fellow Arabs, Russians and Chinese. With employment available for only about one-third the population, most have little else to do in this imprisoning enclave but train to use the arms.

Three millennia have produced one other refinement: The world has intervened to help the refugees survive and, hopefully, to keep the warriors apart.

The Gaza Strip is thus awash with initials along the 28 miles of its length and across the three to seven miles of its breadth—UNRWA and UNEF; UNMOs, UNMACS and UNTSO; ADL and IF, UAR and PLA.

The United Nations Relief and Works Agency provides subsistence help for four-fifths of the refugees who qualify by earning less than $35 a month: a meagre 1,500 calories a day of meatless, fruitless rations; a mud-brick shelter in one of eight refugee villages; rudimentary medical care and schooling for all.

BORDER VIOLATED

The six-nation UN Emergency Force has reinforced the UN Truce Supervisory Organization in Gaza since the 1956 Suez battle. Indian, Yugoslav, Scandinavian and Brazilian infantry and light armor, maintained logistically by 800 Canadians, police the Arab side of the Armistice Demarcation Line in Gaza and the International Frontier between Israel and Egypt in the Sinai Desert.

UN Military Observers such as Maj. Bernard Dorion of Vancouver—one of 20 Canadian UNMOs stationed around the Israeli borders—are kept busy enough collating UNEF reports of truce violations. Israeli patrols probe across the ADL on average once a month and violate Gaza airspace daily. Patrols of the Palestine Liberation Army have been entering the 500-metre buffer zone on their own side of the ADL an average six times a month.

The UN Mixed Armistice Commission for Gaza, however, is moribund. The United Arab Republic members periodically demand a meeting about an Israeli violation, the UNMO dutifully sets up a tent on the ADL, but the Israeli UNMAC members regularly fail to appear.

Behind the activity generated by international initials, living conditions in Gaza have been improving while the military situation grows more menacing.

SITUATION IMPROVED

Maj.-Gen. Indarjit Rikhye, Indian commander of UNEF since February, finds "a greatly improved situation" from six years ago, when he completed a two-year Gaza assignment as UNEF chief of staff.

"The first important change I noticed is that the strip has become green," he said in an interview. "The second is that the Egyptian administration has brought a greater sense of order and security.

"When I first came to Gaza, there was little vegetation apart from a few orange groves in the north. The rest was desert. Now irrigation means most of the strip is under cultivation—we have even waived an agreement that cultivation should cease 50 metres this side of the Armistice Demarcation Line.

"The immediate and important effect is that farming is providing more work. Before, refugees used to stand near the ADL and look to the green fields on the other side. Now they are working along the line."

Rikhye said the Egyptian administration that took over in Gaza after the 1956 Israeli invasion of the strip has vastly improved conditions through development of housing, roads and wells. More educated refugees are permitted to leave the strip for teaching or technical jobs in other Arab countries.

NO SOLUTION LIKELY

But the general said United Nations vigilance is as important as ever.

"No basis for a political solution is emerging and both sides maintain a military posture," he said.

Despite improvements, the bulk of the Gaza refugees still live at subsistence level and hold steadfastly to violent dreams of a return to Palestine.

A Palestinian father of seven children, relatively prosperous as a civilian UNEF employee earning about $60 a month, explains without rancor why he believes the refugees will fight one day.

"I am well off compared to most of my friends. But for 15 years we have had no meat or fresh vegetables in our meals.

"As a refugee, I cannot own land to farm. I cannot own goats or chickens because there is no grazing land open and the only grain available is anything you might be able to glean after a harvest.

"If I lose this job with UNEF, what would I do to keep my family?

"I am a peaceful man. But someday it will come—we will fight to get our land back over there."

Tomorrow: The Palestine Liberation Organization.

Leiterman Stops Seven Days Fall Production After CBC Makes Five Decisions

TORONTO (CP)—A series of decisions by the CBC involving its dispute-ridden Toronto operations was followed today by an announcement from Douglas Leiterman, executive producer of the controversial This Hour Has Seven Days, that he is suspending the production of Seven Days' fall programming immediately.

Mr. Leiterman also said in a statement that he understands the producers of three other public affairs programs are considering similar action.

He said the Seven Days action was forced by "the total repudiation of our position" by the CBC management, which Tuesday announced five decisions after a directors' meeting. One was an offer to Mr. Leiterman to produce Seven Days again next season.

Mr. Leiterman said similar action to his own is being considered, by the producers of Document, Quarterly Report and Compass.

Patrick Watson, whose removal as a host of Seven Days has been ordered by CBC management, is producer of Document, which has been run in conjunction with the Seven Days series on some Sunday nights. He has also been offered the producer job of Quarterly Report instead of his host position.

Compass, a Sunday night summer replacement for Seven Days, is produced by Jim Carney, one of the producers operating under Mr. Leiterman on Seven Days.

Mr. Leiterman indicated his decision to cease filming, taping and program planning for Seven Days was caused — at least in part—by the reported transfer of H. G. (Bud) Walker, vice-president and general manager at Ottawa for English networks, to become senior official in Toronto.

He said he has advised Reeves Haggan, general supervisor of public affairs, that "I cannot accept instructions from H. G. Walker which violate the terms of my contract."

MORE

Mr. Leiterman added he would continue to accept instructions of supervisors of public affairs. He was to confer with Mr. Haggan today.

Among decisions announced by President Ouimet at Ottawa was the installation of senior vice-presidents at the Toronto and Montreal productions centres, though appointees were not named in the announcemet.

Today Mr. Ouimet said in a statement that rumors that Mr. Walker has been appointed to the Toronto vice-presidential position are "false." He said there has been no time to consider who will be appointed to either job.

However, Mr. Leiterman said in his statement that Mr. Walker "announced" that he would be moved here Oct. 1 "to take,

Say Non-ops Reject Big Wage Hike

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says 73,000 non-operating railway employees will set the stage for a strike and inevitable government intervention by refusing to accept a wage increase recommended by the chairman of two conciliation boards.

The newspaper says Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe has recommended a wage increase of 18 per cent over a two-year period for members of 14 international unions.

The reports have been handed to the federal labor department and will be presented to the railways and unions today, the story says.

It says the unions now are preparing strike ballots for distribution to members but a strike deadline is unlikely before the first two weeks of August.

Two groups of international unions are involved in the dispute: One comprises seven shopcraft unions, the other six unions including trainmen, sectionmen and signalmen and a separate group representing communications.

FORM BOTH BOARDS

The boards that dealt with both groups were made up of Mr. Justice Munroe, union nominee Harry Crowe and railway nominee Gordon Cooper, a Halifax lawyer.

The Globe and Mail says Mr. Crowe proposed a wage increase of 23 per cent, plus 17 per cent for skilled workers in the shopcraft group and 25 per cent, plus 35 per cent for skilled workers, in the other union group.

The story says Mr. Cooper recommended a system of increases that would amount to a raise of 28 cents an hour.

The newspaper says the unions are determined to hold out for Mr. Crowe's recommendations, thus setting the stage for a strike and inevitable government intervention. It says Mr. Crowe's proposals would mean raises of from 53 to 96 cents an hour.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Union (CLC) last month took a strike vote among its 21,000 members employed by the CNR.

The CBRT's dispute with the railway has heard by a conciliation board headed by C. A. Cameron, whose report has not yet been submitted.

Pension Increase Promised

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—A promise by Health Minister MacEachen that a government statement on old-age pensions will be coming "within a very short time" was met with opposition taunts in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. MacEachen made the promise in wrapping up debate on second reading of Canada Assistance Plan legislation. The extended five-day debate bogged down consistently on old-age pensions.

In other business Tuesday, Finance Minister Sharp introduced a resolution on Bank Act revision, now two years overdue Debate on the resolution was to continue today, with another on the Quebec Savings Bank Act to follow.

There was corridor talk of late sessions and possibly a Saturday sitting to clean up business for the summer recess. MPs had hoped for a recess beginning last Thursday.

The health minister accused Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) of trying to kill the welfare legislation with an amendment on second reading. Mr. Knowles angrily denied this.

The Knowles amendment proposed that the present $75 monthly pension be increased immediately to $100 a month, applicable to all at the age of 65 with no means test. It was ruled out of order, but set the tone of the debate.

Mr. MacEachen said that since March, the government has made it clear it intends to "do something more" for the aged who won't benefit from the Canada Pension Plan and will be "primarily dependent on that flat rate $75 monthly payment."

Mr. Knowles suggested the health minister was ashamed to say what the government plans to do for pensioners.

Mr. MacEachen said 1,000,000 Canadians will benefit from the assistance plan on the basis of need only. Added cost to the federal taxpayer in the 1966-67 fiscal year would be $85,000,000.

Total federal-provincial commitment in the present fiscal year would be $500,000,000. The plan would bring together present welfare programs, meaning increased aid to the aged, the disabled, the blind, fatherless families and others in need.

It also would attempt to deal with the cause and effects of poverty, giving the unfortunate "a real chance" to get off public welfare, Mr. MacEachen said.

Volkswagens Are Recalled

NEW YORK (AP) — About 197,000 Volkswagen automobiles were ordered recalled to local dealers today for inspection of front axle ball-joint assemblies and rear luggage compartment lids.

Volkswagen of America Inc. in Englewood Cliffs, N.J., said 175,000 of the beetle - shaped Volkswagen sedans and the sports model Karmann - Ghia were involved.

Planes Elude Missiles

SAIGON (AP) — American planes dodged a heavy onslaught of Soviet-made missiles over North Viet Nam's Red River Valley Tuesday during one of the heaviest raiding days of the war.

The U.S. Military Command announced at a briefing today that 27 to 29 surface-to-air missiles (SAMS) had been fired at U.S. planes. A few hours later, however, official spokesmen reported there may have been some duplicate sightings in the accounts from pilots.

The spokesmen said it probably would be at least 12 hours before intelligence reports could be sorted out and a definite figure established.

The original announcement said it had been the largest number of missiles fired in a single day since the beginning of the air war and despite the confusion later, it obviously represented a day of heavy missile activity. The largest number of missiles sighted previously was 120 one day last March and it was believed Tuesday's firings exceeded that total.

The missiles were fired from sites in the Red River Valley 50 to 115 miles north and northwest of Hanoi. U.S. Air Force pilots reported wrecking four of the sites and also hitting two fuel depots within 33 miles of the North Vietnamese capital.

One of the oil storage areas was 28 miles north of Hanoi, the other 33 miles northwest.

Fighter - bombers also hammered bridges, barracks, storage areas, anti-aircraft sites and other installations in the southern panhandle as well as the Red River Valley.

GROUND FIGHTING LIGHT

The U.S. command reported ground fighting was extremely light in South Viet Nam, continuing the relative lull of recent days.

Sharp Proposes Bank Loan Rates Ceiling Be Ended

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp proposed in the Commons Tuesday eventual removal of the six-per-cent ceiling on bank-loan interest rates.

The move, to be preceded by a shifting increase in the current rate, holds the seeds of political controversy.

The issue is said to have stirred conflict within the Liberal party and at times there were reports the minister wasn't able to win the wholehearted support of the party caucus.

At a press conference following his speech on the resolution preceding introduction of a revised Bank Act—a 40,000 word bill expected to be introduced in the Commons today — Mr. Sharp was asked whether he had the solid support of his colleagues for his proposals.

"I have no doubt in my mind about it," he replied.

Announcing the plan in the Commons, Mr. Sharp said he expects this and other moves in his draft revision of the Bank Act will lead to healthier competition between the banks and so-called near-bank trust and loan companies.

The government's proposals are aimed at higher interest rates on bank deposits, more bank money for mortgages, limitation on bank ownership of near-bank and other corporation shares, and fewer directors serving simultaneously on the boards of banks, near-banks, and other companies.

The bill contains a formula by which the present loan-interest ceiling will be raised by perhaps one percentage point or more above the yield on short-term government bonds at current market prices, now nearly 5¼ per cent. This will be adjusted every six months.

But the formula also includes a point at which the chartered banks will be freed of any ceiling restriction on loan charges. This will come when the yield on short term bonds fall sufficiently to indicate that the current tight money situation has been overcome and truly competitive forces have returned to the money market.

The details will not be disclosed until the bill gets first reading.

Mr. Sharp referred only to the highlights of his bill Tuesday night, but his speech immediately drew conflicting comment from banking officials and other

Wilson Defeats Leftists

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson today beat back a leftist group in his own Labor party who had demanded Britain break away from support of United States policy in Viet Nam.

The rebels, who had claimed overwhelming support, were crushed by a vote of 214 to 46 at a closed-door meeting of Labor members of the House of Commons. Wilson apparently spoke himself in leading the fight against the leftists.

One source said: "Most MPs accepted the prime minister's statement as immensely impressive" in putting the government's case for continuing its support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam..

Wilson was ready to go before the House of Commons later to defend a policy that has also come under sharp criticism from the Conservatives. But the Tories charge him with wavering by backing off from support of the American raids on North Vietnamese fuel dumps on the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Earlier, 15 Labor MPs had said they would vote against Wilson's policy of even limited support for the U.S. if it is put to the test in the Commons.

Rumor Mill Is Working

OTTAWA (CP) — Names ground slowly from the rumor mill Tuesday in the wake of the government white paper on broadcasting, proposing changes for the Board of Broadcast Governors and the CBC.

Speculation centred around these three points:

—Will Dr. Andrew Stewart be reappointed chairman of the BBG and Alphonse Ouimet president of the CBC after Parliament passes legislation reorganizing the structure of the two bodies?

—Who will the government name to bring the BBG full-time membership to five from three?

—Who is the likely choice of the CBC board of directors as chief executive officer of the publicly-owned corporation, a new post proposed in the white paper?

Time for decisions is months away.

Dr. Stewart and Mr. Ouimet were reappointed to their posts last fall for seven-year terms. However, these appointments, along with others to both boards, will lapse when the new Broadcasting Act comes into effect. Dr. Stewart's current salary is $23,000 a year, Mr. Ouimet's $40,000.

When Dr. Stewart was reappointed, it was reported that he agreed to stay on only until the white paper was introduced and the Broadcasting Act revised. A former president of the University of Alberta, he was said to have wanted to return to academic life.

However, on Monday, after the white paper was tabled in the Commons, he said he is willing to remain as chairman but that this is up to the government. He saw nothing in the paper "that would prevent my staying on."

The other members of the present three-man BBG board are: Pierre Juneau, vice-chairman, at $19,000 a year, and David Sim, former deputy min-

Reds Know They Cannot Win Military Victory in Viet Nam

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson, declaring the Communists know they cannot win a military victory in Viet Nam, has voiced optimism that "we are on the way" to solving the Vietnamese problem.

Johnson planned a series of Viet Nam conferences at his ranch home near here tonight, summoning Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and other military and diplomatic advisers for an overnight business visit.

The president expressed an optimistic view of the war during a press conference Tuesday on the front lawn of his ranch.

Taking the wraps off a top secret message from the defence department, Johnson cited estimates that stepped-up bombing raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong area have wiped out 57 per cent of North Viet Nam's petroleum storage facilities. He said 87 per cent of all storage capacity has been hit during the raids that began last week.

Johnson disclosed tentative plans to cut down planned purchases of bombs and ammunition for Viet Nam.

He said McNamara tells him substantial reductions in projected production rates may be desirable within three to six months, at a savings of several hundred million dollars.

Right now, Johnson said, ordnance inventories are ample and production exceeds usage in Viet Nam. He said he doesn't want to be stuck with $12,000,000,000 of worthless and obsolete military hardware when the war ends—which he said was the case after the Korean War.

Asked if this meant the major part of the Viet Nam buildup was history, he replied, "No, I wouldn't make such an evaluation." He said more men and materiel will be dispatched to the war zone and, later added:

"We have a policy of measured response and gradually increasing our strength from time to time. We plan to continue that."

Johnson said that while he was aware of the dangers of speculation, "our diplomatic reports indicate that the opposing forces no longer really expect a military victory in South Viet Nam."

At another point, he said:

"If we could only solve the problem in Viet Nam, and we think we are on the way to doing that, we could have a world that is rather peaceful and generally prosperous."

Centennial Planning Officer Gives Advice to Kiwanians

Albert W. Cane, project officer for the Centennial Planning Branch, suggested yesterday to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club that what Canada needs is "a good old fashioned dose of enthusiasm". Speaking on planning and programming of events for the celebration of Canada's 100th birthday, he also posed the question: "What follows our Centennial birthday celebrations?"

Mr. Cane charged that Canadians have developed an attitude of apathy towards the freedoms of democracy gained in the last 100 years.

"It is conceivable that we may eventually lose these cherished freedoms unless we are prepared to fight this apathy which eats into our society like a cancer. I believe the antidote for apathy is rather simple in its basic terms. It requires only two things, personal integrity and the constant desire to re-educate ourselves and help those around us to be aware of our real needs in a fast changing society.

"People cannot get enthusiastic about things they know very little about. It stands to reason that a properly informed people have at least the basis for a wise choice. How wrong we are if we think that because we graduated from school, our need for education is ended. Education is a continuing process.

'Communication is a vital part of education. We must realize that unless the public is well informed, it will be difficult to combat the cloud of apathy which threatens to choke the life from our freedom."

He declared that the next few months should be used for extensive planning and programming of events and celebrations to take place during the whole of 1967. Observing that the plan of action cannot be done in a leisurely manner, he asserted that immediate action from all the citizens in the community is a prime requisite.

"Involvement is the key word," he said, "the people must become interested in programs for next year. It is in our own interests to take part, injecting happiness and hope into the celebration of our country's 100th birthday. We should take advantage of the opportunity to show that we appreciate the privilege of living here.

"It would be a tragedy if we did not see it as the greatest chance in decades to sell Canada to Canadians. And is it not a shame that we have to suggest that we sell Canada to Canadians. Canada is worth getting excited about."

Providing some answers to his question, "What follows our Centennial birthday celebrations?," Mr. Cane stated that he would favor a continuing program to conserve the natural beauty of the country. He said he would like to see Canada as a nation of great economic strength, benefiting industry, business and the generations to come; a nation ruled by sound and good government; a country working as a strong force for justice and the good of all nations on the earth.

Mr. Cane was introduced by O. F. Bradley and the thanks of the club were extended by P. L. Allcorn.

Leiterman

as he explained, a firmer grip on programming."

There was no public announcement from Mr. Walker, and a member of Mr. Leiterman's staff said he was referring to talks the vice-president had here with CBC personnel.

Discussing the Walker report, Mr. Leiterman's statement said his Toronto "appointment" would be "incredible" since he had been "publicly rebuked" by CBC directors and by the Keate broadcasting study made for the federal government at the time of the original Seven Days rumpus.

FIRED CO-HOSTS

He said Mr. Walker originally fired Mr. Watson and Laurier LaPierre, co-hosts of Seven Days, the action that touched off the public row over the program.

In an earlier statement Tuesday night, Mr. Leiterman expressed astonishment and disappointment at the CBC's new contract offer to himself which he said involved signing an agreement accepting "corporation policies, procedures and directions."

He said the agreement amounted to a loyalty oath, though "my loyalty to the principles of the CBC has never been in doubt."

Concluded at a four-day meeting in Ottawa last week, the CBC board of directors' decisions:

—Noted with concern that there had been deficiencies in the supervision of Seven Days and requested management to improve this supervision through changes.

—Reaffirmed the board's May 27 public statement, made after a report by Vancouver publisher Stuart Keate, that it has accepted the principle of establishment of an internal grievance procedure for producers.

Meanwhile, Mr. Walker announced in Toronto the interim appointment of Marce Munro, 54, as director of CBC news and public affairs in Toronto.

REQUESTED CHANGE

Mr. Munro, director of television English networks, succeeds William H. Hogg, 56, who a CBC informant says requested the move. The informant said the appointment was not unrelated to the board's reference to deficiencies in Seven Days' supervision but stressed that the change had been requested by Mr. Hogg.

Douglas Nixon, television program director for the English network, will temporarily assume the major duties performed by Mr. Munro.

Mr. Walker said the organizational structure of the news and public affairs department will not be altered pending further studies.

Mr. Leiterman, appearing on the CBC Newsmagazine television program Tuesday night, said there is no reason why he should not sign a contract for next season which includes the agreement to abide by CBC policy. However, he found the request puzzling because his present contract contains a similar clause.

SPEED LIMITS HELP

LONDON (AP)—The government road research laboratory says serious accidents decreased 13 per cent in the first four months after speed limits were put on 100,000 miles of major British roads. The limits are 50 miles an hour on heavily travelled trunk roads and 70 miles on superhighways.

Test Shows Moonship Will Work

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) After years of engineering headaches, it appears that U.S. scientists have harnessed liquid hydrogen as a high - energy rocket fuel for man-to-the-moon and other space missions.

The breakthrough came Tuesday when the heaviest U.S. satellite, a 29-ton rocket stage, hurtled around the globe for three orbits while ground stations monitored the behavior of 10 tons of hydrogen packed in the fuel tank.

Throughout this 4½-hour period, the hydrogen performed better than expected, thanks to a unique system of small rockets and gas vents that created a tiny thrust to keep the fuel positioned in the bottom of the 64,000-gallon tank, at the end of the engine.

Under weightless conditions on previous tests with smaller rockets, the fuel had a tendency to curl into a ball, climb the walls of the tank or vaporize.

COULD RESTART

But each time, when the gentle thrust was applied, the hydrogen settled to the bottom, with hardly a ripple on the surface, demonstrating that the engine could have been restarted —a must for manned lunar-landing flights.

A Saturn rocket, most powerful yet launched by the United States, boosted its second stage into space as the test laboratory. This second stage, which fired its engine to attain orbital speed, is the same as the rocket which will form the third stage of the mammoth Saturn V rocket that will hurl project Apollo astronauts on moon journeys.

On a moon shot, the Saturn V third stage will have to coast around the globe for up to three orbits—as the satellite did Tuesday—then restart its engine at the desired time and location to provide the final thrust for the astronauts.

Hydrogen is 40 per cent more powerful than conventional liquid fuels. Without it, the Saturn V would not have enough power to send the heavy 92,000-pound Apollo craft to the moon.

Gordon Says CNR Expects Passenger Service to Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — CNR president Donald Gordon told the Commons transport committee Tuesday that the stateowned rail road expects to break even on its passenger sevice in the its passenger service in the early 1970s.

Mr. Gordon said CNR policy is "the elimination of the rail passenger deficit, not the elimination of the rail passenger service."

Experiments carried out by the company had established there was a large market for intercity transportation in Canada.

". . . Taking into account competitive transportation services, the railway can economically fulfill a role in intercity transportation in areas of relatively heavy density of population and similarly, in those areas where indications of activity in the travel market are . . . likely to produce a level of revenue which would meet the cost of the service."

Steps would be taken to seek withdrawal from, or obtain subsidies for, unprofitable services.

Mr. Gordon said demand for railway service would come only with effective effort and good service. The CNR for a number of years had been building up and improving its service with the hope of making a profit or at least breaking even.

Deficit on the railway's passenger service in 1958 was about $50,000,000, Mr. Gordon noted.

DEFICIT SLASHED

But a combination of a new rate structure, new equipment, and improvements in scheduling and service produced increased passenger revenue of 12.5 per cent in 1965 over the preceding year and the deficit was down to $46,500,000.

With passengers returning to the railways in record numbers, the CNR expected to set a postwar traffic record in 1966. The projected loss in 1966 was an estimated $39,500,000.

A financial analysis of 1965 showed the $46,500,000 loss to be made up of $9,200,000 in short term expenses and $37,300,000 in longterm expenses.

"This means that if the passenger business were aban- the immediate saving would be $9,200,000.

"Our projection and objective is that by 1967 we will overtake the short term expenses of $9,200,000 and in the early 1970s produce a complete breakeven position."

Body of Boy Found at Dam Near Frankford

FRANKFORD — A six-year-old boy Frankford boy was drowned last night in the Trent River here. Volunteer firemen Douglas Bastedo and Frank Moran found the body of Gregory Montgomery about 11.30. The youngster's body was caught in the stop logs above the waterfall at No. 5 dam. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Montgomery.

The firemen searched for about two hours along the river between the Frankford Tourist Park and No. 5 dam, after being notified by Mr. Montgomery that the boy was missing. The boy was with a large group of people who were swimming at the park at 5 o'clock but he apparently wandered away by himself. The Montgomerys have two other children.

Homemaking Service Needed Says Director

TRENTON — In the first six months since renewing operations in Trenton, the Children's Aid Society has set up a number of services and assisted the town in a very material way with problems concerning the care and welfare of children, according to a report from CAS director, Bruce Kerr, read at Monday night's council meeting. At the present time, 25 families are under supervision and 89 children, five of whom have been added to CAS rolls since the first of the year.

Mr. Kerr said family counselling would be added to the work of the society locally, by 1967. The workers assigned to the town has already assisted families in this respect in a number of cases.

Mr. Kerr said there was a real need for a qualified homemaking service in Trenton, one which would introduce an educational homemaking program rather than a babysitting service, designed to relieve an immediate need. In many Ontario cities and towns, Homemaker services are sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross, Mr. Kerr said.

Mr. Kerr expressed his appreciation of the co-operation received from various departments and officials in town and especially Councillor D. R. Fraser, who represents town council on the area CAS board.

Parks' Board Wants Property For Playground

TRENTON — The Trenton Parks' Board has asked the town for property on Victoria Ave. for a playground area to replace the Victoria Park play area. When the LCBO started to build its new retail outlet in the vicinity of the park, the board and council were agreed that a new location should be found for the playground.

Hoy large the Victoria Ave. playground would be hinges on who owns the lots adjoining town land, and if the town could acquire them. The land here is swampy at the moment, but could be filled in to make an attractive park, according to town engineer Eric Aldersey.

Chamber Seeks Answers by Questionnaire

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce directors are mailing out questionnaires to all members, with space for the members to fill in suggestions for a future work program for the chamber. There may be suggestions for long-range projects, such as the sponsorship of a Norwich Plan for store improvement or short-range projects, and the example given in this case was the sponsorship of the Santa Claus Parade, which the chamber has looked after for several years.

Members are then asked to indicate which of the several programs they have suggested they would care to involve themselves with, personally.

The chamber is also asking for indications as to how many persons would be interested in joining in a "group" life and sickness insurance plan. This plan, which would be "run" by the chamber, would be cheaper than private company plans and would fill a need for those not covered by their own employment.

Many of the merchants have said they would be interested in joining a "merchant warning alarm" system. Phone calls would be made to the chamber when shoplifters, bad cheque artists and other miscreants are detected and the chamber office personnel would immediately warn other merchants.

Membership in the local chamber is on the upsurge, but the directors mean to stage a Blitz Day when each director and other working members will contact at least two non-members.

Meanwhile, Trenton Concrete on the Carrying Place Road has offered to donate 10 potted trees for strategic placing around town by the chamber.

News in Brief

TRENTON — Work starts this week on the installation of a sanitary sewer on Roscoe Ave. Contractor is Lyle Carr.

Several times, residents of this street petitioned for a sewer and the work was placed high on the priority list by town council this year.

Trenton's faithful street sweeper is in need of a repair job and council voted Monday night to spend $180 to put it in serviceable condition for use during 1966. Next year, the machine will be traded in on a new sweeper.

Mrs. Geniveve Buck, 32 Cedar Street and Mrs. Eleanor Wigmore, 16 Wilson Crescent suffered minor facial injuries yesterday afternoon when the car which Mrs. Buck was driving was in a collision with a car driven by Michael Sagadore of Greenwood N.S. at the intersection of Scott and Crown Streets. Damage to the two cars was set by police at $350.

Charter Member Of Cadet Corps Given Award

TRENTON — The Navy League of Canada has authorized the annual award of an "Anne Widdicks Memorial Trophy," to outstanding members of the league's Wrennette Corps. Mrs. Widdicks, formerly of 23 Edwards Street, died earlier this year. She was a charter member of the Trenton Sea Cadets Women's Auxiliary.

In the citation, received this week by Mrs. Widdick's daughter, Mrs. Vern Nutley, the provincial league secretary, James A. Crist, notes Mrs. Widdick's "outstanding contribution," to the work of the Navy League. The trophy, which has yet to be designed will be first awarded in 1967. The Trenton women's auxiliary has contributed financially to the setting up of this annual award.

Mr. Crist said in his letter that the league hoped the award would inspire the Wrennette Corps to greater achievement by the "interest taken by this great lady in the work of the Navy League of Canada."

Legion Will Sponsor Circus

TRENTON — The circus is coming to town . . . for one day, July 20th. Members of the Legion branch, the sponsor, have asked for space south of the Community Gardens. If curb construction here prevents staging the event in this area, council has agreed to permit the circus to be set up on Sidney Street, opposite Canadian Flight Equipment.

IN MEMORIAM

TWEEDY — In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Daisy Tweedy, who passed away two years ago, July 6, 1964.

Her thoughts were all so full of us,
She never could forget,
And so we think that where she is,
She must be watching yet.
As angels keep their watch up there,
Please God, just let her know,
That we down here do not forget,
We love and miss her so.

—Always remembered by sons, daughters and families.

COULTER — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Joseph Wesley Coulter, who passed away July 6, 1965.

We lost a father with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without farewell he fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep,
We have lost but God has gained,
One of the best fathers the world contained.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughters Lois and Carmel, sons-in-law Harry and Harold and grandchildren Carol and Darlene.

Labor Council Gives Support To Campaign

George Dainard, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council, said in a press release today that the local council will give full support to the Ontario Federation of Labor's anti-injunction campaign.

He said his council intends to launch an intensive campaign at the local level against the use of injunctions in labor disputes with special emphasis on those which interfere with peaceful picketing.

He said, "We find ourselves in disagreement with the courts when they suggest a peaceful picketline is illegal.

"We are not breaking the law or defying the courts, we are merely asserting our rights in a democratic society by protesting against what we believe to be an unfair law which is being poorly administered."

The prepared release stated, "Injunctions are a legal weapon that were never intended to be used as a strike-breaking instrument of the courts. The judges and the courts bring themselves into disrepute when they allow themselves to be used by anti-union employers in a strikebreaking capacity."

The release said the council plans to meet the M.P. and M.L.A.'s in this area and voice its protests, to them.

Construction Roundup

Britons Eager to Watch Canadian Building Methods

The recent opening of the new factory of Fontaberry Insulated Homes Ltd. in England attracted a number of interested visitors, including architects and builders.

The Canadian - British venture features the manufacturing system of Maurice Rollins of Belleville, with the sales and marketing programs to be handled by British partners.

The factory, located at Aylesham, Kent is being touted as the most efficient of its type in Great Britain and will probably make the Rollins timber - frame system of home construction well - known in manyy European countries.

Buildings of all types constructed in the Rollins method are now being sold to private developers and public housing authorities in southern Britain, with a number of orders also received already from France.

At present, the factory is turning out a home a day, but the output is expected to increase sixfold in three years.

In addition to its own building activities, Fontaberry plans to construct factories and train personnel in timber - frame production techniques in other parts of Britain.

Y Day Camp Is Commenced

At nine-thirty this morning, the Belleville Y.M.C.A. again opened its doors to the day camp program. Sixty-three eager youngsters enjoyed a full schedule of crafts, stories, games and swimming with their counsellors Bob Murdoch, Roy Maddocks, Alan Broad, Sandy Clarke, Sue Booth and Kathy Casey. Each camper made a scrap book and name tag. Games of baseball, volleyball and tag were participated in by all.

Mrs. Patti Clapp and Mildred Gray tested and grouped each camper with regard to their swimming skills, and a happy frolic in the pool ended this first day of Day Camp.

Good Progress Being Made On Addition to Hospital Here

Two - thirds of the fourth floor level of the 8 - storey block "A" addition to Belleville General Hospital has now been poured, as have some 500 square yards of the first floor level of block "B".

Elsewhere around the construction site, the foundation for the retaining wall at the south - west corner of the hospital property has been completed, and the brick work for the new loading dock at the east side of the existing hospital was finished several days ago.

Also, the transformer and switch gear have been installed for the new electrical sub - station.

The employees of all contractors working on the hospital project were recently shown two films and heard a lecture on safety in construction work, presented by the Construction Safety Association of Ontario.

There were 57 "big jobs" (i.e. contracts worth more than $1 million each) in Canadian construction during the month of June.

Statistics released by the Southam Building Guide this week also reveal that the six - month cumulative total value of Canadian construction contracts awarded from January to the end of June, 1966 stands at $2,385,037,200, almost 4 per cent below last year's all - time record level for the same period.

A major factor in this drop is the decrease in the number of "big jobs" for the first six months of this year, which are down 7.7 per cent from 1965.

The total value of awards for June this year stood at $464,015,400, down 25.6 per cent from June, 1965.

The guide notes that the June 1965 total was at an all - time high, and that it included a record - breaking dollar volume of "big jobs."

Engineers to Seek Best Route For Piping Lake Water Here

A consulting engineering firm will be authorized to begin surveys immediately to determine the best location for a pipeline from Lake Ontario to the Belleville-Trenton area, officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission announced here yesterday afternoon. Purpose of the pipeline will be to supply water to communities of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties that now do not enjoy an adequate supply and to those that will require more and better water in the future.

Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis explained that the O.W.R.C., represented at a meeting here by John Root, M.P.P. and Vice-Chairman, L. E. Owers, Assistant General Manager, and G. R. Trewin, Assistant Director, Division of Sanitary Engineering, had been invited to investigate the water supply requirements of this area by himself, on behalf of the municipalities of Belleville and Trenton and the Townships of Sidney, Ameliasburgh, Thurlow, and Murray.

"We're fast approaching the state where we must have more fresh water", Mayor Ellis said. "Our taste number has gone way up beyond the acceptable point", he continued. "If we're going to get better water we've got to go to a larger and deeper source."

Warden Clayton Hall of Hastings County said the Township of Sidney not only needs better water but needs water as quickly as it can acquire it. Mr. Owers explained that the Bay of Quinte never was a good source of water and it never will be one either. A new source is necessary, claimed Mr. Root, and the obvious choice is Lake Ontario.

25 MILES LONG

Mr. Root noted that recent legislation empowers the O.W.R.C. to construct all installations necessary to a pipeline of this sort, expected to be in the neighborhood of 25 miles in length, and to sell water to municipalities at cost. "Wherever possible an area development would be more economical than a muncipal development," he said. Warden Harold Bonter of Prince Edward County said "We're definitely interested in this survey to find out the feasibility of Ameliasburg joining in this project."

The areas studied, stated Mr. Root, will be Belleville, Trenton, Thurlow Township, the portion of Ameliasburg bordering on the Bay, and the developing area of Murray Township. The survey will select the most economical point for the withdrawal of the water from Lake Ontario as well as the route of the pipeline. The O.W.R.C. will be able to analyze costs when the engineer's report is made and a rate structure will then be devised. Costs of the survey are born by the Commission.

"The O.W.R.C. is prepared to appoint these engineers and to me this is the key to the whole thing," Mayor Ellis said.

FIVE-YEAR WAIT

He emphasized that when the pipeline is built the city will still have its own distribution system but that the O.W.R.C. will build and control the pipeline itself. The survey could take between six and twelve months and a decision to construct could be made then, Mayor Ellis said. "We're probably five years away from this and I don't know if we can get along for five years without that water," he added.

"We're not looking at cheaper water but at higher quality water," the mayor continued. The cost of the project would be passed along to the communities concerned in the water rates.

"We should be able eventually to get the bay back to a good recreational source of water," Mayor Ellis concluded.

Children's Aid Director Says More Children Are Left Alone

Bruce Kerr, local director of the Children's Aid Society, today expressed concern about the frequency with which parents leave their children unattended. "Every year we learn of children being left alone — it is nothing new — but this year I am concerned about the obvious increase in the practice," said Mr. Kerr. Already in 1966 five children have been burned to death in Hastings County in the absence of their parents from the family home. Within the past two months we have charged a Belleville family and a Trenton family with leaving their children unattended and the court has registered convictions. Over the weekend we had two more cases reported by the police. In one instance, our duty worker sat with three children under ten until two thirty in the morning when the mother returned. Needless to say, she was not with her husband and had been drinking."

Mr. Kerr said that while the enforcement of the child welfare legislation of the province, which forbids the leaving alone children under ten years of age for an unreasonable length of time without making provision for their safety, is one of the least pleasant tasks the Society performs, it does not hesitate to fulfil its obligation.

"We consider leaving a child alone, often locked in a room, to be a grave offence. Personally I consider it to be one of the most despicable things a person can do. It is our policy to charge the parents in every single case reported to us where investigation reveals the report to be true. The Child Welfare Act provides for a fine of up to $200 and/or imprisonment for a period of up to one year. In the past it has been our practice to ask for a fine and suspended sentence. Perhaps we have been wrong and in the future we should ask the court to consider a jail term."

Rumor

ister of national revenue, at $18,000.

Speculation is strong that at least two members of the new five-man board will be French-speaking and that one of the five will be a woman.

There is no clue as to whether Mr. Oulmet will be reappointed, or whether he wants to be.

HAVE NO LIST

A government source said no thought has been given to possible appointees—to the two top jobs if that is necessary, or to the BBG posts. There is no list of candidates.

It is known there is a strong pressure from some Liberal members for appointment of Claude Ryan, editor of Montreal Le Devoir, as CBC president.

The assumption among both broadcasters and government sources is that it's unlikely the BBG appointees will be drawn from the broadcasting field.

Although the new chief executive officers of the CBC will be appointed by the reconstituted CBC board of directors, government circles expect the choice will be influenced by whoever is the CBC president. For one thing, it is thought that if the president is French-speaking, the chief executive officer will be English-speaking—and vice versa.

W. E. S. Briggs, now second in command to President Ouimet and a member of the present CBC board of directors, isn't considered a possibility. He is a government appointee and his seven-year term runs out this fall. Moreover, he reaches the CBC retirement age of 60 July 13.

OTTAWA (CP) — A retired airman and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stokes, were found shot to death in their Ottawa home Tuesday. Mr. Stokes, about 50, retired last July as a supply technician at Air Materiel Command headquarters.

California Boy, 16, Stows Away On Plane to Visit English Girl

LONDON (AP)—A 16-year-old stowaway may fly back to the United States Thursday without seeing the girl who was the object of his transatlantic feat.

James Richard Clark Davidson of San Marino, Calif., outwitted Trans Airlines and immigration officials to fly from Kansas City to London without a passport or tickets during the weekend.

But when he turned up at the girl's London apartment Monday, he found she and her family were vacationing on the continent. They had gone to school together in California for a year.

James, who started out with $11 and the clothing he was wearing when he left Kansas City Saturday, explained:

"Well, then I didn't know what to do. I went out and spent the rest of my money on some underwear and a blanket—I figured if the worst came, I could sleep in Hyde Park. I spent some time sleeping in the park Monday afternoon, and then I went to a local church to look for help."

WENT SIGHTSEEING

The vicar put him in contact with consular officials at the U.S. embassy who advanced him some money and arranged accommodations for him for a few nights in London. Meanwhile he went sightseeing.

His mother, Mrs. Nova Davidson, said after learning of his whereabouts:

"I never worried about him because he's a very responsible boy. Now I know that he's a very ingenious lad."

QUAKES HIT AGAIN

MOSCOW (AP)—Eight more earthquakes, including a strong one, struck the earthquake-ravaged Soviet central Asian city of Tashkent Monday. Nearly 300,000 persons, more than a quarter of the city's population of 1,100,000, have been left homeless by more than 525 quakes since April 26.

Thant Fears Extremists

GENEVA (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant warned today against a further escalation of the war in Viet Nam.

"If the struggle intensifies, if the conflict deteriorates, extremist elements will emerge and will eventually dominate the situation, thus a peaceful solution will be further delayed and will become even more difficult than it is today," he told a press conference here.

Thant said there have been no recent new developments likely to lead to peace talks. He reiterated his conviction that peace negotiations are possible only if the bombing of North Viet Nam is halted, if the military operations are reduced and if all parties express their willingness to come to the conference table.

"But my ideas have not met with any positive response," he added.

CBC In Spotlight

If the operations of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation did not involve the spending of public money, the public by this time might be forgiven for dismissing the corporation's internal disputes as being merely tiresome.

There was the big producer-management fuss over This Hour Has Seven Days, and the fact that the program is already fading from public memory is as good an indication as any of how short that memory is.

Producers Patrick Watson and Russell LaPierre may have gone to the scaffold, but now that the episode is over there are other things to consider (like color television for example). It is every man for himself in this hard materialist world.

As for color television, the government White Paper on broadcasting presented by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh says that it must take "a lower priority to other improvements."

And what are these improvements? Well the White Paper mentions the upgrading of facilities and programming in the Canadian north, and the integration of the CBC's international service with the corporation. The latter service is one with which few Canadians are familiar since its programs are shortwave presentations for overseas listeners. But obviously this service, as well as the people up north, are entitled to the best in programming before the corporation becomes involved in added luxuries such as color television.

Another interesting aspect of the White Paper is the revelation that the provinces will be permitted to enter the broadcasting field for educational radio and television broadcasts. This would be achieved by permitting the provinces to use the airways, while denying them control of broadcasting or of broadcasting facilities. In other words, the federal government would retain overall control of broadcasting.

In general, the White Paper gives the Board of Broadcast Governors new powers, including regulatory authority, over the CBC. The BBG moreover will have its full-time membership increased from three to five.

Another important step involves the presidency of the CBC. The president (current holder of the office is Alphonse Ouimet), while retaining overall responsibility for CBC operations, will be relieved of much of the day-to-day operational burden by a chief executive officer yet to be appointed.

Soviet Visitors

Dmitri Polyansky, first deputy chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers, sounds almost too good to be true.

In the course of his whirlwind Canadian tour he achieved remarkable rapport with people across the country, from politicians and journalists to plant employees. The Russian achieved a notable feat in melting traditional Canadian reserve.

One farmer in British Columbia was quoted as saying, "So help me, if he had promised an increase for my milk I would have voted for the fellow!"

Mr. Polyansky's "awareness" even extended to the reading of Canadian newspapers. He enjoyed a Toronto columnist's sally comparing his triumphal progress out west with Premier Bennett on an election tour.

He took time to visit the Soviet liner Alexander Pushkin in Montreal, chatted with some attractive women-members of the crew, and announced to admiring correspondents that the girls were not hand-picked for the job, but were merely "typical of all the beautiful girls we have in Russia."

But behind Mr. Polyansky's cheerful manner is a keen intelligence. He is a politician's politician, and his Ottawa blast at United States' policy in Viet Nam showed that he is not always anxious to please. Perhaps his most pleasing trait is his obvious interest in people and in what they are doing. This is a prerequisite for anyone in politics but it is also a quality to be admired whatever a man's sphere of activity, just as it is one to be prized in ordinary everyday relationships.

Unlike some Russian visitors, Mr. Polyansky did not have the gall to suggest they do things better in Russia. On the contrary, while visiting an auto plant he admitted that the degree of automation in use was considerably ahead of that in the Soviet Union. He was also impressed by welding techniques.

However he did say a $6,000 harvest combine would cost only $2,000 in Russia, and that for the price the dealer would throw in a windrower.

A remarkable man is this Mr. Polyansky. If he ever gets to be top man in Russia (which would not be surprising) our relations with that country could be greatly improved.

As it is, the visit has brought Canada and Russia into closer understanding. Trade for one thing is bound to improve; indeed Polyansky intimated that the recent $800 million wheat deal was just the forerunner of a series of such sales and there would be a general broadening of trade between the two countries. "We will be partners for many years to come," he said. And no one need complain about that.

To Your Good Health

Exercise Is Needed Victim of Stroke

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother, who is 77, had a stroke four years ago. For a time she could, with help, go to the bathroom and sit at the table, but this tired her so she begged the family to let her stay in bed.

Now she has sluggish bowels, and has to use a catheter. The family is divided. Some of us think she should be exercised constantly, even against her will. Others say, "Leave her alone; you're only hurting her for nothing."

Her mind is clear, and she gets upset, and then takes tranquilizers. I think she needs exercise, and they are just pacifying her, letting her lie there like a vegetable. — Mrs. H. K.

Too often this is the way elderly stroke patients behave. They become apathetic, often stubborn, then lose the will to co-operate. In short, they give up.

From one standpoint, they become difficult nursing and treatment problems. But more important, from their own viewpoint, they are people who have surrendered. They have "resigned" from active life.

I suppose we can imagine, to some extent, how they must feel. Suddenly some degree of paralysis robs them of ability to walk or conduct other activity as they have for most of their lives. In addition — and this is too bad, too — they have heard a lot about strokes leaving people helpless. And so they give up.

Actually, most stroke victims can be helped, but it is necessary for them to know it can be done. Here we have a woman whose mind is still clear four years after her stroke. Nearly four years of time lost in "being a vegetable."

Some exercise for this woman will change her outlook on life as well as improve her general health. Instructions should have been given long ago as to the type and extent of exercise. It can be either passive or active, depending on the patient. Merely changing the patient's position is, in a mild way, exercise. It helps circulation, prevents bed sores, prevents joints from stiffening.

Limited activity is not painful if it is maintained regularly. When joints stiffen and muscles weaken, there may be pain until they are restored to better condition.

Thus in this case, there may be some discomfort for a time, but it should pass.

The patient may not become self-sufficient, but she can become better off physically than she is now. If she is allowed to remain inactively in bed, she will soon become more difficult to care for.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a boy with quite wavy hair. Is there any way I could get it straight? How long would it stay that way? — G. H. M.

Just as it is possible to give "permanent" waves, hair can be uncurled by chemical applications, but the chemicals can be irritating after a time, and should be used by a professional operator or hair stylist. When the hair grows out, it will be wavy again, because that's the kind of hair roots you have.

But how about taking the easy way? Have a brush cut.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can measles cause a young boy to have only one testicle? Would having only one make him sterile? — Mrs. E. P.

Measles do not affect the testicles. The likely answer is that one testicle has not descended. Mumps, however, can cause atrophy (shrinking) of one or both.

Having only one testicle does not necessarily cause sterility. However, I would have the boy examined to determine whether hormone treatment, and perhaps surgery if that fails, should be instituted to "bring down" the other testicle.

Strictly Personal

Power of Personal Example

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It amuses and embarrasses me that so many readers apparently think I am able to direct and control my life by my "thoughts" or my "philosophy." And they want to know how they can do likewise.

Actually, a "philosophy of life" is meaningless unless it reflects one's deepest feelings and attitudes — and then it is unnecessary. Some of the world's worst men have had the noblest philosophies, which they failed utterly to put into practice.

It is not what one consciously believes that counts; it is what one feels at the marrow of existence. Millions of people call themselves Christians, and believe every item in the Apostle's Creed, who in their daily lives are as far removed from the gospel of Jesus as if they had never heard of Him.

We cannot direct or control our lives by such inanimate things as a body of thought or philosophy, but only by following an example of a person. I have long had such a person in my life; and in times of stress, I try to imagine what he would do in similar circumstances. Most of the time, I know exactly what he would do — but I am not always good enough to do likewise.

It is no accident that the two greatest teachers of the Western world, Jesus and Socrates, wrote not a word. They taught by questioning, by parable, and most of all, by example. They were not so convinced with how we think, or what we think, as with how we behave toward one another.

Not a single thought or piece of philosophy is able to help me when I am confronted with a moral decision — for one can find all sorts of reasons to justify any sort of conduct. The crimes committed over the centuries in the name of "religion" by well-meaning men have been far greater than those committed by evil and irreligious men, as all church historians will unhappily admit.

We can draw strength and righteousness only from another person, from someone we perceive to be better than we are, to be more of what a person was meant to be. When we find such a person — and he or she can always be found if we look hard enough — we must use him as a touchstone for testing the truth of our own behavior.

For truth cannot be found in ideas, in institutions, in books, in philosophies or theologies — but only in the living person as he fullness of his existence. When Jesus said, "Follow me," He did not mean in creed, but in love, in sacrifice, in suffering. How much easier it is to follow Him only in prayer, only once a week.

John Huss, the Bohemian national leader and religious reformer, was burned at the stake for heresy 551 years ago today—in 1415—and his ashes dispersed in the River Rhine. He had come to the Council of Constance on a safe - conduct promise from the Holy Roman Emperor. This betrayal, combined with religious and political reasons, led to the Hussite Wars of 1420 to 1433. Bohemia attempted to gain independence and neighboring states were urged to crusade against the Hussites as heretics. A settlement was worked out in 1436.

Pearson's Role As Meditator

The Globe and Mail

It should have surprised no one to learn that the Government - directed settlement of the Seaway dispute gave negotiators for 95,000 railway workers an entirely new perspective on their demands. The conciliation board proceedings, under Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe, came to a sudden end when it was learned that a 30 percent wage increase over two years had been bestowed on the Seaway workers.

If the terms of the Seaway settlement are to be interpreted by the railwaymen as a Government guideline they will be thinking in terms of an average increase of 66 cents an hour for non - operating employees rather than the 40 to 45 cents an hour which had appeared to be the neighborhood of settlement.

Is it not also predictable that the railway workers will seek a settlement comparable to that of the Seaway workers not only in the size of the award but in the manner in which it was delivered? In short, this looks like another job for Supermediator—none other than Prime Minister Pearson himself.

The striking Quebec longshoremen went back to work after Mr. Pearson, heading a team of Cabinet ministers, worked out the terms of settlement; the Seaway workers walked to their agreement over a red carpet rolled out for them by the federal Cabinet.

And so it would seem that a pattern has been set for resolving major labor disputes and wage scales—one that will prove much more difficult to break than it was to establish. The tendency will be for the normal processes of negotiation to be regarded as little more than formal preliminaries to an appeal to the highest authority.

The Government no doubt is happy that the longshoremen and the Seaway workers no longer pose a threat to the waterfront commerce thatmeans so much to the nation. But how can I feel entirely comfortable about the part it played when this is placed in the context of broad economic policy? How compatible have its actions been with the philosophies of Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, who in his budget speech of last March called for "responsible restraint in both wage demands and business pricing policies."

Mr. Sharp added that this was a time when all Canadians should observe such restraint, "and resist the temptation to exploit the bargaining positions which the present boom presents to many in the country."

In the view of Mr. Sharp, the people of Canada to ease back on the gas pedal rather than slam on the brakes. He and his colleagues, on the basis of recent performances, deserve speeding tickets.

Sahara's Hidden Wealth

Hartford Courant

It may seem paradoxical that one of the world's largest deserts rests over one of the world's largest water supplies, but this is coming more and more to be a recognized fact. Huge natural reservoirs of water enough to supply the metropolitan area of New York for 6,000 years at its present annual rate of consumption, are trapped beneath the arid surfaces of the Sahara.

This resource is now beginning to be studied for exploitation for the people living in and around the largest warm wasteland on the face of the earth. According to Dr. Robert Ambroggi, hydrologist of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 18 countries with 148 million inhabitants share the arid territory of northern Africa. But the Sahara itself possesses in abundance the remedy for aridity. Huge quantities of water exist in rock formations below the desert sands, to sustain human settlement, pasturage for livestock and, in many places now barren, productive agriculture.

The fact that oases supplied by artesian wells have been flowing copiously since ancient times, has always testified to the fact of water under the Sahara. But the extent of these reservoirs is only now becoming known. Part of the discovery is due to increased oil prospecting in the Sahara. Indeed, Dr. Ambroggi points out, the Sahara oil supply can be the source of the energy needed to pump the water. Good soils are also available once they can be watered. Extensive tracts of desert land have arable soils overlain only by a comparatively thin cover of sand.

Is there a fly in the ointment? Dr. Ambroggi, writing in Scientific American, indicates there is. There may be no technological barriers to the prospect that the Sahara may be made to bloom in many places and large areas, he says. The problems to be resolved are mainly political. The vast underground reservoirs cross national boundaries. In addition, most of the nations involved are facing economic difficulties, and their priorities of development are still focused on areas far from the Sahara regions, Dr. Ambroggi points out. But with some sense of co-operation and help in financing, the groundwater resources can be exploited on a total, Sahara-wide basis. If African countries can understand this, vast opportunities ore open to them.

Use of Animals For Research

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

To many people the expression "animal experimentation" means to subject an animal to extremely painful processes of long duration. To others it means the use of an animal's body for teaching purposes with the animal rendered completely insensible to pain by anaesthetization and which the animal does not survive.

To some people the use of animals for research means medical research; the discovery of insulin, open heart surgery; the search for the cure for cancer.

To others "experimentation" means weird, frightening, cruel, almost savage torture of defenceless animals for which there appears to be no conceivable justification.

On the one hand, a noble, pure, crusade by men of science against disease. On the other, a vicious, sadistic exploitation of animals for personal glorification and gain.

What is the truth? Probably there is no simple, easy, "true" answer. Even if there was, no one would believe it. People would prefer to go on believing whatever they chose to believe.

But there is one way in which the leading scientists of Canada could help the general public to understand, far better, the scientific point of view.

Testifying before a committee of the United States House of Representatives in September, 1965, Sir Graham Wilson, M.D., LL.D., F.R.C.P., a former Director of the Public Health Laboratory Service, said in part, "There is a degree of pain which no human being has the right to inflict on an animal, no matter what increase in knowledge might be expected to result."

Canadian scientists, acting either as individuals or collectively through their societies, should clearly define the degree of pain which they consider acceptable in the name of science for the benefit of mankind.

In other words, responsible scientists should state publicly the limit of pain and suffering of an animal beyond which they would not go. In so doing they would clearly indicate the type of experiment which they do not approve.

If scientists will do this they will greatly assist the general public to recognize exactly where responsible scientists stand in this complicated problem.

1967 Stamps Are Chosen

Hamilton Spectator

We note with great interest that Canada's centennial stamps are going to include pictures of such delightful sights as the Pacific coast replete with totem pole, the northern lights and a dogsled, and the St. Lawrence Seaway.

But what really excites our interest is the post office's decision to place the works of outstanding Canadian artists on higher denomination stamps, (8 cents to $1). How the postal department picked the artists is anyone's guess, but we can tell you right now there's going to be more than a tosspot in a tempest when snubbed artists get pens and vitriol in hand.

Artists whose works will be on the stamps are A. Y. Jackson, James Wilson Morrice, Tom Thomson, J. E. H. MacDonald, John Ensor, Lawren Harris and H. G. Glyde.

As it is obvious that the works of the honored artists will immediately leap sky high in value (one of Thomson's works in Hamilton is already worth at least $35,000 and should be able to get $100,000 within 15 years), those who missed out, and their collectors, will shriek with not only sounds of injured dignity.

NO ACTION ON TRAFFIC CONGESTION

CAMPBELLFORD — Councillor H. Dunk reporting for the police committee recommended that "no left turn" signs be placed at both ends of the bridge so that traffic congestion would be somewhat alleviated. Another suggestion was that one policeman be stationed at the ends of the bridge to control traffic for a month's trial period. No definite action was taken.

NEW RECREATION DIRECTOR

Mr. Gerald Ferguson was introduced to members of Council on Monday evening by Councillor Dunk as the first recreational director to be employed by the town. Mr. Ferguson has already assumed one phase of his work, and stated 340 children are enrolled for swimming classes for the month of July. He compared his work to that of a saleman, making contacts, arousing interest, discovering preference and then developing the preference.

"There is a lot more to recreation than sports and physical fitness," Mr. Ferguson said.

The government grants 33⅓ per cent of the recreation director's salary.

COUNCILLOR RESIGNS

Councillor Robert Kennedy tendered his resignation at Monday evening meeting. He has been transferred to another community. Council has taken no action to replace Mr. Kennedy as yet.

Deputy Reeve R. Locke was appointed chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committees in Mr. Kennedy's place.

INVESTIGATE DANGEROUS INTERSECTION

Dr. D. W. Burgess requested Council by letter to investigate and take action on a dangerous intersection at Saskatoon Ave. and Trent Drive. He suggested a traffic mirror.

Traffic in the particular area has increased because of Ferris Park and children on bicycles have been in danger. Clerk E. M. Ibey said at least 95 per cent of the drivers using the area know the hazard and only need to use common sense to control their speed. As the C.N.R. subway has been under survey it was decided to contact C.N.R. officials in regard to clarifying the vision at that intersection.

DOG CONTROL DISCUSSED

Control of dogs has been under discussion for several metings. Information was received from the O.M.B. regarding services which could be operated jointly by municipalities. These included a variety of services, but no mention was made in the act concerning the removal of dogs from one corporation to another for impounding. The police committee will meet with representatives of Stirling council with a view to hiring a joint control officer for the municipalities.

WILL TRAIN FIREMEN

In accepting the grant for the new fire truck Campbellford council agreed to recruit and train additional firemen under the E.M.O. plan at no cost to the corporation. This will be carried out during the summer and it is expected the recruits will be trained by early fall.

Council agreed the old fire siren should be retained, repaired and properly stored as an emergency siren.

The old bell from the fire hall tower was reported to be at F. G. DeCarroll Electric. The fire, water and light committee was instructed to have the bell taken to the fire hall and kept there. F. G. DeCarroll had previously installed the new siren. Chief Cork was requested to make a report to council, concerning the fire department, every six months.

PAYS BILL FOR FIRE FIGHTING SERVICE

A bill for $350 had previously been received from Rawdon township for fire fighting assistance given in March during a fire which destroyed seven stores on Front St. It was decided to pay the account with a rider to the motion that from now on only the Fire Chief or Deputy Chief would be responsible for asking for outside assistance. Council agreed with some reluctance to pay the account. Campbellford fire fighters have given their services free to Rawdon township on several ocasions before the establishment of a fire brigade in Rawoon township.

LEGION OPERATES AMBULANCE

Ambulance service in Campbellford ceased to exist on June 30th. Hastings Legion Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, which purchased a new ambulance recently, was asked to stand by over the holiday weekend.

They will be asked to meet with the Campbellford Council to continue the service until some definite arrangements can be made. The ambulance is operated by the Hastings Fire Department.

DELEGATION TO MEET TRANSPORT MINISTER

George Hees M.P., has offered to arrange a meeting of a delegation from Campbellford with Hon. J. Pickersgill in regard to a new bridge. This is the second time a delegation will have met with J. Pickersgill. The delegation is in favor of a low level bridge.

TO REQUEST SEWER CONSTRUCTION

As the corporation has signed all the necessary papers for construction of a sewage treatment plant, Council will ask the Ontario Water Resources Commission to lift the ban on sewer construction in the town. This mandate by O.W.R., has been in effect for some time and has prevented the building of houses in the town. There is a keen demand at the present time for accomodation for employers at the new security prison being built in the area, trainees at Joyceville prison, who expect to be employed here in the near future, are finding living accomodation difficult to get, reported Mayor Tanner.

THREE BY-LAWS PASSED

Three by-laws were passed at Council Monday evening. One was to hire a new policeman, W. George McIlmoyle of Bridgenorth, to bring the local police force to four men. The second was to purchase a new truck for the town, and the third was to provide supplementary expenditure under the Highway Improvement Act for roads and streets in Campbellford.

SEWER SERVICE REFUSED

Mr. A. C. Newman had asked at a previous council meeting to receive better sewer service on property on Isabella St. Council decided to take no action. Mr. Newman had, under direction of a professional engineer, installed his own service previously. Another house had been added to the area and Mr. Newman argued the service he had installed was now inadequate. Reeve Free was of the opinion that having installed the service without a permit, Mr. Newman had no recourse now. Mr. Newman argued that if he had made an error he was willing to take any steps to rectify it. Councillor Sharpe also opposed action. As sewer construction is now banned by the O.W.R., Mr. Newman was advised to make application for a sewer for later construction.

TREE-CUTTING DISCONTINUED

Discussion took place at the council meeting regarding the lighting on Trent Drive. When it was discovered the P.U.C. was cutting trees on the drive to place lighting poles it was decided to have the work discontinued. It will resume when and if a new motel is built on property on which Toronto businessmen have an option. The project depends on Council's approval of installation of sewer and water mains. The decorative element of trees instead of lighting poles in front of the proposed site was a consideration, so a suggestion was made to leave lighting of Trent Drive as it is until the building is decided upon.

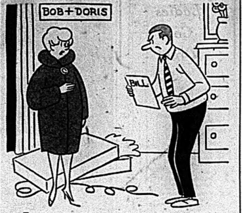
OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed



"Anything seems like a lot if you're going to use a ridiculous comparison, like your salary."

Sharp Proposes

leaders of the financial community.

W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said a proposal by Mr. Sharp to set up a new Crown company to insure depositors against loss in the unlikely event of a bank failure is a shock and "an unnecessary reflection on the Canadian chartered banks."

However, S. T. Paton, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and chief general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, termed the deposit insurance proposal excellent.

EXPLAINS PURPOSE

Mr. Sharp said the deposit insurance, which will cover other federally - incorporated deposit-taking institutions and will be available to provincially-incorporated trust and loan companies, should encourage creation of more chartered banks.

In ultimately freeing the banks from the interest - rate ceiling, which was seven per cent from the late 1880s until it was cut to six per cent near the end of the Second World War, Mr. Sharp accepted advice from the Porter royal commission on banking and finance and from the Economic Council of Canada.

He told the press conference he believes he has the solid backing of his Liberal party colleagues. Earlier there were reports that a dissident group, led by former finance minister Walter Gordon and former secretary of state Maurice Lamontagne, argued against lifting the ceiling for fear the party would suffer politically.

Mr. Sharp also announced he is calling a federal-provincial conference this fall to discuss consumer loan interest rates and full disclosure of effective rates to consumers who buy on time-payment plans.

Recommendations of a Senate committee on the subject, along with studies made by several provinces, will be considered by the conference.

OFFERS PROPOSALS

Of more specific interest to the banks were proposals to:

—Let them issue debentures for long-term investment by their customers;

—Allow reduced and more flexible requirements for holding cash reserves against their deposit liabilities;

—Require that banks disclose details of their inner reserves and profit and loss on investments.

The eight chartered banks will be prevented from holding more than 10 per cent of the voting stock of any other company, including trust and loan companies.

A director of one bank may not serve as director of another bank or of a trust and loan company.

Banks will be prevented from making agreements among themselves on interest rates charged borrowers or paid to depositors.

Mr. Sharp called his plan a blueprint for competition. He hoped there will be more flexibility in the rates the banks charge borrowers and pay depositors, and that rates will be more responsive to market conditions.

"I trust that in the next decade we will witness a significant modernization of our banking system," Mr. Sharp said.

Mr. Sharp did not specify the rate which runs from 5 to 5½ per cent.

The finance minister said he will drop a proposal by Mr. Gordon last year to allow new banks to be incorporated by letters patent, in the same way as ordinary companies.

He will require new banks to come to Parliament as now for special acts of incorporation. But he said he is willing to listen to further argument in favor of Mr. Gordon's plan.

Mr. Sharp is continuing a plan proposed by Mr. Gordon to limit the amount of bank stock that may be owned by an individual shareholder, particularly a foreign bank.

Mr. Gordon also proposed last year that provincial government pension funds be permitted to hold bank stock on a non-voting basis. Mr. Sharp said he is willing to extend this to include certain other government funds with a 10-per-cent limit for any one government.

SEEKS FLEXIBILITY

Mr. Sharp said he hopes his revision of the Bank Act will lead to more flexible interest rates, as competition is increased among the banks and with the near-banks. This competition should extend both to the interest rates the banks charge on bank loans, and the rates they pay for deposits.

"I do not believe that competition should merely extend to the quality of service. There seems to be more room for individual banks to differ in the nature of the services they render.

"For example, it is surprising that banks have experimented so little with variations of office hours. . . . I trust that in the next decade we will witness a significant modernization of our banking system.

"We are determined that the system shall operate in the interests of the greatest number of Canadian consumers and businessmen. We are determined, in particular, that the interests of the small borrower and the small businessman shall be protected and furthered."

The plan to insure bank deposits should help promote creation of new banks by strengthening them in the early stages of their development, said Mr. Sharp.

The banks will be permitted to make mortgage loans, as Mr. Gordon proposed last year. Mr. Sharp said the move should lead to lower mortgage rates through competition in the mortgage field.

Wife Is Shot, Hubby Charged With Murder

HAMILTON (CP)—A 27-year-old McMaster physics student was charged last night with the capital murder of his wife a few hours after she was shot to death in the couple's third-floor Herkimer Street apartment.

Oliver Robin Charlton, who came to Canada from England nine years ago to join the RCAF, was to appear in magistrate's court today.

Dead is his bride of seven months, the former Tally Ann Cook, 27, of Toronto.

Mrs. Charlton was shot several times through the head with a .22 calibre pistol shortly before 11.30 p.m. Police found the woman's body, clad in a nightgown, on a fold-out bed in the living room of the apartment.

Mr. Charlton was arrested at the house by detectives Keith Farraway and Lloyd Mikrka. He was taken to Central Police station where he was later charged.

FIND SHELLS

An autopsy was to be performed today. Police found eight spent shells in the living room and said the pistol was on the bed.

Mr. Charlton was in his second year of pass physics at McMaster. He was working at Canadian Westinghouse for the summer

His wife worked for the National Employment Services at McMaster. She has been with the employment services in Hamilton since 1963.

Charlton joined the RCAF in England in 1958 and was flown to Canada. He was discharged with the rank of leading aircraftsman in 1963.

He was born in Byford, a town in Hereford County, England, the home of his parents, the O. R. Charlton.

Charlton left the air force in 1963 and applied to attend McMaster in March, 1964. He was accepted and began school the following September.

Computer System Allows Hospital Personnel More Time to Care for Patients

MONTREAL (CP) — A computer-controlled system that will reduce administrative work and allow professional hospital personnel more time to care for patients was outlined at the Canadian Nurses' Association meeting Tuesday.

The automated information system is the joint project of Winnipeg's Royal Victoria Hospital and the University of Manitoba and currently is being financed by a federal government grant. Research was begun in January of this year.

The system, still in the planning stages, is expected to go into operation when the Royal Victoria Hospital moves into a new building in approximately two years, Mrs. J. K. MacLaughlin told the 1,500 nurses here for the July 4-8 meeting.

The Winnipeg woman, a research analyst with the hospital, said:

"It has been estimated it will only take approximately two hours of computer time per 24 hours to transact all of the hospital's business."

SAVES TIME

She said up to 50 per cent of time now used to administer medications, for instance, could be saved by this system.

The computer would check the dosage ordered, make sure there were no incompatibilities with other medications received by the patient, bring the inventory up to date for the pharmacist and so on.

Mrs. MacLaughlin said the legal implications of this and other procedures are not yet clear.

But the attorney-general's office in Manitoba has asked them to go ahead with the project and to come to them with definite proposals.

"They have indicated that a revision of some of the present legislation may be necessary to cope with the automated system." Project directors were trying to keep the system flexible so that it could be adapted to other hospitals.

She said the new mechanical operation will not mean that nurses have to understand the equipment "any more than you now have to understand your television set to operate it," but that it will change the role of the nurse and other personnel.

Abandon Natural Look For High-fashion Eyes

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — It's "Down with the natural look!" for high-fashion eyes this summer. You need something extreme to complement the blunt sassoon haircut and extremely short miniskirt.

This means black to underscore the eye, vivid shades or dark brown for eyeshadow and, of course, fake eyelashes, especially fur.

But elegant sophistication may be edging out youthful abandon again. Some fashion experts predict fall will return to a definitely ladylike mood. This will mean more subtle eye make-up.

But false lashes are here to stay. They really enhance the eyes and now are so well-made and easy to wear that it is often difficult to know if someone else is wearing them.

Eye beauty has been women's prime concern since the earliest times although in some periods, such as the Victorian, visible cosmetics were considered poor taste.

In Egypt about 5,000 years ago, women paid special attention to their eyes. Tombs from this period have yielded green and dark grey or black eyeshadow, made from powdered minerals. Both men and women painted their eyelids and eyebrows in Persia in 500 BC and the Greeks and Romans were partial to eye make-up too.

BRAINS WERE BEAUTY

Then came the Dark Ages as wild barbarians from the north and east swept across Europe.

All fashion disappeared, including make-up.

When culture was reborn in the 14th century, intellect rather than beauty was emphasized. A high forehead was believed to indicate brains, so women shaved off up to two inches of hair at the front and usually the eyebrows as well.

They used various concoctions to dilate the pupil of the eye—which often resulted in blindness.

Makeup was not "genteel" even after Queen Victoria's death, but mascara crept back into use. Early movie sirens, such as Theda Bara, used it and introduced the beady eye lash. But more than the minimum of makeup was considered "too bold" up to the time of the Second World War.

Fake eyelashes, long worn by actresses, became popular in the mid 1950s, and gradually won over even conservative Canadians. The new types are easy to apply and last several months.

LASHES NOW STATUS

One of the most important eyelashmakers is Eyelure of London, founded by two RAF veterans and now a worldwide organization which sold 500,000 pairs of lashes in 1964.

Fake eyelashes cost from $3.95 to $12.00 a pair, with mink lashes at the top of the scale—now a status symbol, like a wardrobe of wigs.

"When someone pays $12, she wants people to know she's wearing fakes," says Karen Ganter, Eyelure's beauty consultant in Canada.

Choice of eyelashes should follow the bone structure and the color of the eyes. Heavier bones and darker eyes need darker lashes.

They can be feathered to standard eyelash length with cuticle scissors, but professional help is best because the job is difficult.

The life of false eyelashes can be several months. They have to be removed every night, and cleaned with a waterdamp mascara brush — no cleaning fluid or soap. Too much fixative spreads and clogs the lashes, say the Eyelure people.

Vitamin C Really Counts In Juices

OTTAWA (CP)—It may be fruit juice, fruit drink, ade, nectar or punch and it may be frozen, liquid, concentrated, crystallized or powdered.

But what really counts is the vitamin C, says a bulletin from the food and drug directorate of the health department.

Fruit juice, a natural juice to which no water has been added, must conform to food and drug standards for composition. No vitamin C is added to orange or tomato juice because they have plenty already, but it may be added to other juices which are low in the sunshine vitamin, such as apple or grape.

Fruit drinks, as differentiated from juice, come in a wide variety but all must conform to certain labelling requirements.

For example, they must carry a list of ingredients in descending order of proportion. If the list reads: Water, sugar, fruit juice and so on, you know the largest proportion is water, followed by sugar.

If more than one fruit appears in the name of the drink, grapefruit-orange, for instance, the fruit named first must make up more of the drink.

If "vitamin C added" appears on the label of a fruit drink, a normal daily intake will give you a satisfactory amount of the vitamin. And since vitamin C cannot be stored in the body, you need a fresh supply daily.

The food and drug directorate plans to study fruit drinks further to determine whether more regulations are needed. It also keeps tabs on advertising to ensure no misleading claims appear.

Fried trout over a campfire is the outdoorman's dream of the perfect meal. Mary Moore has suggested a French influenced method for frying Brook or Speckled or Rainbow trout for those who have good luck.

Paper Dresses Popular

NEW YORK (AP)—Now you can paper your wife for the summer.

Her next bit of whimsy may come from a wood pulp mill.

A Brooklyn department store, Abraham and Strauss, introduced paper dresses recently and sold 1,800 in two weeks.

'It's quite phenomenal," a salesgirl said. "Some women are buying six, eight and 12 at a time.

"It started as kind of a novelty thing — the first in your neighborhood in a paper dress—but a kindergarten teacher wore one to class, and came back for more."

The crinkly, toss-away dresses, ranging in price from $1 to $10, are showing up in stores around the United States this summer.

The do-it yourself dresses come sleeveless, with patch pockets.

You can snip your own hems thigh-high.

You don't have to worry if you get caught in a thundershower or if someone flicks a cigarette. The dresses singe but don't burn, and get soggy but don't disintegrate.

How long they last depends on how dirty you are. They can't be washed or dry-cleaned.

PAN FRIED TROUT

It may not be orthodox but 15-year-old Kenneth's method of carrying brook trout was efficient. Years ago one morning at 5 o'clock my youngsters and I went with him along a mosquito-infested brook and he caught five to every one of ours. He would slip his catch in his deep pants pocket.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Braised Short Ribs of Beef; Hashed Brown Potatoes; Asparagus; Tomato Salad with Cress; Strawberry or Raspberry Shortcake; Tea.

When we returned to our campsite he would fish them out of his pocket, neatly clean them at the water's edge and then hand them over to me for frying. These trout were the finest and most delicious fish I ever tasted.

The nearest we can come at home to such fresh, out-of-doors fish perfection is to buy fresh frozen rainbow trout and make like a French chef.

Use this method for campfire fish or for cooking whole small fresh fish in your home kitchen.

TROUT A LA MEUNIERE

(serves 6):

2 pounds dressed trout (Brook or Speckled or Rainbow. If fresh frozen Rainbow, buy three 10-oz. packages. Ours cost 67c per package).

Salt, ½ cup flour, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ cup butter, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, oil for frying.

Thaw if frozen fish is used.

Wash and dry fish. Sprinkle body cavity moderately with salt. Sprinkle the flour on sheet of wax paper and coat each fish with it. Heat oil in frying pan or pans to ¼" depth. We needed two medium-large pans to hold our six floured trout. Cook fish over moderate heat for five minutes or until golden on bottom. Turn over and cook and brown other side about 5 minutes. Do not overcook trout. Test to see if flesh will flake. Remove fish to preheated platter and sprinkle evenly with the 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Pour off the clean, clear oil from frying pan into a small saucepan. Add the butter to it and heat until foamy. Pour evenly over fish, sprinkle with parsley and serve at once. We served these with mixed vegetables in onion cream sauce and crusty rolls.

The lemon juice soaks into the fish under the butter coating and no more lemon juice was needed at the table. These fish took 15 to 20 minutes to prepare from start to finish and were a treat.

Sunday School Picnic

WESLEYAN METHODIST

The annual Sunday School picnic of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church was held at Cove Beach on Friday in beautiful weather.

Upon arrival a fast-paced ball game was played. Bert Locklin's "Firebrands" went down to a resounding defeat from Roy Stevenson's "Whirlybirds" to the tune of 15 to 6.

Lunch, complete with hot dogs and ice cream for the children was much appreciated by all; for which appreciation is due Mrs. B. E. Elliott, Mrs. Ira Spearman and Mrs. Verna Hall.

Assistant Sunday School Superintendent Alex Glover acted as master of ceremonies for the games, with winners as follows: couples' egg throw — Rev. and Mrs. E. LeRoy; ladies' 16 and over shoe kick—Mrs. Marlene Neal; girls' 16 to 25 bean and straw race — Miss Eudora Denike; men's 16 to 25 blind hurdle — Mr. Steven White; balloon squash 12 to 15 years — Mary Hobbs and Stephen Elliott; siamese race, 10 to 11 years — Terry Coveney and Randy Neal; sore toe race, 7 to 9 years — Randy Neal; dash, 6 years — Cindy Neal; dash, 5 years — Barry Reid; egg on a spoon, open, ladies — Mrs. Vi Mitts; watermelon weight guessing — Harold Young and Cecil Wannamaker; largest family present — Donald Hobbs and Alex Glover families.

A refreshing swim brought the day's activities to a close.

Maori People Have Queen First Time

By EVELYN FALCONER

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — After five kings, the Maori people of New Zealand have a queen for the first time.

She is Queen Te Ata-i-Rangi-Kaahu (Soaring Bird of the Dawn) who at the age of 35 is married to a successful dairy farmer and is the mother of six children.

Her accession to the highest and most influential position among her people is expected to contribute to closer co-operation between Maoris and Europeans in New Zealand and greater social and cultural progress among the Maoris themselves.

There is need for wise, strong leadership for the Maoris, especially among the younger generation. Maori youths are steadily moving from rural areas to the cities, leaving behind the old traditions and the influence of their tribal "elders."

Such leadership is confidently expected from Queen Te Ata who succeeded her father, King Koroki, the fifth Maori king, on his death last May 24.

ATTENDED FUNCTIONS

In recent years, Queen Te Ata, as Princess Piki, represented her father on many occasions when poor health forced him to curtail public appearances.

Princess Piki escorted the Queen and Prince Philip to the Maori marae, or meeting place, at Turangawaewae, Ngaruawahia, in 1954, when the royal visitors paid an unscheduled visit to the area—a gesture greatly appreciated by the Maoris.

Now, as Queen Te Ata, she has shown signs of inheriting her father's wisdom and judgment. She is known to favor his policies, particularly for the removal of old grievances.

She received her education at public and Anglican church schools. She speaks both Maori and English.

The king movement was established by the Maori people of the Waikato province in 1858 when Chief Te Wherowhero was installed as King Potatau.

It was the direct result of disillusionment among the Maoris following the Maori wars and British confiscation of their lands.

Successful Living

Wife Refuses to Ride With Maniac Driver

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: Two years ago I had a legacy left to me which I promptly gave to my husband for a car. This was like a gift from heaven as we love to go picnicking and sightseeing. Instead, this gift has proved disastrous. My husband is a maniac behind the wheel.

He can't stand for a car to pass us and he has to be the first one away at every stoplight. He has already paid two speeding fines. No matter how much I plead with him, he tells me I must control myself as this is the only way to drive nowadays.

After a recent race with a freight train, I told him that until he changes his way of driving, I will not drive with him anymore. Up until now we have been a very happy family, but since I have taken this stand, it has stopped everything. I certainly don't want to create problems in our marriage, but what else can I do?

At least if I'm not in the car and something happens, I will be there to pick up the pieces. What will happen to our children if we get killed or are crippled for life? — PETRIFIED PASSENGER.

DEAR PETRIFIED: Bravo! Go one step further. Take driving lessons and request the use of the car half the time.

Then take out a large insurance policy on your husband's life; and flood the house with literature about safe driving techniques.

The problems you are creating in your marriage aren't in it with the kind he is creating. I know at least three families in which a mother has been widowed and left to raise her family alone because of such pig-headed, daredevil tactics.

DEAR DORIS: Can you help me? I am a 12-year-old girl who wants to make friends with my grade five teacher.

Please do not misunderstand me. I do not want to be all honey and syrup towards her. It is just that when you pass a teacher in the hall you generally get at least a nod when you say hi! Is it me who is doing something wrong?

I have never had any trouble making friends before. — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: Nor will you again. Teachers are people; some are new and shy; some are experienced and easy; some have so many classes and books to tackle they think about them all the way down the hall and don't even know you are there.

Wait until you get to know her better before you hold out for an answering "Hi!"

To CAN'T LIVE WITHOUT HIM: It's anguish to keep standing around a telephone that refuses to ring. And does it get you anywhere? Supposing you do really love your ex-steady but he doesn't love you? The sooner you free yourself and get on with living, the better; and he will come back if he is the right one.

* * *

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Among the most adorable baby antics: a little one flinging and fondling his feet. But foot-play is more than a delight to the sight . . . it's an important part of foot development and muscle coordination. It all starts with the flexing of legs at about one month of age. Gradually your baby increases his activity . . . curling and uncurling tiny toes, kicking, pushing, stretching. Know what? He's readying those exquisite extremities for the daring adventures of creeping, standing, toddling. Exciting? Yes, indeed.

Muscle development (and growth) is greatly aided by protein . . . one of the contributors to many body processes. Gerber Strained and Junior Meats are high in protein, easy to digest and ever so savoury. Made from carefully selected government-inspected cuts from which most of the fat has been removed, they're processed by a special method that preserves just-right flavours and assures their marvelous moistness and smooth texture.

Baby-style gymnastics. Exercise plays an active role in your baby's development, too. Early forms begin with kicking, squirming, arm-flinging, wiggling, etc. Good time to let your cutie-pie kick up his heels is just before his beauty bath. By bracing your hands against those lovely little feet and pushing his knees against his abdomen a few times each day, you'll help feet and legs sturdy up.

Meaningful menu ideas. Why vegetables for bonny babies? Well, primarily for the variety of vitamins and minerals they supply.

Gerber Strained and Junior Vegetables, like all Gerber Baby Foods, are "custom-cooked" to help preserve the precious nutrients so valuable to your baby's well-being. ("Custom-cooking" simply means that different foods require different cooking times and temperatures . . . and Gerber does just that to bring out the best in each variety.)

Pertinent point. Don't forget that yellow and green vegetables have a high vitamin-A value (carotene), with the green ones providing appreciable amounts of iron. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

The Experts Say

Quilting Skill To Resist Automation

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—One skill that seems likely to resist automation is quilting. It hasn't even been conquered by the machine age.

"To make a beautiful quilt you must sew every bit by hand," says Mrs. P. R.

The quilting makes the Treadway, who has made and supervised the making of hundreds of quilts.

quilt," she says. "A good quilter takes 12 stitches to the inch, but you're doing well if you get eight to 10. You cannot quilt accurately on a sewing machine; the layers creep and besides you don't want the chain stitching."

Mrs. Treadway, who learned the skill from her mother, has been a member of the Highland Creek Women's Institute for 52 years. Her 35-member branch made 600 quilts during the Second World War.

She is still helping them make quilts to be sold to raise money for projects in the community which has changed from farm country into an east Toronto suburb.

Mrs. Treadway says that after choosing your colors you can work from a prepared pattern, design your own pattern or let one grow willy-nilly from scraps that blend happily.

But if you're going to use scraps, be sure they're the same quality. If you use poor quality scraps, even in part of a quilt, they'll wear out and spoil it.

Some of those wartime quilts have worn badly because of inferior materials. She recommends broadcloth.

Altogether you need about seven yards of 36-inch material for the top and seven yards for the lining. You also need a ruler, marking pencil, a good pair of scissors, strong cardboard, quilting needles, batting and either a quilt frame or boards ond clamps to make your own temporary frame.

"You figure what design you want and then either cut your material into squares—properly called blocks — or into applique patterns. If you are making an appliqued quilt, use the heavy cardboard to out patterns for the applique.

"Allow one - quarter inch for seams when you sew blocks together or sew the applique on the quilt."

The stitching that holds together top, lining and batt—the quilting—can be done in straight lines or in elaborate patterns. Use the ruler and marking pencil or tailor's chalk to draw guidelines on the fabric.

Stretch the fabric on a quilt frame to hold it taut and in place while you work.

SET ON CHAIRS

A frame the size of the quilt can be made of four strips of wood each about four inches longer than the lining fabric. Use four clamps to hold the boards together and use kitchen chairs as horses.

Tack the lining on the frame, then put the batting and top on it and tack them to the frame so that two inches of lining shows all the way round. When you have finished quilting you fold the lining over the top and hem it to form the binding.

As you work from one end of the frame toward the other, loosen the tacks at the side, take off the two clamps and roll the cross-board away from you so that the finished part of the quilt is gradually rolled up and you never have to reach across yards of it to work. Then clamp the board in place again.

Mrs. Treadway says eight to 10 women can work on a quilt at once at the beginning, though unless they are about equally skilled, the stitching may vary.

When you have finished completely, take the remaining tacks out of the quilt, turn the lining edge under one-quarter inch and sew the lining to the top as a self binding so the stitches do not go through the back.

MR. AND MRS. ORONZO CATERINA

Caterina – Long

Mary Ellen, daughter of Mrs. John Francis Long of Frankford and the late Mr. Long, and Oronzo Caterina of Ottawa, son of Mr. Michael Caterina of Bitritto, Italy and the late Mrs. Caterina were married by Rev. J. F. McGarvey in St. James' Church, Stirling, on Saturday, July 2, 1966, at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. J. Clinton McGee of Whitby was organist and Miss Roseanne McAvoy of Stirling was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Harry J. Long, R. R. 3, Trenton, wore a floor-length gown of white silk over taffeta. It featured a sweetheart neckline and elbow - length sleeves, both bordered with ribbon lace. The A-line skirt, trimmed with two rows of ribbon lace down the front, fell from an Empire waistline, and the chapel train was bordered with ribbon lace and self bows. Her chapel-length veil was held by a white velvet flower-petal headpiece and she carried a bouquet of glamellias and stephanotis.

Mrs. Carl Pitman of Stirling was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Scott of Belleville, cousin of the bride, and the Misses Nancy and Dina Caterina of Toronto, nieces of the bridegroom. They were dressed alike in copen blue silk organza floor-length gowns with Empire waistlines and elbow-length sleeves with Alencon lace and blue velvet ribbon insertions. They carried bouquets of Shasta daisies and pink rosebuds.

Good Nurse Can Be Trained In Two Years Says Sister

MONTREAL (CP) — A Toronto nursing sister said Tuesday a good nurse can be trained in two years, rather than the usual three.

Mature women of between 30 and 50 years of age seem especially suited to such training, Sister Mary Herbert of St. Joseph's hospital said in an interview during the Canadian Nurses' Association meeting.

Her statement resulted from the experience of officials of the Quo Vadis nursing school. Students from this school carry out their practical training at St. Joseph's.

Quo Vadas was established in 1964 by the nurses' training committee of the Ontario Catholic Hospital Association. It was designed only for students of in the 30-to-50 age bracket whose education included Grade 12.

Sister Mary Herbert said Quo Vadis seeks particularly to attract married women with grown - up families, women ready to begin new careers. Single women of the same bent also were sought.

GRADUATE IN FALL

Sister Mary Herbert, a Roman Catholic nun, said the first graduation exercise at Quo Vadis will be held next September. Out of 20 students starting in 1964, 19 have earned their way into the last stages of training—a most encouraging result, she said. This was especially so in view of the average age of the students, 46.

Most of them are married women with children. Some are single and two are nuns.

Thirty students entered Quo Vadis in 1965 and 50 are expected to be enrolled when the new educational year begins in September.

The Quo Vadis students must satisfy the same standards of admission as do students in other Ontario nursing schools.

They attend the school on a 9-to-5, five - day - a - week basis with one month of summer vacation and a week off at Christmas. These arrangements are designed to give students time for a family life as close as possible to the normal.

TUITION IS FREE

Enrolment costs $50 but there are no other tuition fees. Books and uniforms must be paid for by the students, however, as must any costs of board and lodging at the school.

Sister Mary Herbert said the school is eliminating course repetitions and also repetitions in clinical training. This, she said, is the key to the shortened training period.

The students, being older than the usual groups of nurses in training, tend to be more serious and committed in their studies, she said.

Sister Mary Herbert said that in view of the success of Quo Vadis, it might be advisable to consider the entrance merits of potential nursing students with only Grade 11 backgrounds.

This woul allow more women to benefit from the new two-year course.

BLAMES FREE MILK

EXETER, England (Reuters) Free milk in schools was blamed by a doctor Tuesday for an overabundance of fat children in Britain. Dr. Michael Dale told the British Medical Association conference that "it is no longer the middle aged spread—it is the middle school spread." Dale's resolution opposing free milk in the schools was thrown out without a vote.

Must Update CWL Image

TORONTO (CP)—The image of the Catholic Women's League must be brought up to date, Mrs. Eldon Keon of Brydon, Que., president of the Ontario Provincial Council, said Tuesday night.

Mrs. Keon told members at the opening session of the 19th annual Ontario meeting of the league that "we are not just another fund-raising organization—it is what we do with the money we raise that is important."

She was referring to CWL work in education, welfare, social action and other fields.

Most Rev. J. R. Windle, Auxiliary Bishop of Ottawa and provincial director of the CWL, said clergy and laity must work as a team in implementing changes decreed by the second Vatican council.

"We are living in a post-council era and both clergy and laity must be patient in regard to necessary changes, which took long consideration on the part of council," he said.

DEAD MERMAID FOUND

DURBAN (AP) — The first mermaid ever found on the South African coast puzzled local natives at Umhlali. Oceanographic scientists later identified the eight-foot body as that of a dugong, the sea mammal said to have suggested the mermaid legend centuries ago. It was probably swept south by a hurricane.

Blind B.C. Girl Wants To Teach Sighted People

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Simon Groot wants to teach blind children. Her blind daughter wants to teach the sighted.

With that goal in mind, Mrs. Groot has enrolled at the University of British Columbia as a full-time student. Daughter Sherryn Ann, 22, blind since birth, has just graduated with a BA.

Mrs. Groot is already equipped in many ways to teach the blind. She taught Sherryn braille, having learned it first herself, and personally gave her daughter a Grade 1 education on the Groot farm near Edmonton.

The family then moved here so Sherryn could enrol in Jericho Hill School for the Blind. She attended the school until Grade 11 when she transferred to a regular high school.

"She adjusted extremely well and, equally important, teachers and other students adjusted to her," Mrs. Groot says. "She has always been most eager to learn and to do things that others do."

In high school Sherryn did her homework in braille, then typed it for the teachers, spending twice as much time on her studies as an ordinary student.

University presented few problems.

"I went with her when she enrolled and led her around the campus for two days," her mother says. "After that she was on her own. She does not even bother to use her cane on the university grounds now."

HELPED BY BURSARIES

Sherryn, who had bursaries each year, worked out her own braille system of shorthand.

Volunteers for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and other students helped with reading.

Mrs. Groot herself spent many hours reading to Sherryn and transcribed all her French texts in braille.

Sherryn now is going after her master's degree. Then she wants to become a teacher of sighted children. There's one large obstacle, however. She wants to enter the UBC faculty of education but it doesn't accept blind students.

"She really hopes to succeed where any other teacher would, and is convinced she could give lectures."

Ann Landers

Boy's Slumber Party No Place for Girl

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son Jackie is not quite 13 years old. He likes a girl who lives down the block. They have been going to school together since the kindergarten.

ANN LANDERS

A few weeks ago Jackie asked me if he could invite Lizette to sleep at our house. I was surprised at this request and told him so. He replied, "Why is it such a funny thing to ask? I have invited Johnny and Bill and Chuck over to sleep, and now I'd like to invite Lizette. We could watch TV and play records and talk a lot."

I mentioned our exchange to Jackie's father and he didn't know what to make of it. He suggested that I speak to a friend who is a child psychologist.

I asked this friend about Jackie's request and he explained that some children don't recognize the difference between boys and girls until puberty and that Jackie may be a little slow. He said we should not be concerned.

What are your views? — BAFFLED PARENTS.

DEAR PARENTS: Jackie is either a little slow — or a little fast. Regardless of which it is, a 13-year-old boy should not be entertaining a girl at a slumber party. Tell him to call Johnny or Billy or Chuck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 18-year-old daughter is pregnant. She insists that the father of her unborn child is in the Army and unable to marry her. A few weeks ago she said the father was in the Navy and already married. Before that she said the father was a prominent man in the community whose name she could not reveal. Frankly, I don't think she knows who the father is.

I am a widow and I have four younger children. I want this girl to go to a home for unwed mothers and give up her child for adoption. My daughter says she cannot bear to give her own flesh and blood and that the baby will give her a reason to go on living.

Ann, I am struggling to raise my own family without a husband and there are days when I don't think I will make it. I work at a dry cleaning plant and take in fancy ironing on weekends. My daughter has no sense of responsibility and if I agree to her plan, I will have to raise her child. Furthermore, I feel that it would be better for the baby to be adopted by a married couple who can give him a stable home.

I want your advice. — UPHILL FIGHT.

DEAR UPHILL: You are right and I urge you not to let this girl beat you into a corner.

Your daughter's "love" for her unborn child is a sick kind of thing — a mixture of self-pity and self-destruction.

The unwed mother who has a genuine love for her child wants him to have a good life in a socially acceptable environment — and this means both parents. Tell your daughter "no" — and make it stick.

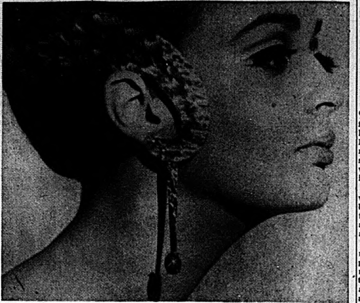
DEAR ANN LANDERS: A lovely tree on our property overhangs our neighbor's property. They built a brick platform for their picnic table and it cost quite a lot of money.

The birds that light in our tree make quite a mess on their picnic table and the neighbors want us to cut down the tree. We love that tree and we don't want to cut it down. What should be done? — PEORIA.

DEAR PEORIA: Obviously that picnic table is strictly for the birds. Your neighbors should have thought of the hazards before they invested in the blamed thing. They should move their table.



THE RICHNESS OF RUBIES — The lovely red of the ruby, especially flattering to brunettes, is expensive in its natural state but readily available as a synthetic stone or star ruby. Designed for high-fashion coiffures, this brushed-gold band sweeps across the back of the head, across the cheek and around the ear to end in a pendant earring of 11½ carats, a pigenblood red Linde star. The band is so flexible it can be shaped by the fingers when the coiffure is being created. (CP Photo)

Ruby Is Most Flattering To Dark Haired Women

By MARGARET NESS

Rubies mean war.

Supposed to contain a spark of fire from the planet Mars, named for the god of war, rubies are the birthstone for people born in July—but the color is more for fall and winter than summer.

The lovely red of the ruby is especially flattering to dark-haired women, but expensive. Still, imitation rubies are big in costume jewelry, often teamed with other stones or in a gold setting.

It's worth waiting until the fall, concentrating for the summer on pastels and the new fun-fashion papier-mache jewelry, before matching new ruby jewelry with burgundy colors for autumn and the continuing neutrals, even winter-white.

Because of its rarity and beauty, the ruby became royalty's most popular stone and was often collected by queens. Anne, the Danish wife of James I, spent $120,000 in 10 years on jewelry, mostly for rubies. She even had a belt of rubies in the form of roses.

Princess Charlotte of Belgium received a wedding-present of rubies when she married Archduke Maximilian of Austria and took them with her when he became Emperor of Mexico. When the revolution overthrew him she was in Europe, raising troops, and the rubies fell into the hands of a high-ranking Mexican family.

The family fled a later revolution, in 1911, and locked their treasure in the purser's safe aboard ship. The vessel sank in a storm and the rubies of the Empress Carlotta still lie there, locked in the safe, on the ocean floor off the United States coast.

On the other hand, rubies can be rich without being romantic. Napoleon gave Josephine a set as a consolation when he divorced her.

The ruby is a crystal, usually found in limestone rock. The best come from the Orient, especially Burma. Rubies were found in North Carolina and Montana in the late 19th century, but they were pale in color.

There are also false rubies, "balas" rubies called spinels, which were mined in great quantities in Afghanistan. Some ancient rubies, believed of great value, were later discovered to be spinels. The difference can be seen through a magnifying glass, because a true ruby displays two colors and a spinel only one.

One famous false ruby is that in Britain's imperial state crown. It was presented to the Black Prince 600 years ago by Pedro, king of Castille, and was believed to be a genuine ruby. Henry V wore it in his helmet at the battle of Agincourt.

Now we have man-made jewels as well. At the turn of the century a French scientist developed synthetic rubies for jewelled watch bearings and the Linde process was modified from this in 1946 to create star rubies and sapphires.

Powder is melted at 3,700 degrees Fahrenheit and it crystallizes onto a "seed" rod below in a carat shape called a boule. From this the star gems are cut, according to size. The whole process takes five weeks.

Last spring Linde Stars introduced jewelry for high-fashion coiffures. One of the pieces is a brushed - gold band that sweeps across the back of the head, across the cheek and around the ear, to end in a pendant earring of 11½ carats, a pigeonblood-red Linde star.

With it goes a golden bow, set with a large Linde star of 74 carats in pigeonblood red, with flat ribbons, so delicately made it can be shaped to fit a hair pouffe or curl.

Gretna Green May Lose Lot Of Business

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Gretna Green, Scotland's famous haven for eloping couples, may lose a lot of business now that the British Medical Association has recommended that persons should be allowed to marry without parental consent at 18 instead of 21.

For several centuries, the tiny village just inside the Scottish border has attracted a flood of teen-age couples escaping disapproving parents. Scotland's age limit is 16.

Earlier physical and mental maturity in boys and girls is the prime reason for the recommendation by Britain's authoritative assembly of medical men, announced Tuesday at its annual conference.

A BMA memorandum circulated among delegates meeting in Exeter says that by 18 "both boys and girls are physically mature and the majority of girls should be biologically capable of motherhood."

CAN ACT MATURELY

"At around this stage the chances of a successful conclusion to pregnancy improve rapidly, and in the opinion of experienced family doctors, most young couples of 18 or 19—other things being equal—discharge their duties of parenthood no less effectively than those in their early twenties."

The average age at which a girl now reaches puberty is 13. For a boy the average age is 15.

"The whole process of growth has been speeded up," says the BMA, which also recommends 16 as the age when boys and girls should be allowed to decide whether or not they want medical treatment.

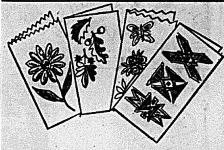
The doctors point out there are dangers in holding back adolescents who are ready to become adults.

The BMA recommendations will go to a special committee set up by the lord chancellor to consider whether age 21 should continue to be the entry to adulthood in Britain.

KIDDIES SHOULD READ

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations says school drop-outs could be reduced if children had more interest in books. The 18,000 families in the federation are working on a centennial project to increase children's reading through library displays, book fairs and information booths.

Susanna's Family Fare



Dear Susanna I have an original and utterly charming method for making appliqued or embossed hasti-notes, invitations, and gift cards.

Simplicity is the keynote. They turn out to be unique works of art, in spite of the fact that no special skill whatsoever is required to create them.

A trip to the "trims" section of almost any drygoods department will reveal a dazzling assortment of flowers, flying creatures and modern designs sewn onto narrow strips of material etc. These are the basis of the cards.

Sheets of heavy white or pastel paper may also be found there or in the art supplies shop.

With a pair of pinking shears, cut out an appropriately sized note and fold it to suit your purpose best . . . or scalloped edges can be made in a moment with straight scissors.

• • •

Now, for a beginning, you might choose a simple row of flower trimming. Buy a small section and cut out each flower. Glue one lightly onto the front of a note, wherever it looks well, and complete the picture with a graceful green stem and leaves.

Vegetable coloring applied with a fine brush is effective for the added art work.

Often, petite butterflies, birds and complete individual flowers are available in rows, all ready cut out. Some combinations are precious — i.e. a small butterfly hovering over a graceful flower. Sketching in a few blades of grass will add authenticity and attractiveness to the card.

I gave one hasti-not a fallish flavor by using a sprinkling of golden oak leaves (about four) in one corner.

A bridal shower invitation might have a few inches of shirred lace with tiny ribbon flowers sewn on to form a nosegay — with three of the tiny petals cascading down the page.

The precut outlines work out beautifully — the ones in rows, by the yard, are a little more trouble and do require sharp scissors. Don't attempt to use ones that are too thick as they look somewhat clumpy.

Try out a few designs or patterns first on rough paper.

There is no limit to what you may surprise yourself with! — Freda V. Ainslie.

An artistic and rewarding hobby for everyone! — Susanna.

Kingston Prison Inmates Promised Grievance Review

KINGSTON (CP) — Inmates who staged a sit-down demonstration at Kingston penitentiary Sunday night will have their grievances referred to Commissioner of Penitentiaries Allen MacLeod.

Hazen Smith, warden of the maximum-security prison, also promised the 250 prisoners a detailed review of their complaints by a board of inquiry at the prison.

The warden said he met personally with the inmates five times before they accepted his promise to review complaints, and returned to their cells Monday afternoon.

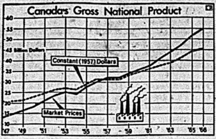
Warden Smith said the prisoners' main complaint was about pay.

PRICES TOO HIGH

"They say the prices of their canteen items have gone up, but their pay hasn't been looked at for four or five years. I can only refer that to the commissioner to consider, and that's what I will do."

He said the inmates receive 25 to 55 cents a day, part of which they are obliged to save.

About 250 of the 900 prisoners in the penitentiary remained outside their cells Sunday after recreation and spent the night on the baseball field.



GNP RISES — Canada's gross national product bounced upward during the first three months of 1966 to an annual rate of 55,712,000,000, from 51,996,000,000 in 1965. The report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, released Friday, covers the three months before introduction of budget measures designed to dampen the overheated economy. The GNP is the total value of all good and serviced produced. Graph also shows the rate in terms of 1957 dollars.

Two Vacancies To Be Filled

NAPANEE — Napanee is faced with two vacancies, one on the town council and one on the police force. At Monday night's meeting of the Town Council, resignations were received from Councillor B. F. Davy, and from Constable Tom McCrae.

Councillor Davy has moved to Deseronto, and for this reason felt he must resign. However the Council, reluctant to accept the resignation, passed a motion that the matter be put into the hands of the town solicitor to come up with a ruling.

Constable McCrae's resignation was accepted and is to become effective October 31. The town will advertise for a man to replace him.

The town may find it necessary to enlarge its police force still further eventually. For four weeks an experiment has been under way Friday and Saturday to solve the traffic snarls at the corner of John and Dundas St., and Centre and Dundas Street. No left-hand turns have been permitted at that time, and the traffic lights have been turned off, with an OPP officer hired by the town stationed at each intersection to direct traffic. The experiment has been so successful that Council will request the Department of Transport to establish this as a permanent feature. If this is permitted, Napanee will probably do something about having men enough on its own force to do the work.

Many Items Discussed at Council Meet

DESERONTO — Deseronto Town Council had a quiet meeting Monday night. Pearl Street and what is to be done with it, came up for discussion and action. This is a street allowance which had never been opened until now.

It was decided to have the street surveyed, and the lots surveyed and marked. The price of the lots led to considerable discussion, but was finally decided to be $200. Lots on Maple Avenue were priced at $100. Building lots in Deseronto are 66 feet by 132 feet.

Ideal Venders informed the council that its request for a larger watermain was withdrawn. This firm is planning to expand, and had been informed that for insurance purposes more ater would be required than is available at present. An alternative plan has been made which will cover its requirements, Council was informed.

A communication from the Department of Highays stated that signs would be erected on Highway 49 advertising the proximity of Deseronto, as part of the final layout.

Council is still waiting for final plans for construction of its sewer system. A letter from the consulting engineers, Hiser and Barrington, asked for further details.

A third streets employee has been hired, and the single application for the position of dog catcher and pound keeper, was referred to the police committee.

Council decidel to order 12 picnic tables, with benches attached. Twelve of these will be placed in Centennial Park, and two in the small park near the town hall. Councillor Albert Marks advised the council that the recently formed Deseronto Sports Organization had volunteered to assist in installing the playground equipment in Centennial Park.

A letter was read from the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board, advising that a meeting would be held July 6 to arbitrate the question of the school levy of Adolphustown Township, and requesting the attendance of Clerk - Treasurer Joseph Reynolds.

Congregational Meeting

FREE METHODIST CHURCH

NAPANEE — At the annual meeting of the Free Methodist Church last Friday evening, reports were presented and offficers for the church and Sunday School officers and teachers were elected or approved. The Rev. Ear. Bull, of Ottawa, superintendent of the Eastern Conference, was in attendance.

The congregation is small, but shows steady growth, as the report of the pastor, the Rev. Gordon Hammond pointed out. The average morning attendance was 77, an increase of seven over the previous year. The average evening attendance of 42 was an increase of two He reported a total of 547 calls for the year.

The Sunday school is growing rapidly, so much that two new rooms had been completed at a cost of $1,030, and there is still overcrowding. The enrolment is 123, with an average attendance of 87, as against last year's average of 74.

The financial statement was surprising in view of the fact that all funds are from free will offerings. There are no fund-raising projects such as bazaars, sales, or teas. The total was $9,823, of which $1,373.54, was for missions.

William Hughes is the superintendent of the Sunday School; Mrs. Margaret Wartman the secretary, and Mrs. Agnes Kirkpatrick the treasurer. A. C. Collins, with the assistance of Mrs. Lottie Wartman, teaches the Bible class. Among the other teachers and their assistants, and holding other offices are: Mrs. Helen Winter, Sandra Gregg, Mrs. Emily Haratchka, Mrs. Pansy Richmond, Mrs. Vivian Hughes, Mrs. Ruby McConnell, Lynda Nickle, Charles McConnell, Stewart McConnell, Mrs. Donna Wagar, Ted Winter, Mrs. Haxel Laraby, Joan Winter, Mrs. Edna Wright, Mrs. Mary Baldwin, and Mrs. Aliva Sedore.

A. C. Collins is the church secretary and Mrs. Helen Winter the treasurer. Mrs. Eleanor Gregg, Mrs. Sedore, Ted Winter, Stewart McConnel and Al Gregg are the church stewards. As trustees, William Hughes will serve for three years, Fletcher Sargent for two, and Charles McConnell for one year.

Mrs. Morna Hammond will direct the C.Y.C., and is on the committee together with Mrs. Al Greg and Mrs. Dn Kirkparick. F. M. Y. director is Stewart McConnell.

CNR Rapido Kills Motorist

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Harry Jeski, 43, of Plainville, about four miles north of here, was killed Tuesday night when his car and a CNR Rapido collided at a level crossing.

Jeski was thrown from his car when it hit the side of the Montreal-bound passenger train.

Frank O'Reilly, conductor of the train, said it took more than two miles for the train to stop after the collision.

Palestine Liberation Group Embarrasses Some Sponsors

Art: Combo, head-shoulders Hussein, Shukairy; newsmap refugee area. Mailed 29-6-66.

The Palestine Liberation Organization, representing 1,300,000 Arab refugees, has become an embarrassment for some of the Arab leaders who helped establish it. The political strength of the group is discussed in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By CARL MOLLINS

GAZA (CP) — The young man who joined the tour of Gaza refugee centres would have been barely old enough to walk when Palestine Arabs fled to this coastal enclave during the 1948 'Arab-Israeli war.

He seemed to embarrass the matter-of-fact Palestinian from the Gaza office of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency.

The youth bleated fierce slogans in good English about injustice, poverty and neglect.

The slogans were embarrassing because comment was superfluous in the dingy warehouse where fortnightly UNRWA rations were being spooned out among the crowded hovels of a refugee village or in the Canadian-donated maternal and infant-welfare clinic at Khan Yunis.

The uninvited commentator, one guessed, was an activist of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a body that is proving to be an embarrassment to some of its original sponsors among Arab leaders as well as to UNRWA.

The PLO was established two years ago at a congress in Jerusalem attended by King Hussein of Jordan, representatives of other Arab governments and about 400 delegates of the 1,300,000 Palestine refugees living in Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and the Gaza Strip.

LED BY LAWYER

The Palestinians proclaimed "the inevitability of the battle to liberate the homeland"—Israel — and elected lawyer Ahmed Shukairy, 60, Saudi Arabia's former minister of state, to lead them.

They approved a constitution that places the PLO in the vanguard of the battle, although responsibility for the recovery of lost lands "falls upon the entire Arab nation, governments and people."

Arab heads of government approved the establishment of the PLO at a summit meeting in September, 1964, at Alexandria and agreed to provide the organization with funds.

The PLO was not intended to be a government-in-exile and the governments of the countries where it operates try to keep the PLO on a tight rein. But Shukairy's organization has developed into at least a formidable pressure group that is causing alarm among moderates like Jordan's Hussein and perhaps among other Arab leaders.

The PLO has a military wing, the Palestine Liberation Army. It has a seat on the Arab League and representatives have been permitted to address the UN special political committee on Palestinian refugee questions.

The Palestinians have been seeking help directly from the Communists, engaging in the current fashion of playing off Russians against Chinese and getting aid from both. The PLO maintains an office in Peking.

DENOUNCED BY KING

Jordan's Hussein, for one, has made it clear he believes the Arab government leaders behaved like Frankensteins in creating the PLO. He finally broke publicly with Shukairy in June, denouncing the PLO in its present form as "a tool of destruction."

Shukairy reported in Cairo that Hussein has consistently withheld co - operation, refusing to allow compulsory military service for Palestinians in Jordan and barring PLA units from training on Jordan territory. Shukairy blamed Hussein for encouraging the increasingly frequent Israeli raids across the Jordan armistice line by failing to establish defences.

Jordan members of the PLA have joined training programs in the Egyptian-administered Gaza Strip. Conscription regulations introduced in Gaza last year provide for two years of military service for young men, 18 months for students.

Hussein is clearly worried that the PLO activity in Jordan could be turned against his own government. The 700,000 Palestine refugees in Jordan constitute 60 per cent of the kingdom's population.

AMERICANS PROTEST

With Egypt and Syria rallying allies against Arab conservatism as represented in King Faisal of Saudi Arabia—and by implication in Hussein—pressure could be exerted on the Jordan ruler through hostile activity among Jordan refugees.

PLO militarism also is causing anguish in UNRWA, a body that already treads a wary path among Middle East and international political pressures.

UN members, notably the united States have protested against UNRWA aid going to members of the PLA on the ground that this amounts to assisting a group dedicated to the destruction of another UN member, Israel.

American objections are especially important because U.S. contributions to UNRWA account for about 70 per cent of its budget—$23,800,000 out of total government contributions of $34,071,000 in U.S. funds last year. y contrast, Canada last year contributed $1,114,000 in U.S. funds, third most generous after the United States and Britain's $5,400,000.

The U.S. objections to UNRWA aid for PLA members are a further twist to a long - standing argument involving Palestine refugees about where humanitarian help ends and aid to warlike ambitions begins.

REFUGEES INSULATED

The Arab governments themselves have been accused of keeping the refugees insulated from a more wholesome life in the Arab world in order to keep their claims against Israel alive. Israel argues that Arab countries could easily absorb the Palestinians.

International agencies, caught in this crossfire of argument, are often prevented by polities from taking some obviously helpful action.

In the jgaza Strip, for example, Canadian troops with UNEF donated money to build the medical clinic in Khan Yunis. A clinic doctor estimates that the unit annually saves 300 refugee babies who otherwise would have died. Some of the survivors presumably are potential recruits for the Palestine Liberation Army.

On the other hand, a washed-out bridge in Gaza that could easily be rebuilt by Canadian UNEF engineers is left in ruins. Its repair by Canadians, the argument goes, would amount to UNEF supplying the Arabs with a facility of potential military use in a sensitive area.

MILITANT AND MODERATE—Ahmed Shukairy (left), former minister of state of Saudi Arabia, leads the Palestine Liberation Organization dedicated to "the inevitability of battle" with Israel. Arab moderates such as Jordan's King Hussein fear they may have created a Frankenstein monster in the PLO. Arab refugees in Jordan now are 60 per cent of the population.

North Vietnamese Bombings By U.S. May Bring Members Of Warsaw Pact Closer

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The United States bombing of North Vietnamese oil depots will bring members of the Warsaw Pact closer together at a time when Romania is nudging the Soviet Union for greater military independence for the pact nations.

The subject of military independence was believed to be high on the agenda of the seven active members of the Warsaw Pact, formed 11 years ago as Eastern Europe's answer to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But the launching last week of the American bombing raids on oil storage facilities in the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong, until then spared from U.S. attacks, will merely draw together the Warsaw countries in the face of the more dangerous turn of events in Southeast Asia.

The enlargement of the war in Viet Nam, with the threat of Chinese intervention lurking in the background, will overshadow to some extent the Soviet - Romanian differences on the future of the military structure of the pact.

TOP-LEVEL TALKS

The top - level conference is taking place at a time when the Soviet Union is having difficulty persuading some of her Eastern European allies to bolster their commitment under the eastern bloc umbrella, and Romania is stressing the desirability of breaking up all blocs—including NATO as well as the Warsaw Pact.

Romania, trying to assume a somewhat neutral position in Eastern Europe similar to France's role in the West, was obviously disturbed by the American bombings of North Vietnamese oil installations and has become more critical of U.S. actions in Viet Nam.

There were no visible signs of discord among the pact nations—the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania — when Romanian Communist party chief Nicolae Ceausescu welcomed the delegates to Bucharest Monday. Albania, an eighth member, has not participated in the organization since siding with China in the Chinese-Soviet ideological argument.

OFFICIAL WELCOME

But after the official welcome, Ceausescu was reported engaged for three hours in separate talks between his delegation and that of the Soviet Union, headed by Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

As things stand, the Eastern bloc may try to reach a compromise by having the Soviet Union agree to set aside its demands for a tighter command structure and by having Romania relax its attitude on the greater sharing of responsibility at the command level.

The apparent split between Romania and the Soviet Union on the future structure of the Warsaw Pact command appears less serious than the problems created when France's decision to stay out of the NATO integrated military command forced the withdrawal of American and Canadian forces from France.

The new developments in Southeast Asia therefore may be enough of a rallying cry to keep the Eastern bloc countries pulling together despite Romania's urge for a more independent military posture among Warsaw pact members.

Sharp Bears Brunt of Fire By Opposition

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition parties chose the shotgun approach Tuesday night to pepper the government's proposed Bank Act changes.

Finance Minister Sharp, who introduced the resolution which proposes raising the six-per-cent ceiling on bank - loan interest rates and eventually eliminating it, bore the brunt of the fire.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker set the tone of the attack. Rarely being specific in his criticism of the proposals, he blasted them for not following recommendations of the Porter royal commission on banking.

Mr. Sharp was flailed for not spelling out just how far he plans to raise the interest-rate ceiling and when he will do away with it entirely. The minister said the best guide was to fix the amount and timing to credit conditions and watch the average market yield on short-term government bonds.

As for the fine print, the minister said the bill based on the resolution would supply most of it.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew chortles as he read from newspaper reports of alleged Liberal caucus disagreement over the bank-loan interest removal. He painted a picture of Mr. Sharp and Walter Gordon, former finance minister, heading opposing factions within the caucus.

"Unity at any price is apparently the objective of the amendments that have been decided on." A great deal of "soothing syrup" had been applied.

UNHAPPY WITH REPLIES …

Uhappy with certain of Mr. Sharp's replies, Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said it was unusual for a minister to "skirt so carefully" around points.

Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands), his party's financial critic, saw the proposed amendments as a "dance of the seven veils." But when the seventh veil was removed no "naked intelligence" was apparent.

It was sheer nonsense and poppycock for the minister to talk about increasing competition among banks by freeing the loan interest ceiling. Everyone knew banks were a monopoly field.

Charles - Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste - Roberval) wanted the present six-per-cent loan interest ceiling maintained, possibly allowing an administrative charge on small loans. In any event, he said it was impossible to get a six-per-cent loan at present.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said banks now get around the interest ceiling with gimmicks. He also couldn't see anything in Mr. Sharp's statement that would heighten competition.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the proposals were designed to "bail the government out" of its internal party squabble. But the Conservatives "do not intend to be the pawns. . . ."

"They talk about weightlessness in space; we have it in the government right now."

Debate on the resolution was to continue today.

British Policy in Caribbean Flayed by Guyana Premier

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commonwealth Caribbean - Canada conference opens today minus one premier, but plus one ringing political speech by Forbes Burnham, premier of newly independent Guyana.

Mr. Burnham delivered a pre-conference tirade Tuesday night against British policy in the Caribbean to a small gathering of the capital's Guyanese community. He added a call for Caribbean unity to prevent the possibility of the area becoming a U.S. or Canadian satellite.

George C. Price, premier of British Honduras, decided to stay home because of political unrest arising from a long-standing dispute over Guatemalan territorial claims on the Honduras. The country will be represented by a delegation.

The other 12 chief ministers from Commonwealth Caribbean countries have arrived for the conference—first of its kind. The announced aim is to strengthen the ties that bind Canada and the developing English - speaking countries of the Caribbean.

Canada is anxious to promote more trade and to push for the development of the Caribbean countries as a unified trading partner.

URGE FREE TRADE

In addition to his criticism, Mr. Burnham made a strong plea for development of a free trade area in the Caribbean as a prelude to the long-term goal of political unity.

He said it was unfortunate the West Indies Federation folded in 1962. The time was ripe to think about getting together again.

The alternative is for the competing Caribbean countries to become a U.S. satellite or an appendage of Canada if Canada should some day develop a big-power complex, he said.

As for the British, they were foresaking the Caribbean after taking from their colonies all they wanted. However, Mr. Burnham said he noted the withdrawal without bitterness as it was the practical thing to do.

Mr. Burnham did not mention two controversial issues that appear certain to arise at the conference: a request for easing of Canadian immigration laws to allow more Caribbean people in, and more economic aid from Canada. It now totals about $10,000,000 annually.

The 30 - member Canadian delegation headed by Prime Minister Pearson—the conference chairman — is also expected to talk over with the 65 visitors the merits of joining the Organization of American states. None of the conference countries is in it.

TSE Called Well-Heeled Private Club by Member

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature Tuesday night greater use of scientific crime detection methods must be made to combat refinements in lawbreaking developed by the underworld.

In other legislature business:

—Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said the Toronto Stock Exchange cannot long withstand public criticism that it is a sophisticated and well-heeled private club.

—Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart said talks between Ontario and Quebec on floor prices for milk used in manufacturing have been resumed.

—Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) said the government had done nothing to update ridiculous liquor laws, change archaic divorce laws or revise injunction practices in labor disputes which he said were based on laws of 300 years ago.

—J. Wilfrid Spooner, municipal affairs minister, said municipalities should use power they already possess to control street sales of ice cream. The house passed a private bill earlier in the session for North York township permitting it to pass bylaws to prohibit street sales from vehicles.

—Mr. Wishart said the attorney-general's laboratory will be renamed the Ontario Centre of Forsenic Sciences in keeping with its expanded role as the scientific part of the war against crime.

Introduling his department's spending estimates for the current fiscal year, Mr. Wishart said: "We must encourage police forces throughout the province to rely upon the evidence which may be obtained with all of the procedures available through scientific crime detection."

He also said he was asking the house for enough money to add 10 more probation officers to the province's probation service. This would bring the number of officers to 200.

He also reported that his department's used car dealers section had refused 11 applications for dealers' licences and now is considering 66. The section has been in operation for a year.

Power Struggle Shaping Up For Teamsters

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James R. Hoffa kept other Teamsters Union officials in the dark today about whether he will keep his promise to resign as president of the giant union if he goes to prison.

"He wouldn't resign if he had two machine - guns pointed at him," snorted one member of the powerful Teamsters executive board which Hoffa so far has kept from open rebellion.

"He's made that commitment and I think he will," said another board member of Hoffa's promise to quit if he loses appeals on his federal jury tampering and mail fraud convictions.

The question is crucial in the power struggle shaping up amony the 13 Teamsters vice-presidents despite Hoffa's denial of any dispute in the union hierarchy.

PREPARES FOR CHANGES

Hoffa prepared today for constitutional changes increasing his salary to $100,000 from $75,000 a year, authorizing the union to pay his huge legal expenses and empowering him to assign his duties to a new general vice-president if he is jailed.

Despite the outward appearance of solidarity at the Teamsters convention, the private grumbling in the union's top echelon grew louder over Hoffa's open attempt to keep control of the world's biggest and richest union by one means or another.

Hoffa said in the past he would resign if he goes to prison to serve any of his 13 years in pending prison sentences, put the proposed constitutional changes would not force him to step down.

But he'll be as dead as yesterday's headlines" if he goes to prison, one high union official said.

Kingston Man Posed as Son Of Minister

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Details of how a Kingston man posed as Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's son to pass a worthless cheque at a clothing store came out in court Tuesday.

Sentence was suspended on a false pretences charge.

The story as admitted to police by Larry Wayne Selby, 21, went as follows:

Selby phoned the clothing store to say the finance minister's son would be coming in.

In a second call, he said he was a provincial police officer and asked store employees to give the son every assistance.

A short time later Selby arrived at the store, purchased about $11 worth of clothing, paid for it with a $25 cheque and took the difference in cash.

The cheque, drawn on a Toronto bank, was signed Neil Sharp. On the back was written: "Care of the Right Honorable Mitchell Sharp, 199 Buckingham Dr., Toronto."

CALLED POLICE

The suspicious store manager called police after the transaction and Selby was apprehended.

Mr. Sharp has a son, Noel, who lives in Vancouver.

In a statement to police quoted in court, Selby said he had twice run away from a Kingston hospital where he had been sent after suffering a nervous breakdown.

The second flight took him to St. Vincent, N.Y., where he had a small bank account. With the money from the account, he went to Vancouver in an unsuccessful attempt to find work.

He hitch-hiked to Calgary and landed in Sault Ste. Marie after a bus trip that left him with only $4 in his pocket.

The cheque scheme was prompted by a desire to get enough money to return to Kingston, probation officer William Ellis told the court.

Magistrate Clifford Boy suspended sentence providing Selby promised to pay back the clothing store and that he remain in Mr. Ellis' custody until the parents could come and get him.

Finance Minister Sharp Explains Proposed Revision Of Bank Act in Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp had a 5,000-word speech ready to explain his proposed revision of the Bank Act when he faced the Commons Tuesday night.

Commenting on his plan to raise the six-per-cent ceiling on bank loan interest rates, Mr. Sharp said the ceiling now is too low in relation to other interest rates.

But to remove the ceiling now might cause disruption in financial circles. The bill would provide for "an objective test" under which the ceiling would be removed when credit conditions become easier. Meantime, the maximum rate should be adjustable to reflect changes in the general level of interest rates.

Mr. Sharp said the Porter royal commission on banking and finance and the Economic Council of Canada both recommended removal of the six-per-cent ceiling on bank-loan interest rates.

"The present bank interest ceiling which appears to some to protect the smaller borrowers in fact only protects those who are fortunate enough to be able to obtain bank credit, and forces the others to seek funds from other sources at higher cost."

CREDIT TIGHTER

Since last year, credit conditions have become tighter and other interest rates have risen to that the six-per-cent ceiling has caused inflexibility, he said.

"Bank loans are in fact being rationed. In practice, this means that larger borrowers who could and should be seeking funds in the market are obtaining funds from the banks which would otherwise be available to the small borrower."

It would be unwise to remove the ceiling completely now, "because the transition to unrestricted competition under present abnormal conditions could be abrupt and substantial, and might well cause serious apprehension."

So the government proposes "an objective test, in accordance with which the ceiling on interest rates will be removed when credit conditions have become substantially easier. . . .

"In the meantime, however, we feel the maximum rate should be adjustable to reflect changes in the general level of interest rates, which will help to reduce some of the distortions and injustices produced by the present rigid ceiling."

GEARED TO YIELD

Mr. Sharp said the maximum rate of interest the banks may charge on bank loans will be geared to the average market yield on short-term government bonds. But in answer to opposition questions as to how this will be worked out, Mr. Sharp said the House should wait for introduction of the bill itself.

SENTENCE PERFORMER

TORONTO (CP)—A 22-year-old Toronto tight rope walker was sentenced Tuesday to 2½ years in penitentiary for theft of $10,000 worth of merchandise from the T. Eaton Co., where he worked. James Michael Cochrane was arrested last month four hours before he was to give his first high-wire performance since he broke both legs last July in a 40-foot fall at the police games.

Sen. Kennedy Family Visit Jasper

CALGARY (CP) — U.S. Senator Robert F. Kennedy, his family and some guests flew to the Rocky Mountain resort centre of Jasper, Alta., after a brief airport stopover here Tuesday night.

One of Sen. Kennedy's first concerns on meeting city and Calgary Stampede officials was to discover where he could spend some time fishing and camping.

Accompanied by his wife and seven of their nine children, he was to return to Calgary Friday night. He is scheduled to open the six-day Calgary Stampede Monday.

As the party changed aircraft, they were presented with white cowboy hats by Mayor Jack Leslie. The children got western string ties.

The senator has been invited to attend either a barbecue or a football game Saturday and a pre-stampede breakfast thrown annually by Senator Harry Hays of Calgary Sunday morning.

Kennedy's host is newspaper publisher Max Bell of Calgary.

SPORTS SLICES

The Grim Reaper, drooling for the kill, took time out from his holiday traffic and drowning repast to claim another victim from the ranks of the world's best unlimited hydroplane drivers.

Appetite unsatiated by a triple capture of three lives in the President's Cup race on June 19th, Death reached out a deadly tentacle to snatch the life of Chuck Thompson a 52-year-old veteran of the rooster-tall waterways on the Detroit River on Sunday afternoon.

Four tragic deaths in two weeks emblazoned a new record in the Reaper's black book of achievement.

The three killed in the President's Cup race were Rex Manchester, Ron Musson and Don Wilson, the latter a former Maple Leaf Trophy limited record holder.

Thompson's death had a strange ironic twist. His boat "Smirnoff" disentigrated a short distance from where a former driving buddy, Bobby Hayward met his death driving "Miss Supertest II" in the Silver Cup race of 1962.

And, strangely enough, Death did not depart too much from his lethal format in the deaths of Hayward and Thompson.

Hayward, roaring over the wind-chopped water of the Detroit River, neared a turning buoy slightly to the rear of two boats battling for the lead.

Too late he saw the turn as the leading boats veered to round the buoy. Hayward rather than crashing into one of the other boats pulled "Miss Supertest" sharply to the right hoping to clear the starboard competitor.

The Canadian boat hurtled the other and crashed. Hayward died in the cockpit as he was whipped against the craft's control board.

Thompson had won every unlimited hydroplane honor except the Gold Cup and the Harmsworth Trophy. Like Hayward he rode the cement-hard chop of the river in a dare-devil effort to grab the lead.

His fatal move on Sunday was such a chance. Stamping on his throttle he shot through an opening between "Miss Tahoe" on the outside and "Savair's Probe" on the inside. As he passed "Savair" and came within feet of Tahoe his sleek Allison-powered bullet caught a swell at the wrong angle.

The 6,500 pound craft catapulted into the air like a feather, twisted and fell, a sponson pointing to the choppy water. The touch and Smirnoff fell apart spewing metal and wood. Thompson strapped to his seat never moved. He lived for an hour never regaining consciousness.

Thompson, dubbed "one of the best, driver and personality" in the Harmsworth Trophy races of 1960 - 61, was well-known to the pits and press of those nautical world series. He was the first to shake hands with Hayward after the thrilling victories of "Miss Supertest III."

Generous to an extreme as far as sportsmanship is concerned, Chuck told us after Hayward's 1960 victory, "We Americans will never beat that boat unless we can steal her power plant."

Tough hard-driving Thompson was an inspiration to every young boat driver on the unlimited circuit. He was one of Hayward's heroes. He wouldn't stand for careless or stupid driving and if caught someone at it he would deliver a biting tongue-lashing.

And so four new members grace the ranks of the valiant of speedboat Valhalla. There will be more. Men must race — and die. It cannot be different.

Racing buffs of the Bay of Quinte area twice have felt the shock of Death's impact. The first was that grand old man of speedboating "Pops" Cooper who was fatally injured in the mid-thirties on the original Picton course. Then came the tragic passing of Hayward.

"Pops" had no fear of the "big boys." He pitted his 135 cc boat against the best. He roared over the start-line ahead of the field when the Grim Reaper struck. "Pop's" boat struck a swell, up-ended, somersaulted and crashed hurling the veteran into the water fifty feet away. He suffered head injuries and died in a Syracuse hospital the next day.

"Pops" raced for the thrill of victory. He loved racing for the sport's sake and recked not the financial cost or reward.

Previous to his untimely passing he raced in a Belleville Rotary-sponsored regatta off Massassaga. On the far straightaway Pops boat struck a wind-tossed wave and dived to the bottom in 35 feet of water and eight feet of mud. Pops was thrown out of his boat uninjured.

Rotarian Lloyd Hicks in charge of the event assured Pops he would retrieve the boat and its power plant worth at that time some $8,000.

"Forget about it," said Pops, a big smile lighting up a wrinkled face, "I've got four more like it at home."

However Lloyd kept his word and "rescued the craft and engine."

Pops was appreciative. A short time later the Rotary Club received a substantial cheque for its crippled kiddies fund.

Koufax Sets Sights On "30" Target

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax is halfway to a 30-game season.

Koufax gave up 10 hits Tuesday night but won his 15th game as Los Angeles Dodgers edged Cincinnati Reds 1-0.

Koufax' victory gave him No. 15 earlier than ever before. En route to a 26-victory season last year, the 30-year-old left-hander posted his 15th July 11.

The Dodger ace now has three losses, 15 complete games in 20 starts, three shutouts and a 1.51 earned run average.

Meanwhile, Woody Freeman pitched his third shutout as Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Chicago Cubs 6-0. The 23-year-old southpaw now has a 7-3 record and a 2.33 ERA.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals stopped San Francisco Giants 3-1, Philadelphia Phillies defeated New York Mets 3-1 and Atlanta Braves downed Houston Astros 9-4.

HELD ONTO RUN

The Dodgers got Koufax a run in the second inning, and he protected it the rest of the way. Jim Lefebvre walked, raced to third on John Roseboro's single and scored as John Kennedy singled. Jim Maloney suffered his fourth defeat against nine victories.

Billy Williams got all three Chicago hits off Fryman, who stopped Ron Santo's hitting streak at 28 games. Donn Clendenon hit a two-run homer for the Pirates while Jose Pagan collected three doubles and drove in two runs.

Al Jackson pitched a two-hitter as St. Louis cut San Francisco's lead over the Pirates to 1½ games. Jackson (8-6) retired the last 16 batters in a row. Tim McCarver homered for the Cardinals, and Lou Brock stole three bases and scored a run.

Philadelphia's Larry Jackson pitched a six-hitter and doubled home two runs against New York. His clutch double in the sixth put the Phillies ahead 2-1, and he scored the third run on a single by John Callison. Ed Kranepool drove in the Mets' run with a sacrifice fly.

Joe Torre batted in two runs with a homer and scored three times as Atlanta won its fourth straight. Torre led the attack against Houston's Mike Cuellar, who suffered his first setback after winning six games. Dave Nicholson homered twice and Jim Wynn once for the Astros.

Four In Fifth Won It

Madoc Clips Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Madoc climbed on a sore-armed Pat Maracle for five early runs on their way to a 6-2 Belleville and District Softball League win over Trudeau Motors at Alemite Park last night.

Madoc used the victory to climb into a fourth place tie with Picton. Both clubs are two points back of Ellis Juniors, who play in Picton tonight.

An error, walk, Griffin's base hit and Masters' steal of home shoved the visitors ahead 1-0 in the first Trudeaus loaded the sacks with none out in the fourth and managed only one run, with a walk forcing in the lead man after two were out.

Madoc won it in the fifth with four markers. Atkinson had an infield hit to ignite the rally and Kramp bunted for another safety. Brian Gray grounded toward first but Drake's throw to third for the force got away from Chatland and two runs scored LeSage grounded out to plate another and Masters crashed a home run for a 5-1 lead.

Maracle hung in until the seventh, with little effectiveness. He gave up six of Madoc's eight hits, fanned one and walked a pair. Outfielders Ralph Plane and Larry Soule made a couple of outstanding plays to rob Madoc of at least three other hits. Bob Green, in his first appearance, hurled in relief, striking out six and passing none over the last three frames.

Madoc got to him for a run in the eighth. Griffin singled to deep short, was safe on an error at second and came home on Hughes' single. Soule was ejected for words directed at base umpire Horne in the inning.

Mavety blooped a triple and scored as Phil Bennett grounded out in the Trudeau ninth but that was it.

Larry Griffin pitched the victory despite 10 Belleville hits. He struck out eight, walked five and hit another, but was tough in the clutch.

Len Masters, with his home run, single, steal of home and a sparkling catch, spearheaded the Madoc victory march. Larry Griffin rapped two singles, Bill Hughes, Scott McMurray, George Atkinson and Darryl Kramp one each.

Larry Mavety had a triple and two Trudeau singles while Larry Soule and Stu Muirhead each singled twice. Bob Wannamaker, John Baker and Pat Maracle had the others.

Cementmen Strengthen Loop Lead

The surging Point Anne Cementmen gave themselves a little breathing room at the top of the Commercial Softball League standings last night.

They clipped Lightfoot Construction 7-6 for their 11th. victory in 14 starts. The Cementmen are four points ahead of second place Stewart Warner and still have games in hand on every other club.

Lightfoots trailed 5-1 and 7-3 and blew a chance to win it in the last inning. In the bottom of the seventh they scored twice. Vincent tripled and Smith doubled him home. Two walks loaded the bases and a hit batter forced in another run.

Murray popped up for the first out. Les Hall forced the lead man at home and was doubled up at first to end the game when he failed to run out his ground ball.

Mike Cook was the winning pitcher but needed relief help from Ron Maracle in the seventh. Cook gave up eight hits, fanned three and walked one while Maracle passed three.

Don Smith threw five-hit ball in defeat, striking out four. Poor control cost him nine free passes and the club erred four times.

Gerry Maher hit a three-run double for the league-leaders. Vern Whalen had two singles, P. Genereaux one and Tom MacDonald a two-base hit.

Frank "Shiner" Murray and Jack Gaby got two Lightfoot singles each. Les Hall hit a two-run homer and Don Wood a sole circuit blast. Gerry Vincent tripled and Don Smith doubled.

May Lose NHL Support

'Busher', Cook In Kingston 'Hall'

KINGSTON (CP)—The International Hockey Hall of Fame, which opened here last summer, got the jump on the rival Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto Tuesday by admitting the late Harvey (Busher) Jackson and Fred (Bun) Cook.

Jackson, who died June 25, was a member of Toronto Maple Leafs' Kid Line which also included Charlie Conacher and Joe Primeau. Although Primeau and Conacher are both in the Hockey Hall of Fame, Jackson has been frequently turned down and his latest rejection this summer sparked a public outcry.

Cook, who earns a living running a city parking lot in Kingston, was on a line with his brother, Bill Cook, ad Frank Boucher which formed a top unit for New York Rangers for 10 National Hockey League seasons starting in 1926-27. Like Jackson, Bun is not in the Toronto hall.

Unlike their linemates, both Jackson and Cook came out of hockey nearly penniless.

HAD SAME ROSTER

The Kingston Hall of Fame, a little-known edifice which attracts few visitors, had the same roster as the more successful hall in Toronto until Tuesday. The naming of Jackson and Cook, however, was done at the risk of losing the NHL's support.

"Some people may feel this is second hand, putting him (Jackson) in now," said Wally Elmer of Kingston, a member of the International Hall of Fame executive. "I personally feel sick that he wasn't admitted by the selection committee before he died."

Magistrate James B. Garvin, the international hall's president, said the election of Jackson and Cook was delayed "by the selection committee. We regret it was not done during Harvey Jackson's lifetime."

A hall of fame had been planned in Kingston, which claims to be hockey's birthplace, since the early 1940s. The NHL donated $7,500 and played four exhibition games in aid of a hall. Contributions also came from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Ontario Hockey Association. Public subscription swelled the building fund which a few years ago reached $78,000.

But no building was constructed and in 1953 plans were announced for the hall in Toronto. The NHL, CAHA and OHA demanded their money back, but Kingston residents refused and the building was finally completed last year.

Angels Take Tiger Ace From Tank

Nip Detroit 4-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Adcock and Lew Burdette, California Angels' two leading senior citizens, worked Detroit Tigers over Tuesday night and handed young Denny McLain his first loss in over a month.

Adcock walloped a three-run homer, his third in three days, and Burdette slammed the door on Detroit rallies in the eighth and ninth innings as the Angels whipped the Tigers 4-3.

Both of the elderly Angels started the game on the bench. Adcock got into the line-up in the fourth after Norm Siebern hurt his right leg running out a single. Burdette was in the bullpen until the eighth when starter Dean Chance and reliever Minnie Rojas ran into trouble.

Adcock, who at 39 is playing in his 17th major league season, hammered his 10th homer of the season in the sixth. That gave the Angels a 4-0 lead but the Tigers fought back, knocking out Chance in the eighth.

LEW NEARS 40

Rojas came on and gave up a run-scoring single to Norm Cash before Burdette, who'll be 40 in November, retired Al Kaline, ending the threat.

Burdette, who starred at Milwaukee for 10 seasons with Adcock, got into a jam in the ninth when Paul Schaal booted Bill Freehan's two out bouncer and Don Wert singled. But he got Jake Wood on a grounder, ending it.

In the only other American League games Tuesday, Boston Red Sox ripped New York Yankees 7-1 as Darrel Brandon won his first major league game, and Minnesota Twins edged Cleveland Indians 4-3. Chicago and Washington were rained out.

Burdette, a free agent pick-up at the winter meetings, has a 4-1 record in 32 appearances. He has a 3.27 earned run average.

McLain, 22, who hadn't lost since June 4, was the victim of Adcock's homer, the 21st he has allowed this season. The Detroit ace, who was three when Burdette and Adcock broke into professional ball, lost his fourth game in 16 decisions.

Brandon, making only his second start for the Red Sox, pitched a six-hitter and contributed a triple and a single to the Boston attack against the Yankees.

Rico Petrocelli drove in three runs on three hits including a homer and George Smith tagged a three-run shot.

Ted Uhlaender doubled home the tying run for the Twins in the seventh and Harmon Killebrew's sacrifice fly brought home the winner as Minnesota edged Cleveland.

Tony Oliva whacked his 16th homer for Minnesota while Rocky Colavito and Chuck Hinto connected for the Indians.

BOSTON (AP)—Eight young pitchers, including four chosen for the first time, were named today to the American League All-Star team to face their National League counterparts i in the annual baseball classic tional League counterparts in Minnesota manager Sam Mele, who earned the honor of leading the American All-Stars by piloting the Twins to the pennant last season, picked four right-handers and four left-handers with an average age of 25.

The right-handers are Gary Bell of Cleveland Indians, Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers, Jim Hunter of Kansas City Athletics and Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees. The southpaws are Sam McDowell of the Indians, Steve Barber of Baltimore Orioles, Jim Kaat of the Twins and Pete Richert of Washington Senators.

McLain, Kaat, Barber and Hunter were named to the team for the first time. McDowell was the losing pitcher in a 6-5 defeat by the National League last year. He was nicked for the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning.

Bell was tagged for two runs in three innings in 1960, while Stottlemyre did not see action as a member of the AL squad last year.

Bell is 29, Hunter 20, McLain 22, McDowell 23, Stottlemyre 23, Richert 26, Barber 27 and Kaat 28.

McDowell has a 6-2 record, but has been sidelined much of the season by arm trouble. Stottlemyre has a 7-9 record.

McLain is 12-3, Barber 9-2, Kaat 10-6, and Bell 8-4.

Hunter, who hasn't had much time to spend his $75,000 bonus, is 8-6 as a major league sophomore, while Richert, a National League castoff, owns an 8-8 record.

Ontario Amateur

Many Golfers Qualify

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Graham Cooke of Cooksville was the low qualifier with a four-under-par 68 Tuesday as golfers across the province swung for the right to play in the Ontario Amateur Golf Association championship at Toronto July 26-29.

Cooke, who led 46 qualifiers in the west-central qualifying round at Brampton Golf and Country Club, was closely followed by Ian Thomas of London, Ont., who had a two-under-par 69.

Thomas, playing on the London Highland club's course, led a field of 18 qualifiers in the far west section.

Ben Kern, also of Cooksville, was two strokes behind Cooke, Ontario junior champion.

John Ellison and Bob Linnen of Toronto tied at Brampton at 73.

COMES CLOSE

Ken Doig of Seaforth finished one stroke behind Thomas at London. Jim Walte of St. Thomas and Larry Bissell of London tied for third place at 72.

Tom Krakenberg of Coburg led east-section qualifiers by shooting a two-over-par 74 at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country club in Belleville.

The five golfers who played in the northern section all qualified, led by Dave Morland of North Bay with a 75. Frank Zidar of Kirkland Lake and Aubrey Lalonde of North Bay tied at 77. Ron Silver of Sudbury and Phil Mongeon of Kirkland Lake had 79.

At Cherry Downs golf club in Toronto four players tied the low score of 73. Jack Brown, George Cass, Al Paterson and Bob Heath, all of the Toronto area, led 22 other qualifiers.

In Dundas there was a three-way tie as Ross Pollard of Guelph, Al Billyard of Fonthill and Peter Hutchinson of Dundas all shot a 72.

Bill Bell of Brantford and George Stokes of Niagara Falls tied at 73 to lead 13 other qualifiers.

Five Make The Grade At Quinte

Five of a field of 13 golfers qualified in the Eastern Sectional district for the Ontario Amateur Championship here yesterday.

Tom Krakenberg of Cobourg led the quintet with a three-over-par 74 over the Bay of Quinte Country Club course.

Others qualifying were William Bowen, Peterborough, 75; Doug Robertson, Trenton RCAF, 78; David Kerr, Bowmanville, 78 and Richard Gay, Bowmanville, 78.

Roger Ling of the Bay of Quinte missed the select group by a stroke carding a 79. E. B. Skuce also of Quinte shot an 81.

Other scores were: — Lou Garrison, Picton, 83; Dr. T. J. Sheppard, Peterborough, 81; John Ingram, Bowmanville, 85; Tim McCutcheon, Peterborough, 87; Bob James, Bowmanville, 89 and Bob Halvorsen, Trenton 91.

In sectional play 35 per cent of the entering field qualify.

The successful "five" will enter the Open qualifying round at the Toronto Summit Golf Club on July 26th. Sixty-four will emerge for the match play through July 29th.

Ontario Golf Association governor Sam "Lain" Chamberlain, who is well-known in these parts, said "this is the second year we have had sectional qualifying competition. This was necessary because the number of entries has reached the point where qualification on one course could not be held."

Mr. Chamberlain with OGA director T. A. Carruthers supervised the qualification round here.

No-Hitter Beaten By No-Hitter

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Defraime had one consolation when he pitched a no-hitter in a softball game Tuesday night and lost—it took a no-hitter to beat him.

Winning pitcher Merle Ziggler of Imperial Bank of Commerce also hurled a no-hit game as his team won 1-0 over Bank of Montreal in a Bond and Trust League game.

John Miller of Commerce walked, moved to second on a walk, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a sacrifice fly for the game's only run.

Departmental Softball

City Hall's second victory in as many nights, a high-scoring 17-9 decision over Public Works, lifted the club into sole possession of first place in the Departmental Softball League last night.

City Hall has a 6-3 won-lost record while The Intelligencer is 5-2.

Gary Reid pitched the victory while Jim Sweet, Stan Finkle and Jud Semark all saw action for the works.

Dick Kraft had a home run and two other hits for City Hall. Keith Hanson and John Palmer also got three hits each and Gary Reid blasted a home run.

Archie McMillan, Bob Dafoe and Doug Murray were best for Public Works with two hits each.

Utilities and The Intelligencer are scheduled for tonight, at Hillcrest School, at 6.30.

FENCERS TO COMPETE

TORONTO (CP)—Imre Szabo of Toronto, national chairman of the fencing committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Tuesday night fencing teams from England, Wales and the United States will compete against Canada at the annual Canadian National Exhibition tournament Aug. 19-20.

Cheesemen Clobber Belvedere

Black Diamond Cheese whipped Belvedere Hotel 13-4 for their second Commercial Softball success in as many nights.

The victory boosted the Cheesemen into a last place tie with City Hotel, each two points behind Lightfoots and Belvedere.

Belvedere continues to have trouble getting players out and were forced to use shortstop "Pug" Kellar as a pitcher last night.

Black Diamond jumped on him for four runs in the first. Belvedere tied it in the second but the Cheesemen won with two in the third, four in the fifth and a trio in the sixth.

Don Holoway gave up ten hits while hurling the victory. He struck out two and walked two. Kellar also allowed ten hits but walked eight and fanned none. The error totals were not included on the scoresheet.

G. Francis slammed a home run and two singles for the winners. D. Archer and J. Francis each singled twice. Bob Jones added a triple, Ross Empey and Doug Lucas a base hit each.

Only seven Belvedere hits were listed. G. Vaughn and A. Andrews were credited with a double and single each, D. Reid and Pug Kellar with doubles and George Perry with a single.

Ottawa Rough Riders

Lineup Holes, Empty Seats

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have a few lineup holes and a number of empty spectator seats to fill for the approaching Canadian Football League season, but coach Frank Clair and general manager Red O'Quinn are confident both will be filled by the time the season opens.

The Riders have one of the smallest training camps in recent years with only 52 players and Clair expects to cut seven or eight after Thursday's intra-squad game.

"We didn't have to do a full recruiting job this year," the veteran coach said. "Our offensive backfield is pretty well set. Most of the players we brought in were for the interior line."

O'Quinn has had some problems in the contract department but his major concern is selling tickets. With a late fall start on construction of a new grandstand - arena project, the Riders will have to go on the road for any playoff contests.

The prospect of having to travel to see playoffs could hurt home crowds this season. But an even stronger threat to the gate is the Riders past record of three consecutive second-place finishes and losses to Hamilton Tiger - Cats in the Eastern Conference final.

With the exception of John Pentecost, a second-year import guard from UCLA, most of the contract problems are minor. Pentecost wants to play out his option and try his luck in the U.S. National Football League next year.

The biggest holdout problem was quarterback Russ Jackson but he signed his contract Tuesday.

Women's Boxing Match Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — A promotion syndicate which hoped to stage a women's boxing match here Saturday has been refused a sanction by the Vancouver Athletic Commission.

Thunderhill Inc. of Seattle planned to have Toni Bratton of Washington, D.C., meet Billie Howell of Omaha, Neb., over 12 rounds in a bout billed as a fight for the women's world heavyweight championship.

Dave Brown of Vancouver, agent for Thunderhill, said the commission ruled against the American group on a technicality.

"The commission said Thunderhill didn't fulfill obligations in lining up the card soon enough.

"They said that. But they really meant they didn't want to have women boxing in Vancouver."

ORDERED TO APPEAR

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard J. MacLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was one of nine men ordered Tuesday to appear for voluntary statement on charges that they conspired illegally in 1963 to incite desertion from 45 ships in Canadian ports. The nine men are accused of inciting SIU members to protest federal trusteeship of maritime unions.

Als' Reds Wallop Whites

MONTREAL (CP)—Two players obtained in off-season deals and two holdovers from last year's team accounted for six touchdowns as Bernie Faloney's Red team trounced George Bork's White squad 42-16 in Montreal Alouettes' annual intra-squad football game Tuesday night.

Peter Kempf, obtained from B.C. Lions, accounted for two touchdowns on passes from Faloney while J. W. Lockett, a fullback hold-over from last season, picked up two more.

Halfback Bill Gray, formerly with Saskatchewan Roughriders, and end Larry Tomlinson from last year's team scored the others.

For the White team, fullback Pat Batten and newcomer Gerry Sternberg each caught eight-yard passes from Bork for touchdowns while Gino Berretta contributed a field goal and added an extra point on Sternberg's touchdown.

Many golfers make the mistake of hitting short shots from just off the green with a highly lofted club, such as the wedge or 9-iron.

This can be dangerous for two reasons: First, such shots will fly high and settle quickly – often too quickly – well short of the hole (No. 1). Second, there is a greater chance of missing a shot with such a club than there is with a less-lofted iron, such as a 5- or 6-iron.

I suggest that you always chip with the least-lofted club that will allow the ball to land on the green and stop near the hole (No. 2).

3-Mile and 5,000

Ron Clarke Sets Two Records

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ron Clarke, the first runner to crack the 13-minute barrier for three miles and the 28-minute barrier for 10,000 metres, again is exciting the track and field world.

The 29-year-old Australian regained the world mark in the 5,000 metres Tuesday before 10,000 fans with a blazing 13:16.6 and en route lowered the three-mile world record to 12:50.4.

The 12:50.4 broke a mark of 12:52.4 that Clarke set in London last July 10. The 13:16.6 for the 5,000 metres shattered a mark of 13:24.2 held by Kenya's Kipchoge Keino.

Bodo Tuemmler of West Germany set a good pace before dropping out after several laps. Clarke took over and turned the race into a one-man affair with the field more than 100 yards back. His finishing kick was such that he lapped two competitors.

POLE SECOND

Lebch Boguszewics of Poland was second in 13:51.8 followed by Tony Cook of Australia in 13:52.61

Those are the world records Clarke holds:

—5,000 metres—13:16.6, July 5, 1966, at Stockholm.

—10,000 metres—12:50.4, July 14, 1965, at Oslo.

—Three miles—12:50.4, July 5, 1966, at Stockholm.

—Six miles—26:47, July 14, 1965, at Oslo.

—20,000 metres—59:22.7, Oct. 27, 1965, at Geelong, Australia.

— One-hour run — 12 miles, 1,006 yards, one foot, 10 inches, Oct. 27, 1965, at Geelong.

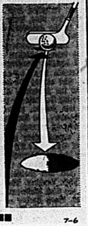
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR MISTAKES

It is very easy in golf to get disgusted with yourself when you make a silly error. However, the wise golfer learns to make the most of his mistakes.

One of the best places to capitalize on your mistakes is on the putting green. Let's assume that you have just putted well past the hole, missing the cup on the left side.



The wise golfer will note the way the ball reacted as it rolled beyond the cup. He will note any curling of the ball to one side. Thus, he will be more knowledgeable about his return putt. He will know which way this second putt will break and approximately how much it will bend.

Many a three-putt green can be eliminated by merely noting closely the action of the ball on your first putt.

10-Year-Old Swimmer

Eyes Record Number 13

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Manfred Rudolph wants to join tre "teen-age corps" which in recent years has pushed Canada forward as a power to be reckoned with in international swimming circles.

The 10 - year - old youngster, who cracked three Canadian age-class records last weekend in a meet here and now owns a dozen under-10 marks, will try for No. 13 Saturday at Brantford.

He'll also seek a few others in age-class events at the Canadian swimming championships July 12-16 at Hamilton.

But what he wants most of all is to join such swimming stars as Elaine Tanner, 15, of Vancouver, and Marion Lay, 17, and Barb Hounsell, 15, a pair of Canadians who now live in California, in the drive to bring Canada swimming honors.

"I don't know if he'll do it," says Adolph Rudolpr, his father and coach of St. Catharines Y Swim Club. "The problem with many swimmers is that by the time they reach their teens they lack determination rather than ability. . . ."

OLYMPIC AIM HELPS

"But if they can reach world class standards before 16 the prospects of an Olympics usually is enough to keep them going."

Adolph Rudolph, a top-flight swimmer in Germany before he left Bremen to come to Canada in 1950, is the first to admit proficiency in any amateur sport demands "almost a spartan existence."

"You've got to be willing to give it everything and that's why I haven't pushed Manfred. He's got to want to do it."

The wiry five-foot youngster has worked out at least once a day and sometimes twice in the last five weeks. His training schedule includes 50 lengths freestyle—one every minute—technique lessons, 10 butterfly sprints in a 50-yard pool every two minutes.

How They're Biting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The heat wave in Ontario during the last week didn't seem to rurt the anglers' chances of landing fish.

The lands and forests department reports that pickerel and northern pike catches were mostly good to excellent, especially in northwestern Ontario.

Bass fishing remained good in most areas of eastern, western and southern Ontario, but catches of lake trout fell off as the fish moved to deeper water.

Among the best catches reported by the department was a pickerel of 12 pounds, four ounces, landed during a Kinsmen fish derby at Eagle Lake in the Kenora district.

Reports from 21 of the department's 22 districts:

SOUTH

Lake Simcoe—Bass excellent at Lake Scugog, bass and pickerel fair to excellent at Sparrow Lake and fair at Cook Bay and Lake Couchiching. Lake trout poor and speckled trout fair.

EAST

Kemptville — Perch excellent in Lake St. Francis, pike good in Gananoque Lake and Lake St. Francis, bass good in Gananoque Lake and fair in balance of district, pickerel good below power dam at Cornwall, lake trout catches declining.

Lindsay—Lake trout good and bass poor to fair in Gooderham area, muskellunge and pickerel good at Elephant Lake and Jack Lake, speckled trout good in Burnt River. Bass and lake trout good in Haliburton area, pickerel and speckled trout poor. Bass and panfish good in Minden area. Pickerel and panfish good, bass and muskellunge fair in Kawartha Lakes wrere anglers using worms, plugs and spinners. Pickerel, bass and panfish good in Rice Lake.

Tweed—Lake trout good in Palmerston and Wensley lakes, fair in Burns, Buck and Loughborough. Rainbow trout fair in northern part of district. Pickerel good in Bay of Quinte, Stoco, Moira, Bobs and Buckshot lakes on worms and plugs. Muskellunge fair in Ottawa River.

7 Canadians Move Up

BROCKWOOD, England (CP) Sgt. Joe Daigle of Moncton, N.B., winner of the Queen Mary Trophy at last year's Bisley shooting tournament, and six other Canadians move into the second stage today of this blue-ribbon event.

However, the British Army champion, Cpl. Victor Brooks of the Royal Greenjackets, was ahead after Tuesday's first stage of the [illegible]n Mary competition with [illegible]re of 183 out of a possible [illegible] and he looms as a formidable obstacle in the path of a second consecutive Canadian victory.

Leading the seven Canadian qualifiers was Craftsman P. K. Eichelbaum of Bow Island, Alta., with 170. Eichelbaum, a member of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, is attached to Lord Strathcona's Horse of Calgary.

Capt. Jack Dangerfield of Vancouver, an officer in Lord Strathcona's Horse, was the second best Canadian with 168.

Daigle, of the Royal 22nd Regiment, had a score of 165.

The Queen Mary match offers a cash prize of £25 ($75) as well as the coveted trophy. It is one of the toughest events in the Bisley program, involving all types of battle shooting.

Kimball Eskimos Manager

EDMONTON (CP) — Norm Kimball of Edmonton Tuesday was named general manager of the Western Football Conference's Edmonton Eskimos a few hours after Vic Schwenk announced his resignation from the post.

Kimball, 36, assistant general manager of the club since February, had no background in professional sport before he joined the Eskimos in 1961 as minor football co-ordinator.

Armbro Flight Favored

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Canada's Armbro Flight, winner of eight of her 12 starts this year and out of the money only once, was today made the 5-to-2 favorite for Saturday's $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot at Roosevelt Raceway after drawing the No. 2 post position.

Armbro Flight, who also won 22 of her 26 starts as a 3-year-old last year, is owned by the Armstrong brothers of Brampton, Ont. and will be driven by Joe O'Brien, a native of Alberton, P.E.I.

She qualified to represent Canada by winning the Canadian Championship in 2:02 2-5 for one mile at Garden City Raceway at St. Catharines last Friday. The International will be raced at 1¼ miles.

Sweden's Pluvier III, last year's surprise winner, drew the No. 1 post position but was rated no better than 5 to 1 in the field that includes Roquepine and Quioco of France, Merceno of Norway, Pick Wick of West Germany, Carmelo of Italy and Noble Victory, the U.S. representative who recently was syndicated for $1,000,000 by Kenneth D. Owens of Houston, Tex.

Noble Victory, winner of the American Championship Trot last Saturday at Roosevelt Raceway, drew the unfavorable outside post position but was made the 3-to-1 second choice. He'll be driven by Stanley Dancer.

Jimmy Durante Always Glad To Get Home to His Family

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Yeah, it's great comin' home," said James Durante, "when ya got somethin' to come home to."

Durante now is home from his half-year of wandering about the country to earn a living with his violent, endearing brand of comedy. Such has been his life for most of his 73 years. The difference is that now he has a wife and daughter to return to.

"And whatta diff'rence it is!" he exclaims. "Them two make all the work worth it."

Durante averages six months of playing the top night clubs of the U.S., usually returns to his Beverly Drive home in late spring. He'll take a local date; last week he was playing Humpty Dumpty in NBC's special, Through The Looking Glass which will appear Nov. 6.

Otherwise he preserves his summers, especially the three months he spends with wife Marge and daughter Cece at Del Mar, 100 miles south.

"I wouldn't miss that for the world," said Jimmy. "In the mornin' I'm out fishin' in the surf; I love it. Then in the afternoon I go to the racetrack. I don't bet much, 'cause you can't win anyway when you play nine races. And that daily double! murder!"

THE NOSE QUESTIONABLE

The Durantes adopted Cece four years ago. She can do no wrong in his eyes. The only thing about her he deprecates is the nose.

"How d'ya like that kid!" he shrugged. "All she got for a nose is a button. It's no bigger'n a pimple. I keep pullin' on it, hopin' that'll make it grow. Nuttin' happens."

Come early autumn Jimmy will once more be resuming his vagabondage. His wife and daughter sometimes join him in resorts such as Miami and Puerto Rico, but most of the time they stay home.

STILL HAS KNACK

Jimmy seems to have lost none of the explosive energy for which he has been noted throughout his long career.

He retains the ability to win any audience. He learned that while playing theatres and cafes in New York during his youth.

"Ya hadda be on your toes in those theatres," he recalled. "The guys would sit through t'ree, four shows and know all your lines. You'd say, 'I put a lead nickel in the slot at the automat and what d'ya t'ink came out?" Practic'ly the whole audience would shout: 'da manager!' "

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Terrified, Susannah York looks on as co-stars Stanley Baker and Stuart Whitman fight to the death in this scene from Joseph E. Levine's "Sands of the Kalahari", a Paramount Pictures release closing tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature attraction on the all-color program "Black Spurs" features Rory Calhoun, Terry Moore, Linda Darnell and Scott Brady.

Sanders Leads British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP)—Doug Sanders missed a three-foot putt on the 18th green today but still set the early pace with a par 71 in the British open golf championship.

The Californian, one of 10 Americans among the cream of professional golf competing for the British crown, seemed set for a 70 as he came into the home green.

He smacked an iron 170 yards to within three feet of the cup at the 429-yard 18th but his putt slid an inch past.

The field of 130 professionals and amateurs began teeing off on the 6,887 - year Muirfield Links for the first round of the four - day, 72 - hole grind.

It was a pleasant, sunny morning with a stiff breeze.

Arnold Palmer, the U.S. golf wizard from Latrobe, Pa., went out in one-over-par.

Most Actors Prefer Working On Stage Says Basehart

By RICHARD BASEHART (For CYNTHIA LWORY(

Now a star of an ABC science-fiction adventure series, Richard Basehart has a list of acting credits stretching from Broadway and Othello to films including La Strada and The Brothers Karamazov.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — People seem continually surprised to find me playing Admiral Nelson on Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, and inevitably I am asked to compare acting in a science-fiction series for television with the work I've done on the stage and screen.

Most actors who have worked in all three media will prefer acting on the stage, and I'm no exception. Only on the stage is the success of the production, in any given performance, almost solely dependent upon the actors. The producer and director are relegated to the audience before the opening-night curtain goes up.

Motion pictures and television are the director's media. With the cameraman and the film editor, he determines what the audience will eventually see, not the actor. Onstage an actor creates and hopes to continually refine his characterization before a live audience. A film is done in disconnected fragments in the relative isolation of a sound stage.

In favoring stage performances, however, too many actors fail to mention the merits of the other two mediums. Not the least of these is the financial reward for film work, which far exceeds that of the stage. But even setting finances aside, films and television have unique attractions for an actor.

PERMANENCY APPEALS

A stage performance, as an art form, is lost when the curtain comes down; and the relative permanency of a motion picture, if it was well done, appeals to all of us. On the other hand, cringing before TV's late movies, most actors who have worked in them might settle for a deal less permanency. Then too, the film offers the chance for greater variety both vocally and physically. With a camera and microphone close at hand, a whisper or a raised eyebrow can convey an idea that would be lost on the stage.

In addition, the film would seem to eliminate the margin for error in a performance. If a line is fluffed or a move miscalculated there is a retake—and ample time is provided to work out the smallest detail. Unfortunately this element of time can often do as much harm as good.

Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea offers each of us in the case a whole set of challenges as performers. It is an action show, depending more on visual effect than on dialogue. The submarine is a sort of microcosm, a small world that is totally unlike anything the average person has experienced—for which a small prayer of thanksgiving might be in order.

Council Moves to Buy Armories for $7,500

PICTON (Staff) — Town council passed a motion to buy the armories for $7,500 Monday night, with a promise from Mayor H. J. McFarland that he is prepared to buy the building "and turn it over to the children" if the town doesn't want to use it.

Initially, the money is being taken from the parking meter reserve fund but the mayor stressed that he does not want the building torn down for parking space, and the money will be returned to the fund eventually.

The mayor said he is confident that the building can be made to pay for itself.

Councillor Robert Walmsley warned that if it doesn't the building could become a white elephant, costing the town up to five mills to maintain.

Councillor Andrew Jarvis said the cost is below what townspeople are willing to pay. "It's a good buy at that price," he said, "and it won't come out of tax money but from the parking meters. I want to thank the mayor for helping us to get it (the armories)."

But Councillor Walmsley said "I'm not clear what is happening to this building. If it has been bought by the Parking Committee, I presume it will be pulled down to make room for extra parking. If it is going to be retained, we should give some consideration to the annual cost."

No, said the mayor, "I want to get that clear: the building won't be pulled down."

He said that he forsees a special committee being set up to administer the building in the best interests of Picton and the County of Prince Edward.

There are so many things this building can be used for - - bringing in more than taxes," he said.

The mayor added that he has received about 700 calls many of them from women, from persons who want the town to retain the armories as a meeting place for various organizations.

HIRE THREE FIREMEN

Council reaffired its support Monday night for a Fire Committee recommendation to hire three full time firemen and reduce the number of volunteers from 21 to 14.

It was decided to hire three men after the resignation of driver and caretaker B. Morris early last month.

Councillors had already signed a report recommending the change, since it was felt too urgent to wait until the council meeting. There were three fires in the interval.

The three men — L. K. Tripp, Robert G. Read and Emile Girard — will receive $4,000 each, but the committee estimates it will save $6,200 on volunteers' and caretaker's salaries and miscellaneous items.

So the total net increase in operating costs is estimated to be $5,800 per annum.

A statement issued by the committee states that the Ontario Fire Marshall's office recommended 10 years ago that Picton should "seriously consider" the re-organization of the fire department.

It was urged that this reorganization include the hiring of one full time chief and three full time firemen.

No action was taken until four years ago, when, as a result of greater pressure on the committee to adopt the earlier recommendations, a full time chief was hired.

"The resignation of the caretaker of the fire hall and the substantial increase in costs necessary to maintain a full complement of volunteers has caused the committee to recommend that three full time firemen be hired at this time," said the statement.

The Rural Scene

Several weeks ago a Dairy Herd Improvement Association owner - sampler testing program was announced by the Live Stock Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. This plan was established to accomodate cattle owners who would like to place their herds on a testing program but ho have been unable to do so because of lack of openings in existing associations. Unlike the regular D.H.I.A. program, purebred herds will be accepted on the owner - sampler testing program as well as grade or mixed herds. Members will be required to weigh and record the weights of milk produced by each cow in the herd on successive evening and morning milkings once each month and at the same time take a sample from each cow's milk for butterfat testing. The D.H.I.A. Supervisor will collect the samples and conduct the test for butterfat. From the weights taken by the member and the butterfat test made by the Supervisor the milk and fat produced by each cow is then calculated. A cost of production program is also available on an optional basis at no extra cost. Members are required to supply a satisfactory set of scales for weighing the milk and pay a fee of $1 per cow per year. It is hoped to provide a testing service on an owner - sampler basis to approximately 400 dairymen in Ontario this year. It should be pointed out however that it may not be possible to accept all applications that are received. Anyone interested in applying for membership in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association program on an owner - sampler basis should do so as soon as possible. Application forms and information can be obtained at your local Department of Agriculture Office.

Wilson Cast In Role Of Peacemaker

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson cast himself in the role of Viet Nam peacemaker today by arranging a surprise visit to Moscow prior to a conference with President Johnson in Washington later this month.

The Soviet Union has already rejected Britain's peace formula—reconvening the 1954 Geneva conference—but the prime minister may be able to open a new line of communication on Viet Nam between the Kremlin and the White House.

Britain and Russia are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference which ended fighting in Indochina 12 years ago.

U.S. officials give contradictory impressions on the prospects of talks to bring peace in South Viet Nam.

State Secretary Dean Rusk told reporters in Kyoto, Japan, that "we have seen no evidence that the other side wants peace." Replying to critics of U.S. air strikes on oil depots near Hanoi and Haiphong, he said he could not see how such attacks "will interfere with a peace that the other side doesn't want."

HUMPHREY HOPEFUL

More optimistic, Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey told the annual U.S. governors' conference in Los Angeles that "there are flickering bits of evidence . . . that Hanoi spokesmen are wandering around won-

Today's Chuckle

The best time to tackle a small problem is before he grows up.

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Holt of Australia noted with some regret today that this is the first time Australian troops are fighting in a war without British troops alongside.

He was referring to the war in Viet Nam, which, he observed, some in Britain and elsewhere describe as a civil war but which Australia sees as a conflict which can affect world peace and stability.

Australians therefore are disappointed, he told a press conference, that Prime Minister Wilson found it necessary to dissociate himself from United States bombing strikes in North Viet Nam.

CAN'T UNDERSTAND

They found it difficult to reconcile Wilson's claim to support general American policy in South Viet Nam with the criticism of oil bombings "which are legitimate military targets."

Holt's blunt remarks about British policy were accompanied by specific criticism of President de Gaulle. The U.S., he said, had lost thousands of men in the liberation of Frenchmen in the Second World War and Australia regretted that the French government had shown itself so hostile to American policy in Viet Nam.

Holt said Johnson had every reason to expect "more sympathy and understanding."

Holt said he also is concerned over Britain's East of Suez policy, not so much in military terms but in terms of influence and activity. That area of the world held about one-half of the earth's population and these numbers may double by the end of the century. No other area of the world held so many dangers and so much human dynamism and potential, he said.

Australia sympathized with Britain's economic position and realized she had done her share in Southeast Asia by using her forces to block Indonesia's threat to invade Malaysia. There was some question of what Britain will do with her 50,000 troops in Malaysia now that the "confrontation" appears to be over.

Bank Act MayHave To Wait

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Will the Bank Act have to wait another year?

The question was raised Wednesday as a testy Commons continued its snail-like march towards a summer ecess.

A recess, probably stretching into October, is expected by mid-July. A 40,000 - word bill wrapping up the 10-year revision of the Bank Act may get first reading today.

But Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said debate on second reading and study in committee, when the House returns from its recess, probably will take two or thee months.

If Parliament is prorogued as usual at the end of the year, where will that leave the Bank Act?

"Will we have to start all over again in another session of Parliament" Mr. Fulton asked.

The Bank Act revision has been overdue since 1964. Last year it reached the committee stage but was dropped with other unfinished legislation when Parliament was dissolved for a general election.

Finance Minister Sharp introduced a resolution on the revision Tuesday night. Of the 5½ hours allotted for debate on a resolution, the House had one hour and nine minutes left Wednesday when George McIlraith, government House leader, asked consent to finish the debate.

The opposition refused and instead spent the private members' hour on a motion by J. Waldo Monteith (PC — Perth) proposing an immediate $25 increase in old age pensions.

Government members talked out the motion, which could have been the vehicle for the fourth vote of the session on the same subject. The Opposition has been pressing for almost a week for an increase.

During the Bank Act debate, Mr. Monteith said it appeared that the small borower would be hurt by a government decision to lift the six-per-cent ceiling on the interest rate chartered banks may charge.

Finance Minister Sharp again refused to give the opposition details on the formula by which the ceiling will be lifted.

Three CBC TV Producers Stop Work On Programs

TORONTO (CP)—After swift developments Wednesday, CBC management and three television producers were deadlocked today in a new battle about Toronto public affairs programming.

The situation was touched off Tuesday by the release of a CBC board of directors' statement concerning program policies and the supervision of CBC-TV's controversial program This Hour Has Seven Days.

Douglas Leiterman, producer of Seven Days, and Jim Carney, producer of a sister program, Compass, reacted by ordering their staff to stop work.

Patrick Watson, former co-host of Seven Days, later Wednesday suspended production of the public affairs program Document and a new program scheduled for the fall, Quarterly Report.

The CBC board offered Mr. Leiterman a new contract if he would agree to accept CBC direction and policy. It also said vice-presidents would be stationed in Toronto and Montreal at the earliest possible date.

Another element in the producers' rebellion was a report that H. G. Walker, vice-president and general manager of CBC English networks, was moving to Toronto from Ottawa.

But Mr. Walker said late Wednesday in Ottawa that to avoid "any confusion or ambiguity" about his intentions he will not move to Toronto. He said he is not a candidate for the new position of senior vice-president in Toronto.

Public affairs supervisors and Toronto producers said Wednesday the board statement was a tough, uncompromising document that maintained an unswerving, critical approach to Seven Days.

Mr. Leiterman said CBC terms in his new contract would be tantamount to his "eating crow." Mr. Watson called the document a "stinging slap in the face" to Toronto program staff.

Mr. Carney accused CBC top management of "deliberately trying to force the resignation of large segments of the public affairs department."

After the producers announced work suspensions, Hugh Gauntlett, supervisor of special programs, warned staff they are bound by contract to remain on the job or their pay will be cut off.

Supporting the producers' decision to stop work, a meeting Wednesday of about 40 public affairs supervisors and program organizers drafted a protest message to Alphonse Ouimet, CBC president.

The message expressed concern about the board's statement concerning "deficiencies in Seven Days supervision" and possible changes in the program's operation. It also said the supervisors resent the "insolence to the integrity of Douglas Leiterman" by offering him a contract with "loyalty oath" conditions.

The first effect of the producers' rebellion will be felt Sunday night. Unless it is settled, a half-hour program on Compass will not be ready for broadcast.

At another conference Wednesday, Laurier LaPierre, dismissed earlier with Mr. Watson as co - host of Seven Days, echoed the producers' sentiments and said communication with present CBC management in Ottawa is impossible.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said the present situation does not constitute an emergency within the CBC and will be handled by the corporation's management.

Different Offer Made By 3 Board Members

OTTAWA (CP) — The three members of a federal conciliation board issued separate recommendations Wednesday in two cases involving a total of 83,000 non - operating railway employees.

Board Chairman F. Craig Munroe, a judge of the British Columbia Supreme Court, recommended wage increases totalling 18 per cent over a two-year period for 28,000 shop craft employees and for 55,000 other non-operating employees.

Representatives of the railways and of the unions issued recommendation above and below the chairman's figure.

Copies of the two reports, dated June 29, were issued by Labor Minister Nicholson Wednesday. Under federal labor law, a strike may be called seven days after the minister receives a conciliation report.

Mr. Justice Munroe's reports called in both cases for increases of four per cent on Jan.

Wednesday Raids Set New Record

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes today bombed the oil storage depot in the Haiphong dock area two miles northeast of the heart of the city for the second time, the U.S. military command announced.

The Haiphong depot, through which 95 per cent of North Viet Nam's petroleum supplies flow, was first bombed June 29 along with another major depot three miles from the heart of Hanoi.

A U.S. spokesman said A-4 Skyhawks from the aircraft carrier Hancock struck the fuel installation at 1 p.m. and that pilots reported "all bombs on target."

One Skyhawk was shot down by anti-aircraft fire but the pilot was rescued.

Earlier the U.S. command announced American planes flew a record 113 missions against North Viet Nam Wednesday and eluded four surface-to-air missiles (SAMS), but two of the raiders were shot down, apparently by conventional ground fire. The three pilots were listed as missing.

The U.S. command again reported no significant ground action by American forces. But the South Vietnamese army announced its third major military success in two days, the destruction of a big Viet Cong medical and arms depot in the Mekong Delta and the killing of 155 of the enemy in a day-long battle Wednesday.

DODGE 16 MISSILES

The previous record of 106 missions was flown the day before when American jets dodged 16 missiles, the highest total reported for any day of the 17-month air war. An earlier announcement by the U.S. command Wednesday said 27 to 29 SAMS had been fired, but the command said this figure resulted from duplications in pilots' reports.

MAY TRY PRISONERS

Hanoi radio indicated North Viet Nam may carry out its repeated threat to try captured U.S. airmen as war criminals. The hint came in a broadcast describing the parading of a group of American fliers through angry throngs in Hanoi Wednesday.

The government radio said the people of Hanoi "knew that the government would represent them all to try and punish the pirates in proportion to their crimes." It said the crowds constituted "a form of street tribunal to try the peace-disturber child-killers."

A U.S. spokesman in Washington said records showed there are 37 U.S. prisoners in North Viet Nam, including 21 from the air force, 14 army men and two marines. Although the Hanoi broadcast listed three naval officers, the Pentagon spokesman said its records showed no navy prisoners.

Red Lands Bid to Ease Tensions

By SIDNEY WEILAND

BUCHAREST (Reuters)—Romania appeared today to have won over Warsaw Pact partners to its independent stand in a bid to ease East-West tension in Europe.

A brief communique Wednesday night closing the three-day session of leaders from the seven states said they agreed on a joint call for European security. And observers said a declaration on the issue — expected to be published today—would reflect Romania's demands for a serious new move toward an East-West detente.

Romania's foreign minister, Corneliu Manescu, said it also would call for an all-European security conference.

The communique was striking for its lack of effusive references to unity and agreement normally contained in communiques of this kind. The only mention of unanimity came with reported adoption of a declaration condemning "American aggression" in Viet Nam.

It significantly had no reference to complete agreement on the European issue and also said nothing about strengthening the 11-year-old Warsaw Pact—Communism's answer to NATO.

OPPOSED TO PLANS

Romania was reported strongly opposed to Soviet ideas for further integration of the alliance and to plans for boosting its military potential.

The communique also contained no hint of Romanian differences with Russia on the pact's command structure. Bucharest was reported to have called for a greater voice for smaller East European states in consultation on nuclear strategy and for more high posts for non-Russian generals.

'Black Power' Leader Declares His Aim 'To Get White People off Our Backs'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A leader of the new "black power" faction within the U.S. civil rights movement defines the term as political strength interwoven with an attempt to build stronger racial pride among Negroes.

"We just want to get the white people off our backs," said Stokely Carmichael, national chairman of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee and a leading advocate of "black power."

Carmichael, 25, who has been SNCC chairman nearly two months, said in an interview at his Atlanta office that the new philosophy might split the civil rights movement.

He said the SNCC's objective is to build political power for Negroes, instill within them a determination to make their own decisions—about civil rights and anything else—and to create a sense of identity with colored peoples of the world, particularly Africans.

But, he said, the new move is not anti-white nor black supremacist. Anti-white violence by Negroes is merely a fear of white persons, he said.

"And it's a healthy fear," Carmichael said. "It's one that they deserve to have for all they have done to the black people."

Some of the questions and answers from the interview:

Q: Who originated the term "black power"?

A: I don't know. That's a term that has been familiar with me ever since I was small. SNCC vocally started it among the civil rights organizations on the recent Mississippi march.

Q: What is your definition of the concept?

A: Black people in this country are oppressed for one reason—and that's because of their color. . . . Their rally cry must be the issue around which they are oppressed, as it was for unions. Black power just means black people coming together and getting people to represent their needs and to stop that oppression.

Q: Roy Wilkins (of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) has said no matter how you say it, it means anti-white. What's your view?

A: Well, I've never used that word and I don't see why the rallying cry of black power would mean that. . . . When people say "black power," it seems to me the only people who should be worried are the people who are exploiting and oppressing black people.

Q: Wilkins has said that the aim of the civil rights movement always has been to include the Negro in white society. Do you agree with that?

A: No. I totally disagree. I've never seen myself fighting to get into a country that's bombing the hell out of Viet Nam or a country that sees money as its only raison d'etre (reason for existence). What I thought, the fight of the civil rights movement was to get white people off our backs. And that only.

Most Bankruptcies Honest Says Attorney-General

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario would be practically a police state if all bankruptcies were investigated for the possibility of fraud, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature Wednesday.

He said most bankruptcies were honest and did not require investigation.

In other legislature business:

—Mr. Wishart said police are justified in using listening devices to gather evidence against suspected criminals but they "are not being used indiscriminately against citizens.

—Mr. Wishart said there was "no intention to use police trained in mob and riot control against orderly demonstrations. He was replying to James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) who said a riot control course at the Ontario Police College at Aylmer would be used to suppress demonstrations.

—Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) said the government should pass compulsory legislation to amalgamate weak police forces in smaller communities where law enforcement is reaching crisis proportions.

—Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) said persons who have no connection with justice administration should serve on police commissions to ensure impartiality. He said commissions also should have no say in day-to-day police administration but should only be concerned with policy and discipline.

"There is nothing illegal" about going bankrupt, Mr. Wishart said.

If all bankruptcies were investigated "we would be approaching as close to the police state as far as you could conceive."

He said Crown attorneys have been instructed to be vigilant for Bankruptcy Act violations.

Mr. Renwick had said M.r Wishart should set aside more money for investigation of bankruptcies that could possibly be fraudulent and also set up "a web of information" so police could detect fraud patterns.

Mr. Wishart said information on phony bankruptcies is available on a Canada-wide basis.

Mr. Sopha challenged Premier John Robarts to hold a by-election in the vacant Kenora riding on the issue of Supreme Court injunctions in labor disputes.

He said Kenora is a strong labor area and an election there would give a true picture of trade unionists' views on injunctions.

Mr. Robarts did no treply.

ENDORSE LAW

MONTREAL (CP) — Five judges of Quebec Court of Appeal Wednesday unanimously endorsed the validity of the Maritime Trustee Act of 1963. They dismissed an appeal by Donald Roy Swait, an officer of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada Ind. against a Superior Court judgment which decided the act was valid.

Sarnia, London Highway to Be Improved

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—About $60,000,000 in new highway construction is forecast during the next 20 years in Essex, Kent and Lambton counties with priority given to Highway 402 from Sarnia to London, says an Ontario highways department report.

The report, released Wednesday night to county officials, outlines which highways will be maintained and developed and which scrapped by 1985.

The report confirms a recommendation based on a study of the London area that Highway 402 should be built as soon as possible.

The four-lane, controlled-access route will loop north of Highway 7 and south of Highway 22 near Watford and Strathroy. It is expected to carry 28,000 cars a day at the Sarnia end by 1985.

Also planned are:

—Development of Chatham's western access route from Highway 401.

—A bypass north and west of Chatham.

—A new highway from Chatham to Dresden.

—Continued development and maintenance of Highway 21 up to Highway 7.

—A speed-up in work on the Highway 40 alternate from Sarnia to Wallaceburg.

—A two-lane route from Chatham to Wallaceburg.

Withdraws Plea In Order to Obtain Lawyer

Arnold Esey Revoy, 43, of Stirling, pleaded guilty to drunk driving but later withdrew the plea and asked time so that he could obtain a lawyer. Magistrate R. C. Jackson remanded the case until July 14.

An O.P.P. constable testified he was called to the scene of an accident July 3 at 3.15 p.m., three-tenths of a mile west of highway 14 on the south junction road entering Oak Lake.

He said Revoy had sideswiped a parked car on the Oak Lake Rd., causing $75 damage to the car and $5 damage to his own car.

The constable testified that Revoy was leaning against his car when he arrived on the scene. He said Revoy smelled strongly of alcohol, his eyes were bloodshot, and when asked to produce his license ,he fumbled for his wallet.

He said Revoy staggered to the police car and had difficulty getting into the back seat of the cruiser.

"He didn't seem to know what happened and didn't know where he was. He said, 'I'm at Moira Lake.' "

Revoy said, "I wasn't that drunk," and asked for time to obtain a lawyer. He said he has a stomach problem and is nervous all the time.

Chill Seems to Be Descending On Canadian - U. S. Relations Over Foreign Policy Differences

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some chill seems to be descending on Canada-United States relations over differences in foreign policy.

The same is true of the Anglo-American relationship despite the close contacts that have been maintained' by President Johnson and Prime Minister Wilson, two tough political pragmatists.

Canadian foreign policy is diverging in three important areas from that of the U.S.

Canada has publicly expressed regret at the expanded bombing operations over North Viet Nam. Wilson, hobbled by rising discord on his left, dissociated Britain from that action and President Johnson commented tartly Tuesday at a televised press conference that "we were disappointed in a few" allies.

Canada is planning to advance recognition to China in 1968, it appears, if Chia is willing. U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, on a Southeast Asian tour to shore up relations among allies actively supporting the war in Viet Nam, made plain to Nationalist China that "we oppose the seating of the Peiping (Peking) regime in the United Nations and I have no doubt that that will be the basis of our relationship in weeks and months and years to come."

U.S. LIP SERVICE

So much for the public debate about China that has occurred so swiftly here, with lip service by the government to the slogan of containment of China without isolation.

Finally, there was Prime Minister Pearson's recent Springfield, Ill., address critical of the U.S. attitude to a NATO without France. If the U.S. views have changed, as a result, the change remains invisible.

Syndicated columnist Joseph Kraft accused Rusk subsequently of a "faulty and self-serving diagnosis" that put Quebec as the cause both of the Pearson speech and Canadian efforts to slow down the process of kicking France right out of the Atlantic alliance.

Wilson, due here July 29 for a meeting with Johnson, may get his coldest reception yet, it is being speculated.

Viet Nam is a root cause despite the fact the president is known to appreciate Wilson's problems in placating his left wing, now increasingly restive about supporting U.S. policy there.

But, says a report by the London Observer correspondent here, Wilson seems likely to get a welcome sharply contrasting with the lavish hospitality just showered on Prime Minister Harold Holt—because Australia has troops in Viet Nam.

AMERICANS UNHAPPY

Britain, like Sweden, also now declines to sell arms to the U.S. for use in Viet Nam on grounds it and the Soviet Union are co-chairman of the Geneva conference machinery which some day may be used to settle the Viet Nam question. This had not pleased the U.S.

Canada, while on the three-nation International Control Commission in Southeast Asia as a referee, feels compelled to continue selling arms to the U.S. although it refuses to ship directly to Viet Nam.

The fact that neither country is helping directly in Viet Nam draws brisk criticism from the magazine U.S. News and World Report, a journal of right-wing views.

It says Washington "would like British help in Viet Nam now that war between Indonesia and Malaysia is fading away, and British troops are available. Instead, the Wilson government will not help with troops, is not even willing to sell arms to the U.S. for use in Viet Nam."

The magazine chides Canada for the fact "much criticism is heard, even in official circles, of U.S. policy."

It adds: "Critical the Canadians may be, but they are not averse to cashing in on the war in a big way. Canadian firms have received more than a billion dollars' worth of U.S. contracts since 1959—$260,000,000 worth just last year.

"Canadian and U.S. firms bid on equal terms, tariffs are wiped out. The Pentagon helps Canadian companies prepare bids. Canadian mines and lumbering firms also benefit from the demands of the Viet Nam war.

"Canadians don't like the war but make a lot of money out of it."

Multi - Million Gamble By Sun Oil Co. Nears Fruition in Oil Sands

By DAN POWERS

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—A $230,000,000 gamble by Sun Oil Ltd., aimed at marketing the first oil from one of the world's largest reserves by the fall of 1967, is nearing a payoff.

With 2,000 men building a plant to extract crude from the Athabasca oil sands, W. H. Davis, vice-president of Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., a Sun subsidiary, says the scheduled completion date of Sept. 30, 1967 "is reasonable."

Key to the gamble is the $230,000,000 plant that will use a flotation process of steam, hot water and hydrogen to separate the oil from the sticky sand.

GCOS estimates the overall project is 55 per cent complete.

A 266-mile pipeline to carry the crude to Edmonton, 280 miles southwest, is scheduled to be ready in August.

Canadian Bechtel Ltd., contractor on the project, started moving earth at the plant site, 25 miles north of Fort McMurray, in the spring of 1964 after the Alberta government gave GCOS a permit in April of that year authorizing plant production of 45,000 barrels a day.

MOST ARE CANADIANS

The majority of the construction men are Canadians with only some American supervisory personnel.

The crude—Sun has agreed to take 75 per cent and Shell Oil Canada Ltd. 25 per cent of production—will be carried from Edmonton by the interprovincial pipeline to Ontario refineries. Estimated sale price will be $2.75 a barrel.

The sands, sprawling over 13,000 square miles of forested area, contain an estimated 700,000,000,000 barrels of crude. Between 300,000,000,00 and 350,000,000,000 barrels are believed recoverable.

At the 3,800-acre site where GCOS will use giant 100,000-ton, mobile excavators to strip-mine the sand and move it to conveyor belts for plant processing, there is sufficient oil to meet production of 45,000 barrels a day for the next 30 years.

Two excavators—each stands 100 feet high and is 200 feet long—have been ordered from Germany at a total cost of about $6,000,000.

In limiting oil sands production to about five per cent of total Alberta production, the provincial government is ensuring that the sands' output doesn't upset markets for conventionally produced oil.

Fort McMurray, a one-hotel town of about 1,200 persons in 1963, has grown to more than 3,000 persons and is expected to reach 5,000 by 1970. A shopping centre, new hotels, motels, restaurants, apartments and houses have been built. GCOS has contracted to build 100 homes in the town.

The plant will provide permanent employment for 500 persons, including operators, technicians, engineers, supervisors and office personnel. GCOS says the plant will be Canadian-manned.

Sun Oil controls GCOS. Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas Co., a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Shell sold their stock to Sun in 1964 and 1965.

One condition of the permit issued GCOS by the provincial government was that Albertans should have the opportunity to invest in the project. The company offered an issue of guaranteed convertible debentures at $100 each to Albertans. They were quickly bought up.

Wide Ties Coming Back In New York

By JOHN VINOCUR

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooks Brothers, the Madison Avenue store that's been turning out stock brokers uniforms since 1846, has gone and done something very un-buttoned down—the Fat Max.

There are murmured apologies, of course—"not really our kind of merchandise, we generally try to avoid fads." But the display cases don't lie.

In them are rows of bookies' delights: Four - inch - wide Fat Max ties, broad as bibs, gross enough for a race track tout, big enough to hide a dirty shirt front.

Significantly, the salesmen say, the buyers are standard Ivy League types, the advertising men and Wall Street people whose preference for narrow ties had kept wider ones declasse since the end of the Second World War.

SLIM JIMS OUT

Their interest has manufacturers predicting a drop in the popularity of Slim Jims and pitching their fall sales campaigns to the wide widths. Most standard ties now are between 2¾ and 2½ inches.

The store has kept the width limit at three inches on its exclusive first floor, while letting it reach four in its university and young executives' departments.

J. Press and Chipp, two of Brooks Brothers' competitors in the city's tailoring enclave off Madison Avenue at 43rd Street, also sell the wide ties, in sober regimental stripes and club patterns.

Suspended Driver Jailed After Mishap

Laural Carman Scero, 38, of R. R. 1 Deseronto, today was sent to jail for 15 days for driving while his licence was suspended and fined $40 and costs for careless driving.

Scero appeared in magistrate's court before Magistrate R. C. Jackson and pleaded guilty to both charges.

Police said that, on May 15, Scero came around a curve while proceeding east on the wrong side of the road along the York Rd. and sideswiped a car driven by Florence Hill.

He had been drinking.

This was his second offence for driving while prohibited from doing so.

Magistrate Jackson told him that if he keeps up this type of behavior, "courts are going to start imposing maximums, not minimums."

Around the Kitty

A heavy electric and rainstorm at Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon failed to dampen the ardor of 14 mixed rinks that took part in a tournament staged by the Campbellford Club. The bowlers got in two games before the supper hour but during the rest period a heavy storm hit the area but the greens were playable and the tournament was completed. Two rinks from Belleville, Mrs. Jessie Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price with "Ab" Wonnacot as skip and Mrs. Lil Mascaro, Mrs. Millie Wright, Roy Hall with Bill VanTassel as skip took part but neither rink got into the prize money.

On Thursday afternoon the women held their league games with Mrs. Maggie Edgar, Mrs. Lil Mascaro and Mrs. Carm Mott as skip the winners with Mrs. Grace Hatfield, Mrs. Dorothy Price and Mrs. Lil Hermon as skip in second place. The tea hostesses were Mrs. C. R. Clapp, Mrs. Russell White, Mrs. D. McGlashon and Mrs. B. Elvidge from the Bridge Club section.

Member Claims Millions Wasted On Highways

TORONTO (CP) — George Ben, Liberal member of the legislature for Toronto Bracondale, says the Metropolitan Toronto roads commissioner, George Grant, has confirmed charges that the Ontario roads department has wasted millions of dollars.

Mr. Ben recently charged in the legislature that contractors were overpaid and not penalized for failing to complete work on time on expressway projects in Toronto.

The highways department heavily subsidized the construction of expressways—the Don Valley Parkway and the Frederick G. Gardiner Expressway. A new section of the Gardiner was officially opened Wednesday morning.

In an interview outside the legislature, Highways Minister Charles S. MacNaughton said no judicial inquiry will be held into the operations of the Toronto roads department.

He rejected the inquiry after tabling in the house earlier Wednesday a departmental report on Mr. Ben's charges. The report agreed with Mr. Ben on several ways of improving operations but found no evidence of scandal.

"It looks like a pretty clean bill of health." Mr. MacNaughton said. "There are a couple of places that they can tidy up their operations.

Mr. Grant, in a report issued in reply to Mr. Ben's charges, wrote that Toronto roads contracts since 1954 have gone an average of 4.8 per cent over the contracted price.

But Mr. Ben said the expressway contracts have gone as much as seven per cent over the contracted price and accused Mr. Grant of using small contracts to balance out the figure.

Discuss Trade Problems

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Commonwealth Caribbean countries and Canada exchanged views Wednesday in a first step to altering their 1965 trade agreement. Canada neard some had criticism.

For the 13 Caribbean rcountries in conference with Canada, Robert Lightbourne, trade and industry minister for Jamaica, said the prospect of Canadian tariff-cutting threatens the preferential position of the West Indies in the Canadian marketplace.

He trusted that Canada would find a way to compensate the West Indies in trade terms for the inevitable losses arising from the Kennedy round of traiff negotiations.

Mr. Lightbourne also said the Caribbean has been suffering from a reduction in Canadian preferences granted under the trade agreement through third-party agreements by Canada.

The sugar situation "could hardly present a more woebegone and depressing picture." Canadian preferences under the 41-year-old trade agreement was lower than for any other Commonwealth country.

HITS IMPORT RULE

He also criticized the provision permitting Canadian preferences only on Caribbean imports shipped directly to Canada.

Certain duties were too high, preventing an expansion of Caribbean exports of manufactured goods.

"No similar obstacles have been placed in Canada's path in our trade with her," he said.

For Canada, Trade Minister Winters promised consultation "with our Commonwealth partners in the Caribbean" during tariff negotiations with other countries. Canada had their preferential interests in mind.

He proposed the 1925 agreement be continued subject to alterations made at the conference. A committee was set up to examine trade questions, to report back to the conference.

Mr. Winters also said Canada recognizes that joint action will be needed to ensure a reasonable price range if an international sugar ageement is achieved.

He went on to say that there have been instances where Canadian manufactures have been excluded or restricted from traditional Caribbean markets without prior opportunity to discuss it.

Canada placed great emphasis on co-operation to avoid damage to established trading interests.

ANNOUNCE AID BOOST

Later the conference moved to the question of Canadian economic aid for the Caribbean and External Affairs Minister Martin announced a 30-per-cent annual increase to $18,000,000 a year for the next five years.

Prime Minister Pearson, the conference chairman, said later the idea of establishing a regional development bank in the Caribbean sparked "a good deal of interest" on opening day. A committee was set up to go into it further.

There was no indication the conference, designed to strengthen Canadian links with the Commonwealth Caribbean countries, gave any serious thought to the establishment of a free - trade arangement among the participating countries.

A background paper prepared by Dr. Owen Jefferson, a University of the West Indies economist, said free entry for Caribbean goods into Canada would do the Caribbean little immediate good anyway.

A Belleville man pleaded guilty in court today to operating a boat on the Bay of Quinte while impaired and was fined $100 and costs and prohibited from operating a boat for three months.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson imposed the penalty on Henry Spurgon, 38, of 16 Murney St. after hearing evidence that Spurgon was apprehended by R.C.M.P. officials at 1.13 p.m., Saturday, June 18.

O.P.P. testified that an R.C.M.P. constable phoned them and an officer was dispatched to the scene. Spurgon had been operating a 14-foot boat on the Bay. He had thrown a part bottle of wine into the water, but police had retrieved it.

Spurgon said, "I just bought the boat and just put it out in the water to try it out."

minister, said the revision should bring trust and loan companies that accept public deposits under federal banking law.

WARNS OF COMPLICATIONS

Mr. Sharp replied that so-called near - banks are under provincial jurisdiction and Ottawa would run into a constitutional dispute if it tried to put them under federal law.

But Mr. Fulton said the move would be in the public interest and it would be difficult for provincial governments to block it.

He said the importance of the move was pointed up by the collapse last year of the Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

"It is doubtful whether the Canadian financial system could stand another such collapse," he said.

The Porter royal commission on banking and finance had recommended that companies like Atlantic Acceptance be placed "under the umbrella of federal banking laws."

$50,000 Cruiser Aground On Point Petre Shoal

PICTON (Staff) — A $50,000 cruiser the "Bernie D" purchased in Niagara Falls only yesterday, went aground off Point Petre, in Prince Edward County, shortly before Wednesday night's thunderstorm.

The 41-foot boat, owned by John Dion of Montreal, and carrying three men and two women, wound up in 2½ inches of water in front of the home of lighthousekeeper Charles Newman.

Apparently the boat, bound for Montreal, ran out of gas early last night, the anchor was dropped but the rope broke and strong winds preceding the storm drifted the boat right up on the rocky shore.

The five passengers, uninjured, stayed on board overnight. The Canadian Coast Guard Cutter "Relay" from Kingston arrived on the scene last night and stood by through the night in case of difficulties.

This morning efforts are being made to free the boat, coast guard personnel are tying lines about the hull in an attempt to bring her off the rocky ledge sideways. A commercial fishing tug, operated by Stanley Rankin of Salmon Point is also standing by and may be used to tow her off. The boat is expected to be released sometime today and no serious damage to the hull is in evidence.

Wants Probe Of Bankruptcy Of Seven Firms

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Devos, receiver for the Montreal bankruptcy office, said Wednesday he would recommend to Bankruptcy Court that "unusual transactions" between seven commonly-owned wood product companies—teetering on bankruptcy—be investigated.

The firms are controlled by Montreal businessman Moshe Cohen.

They owe $2,636,000 to outside creditors; $497,000 to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, largest single creditor.

An audited statement reported liabilities of $10,960,000 of which $8,334,000 was from inter-company dealings.

A trustee appointed to assess the financial status of the firms said creditors likely could recoup only 23 per cent.

The trustee, R. Victor Barnett, said earlier he had been unable to determine cause of the companies' insolvency. He accused them of "kiting," raising capital through cheques floated between companies.

West Indies' Future

One of the most important Ottawa conferences of recent years is the one under way between representatives of the governments of Canada and the West Indies.

Canada is in a unique position to assist the expanding economies of the relatively new independent states of Jamaica and Trinidad — Tobago, as well as the other island territories and mainland regions of Guyana (formerly British Guiana) and British Honduras on the coast of South America.

Under discussion in Ottawa are trade, development aid, transportation, communications, migration and cultural relations. Each is symbolic of the big part which Canada is destined to play in the future of this Caribbean region.

Although Canada has actually been trading with the West Indies for 150 years, the region's economic requirements have been largely the responsibility of Britain. But now independence is the trend, and the time is not far off when the other island territories — Barbados for example — will be on their own.

When that time comes, even though Commonwealth links with Britain likely will remain, the opportunities for Canada to increase its assistance to the West Indies are bound to be more numerous. Oil and other natural resources already ensure a considerable degree of prosperity for modern West Indians, but there are others as yet untapped.

Apart from economic aid, Canada has much to contribute in the sphere of education in the West Indies, and in maintaining democratic traditions in a region which may well have been marked for communist subversion.

That the West Indies has escaped the fate of Cuba is the result of several factors, including British influence, stable administration and the absence of great extremes of wealth and poverty.

The region is on the threshold of a great future. Canada has a place in that future, by giving its support, both moral and material, in the years that lie ahead.

Outdoor Worship

Bringing the message of Christianity to people wherever they may be, particularly to those whose attendance at church is lagging for one reason or another, is being practised more and more by ministers and church workers these days.

Recently we referred to five Dallas, Texas, clergymen, of different faiths, who have been holding informal discussion groups with residents of high-rise apartment buildings where life tends to be alternately "swinging" or lonely and lacking in neighborliness.

Now we see that "Church A-Go-Go" is being presented to cottagers this summer. That is, in the Peterborough area at least. From now until Labor Day, young folksingers from the University of Toronto are conducting Sunday services at White Sands public beach, Buckhorn.

The young people are in the modern idiom, judging by a statement made by their leader, Lawrence Brice of Knox College. "Emphasis of the services will be communication," he said. "We want to prove wrong the criticism that the church is irrelevant and unable to communicate its message."

The students' initiative is commendable. Actually, the idea is not a novel one, for similar services were held in the area last year. However, the response then must have been sufficiently encouraging that they feel emboldened to continue them this year.

Summers are relatively short in this northern clime, and the winters uncomfortably long. It is for this reason that many people, cottagers and others, make the most of the warm summer sun. Here they are perhaps closer to the deity than they would be at church; it is simply a matter of awareness. However, if there is also some degree of formal worship as presented by the folksingers, so much the better.

Skiing Anyone

Vancouver is enjoying summer weather just like the rest of the country.

But out west there are the mountains which tower over the Pacific coast. This brings not only rain but also the phenomenon of summer snow on the upper slopes.

The Vancouver Sun illustrated the west coast city's multi-seasonal sporting attractions with a picture of two comely young skiers, Marcie Stephenson and Hanne Hunuas, taken at the 6,300-foot mark on Whistler Mountain. Two hours later they were pictured splashing in the surf at West Vancouver's Ambleside Beach.

Still, no one need complain about the heat-wave in our own part of the world. We have our own beaches close at hand. As one citizen was heard to say, "Why Go South!" And who wants skiing in June when there are all those winter months in which to indulge the sport.

Cutting Men Down to Size

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts At Large:

The human race perpetually oscillates between two tendencies — to build up an ordinary man into heroic proportions, and to cut a hero "down to size"; we are not content unless our public men are either larger or smaller than life.

For every one person that hate kills, a thousand are annihilated by indifference.

In any art or craft, the chief difference in motivation between the amateur and the professional is that the amateur desires the applause of the public, while the professional is mainly concerned with the respect of his professional colleagues.

Despite all the sophisticated processes for devising a cancer cure, I shouldn't be surprised if in the end it turns out to be very like the kind of bark with which the Indians cured warts centuries ago.

Everybody tries to make a virtue out of his particular vice: the compulsive Don Juan no doubt believes that men less preoccupied with women than he is are "under-sexed."

The bureaucrats in passport and visa offices seem to be more officious and bullying than bureaucrats anywhere else — possibly because they resent allowing people to travel freely while they are chained to their desks.

People who are chronically depressed seem somehow perversely proud of it, as if it made them superior to the superficial run of mankind who are sometimes merry; and there is reason to believe that melancholy is an incurable form of spiritual pride.

Whatever the dietary merits of their creed, it is hard not to agree with Finley Peter Dunne that "Most vegetarians I ever see look enough like their food to be classed as cannibals."

People who serve the world without despising it soon become the world's slaves; and those who despise the world without serving it soon become slaves to their own egos; the hardest and most useful attitude is a delicate blend of affection and contempt.

The indubitable fact that "a leopard can't change his spots" is used by many people simply as an excuse for skinning him.

The best way to win an argument is to concede as much as can possibly be conceded to your opponent's view without sacrificing anything essential to your own; success in argument is a direct opposite to success in bargaining.

Soil Cutter Is Developed

BBC London Letter

A new labor-saving tool with an appeal for farmers was reported on by Allan Murray in a recent broadcast in the BBC World Service 'New Ideas' program. It is a cylindrical implement for boring holes for posts and is made by the Maulden Engineering Company, of Flitwick, Bedfordshire.

It has a T-shaped handle, and when the worker places the metal base on the ground and turns the handle, curved blades inside the cylinder cut into the soil. "When the cylinder is full of earth," said Murray, "all you do is pull it up, empty it, and start again until you get the hole down to the required depth. This new tool — which is quite cheap to buy and simplicity itself to handle — makes holes from six to eight inches wide and its maximum boring depth is three feet."

The World's Worst Lovers

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

New Zealand men must have been shattered recently.

Any hopes they may have had for establishing themselves as great lovers were dashed by the Rev. R. A. Lowe, director of education for the New Zealand Anglican diocese of Christchurch.

Mr. Lowe not only described his fellow countrymen as "the world's lousiest lovers," but added that they have no sense of feminine appreciation.

And the New Zealand girls have supported his views.

The Frenchmen have long established themselves as holders of "the world's greatest lovers" title and have defied all efforts to wrest it from them. Possibly only the Italians have come close to qualifying.

It has been said that Canadians and Americans are too busy making money to bother about the finer points of gallantry; the Englishman, despite his assertions, that all the tea-drinkings add to his virility, has been banished to the very bottom of the list, and the Germans and other European males apparently hardly deserve even a mention in dispatches.

With the sudden influx of James Bond movies, this subject has suddenly jumped to the front of many people's thoughts. Masculine pride has been challenged. The girls expect more attention. They claim they are not asking for much — just small romantic gestures which pay tribute to their femininity.

A dangerous attitude; one which could start a world-wide revolution. No dates for boy-friends, no home-cooked meals for husbands until feminine charms are appropriately recognized. Door-opening, cigarette lighting and other aspects of gentlemanly behavior may become mandatory.

Stone Houses—Behind the Facade

Ottawa Journal

People who live in stone houses are the envy of many. Anyone who grew up in the older houses scattered about the Ottawa Valley countryside acknowledges "they don't build them that way any more." But most of them seem to have moved to more up-to-date lodgings at the earliest opportunity.

The stone farmhouses in the area, some of them abandoned and surrendered to small beasts and inquisitive weeds, may stir memories — some can become quite sentimental about their childhood in "the old house." But the sight of those four walls of honest local stone do something peculiar to people from other parts.

The houses catch the imagination of recent arrivals from climates where the local building materials do not grow old so gracefully. They also do something to the instincts of the old world. "If someone moves into an abandoned house, you can be sure he's an Englishman," a Valley farmer will remark.

Although the yellows, purples and greys of stone are endearing to most, houses of log, brick and even board sometimes will do — just so long as they are old and in the country. But many of those who realize their dream of living in an old farmhouse find it, in fact, a nightmare.

Behind the splendid stone facade may lurk colonies of crawling pests, rotten wood, burned-out wiring, faulty plumbing and utter despair. The enthusiast who decides to remove old wallpaper will find himself buried in ancient plaster. He may spend thousands of dollars to insulate or he may plug the holes himself with old diapers and yesterday's newspaper Still, the parade of bugs in summer and bitter cold in winter will march in from under his baseboards.

The restorer of old houses will be baffled by the piecemeal "improvements" made by earlier tenants. He will learn that the refrigerator must be unplugged before the television set can be turned on, and that the fuse that runs the toaster heats the bed. He will learn what foundation stones to remove to cut down condensation in the cellar in summer, and what taps to let drip all night so that the pipes don't freeze in winter.

He will learn to his surprise that 150-year-old houses still "settle." His children's toys will roll from one room to the other of their own accord, and, to prevent his doors sticking, he will shave a little more off them each year, till the cat can pass under them without crouching.

The hard water from the well will prove perfect for making beer, but his wife will make him take the washing into town.

Of course these old houses can be brought up to date, even if at great cost. But the true enthusiast for authenticity will prefer to put up wih small discomforts. As he lies in bed at night listening to the foundations crumbling and the birds fluttering in the furnace pipe which passes through his bedroom, he will hear his house whispering to him in the dark.

Party Leaders' Old Faces Take on Rejuvenated Look

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The weather's fine.

The flying's easy.

And, most important of all in this "Summer '66," a couple of Party conventions are coming up in the Fall.

So this is the political season of the year, this year especially — even although there isn't any election and what a wonderful switch that is — that the pols do their grass-rooting.

If you haven't had the pleasure yet, be prepared to welcome some of these political pilgrims from Parliament Hill.

Take the time and trouble to look closely when they come your way.

You'll see some interesting new faces.

And some changed and changing old ones.

The oldest faces with the biggest changes are worn by Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

Each year through the last nine — ever since the upset Conservative election of 1957 when the string of 22 Liberal years of power was snapped — the two leaders increasingly displayed the physical ravages of four campaign confrontations.

Each man in his turn mirrored the physically destructive pressures of power's agonizing responsibility.

TIME STOPS?

John Diefenbaker's odd and striking "pompade" — that strange triangular wedge of once black wavy hair sweeping back over the crown — turned steel-wool grey, then dead white.

And with each year his twitching nerve-ends snapped and crackled, his temper shortening as the tension tightened.

People, generally, except for a few intimates and total strangers, approached him with some uncertain nervousness.

L. B. Pearson's once-smiling face began falling in folds of worry, and as the greyness of fatigue crept over him, the old, gay wise-crack turned to a tired sigh.

Now, suddenly, with one at 70 and the other 69, they magically seem to have shed the years.

All at once they're more relaxed, amiably accessible, and in such great good humor that each has taken to waving and chatting to the swarming tourists.

Can it be that they both now know that for each the end of the years-long, man-mauling campaign trail is in sight. That except for some completely unforeseen political accident which could plunge the country into still another election, they'll be going to their Party conventions this Fall to help designate successors who'll bear the brunt of the next — post centennial — federal campaign?

They say not, both of them.

But intimates insist that even if they remain on as leaders, it will be as elder statesmen, with younger lieutenants more and more manipulating the strings of power.

IN LINE

Don't overlook the other faces those of the men who are in line — or so consider themselves — with the feet they feel fit a leader's shoes.

At the moment, perhaps because they're by far the most obvious, the Liberals are the ones to watch.

There is Agriculture Minister Joe Greene, young, only 46, but performing like an Abe Lincoln, care-creased face, tall and stooped, with an infinitely tired "just-folks" drawl.

But don't let the up-country image fool you. Joe is just putting on an act, a performance of steely self-control, holding down hard on an enormous charge of nervous energy.

There is Finance Minister Sharp.

Cool is the image. Frosty, even.

Coldly calculating agate eyes, hard-staring out of an axe-blade face under a blaze of orange hair.

But don't let that fool you, either. For he is not all that antiseptic. Actually, a swinger, confide those who know, when he can shake his severe case of work-compulsion long enough to unwind.

Then there is Trade Minister Winters.

A big financial cat.

But with a slow smile and warm hi-ya that makes you think that even as you and I, he isn't always ready to face his banker, the balance in the book being what it is.

And finally, Defence Minister Hellyer.

Looks amiable and sounds as reasonably flexible as any supposedly political soft cookie should.

But man, hard like a diamond. With a cutting edge that has sliced up all those admirals, generals and air marshals who used to eat defence ministers as appetizers before going on to consume whole cabinets.

Temperature Is Clue To Nature of Illness

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Today's remarks are inspired by a considerable variety of questions about temperature and fever. What is fever: An abnormal elevation of body temperature. When it is over 100 degrees, infection is usually the cause (although in infants, dehydration is a common cause).

Fever is one of the most frequent signs of the presence of disease, and one that can be measured by anyone who can read a clinical thermometer. When someone falls ill and you are calling the doctor, it can be helpful if you tell him the patient's temperature.

Keep in mind a few generalities about temperature. the familiar 98.6 degrees is average. Some people, entirely normal, may consistently be a degree or so below that, without anything being wrong. But since 98.6 is average, it therefore follows that for everyone whose temperature is normally below that, there will be somebody whose normal temperature is that much above the average.

Rectal temperature is about a degree higher than oral; temperature taken in the armpit is about a degree lower. Temperature declines during sleep. It tends to rise about a degree in the evening. Strenuous exercise can raise it from 1 to 4 degrees.

A fairly high fever alarms us, yet it may not necessarily presage a condition more dangerous than that which causes a continued low grade fever — say 100 or a bit above. The high fevers are more frequently associated with acute illnesses. The low grade fevers may be associated with such things as tuberculosis, kidney infections, hidden abscesses, malaria, etc. Malignancy can be a factor, as well as the collagen diseases (lupus, rheumatoid arthritis).

The common cold as a rule, brings no rise in temperature; flu and many other virus infections do When a common cold brings some fever, it usually indicates that a complication has developed — sinusitis, bronchitis, secondary bacterial infection.

In infants, convulsions may be touched off by a fever, but this tendency lessens after the ages of 1 or 2 years.

Chills (and this is not limited to any age) may precede the onset of a high fever. It is due to spasm of small blood vessels near the body's surface. As the spasm relaxes, a flush and feeling of warmth follows.

All this may sound like an odd accumulation of items, but they are included because these are matters which have brought recent questions from readers.

Dear Dr. Molner: For several months I have suffered from a burning sensation of the tongue. I went to the hospital for tests but they showed nothing. Could it be allergy? — Mrs. M. S.

When hospital tests haven't found the answer, I hesitate to hazard any guesses. Yes, allergy is one cause of burning tongue. So is deficiency of Vitamin B. Also lack of sufficient acid in the stomach. Brewer's yeast sometimes helps. Medication to increase acid in the stomach can help if that is the source of the trouble. These are merely shot-in-the-dark suggestions, of course.

• • •

Note to Mr. and Mrs. S.J.G.: I'm afraid you are considerably mixed up about the "rhythm method." It isn't completely foolproof, but it works fairly well if you understand it. My suggestion is that you get from your church a booklet on the subject. Such instructions are available. The "rhythm" of fertility affects only the woman; a man does not have such a cycle.

May Disrupt Police Service Across Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Police services across the province may be disrupted because of what the Ontario Police Association says is the failure of Pembroke town council to keep a wage agreement.

Dennis Latten, OPA administrator, said Wednesday the association is having difficulty preventing some of its members from booking off sick in protest against the council's action in overruling an agreement signed by its police commission a year ago with the town's law enforcement officers.

Mr. Latten said police are forbidden to strike and the 2,300-member association's only recourse is for its members to book off sick.

"We can't strike and we have to do something to make sure this sort of thing doesn't become province-wide," he said.

The Pembroke police commission signed a contract with the town's policemen calling for wages of $6,300 a year, up from $4,800.

W. T. Hollinger, Pembroke solicitor, said in a telephone interview Wednesday the council had agreed to a three-per-cent wage increase but the police commission had signed a contract with the 18 policemen for a 12-to-15-per-cent increase.

The council contends the agreement was contrary to the Police Act.

Mr. Latten said the association feared other councils might take the same action. "All the councils could begin refusing to ratify agreements between commissions and policemen."

Mr. Latten said the OPA's members were "wild" about the Pembroke council's action and many were anxious to book off in protest.

He confirmed a statement in the legislature Wednesday by Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, who said the OPA was having "great difficulty" in keeping its members from staying home on sick leave.

Polyansky Given Close Look At Successful Prairie Farmer

By TOM MITCHELL

REGINA (CP) — Dmitri Polyansky got a close look Wednesday at the ingredients that make up a successful southern Saskatchewan wheat farm—plenty of expensive land and a lot of sophisticated farm machinery.

The visiting Soviet deputy premier was obviously impressed after a visit to two family farms operating on the rich clay land, flat as a billiard table, that surrounds the provincial capital.

"This is a very good farm and you're a very good farmer who knows how to run it," he said through his interpreter to Max Seidlitz, who with his four sons farms 4½ sections or about 2,800 acres. Wheat land in the area goes for $150 an acre.

The Russian visitor also saw sheds crammed with the expensive machinery Mr. Seidlitz has to use to make his operation a profitable one.

Sights were similar, but with a little less machinery, when Mr. Polyansky stopped at the 960 acres farmed by James D. Traynor. The land was just as expensive here but Mr. Traynor and a neighbor with a similar 1½ sections pooled their money for enough mechanized equipment to work the two farms. They share a hired man, too, but otherwise operate alone.

RECALLS DUST BOWL

The mechanization and the problems of soil erosion were of special interest to Mr. Polyansky, an agricultural institute graduate. He went over the machinery with an experienced eye and asked both men whether they remembered the prairie dust bowl period of the 1930s and what they do now to prevent a repetition.

Mr. Traynor and Mr. Seidlitz both mentioned early seeding, to get some growth in the field to hold down the topsoil and keep it from drying up and blowing away.

"We had to do away with the plow in this country entirely," said Mr. Traynor, whose father and grandfather farmed the same land before him. Mr. Seidlitz said new equipment to turn over the soil and seed it brought quick growth that helped hold the topsoil.

Both farmers allow half their acreage to lie fallow each year to renew itself. But they said some farmers only leave a third fallow and others are trying out increased use of fertilizer to accomplish the same renewal.

Mr. Polyansky pointed to a heavy tractor and asked what it cost. The answer was $8,700. And there were three others just as big sitting beside it.

"Our machinery costs and land costs are getting out of line with the price for wheat," Mr. Seidlitz said.

"With all the land we have, all we're making is a good living, and you have to be careful."

Mr. Polyansky chatted amiably with both farm families during his stops.

When he found out blonde Sharon Traynor, 19, who has just finished high school and wants to be a secretary, knew how to drive a car but not a tractor, he commented:

"There's no harm in the young folk having to swallow a bit of dust." It would remind them of their heritage.

He posed for pictures with Mr. and Mrs. Traynor, Sharon and Glen, 11, who admitted to the deputy premier that his school marks hadn't been too high because "I just don't seem to be the type."

Mr. Polyansky, making a special tour of the wheat belt after heading a Soviet parliamentary group that finished a 10 - day visit Tuesday, also visited a Saskatchewan Wheat Pool elevator at Armour Siding just north of Regina. He watched a truckload of wheat being delivered for cleaning and storage at the elevator.

Town Is Evacuated As Wrong Spray Used

ARGYLE, Minn. (AP) — Between 300 to 350 persons, mostly youngsters, were evacuated from this northwestern Minnesota community Wednesday night after it was discovered the town was accidentally sprayed with a poisonous chemical, authorities said.

Police Chief Dennis Rousseau said the community of 800 was being sprayed from a light plane to combat mosquitoes when it was discovered that the wrong chemical was being used. He said the plane made three passes over the town before the mixup in chemicals was discovered.

Dr. E. E. Pulala of Warren, acting Marshall County medical officer, said the chemical mistakenly used was parathion, which he described as "quite a lethal poison."

Parathion is used as an insecticide in farming areas.

There were no immediate effects from the poisonous chemical.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed," Dr. Pulala said. "It (parathion) can be absorbed through the skin. There's a danger of contact for many days afterward. But at this stage, most of it is conjecture."

Little Chance Of Snow in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The forecast: Cloudy, suiggy, maybe rainy, and little chance of snow.

Vancouver residents who read that in their morning paper Wednesday didn't think it all unusual—except maybe for that bit about the sunshine.

Everyone knows it rains a lot in Vancouver, but it's supposed to happen in the winter, when the rest of Canada is getting snow. The fact that Vancouver's minimum temperature on Jan. 29, 1966, was 42 degrees above zero is something the tourist bureau can turn to good advantage.

But when the minimum temperature on June 29 is also 42, there is cause for concern. And when the July 3 maximum is only 57—the coldest July 3 ever—and the rainfall for the first three days of July equals the total for the whole of an average July . . . well!

One of Vancouver's 10 abused public forecasters said Wednesday that there is no improvement in sight.

Day Campers Spend Day At Sandbanks

Tuesday was beach-day for the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Day Campers. A bus left the "Y" at nine-thirty, destined for the Sandbanks. Once there, each counselor took his or her group on a nature-study hike. Many pockets were filled with stones, shells and wood by lunchtime.

In the afternoon, there was a supervised swim at the Outlet, under the watchful eye of the counsellors, as well as playing games and building sand castles on the beach. At four o'clock, departure time, sixty-three sun happy campers climbed back on the bus for the homeward trip, which was accompanied by a sing song of camp songs.

Pickpocket Queen Slain

SAO PAULO (Reuters)—Brazil's Queen of Pick - Pockets, who told friends she was off to London to cash in on the coming World Football Cup, was found shot dead here Wednesday, police reported.

The body of 27-year-old Vanda Pereira Dos Santos was discovered, clad in pink pyjamas, in the garden of her expensive home here.

Police said they were looking for her boyfriend, 31, a convicted killer and housebreaker, for questioning.

Vanda, who told her friends she was going to Europe "for dollars and pounds—hard currency," was last arrested during the carnival season this spring while working among revellers at a party.

National Organization For Nurses Within Four Years Says President

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian student nurses may have a national organization within the next four years, Danielle Bazinet, president of the Quebec Student Nurses' Association, said Wednesday.

"But it will be possible only if the provincial presidents are prepared to work seriously at it," she told a meeting of some 150 student nurses from across Canada.

The students, here to sit in on the Canadian Nurses' Association convention, now are organized only on a provincial level.

Miss Bazinet said the provincial organizations are not yet strong enough to form a national organization, but steps will be taken during the coming year.

Ontario now is the only province without a provincial organization, although it is organized regionally. But the Toronto delegate suggested in her report to the meeting that a provincial association for Ontario should be their centennial project.

Delegates approved a suggestion to try for a page of the Canadian Nurses' Association publication, Canadian Nurse, for student associations on a regular basis.

Another topic of discussion was the salary paid nurses while in training in the various hospitals in each province. It seemed that student nurses in Ontario and Newfoundland have the best financial setup.

Under a new system, many Ontario student nurses are paid $22.50 monthly for the first two years and a salary of $275 monthly for the third year when they are considered interns.

Newfoundland's student nurses are paid $28 monthly for the first two years and $112 for the third, under a similar system, but they are seeking an increase that would bring the third year salary to over $200 a month.

Nurses from several hospitals, including the English-language hospitals in Quebec, said they received no remuneration during a three-year training period.

The average monthly pay reported was $10, $18 and $24 for the three years respectively.

Most students said they worked a 40-hour week, but Ontario reported a 35-hour work week. British Columbia, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island reported a 44-hour week.

Canadians in the Space Race

Since 1959 some thirty Canadians have left Canada to join the U.S. space program. Why did they leave? What is their contribution to the U.S. race to the moon? What do they think of Canada's space efforts now? To find the answers to some of these questions Staff Writer James Quig and Photographer Bruce Moss talked with the Canadian scientists at NASA space centre in Houston.

The Presence of Jean Gascon

He has that aura which is usually called "panache" on the stage and "star quality" in the movies. He is director of the National Theatre School, founder-director and actor with the Théâtre du Nouveau Monde and associate artistic director and actor at Stratford. He is Jean Gascon and he meets Staff Writer Bill Brown in Weekend Magazine this week.

Get With IT

Nothing is sacred to IT art. IT consists of no form or style, no boundaries. The only condition is anonymity. IT artists wear hoods to hide their identity so that their art can stand alone. Staff Writer Patrick Nagle examines this wild new art movement.

Wonderful Willie Mays

"Willie is the greatest ball player I've ever seen," says Leo Durocher, manager of the Chicago Cubs. In a 1966 All-Star Game preview, Sports Editor Andy O'Brien says that Mays is baseball's greatest all-star. O'Brien talks about the man and his career in Weekend Magazine.

Keep in Stitches

They can be cool or warm. They are always light. They keep their shape and don't crease. They feel luxurious to the touch. They are the Canadian manufactured, ready-to-wear knits. Some of these fashion favorites are featured in Weekend Magazine this week.

Keep Cool and Cook

One of the problems the housewife has to face in the summer is how to keep her family happy and herself cool. Food Editor Margo Oliver suggests no-bake pies with crunchy-crusts and no-fuss filling.

SUMMER FUN

Dear Girls: Are you desperate for an outside summer fun group project which will happily occupy half a dozen small types while you salvage some free time for yourself?

We've got just the bill filler. Cover any old picnic-type table with large sheets of plain paper. A supply of newsprint paper is perfect. Tack down the corners.

Set up small pots of tempera paint in the centre — red, green, blue, yellow (buy it in powder form and mix your own) and equip each little tot with a beginner's paint brush — small, flat ice cream sticks will do.

Suggest a certain scene as their subject and turn them loose.

Half the fun is painting their own part of the picture — the other half is craning their necks and running around the table to see what the fellow on the other side is up to. — SUSANNA

If you have any hints for running a successful household—or any problems—write to Susanna in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.

TASTY ORANGE CHIFFON PIE

This Orange Chiffon Pie with Cocoanut Crust was a smash hit. I decked it out with a gay border of strawberries alternated with skinless orange sections and our crowd could hardly wait for dessert time.

The cocoanut crust is a novelty but must be made in a slope-sided pie plate — not a straight-sided layer cake pan — for it is troublesome to remove intact. I used a flexible pie server to loosen the sides until they were completely free then cut a wedge and gently eased my server under the wedge of pie and carefully removed it to a tea table. The rest of the wedges were easier to remove but you must not be in a hurry.

ORANGE CHIFFON PIE WITH COCOANUT CRUST

(serves 6 to 8):

Cocoanut Crust: 3 tablespoons butter (room temperature), 2 cups flaked cocoanut.

Filling: ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons plain gelatine, 3 eggs — yolks and white separated, 1 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice (½ large lemon), grated rind of 1 orange, ¼ cup sugar, 1½ cups 32% cream (see note below).

Make the Crust first: spread the soft butter in an even coating over bottom and sides of an 8" pie plate. Pat and press the flaked cocoanut into the butter to make a uniform crust with smooth rim. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes or until tinged with gold. Cool.

To make Filling mix together in saucepan the sugar, salt, gelatine, egg yolks, orange and lemon juice. Mix well and cook, stirring until boiling. Remove from heat and add finely grated orange rind. Stand saucepan in larger vessel containing cold water and chill, stirring occasionally, until it begins to set. Beat the egg whites with the ¼ cup sugar until stiff and fold them in. Whip the cream until stiff and fold it in. Pour into cooled cocoanut crust and chill. If desired decorate edge with a border of halved strawberries arranged alternately with skinless orange sections which have been dipped in fruit sugar first. This was beautiful and popular.

NOTE:

If you prefer to use only ½ pint (10-oz.) whipping cream it will do no harm to the texture of this pie filling.

Successful Living

Illegal to Leave Child Unattended in Home

DEAR DORIS: Here I am again with another of those problems that bother the human flesh; or maybe you will say another long-nosed grandmother.

DORIS CLARK

My son and wife have a darling son one year old whom they both love very much. He has clothes, toys and love enough for two children. Their restaurant is about a city block from the house. Now my son and his wife go to the restaurant about 6:00 a.m. and leave their small son in the house for two hours every morning alone in his bed sleeping.

Now what I would like to know is your opinion of this and what would anyone in authority think of it; also welfare. — GRANNY.

DEAR GRANNY: I'm alarmed; and so would anyone in welfare work be. Child protection legislation requires that no young child be left alone at any time.

Suppose the house catches fire. Or a burglar drops in — not to mention a kidnapper! In any case, one of these days Sonny is bound to wake up to find himself alone, and have a terrible feeling of alarm, if he is not outright ill.

Children can burn to death, or choke to death, or strangle from getting tangled up in the bedclothes. Someone must be there with him at all times.

Do you go further with this, or would you like me to?

DEAR DORIS: I am happily married and have two fine children. Doesn't this sound heavenly? But I do have a problem.

Some time in my young life I had an undetected attack of polio. During the years the large calf muscle of my left leg has become almost non-existent.

I have become very self-conscious about having legs that don't match. In this day and age of "falsies" for small busts, why not for a leg, to make it look the same as its mate?

Wouldn't it be possible to make a padded stocking or something that could be worn? — UNMATCHED.

DEAR UNMATCHED: Exciting things are happening in the prosthetics field; one of them is for you. The "cosmisis" is made of sponge rubber, and can be fitted quite easily. The fitting is done by a competent local limb maker who makes a cast of the affected leg and the other one, and the cosmisis is made to match.

The catch is the price — around $250; also that it is only made in the U.S. I'm sending you the address to write to.

P.S.: This information has just come to me from the National Co-ordinator of Civilian Rehabilitation, Canadian Department of Citizenship and Immigration.

Ann Landers

Establish Control Of Child in Infancy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In this age of going steady, teen-age drinking, and sexual promiscuity, parents don't know how to cope with their children.

ANN LANDERS

Our 16-year-old daughter is dating a boy who controls her every move. He has a car and plenty of spending money. There is no limit to where they can go and what they can do.

I've told Bonnie that we don't like this fellow and to stop going with him, or at least go with some others as well. Bonnie says if we tell her she can't see this boy she'll sneak out and see him anyway.

This is not her first steady, but the other boys had parents who set limits, so at least we knew when Bonnie would be home.

Please tell us how a girl can reject her parents for a 17-year-old smart aleck — OUTSIDE THE CIRCLE.

DEAR OUTSIDE: Bonnie has not rejected you for a 17-year-old smart aleck. You lost control of her long before he got into the act.

I've had thousands of letters similar to yours and I wish I could produce a magic formula to help distraught parents get through to their unruly children.

The time to have reached for help was when those kids were two years old. Now I can only suggest professional counselling — and I hope it isn't too late.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column a reader wrote that Los Angeles has more phonies per square inch than any other city in the world. I'd like to disabuse him of that notion. Fort Lauderdale and Miami tie for first place.

I head a public relations firm in one of those Florida cities. I am not saying which. Every day I am approached by entertainers, business men, nutty inventors and just plain crooks. I'm astonished at the number of swindlers and fast-buck artists who try to con me into getting them free publicity. All P.R. people are subject to this stuff, but nowhere is it so flagrant as in these two cities.

I have been stuck with so many printing and photography bills that I now operate strictly on a pay-in-advance basis.

If there are more phonies in Los Angeles, as your reader claims, believe me they got their basic training in Fort Lauderdale or Miami and moved to California. — BEN HAD.

DEAR BEN: Chiselers and crooks are wherever you find them — and, unfortunately, they are found all over. The sunshine states probably have more kinky characters because crooks tend to go where the livin' is easy.

In your business the best protection against getting rooked is to get the money in front, boy. And that's what you're doing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a bachelor who has been going with a divorced woman for two years. May has four wonderful children. Her ex-husband was a miserable, mean lush and they haven't heard from him since the divorce. May is supporting herself and the kids.

Everyone I've talked to says I'd be crazy to marry a woman with four kids. I'm pretty sure I'd enjoy it but so many people have told me I'd be a fool to take on a ready-made family, that I'm confused.

I don't promise to follow your advice, but I'd like to hear it. — POP.

DEAR POP: Your signature told me what I wanted to know. You do love those kids and you think of yourself as their father. Marry the woman. I'm betting you'll make a great little group.

HEADS BUREAU

A BIG HAND FOR THE LITTLE LADY — Seven-year-old Angela Hewitt seems to develope giant-sized hands as she reaches toward the camera. And, like the hand, her talent seems oversized for her age. She plays piano at the grade 9 level and also studies violin, recorder, singing, and ballet. In competition she has won enough scholarships to pay for all her music lessons. Her favorite composer is Mozart and she doesn't like the Beatles. (CP Photo)

Seven-Year-Old Pianist Wins Enough Scholarships to Pay for All Lessons

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Remember piano lessons—the ennui of Exercise No. 5, the evil thrill of Chopsticks, the deadly knowing that chopping Fir Trees into bars and inching through them led only to Yellow Butterflies?

Well, for every million or so who struggle through, there's an Angela Hewitt.

Angela's seven years old—you know, when you put your front tooth under the pillow for the fairy and go big for skipping and mud pies.

She's so little she has to prop herself against the grand piano bench so she can both reach the pedals and play the Haydn concerto she has just learned.

From the grand, which takes up about one-quarter of her parents' average-size living room, she can switch to the piano with organ foot-pedals which stands against another wall.

She's getting a harpsichord to replace the bassinette of dolls in her bedroom — "that's the only place in the house"—and also studies the flute-like recorder, the violin, singing and ballet.

SKIPPING HELPS

At musical festivals in Quebec City, Toronto and Ottawa, playing against people more than twice her age, she has won enough scholarships to pay for all her music lessons. Both she and her brother John, 10, have scholarships at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, where they take a Monday morning lesson every three weeks.

"We go up on Saturday and go to a concert," says Angela's mother, Mrs. Godfrey Hewitt. "Then, Sunday, we might go to the children's play at the Colonnade. Actually, I think Angela likes recitals best, then symphony concerts."

A friendly, bright little girl, with dark eyes and long hair tied up in a bow, the ballet fan is addicted to cookies with pink icing and skipping on hardwood floors.

"Her father says the skipping is what gives her such good breath control on the recorder," says Mrs. Hewitt, a native of Perth, Ont. Angela's mother studied music at the University of Toronto and came to Ottawa as a high school music teacher.

Mr. Hewitt, organist and choirmaster at Christ Church Cathedral, is the former assistant director of music at Westminster Abbey. Born in England, he came to Ottawa in 1931 and met his wife when she studied the organ with him.

COMPOSES SONGS TOO

Although they have been told their daughter could have a brilliant career as a concert pianist, the Hewitts think it's too soon to make plans of that kind.

Her mother is her regular teacher and daddy helps out as concerts or festivals approach.

"Things like phrasing, notation, tone, style and dy, uh . . ." Angela falters.

"Dynamics?" says Mrs. Hewitt.

"Dynamics and time," Angela finishes confidently.

She's composed some songs on the recorder and, when she was five, made up some variations of Christmas carols.

A Grade 3 student, she's near the top of her class in spite of the time she misses for performances. During a week off for the Ottawa music festival she won 12 firsts, three seconds and two thirds.

Though she's technically in Grade 6 piano, in competitions she plays at the Grade 9 level.

Her favorite composer is Mozart.

"I don't like the Beatles," she says rather shyly. "They're too noisy. A train in the station is noisy too."

Those Summertime Cliches Translated

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — You need more than a bottle of suntan lotion and a new pair of swimming trunks to get you through the summer successfully.

Above all, you must be sure to lay in a fresh supply of double-talk. Otherwise you're bound to be a social dud.

There are hundreds of tested examples of summer double-talk.

Here are a few—followed, in parentheses, by their literal translations:

"Where did you get that marvellous tan, Jim?" (It looks like it had been poured out of a whisky bottle.)

"The room is a bit cozy, sir, but you can see the ocean from it." (You just look beyond those three big smokestakes—and there it is.)

"Of course, those shorts are all right, Roscoe. You look fine in them." (Oh, Lordy, I do hope you aren't wearing them if we run into anybody we know.)

"Now, just lean back in the water, close your eyes, and stretch out your arms, Mrs. Jones. Don't worry — you'll float." (With all that blubber on you, lady, the navy couldn't sink you with a five-inch shell.)

"We're tickled pink glad you could join us for the weekend." (That's why we're feeling so blue.)

"Oh, how sweet — you brought your darling baby along. Mind if I hold him?" (But which end do you hold up? After looking at him, I'm not sure.)

"Don't mind the rain. It'll let up soon." (It rarely lasts more than a month this time of year.)

"It's been wonderful to have you this weekend. Now that you know the way, we want you to come back real often.' (At least every other century.)

INDONESIA'S WOEFUL FACE — An elderly Indonesian woman reflects much of the island nation's misery caused by economic chaos, poor transportation and political upheaval. (AP Wirephoto)

Living in Rags Amid Riches, Indonesians Are Pessimistic

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS

JAKARTA (AP) — "Indonesia may improve itself—by the year 2,000," the retired government official said. Then his voice trailed off and he stared moodily at the wall.

His depression summed up the widespread pessimism in Indonesia, a nation incredibly rich in natural resources but still desperately poor.

Despite its poverty, and the annual gloomy reports by Western analysts that Indonesia is on the brink of economic collapse, Indonesia will keep going.

It is a nation of contrasts, a nation where millions of its people are without shoes with only rags to wear, but a nation where oil simply runs out of the ground, rich fields swirl in emerald rivers across the volcanic land.

It has a wealth of quinine, pepper, kapok, tea, tin and coffee.

But since Indonesia declared its independence from Dutch colonial rule in 1945, it has made little headway in building a stable economy. In gold figures, Indonesia owes $2,400,000,000 in foreign debts. The interest rate alone comes to about $470,000,000 each year, equal to Indonesia's estimated export earnings for this year.

EARNINGS POOR

Yet in Solo, a major city in central Java, women work 15 hours a day sitting on a dirt floor making batik, the impregnated cloth for which Indonesia is famous. They earn seven rupiahs a day, the equivalent of seven cents or less on open market exchange rates.

In teeming Jakarta, thousands live along the turgid canals lacing the city, cooking, bathing, drinking and relieving themselves in the canal. They have no home and no future.

Inflation is a constant leech. The cost of living rose 600 per cent in 1965 and still is going up.

Again, in the paradox of Indonesia, there is little sign of food shortages outside the major cities. Rice grows everywhere, as do fruits and vegetables. For the vast majority of Indonesians, 90 per cent of whom live in the countryside, food comes as naturally as the rains.

Failures in Indonesia's economy lie within the complex and vague plans periodically set forth by the government. Overseeing it all, until the most recent government shake-up in March, was President Sukarno.

No small part of the blame for economic failures here must lie with him.

Indonesia now is in the final two years of its eight-year plan, which Sukarno once described as "rich in fantasy." Its practicality, however, is difficult to discern.

SEEKS PRESTIGE

While the economy crumbled under him, Sukarno continued to order the construction of prestige projects aimed at raising the status of Indonesia in the eyes of the so-called new emerging forces. The projects include a high-rise department store with nothing in it.

Failures in Indonesia's economp can be traced to Dutch colonial rule. During the 300 years the Dutch ruled these islands, they did almost nothing to build a foundation for an Indonesian-run economy. Yet Indonesia, directly or indirectly, provided income for one in every seven Dutchmen.

The Dutch inctalled a dual economy, one for hard cash in export-import dealings run by the Dutch. The second was a village-level program that was geared to the existence level only. Chinese were used as middlemen between the Dutch and the Indonesians, to the profit of the Chinese.

But despite this background, the failures over the last 20 years are difficult to explain away, even by Indonesian government officials. Much of the blame is laid simply on the lack of practical foresight.

Tito Stronger Than Ever After Purge of Party In Which Two Ousted

By BORIS BOSKOVIC

BELGRADE (AP) — President Tito appears to have emerged stronger than ever from the third major post-war purge of Yugoslavia's Communist party.

A long and well hidden struggle for power reached a climax last Friday with the ouster of Vice-President Alexander Rankovic, until then considered Tito's political heir, and Svetislav Stefanovic, boss of the secret police.

The purge is expected to spread. Rankovic and Stefanovic had strong support throughout the extensive state security apparatus and in the Serbian ranks of the Communist party.

Two politburo members — Sreten Zujovic and Croatian An- in the first purge, in 1948, a product of the break between Tito and Stalin. Zujovic repented publicly, was restored to party membership and held minor posts until he retired. Hebrang committed suicide in jail.

STILL IN JAIL

The second purge, in 1954, removed Milovan Djilas from the scene for advocating abolition of the Communist party's political monopoly and permission for other parties to operate. He is still in jail, sentenced for disclosing state secrets in a book that was a best seller in the West.

The third purge must have been the most painful of all for Tito because Rankovic was involved. Rankovic was his closest associate for years, both during the war and after.

He headed the secret police in the years after the 1948 break with Stalin, preventing Stalinist followers from organizing opposition to Tito's independent Communist policies. But in recent years differences developed in the leadership. There were intrigues and behind-the-scene fights, unknown to the public.

Tito and liberal elements in the party put their weight behind economic reform and were struggling with dogmatists who wanted to preserve centralized control of the economy.

The economic reform begun last August was running into more and more obstacles.

OPPOSED LIBERTIES

Relations among the leaders deteriorated. Rankovic, who had acess to all information which the secret police collected, felt he was powerful enough to oppose insistence on more liberties for the economy and in other fields.

The secret police infiltrated its people into the economic, government, cultural and other spheres. It became an isolated power inside and above the party. The purge was triggered when it was discovered the leaders, including Tito, were being shadowed and their telephone lines tapped. Some sources said Tito was particularly enraged by the wiretapping.

Tito had another major reason for forcing the showdown— a resurgence of nationalism.

Between the two world wars Yugoslavia was constantly shaken by fighting among its three major nationalities: Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. The Croats accused the more numerous Serbs of seeking domination. During the Nazi occupation the Croatian Ustachi with Nazi help killed Serbs wholesale. Tito saved the country's unity with his all - nationality partisan movement.

Nationalism began to revive in recent years. The economically more developed Slovens and Croats complained they were forced to support underdeveloped areas. The Serbs complained that the Croats and Slovenes were taking the cream. Signs pointed to Rankovic, a Serb, and Stefanovic as defenders of the Serbs.

SERBS BACKED TITO

Tito was believed to fear that serious new nationalist troubles would be triggered if Rankovic succeeded him. With the showdown coming, Tito apparently got the support of Communist leaders of all nationalities, including the Serbs.

Rankovic, a poker-faced politician of great calm, is expected to accept his removal quietly and not try to organize any kind of opposition to Tito.

The purge has enhanced Tito's hero image. Many Yugoslavs were unhappy over the pace of economic reform, expecting faster results. Blame for delays has now fallen on Rankovic. Remarks such as "Tito speaks but no one obeys him any more" are likely to die down.

The purge has cleared the way, however, for Tito's own brand of liberalism—more freedom for the people and the economy, more political liberties, but all within the framework of one-party Yugoslav Communism.

Wilson Cast

dering if there is some way out."

In Washington, Undersecretary of State George W. Ball said diplomatic reports indicated a growing war-weariness in North Viet Nam but added a political settlement "may be quite a long time off."

Wilson's announcement that he will fly to Moscow July 16 for a three-day visit came on the eve of a Viet Nam debate in the House of Commons. Leftist critics in his Labor party denounced his qualified support of the U.S. role in Viet Nam.

Wilson will visit Washington July 29 for a day of talks with Johnson. Some diplomats considered the brevity of the visit a reflection of Johnson's annoyance with Wilson for refusing to endorse the U.S. air attacks on the oil depots at Hanoi and Haiphong.

GANDHI PLAN TALKS

India's prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, said in New Delhi she also would discuss Viet Nam with Soviet leaders on the four-day visit to the Soviet Union she begins Tuesday.

India is chairman of the International Control Commission for Indochina created by the Geneva conference. Its other members are Canada and Poland.

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday rejected a New Democratic Party proposal in the Commons that Canada team with other Western nations in a joint appeal to the U.S. to cease bombings of North Viet Nam.

Pearson said he was "not convinced . . . that public appeals to one side or the other are likely to be more productive of results" than the course Canada is already following.

Canada had made repeated efforts to end the conflict in recent months and would continue these efforts.

Meanwhile North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh was quoted in the Soviet magazine New Times as saying there will be no peace talks with the United States unless American troops are withdrawn from Viet Nam.

He also predicted growing opposition in the United States to the war. The magazine said Ho was interviewed June 27 at his residence in Hanoi.

A New York Times dispatch from Hong Kong quotes unnamed U.S. officials there as saying another diplomatic approach will be made to North Viet Nam to discuss a settlement of the war.

The officials predicted the effort would be made after the furor over the U.S. air raids on the Hanoi and Haiphong oil depots died down, the dispatch says. The officials were reported hopeful that the North Vietnamese leadership could be persuaded to come to the conference table eventually despite their repeated insistence on an unconditional U.S. troop withdrawal.

Different

1, 1966, July 1, 1966 and Jan 1, 1967, plus a six-per-cent increase July 1, 1967.

The railways' nominee on the board, A. Gordon Cooper, suggested a 3.5-per-cent boost retroactive to the start of this year and three-per-cent increases at six-month intervals to mid-1967.

He estimated that the 12½-per-cent increase over two years would mean increases of 28 cents an hour for employees in both groups.

Union nominee Harry Crowe made separate recommendations for each group.

For the shop craft workers he recommended increases of 11½ per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1966, and a further 11½ per cent next Jan. 1, plus additional boosts for mechanics of 8½ per cent on each of the same dates.

For the second 55,000-member group, he recommended an increase of 6½ per cent plus 13 cents retroactive to Jan. 1, 1966 and a second increase at the start of next year of six per cent plus 14 cents. In addition, there would be further increases for skilled and night workers.

Non-operating workers now average about $2.20 an hour. The 28,000 craft workers, represented by seven unions, had demanded a 50-per-cent increase or about $1 an hour. The other 55,000 employees—signalmen, track workers clerks and others—sought a package of about 75 cents an hour.

HOW ABOUT fVIII AT 1/CXXV? — The scene was the filming of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar at an abandoned quarry near Woodbridge, Ont., Monday. Madoc to Get Cable TV

MADOC — Approval for a license to establish a community television antennae system for Madoc has recently been granted by the Board of Broadcast Governors and the Department of Transport to Hastings Cable Vision Ltd. of this village.

Present plans call for antennaes on a 170 foot tower to be located at Ed. Sexsmith's, the highest part in town. The signals from these aerials will be amplified thousands of times and then mixed and fed to a special Bell Telephone co-axial cable to be strung through the village. Other amplifiers will boost the signals again before it is distributed to customer's homes. A smaller pencil size cable will follow the telephone wire into the house and will be coupled to the TV set or FM radio through a small transformer. There will be no rotor or switch necessary to tune in different channels.

Eventually there will be eight channels covering all networks, as well as some FM radio channels.

This new system will be engineered for color. Work at the tower is expected to start within a week, beginning with the pouring of the foundation and guy anchors..

The principals of Hastings Cable Vision Ltd. are Glen Nickle and Gordon Pigden of Madoc.

Council Accepts Fire Chief's Suggestions

NAPANEE — Napanee Town Council unanimously agreed to adopt the recommendations of Fire Chief F. W. Patton brought in by fire, water and light chairman, Donald Holmes. As a result three members of the volunteer fire brigade will receive promotions.

Robert (Bob) Davis, and Ronald Luffman will be acting captains for a six-month probationary period, and Allen Bedore will be an acting lieutenant for that period.

Chief Patton explains that the recommendations were brought in after consultation with his assistant, Jack Perry. These men are selected for both ability and personality. Captain Gerald Chambers wishes to relinquish his position as he finds that his present employment frequently prevents his attendance at fires. He did not feel that he should do so until a replacement was available. Maurice Rankin has completed six months as a permanent member of the force. Rankin, Harold Martin and Harold Ruttan, the driver - firemen, together with the chief make up the permanent force.

Young Irish Junior Farmer Expresses Views of Canada

NAPANEE — There are two things about Canada which young Jim McBrian of County Down, Ulster, Ireland declares emphatically that he does not like - the mosquitoes and the extreme heat of last weekend. "I'm certainly not going to take any mosquitoes home with me", he vows, "and in Ireland our hottest days are only 70, never over 75"

Jim has been in the Napanee area since June 28, the guest for a week of Wayne Parks, president of the Junior Farmers. He is now with Duncan Hough of Sillsville. Jim has been a member of the Young Farmers' Clubs of Ulster for exactly half of his 24 years. He held many offices in his local club and is past-president for County Down. He was chosen because of his accomplishments to represent the organization on a exchage visit with the Ontario Junior Farmer.

Jim does not like Ontario's mosquitoes nor the hot weather, but he is enthusiastic about everything else he has seen and experienced. He is impressed by the size of the farms, and by the amount of bush. "We have no bush at all", he says. "There is so much land here that you could clear for crops", he says.

Perhaps the fact that Ulster has so few trees explains why the wells go dry at the first hint of drought. "Nobody except in remote areas depends on wells, though", he says "Water is laid down to the farms just the same as hydro. It comes from the Silent Valley Reservoir in the Mourne Mountains."

Jim and his father practise mixed farming on their 50 acres, within six miles of Belfast. It is valued at from $750 to $1,000 an acre. They raise beef cattle, pigs and poultry, and usually potatoes. Because Jim was to be away they did not plant potatoes this year. "We are not plagued by the potato beetle as you are here", he says, "but we do have to fight blight because of our damp climate. The average rainfall near Belfast is 35 inches.

BASIC INDUSTRIES

Asked about Northern Ireland as a whole, Jim said that it is prosperous, but not as prosperous as Canada. They still have their basic industries, their famous lines, their ship building and rope making among them, in addition to agriculture. Whisley manufacturing is declining. A lot of new industry has come in from Canada, the United States, and the continent.

Holland and Wolfe have ship building yards which cover over 300 acres, the largest unit of its kind in the world. The largest rope-making plant in the world is in Belfast. Belfast has a population of half a million, a third of the people in all of Ulster.

Education and all medical services are free. Jim himself was laid up for ten weeks as the result of an injury playing rugby. All medical expenses were paid by the government, and he received $10 a week while he was idle.

Canada, he thinks, is a land of opportunity. There is more money here than in Ireland, and it is easier to get. Living, on the whole, is cheaper there, though they do pay from 80 to 85 cents for gas, and 70 cents for cigarettes. "That is because of our 'free' education and medical services", he explains.

Jim McBrian is a good-looking lad, a six-footer, sturdy, and the fresh coloring expected in those who live in the British Isles. He has a ready smile, and the quick wit of the Irish.

He will leave Ontario Saturday after visiting Guelph for Field Day, and will go as far as the West Coast on his two weeks of free time. "I want to see as much of Canada as I can," he says.

Jim is sponsored on this trip by an Ulster firm of meat packers.

Around Town

EVACUATE APARTMENTS

NAPANEE — Police and firemen evacuated the apartments over the Superior Restaurant early Wednesday morning when a tenant was awakened by an explosion. He reported it to Sergeant Lawrence McTaggart who called the fire department. The hallways and apartments were heavy with fumes, and Lakeland Gas men were on the scene in a matter of minutes. The 14 people in the apartments were hurried to the street.

The fumes were found to be ammonia and not gas, and Gordon McNevin owner of the Napanee Creameries next door was called. Maintenance men soon repaired the damage and the tenants returned to their apartments as soon as the fumes had cleared away.

WATCH TOWN DUMP

Firemen are keeping a close watch on the town dump this dry weather, visiting it frequently to wet down fire which keeps breaking out from underneath.

The dump is to be closed the first three days next week while work is being done on the incinerator purchased by the town recently. It has not proved entirely satisfactory in eliminating the smoke, and changes will be made which will make it more efficient. The present lining is heavy enough for the load it has been called upon to carry. A higher smoke stack will be installed.

It is hoped that when these changes have been made that the incinerator will live up to expectations and will emit only white gases.

Excite Pilots

LONDON (CP) — Researchers studying stress on transatlantic pilots discovered high points, besides taking off and landing, occur when the stewardess serves midflight coffee. Results taken from four pilots show their heartbeat of 80 a minute almost doubled during delicate flying operations. One subject's pulse increased to 100 when the stewardess bent over him with a cup of coffee.

JANE PEGGY

They have beauty, style, talent, ambition and a teen-age philosophy, "Keep busy — if you become lazy physically it will reflect on your mentality."

And keeping busy is what attractive Jane and Peggy McCutcheon, 16 and 17 year-old daughters of Dr. W. C. and Mrs. McCutcheon of this city intend to do.

Last summer the young figure-skaters decided to become professionals and see the world — or the United States and Canada part of it. They signed a 3½ year contract with the well-known skating spectacular "Holiday on Ice."

They were chosen for their artistry as a "pairs" attraction, became an immediate hit and this year will enjoy near-the-top billing on the program.

Peggy and Jane left today for Knoxville, Tennessee where they go into immediate rehearsal for three special numbers "by The McCutcheon Sisters." For the next ten months they will travel through the continental United States, Canada and Mexico.

One of their biggest "road" thrills comes when they open for three weeks in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Professional figure skating is not a bed of roses, the youngsters discovered. It calls for hours of hard work, rehearsal, etc.

"Like other spheres of show business, performers have to produce," said Jane. "Production for perfection means hard work, but this is made easy if you like it. We get so much enjoyment out of skating that we do not figure it as hard work."

They rehearse two hours daily, then comes "school time" and study. The girls are getting their secondary school education via correspondence lessons. Jane is in Grade 12 and Peggy Grade 11.

But "on the road" they discovered they had time on their hands — and decided to do something about it. They felt keeping busy would ward off any tendency to become lazy. And professional figure skaters cannot afford to slacken off or give lackadaisical performances.

So they took a special course in the Patricia Stevens School of Modelling and emerged with top honors at the head of the class. The school created and presented them with a special award.

"We hope to get modelling assignments in the cities we visit," said Peggy. "This will not only help financially but mainly it will keep us busy — and that is what we want to be. Modelling is closely associated with figure skating as far as show business goes. What we learn off the ice will aid us greatly when we are on it."

"Besides" the girls said, "we want to work and keep busy. The long hours off could develop laziness and as we said ,in the pro-skating business, one cannot afford to become careless through laziness."

What about romance, marriage someone asked. "Two lovely young ladies like you surely are not immune to the opposite sex."

Jane and Peggy were deadly serious. "We are not thinking of marriage. We want to do something with our lives first. There are lots of things we can do and besides we want to skate as long as we can."

The girls are unchaperoned in the show. "The older people look after us and we have had no trouble."

"Do the boys bother you?" they were asked.

"Occasionally, but we again have no trouble said Jane. "We found the young Mexican Senors very romantic. They came up to us speaking in Spanish. We answered in French and any romance was nipped in the bud when they discovered there was no means of mutual communication."

"We did have a lot of fun while rehearsing in Jacksonville, Florida" said Peggy. "The Cincinnatti Reds baseball team was in training down there and the club — particularly the rookies practically adopted us. We had a lot of fun.

"And in Memphis the hockey team was very kind to us, especially the Canadian players — and there were a lot of them from our country" said Jane.

Signing a professional contract climaxed some 12 or 13 years of skating for the girls. When they were three or four years of age they donned their first skates under the watchful eye of Jack Dickens, well-known city figure-skater. Later their father took them under his training wing and coached them for many years, sometimes starting at five in the morning.

The girls do not skate with the chorus of the show. As was noted they form a specialty pairs act and this year will skate three new routines.

Fame and fortune milestone the glittering trail of professional skating for these attractive talented youngsters. And if hard work is the key to the door of success then Peggy and Jane "are in."

Boog Powell, Baltimore's slugging first baseman, tied an American League baseball record by driving in 11 runs in the Orioles' doubleheader against Kansas City Athletics Wednesday night.

The Orioles won the opener 11-0. Kansas City took the nightcap 9-8 when Larry Stahl doubled home the winning run in the 11th inning—just before a midnight curfew would have halted play.

Powell, 24, a left-handed swinger, drove in four runs in the opener with a three-run double and a sacrifice fly, and in the nightcap added seven runs batted in with a grand slam homer, a two-run homer and a run-producing double.

That tied the league record for RBIs in a twinbill, matching Earl Averill of Cleveland in 1930 and Jim Tabor of Boston in 1939. It also lifted Powell's average to .301 and raised his RBI total to 66—one short of the major league leader, team-mate Brooks Robinson.

ANGELS EDGE TIGERS

Elsewhere, California Angels edged Detroit Tigers 1-0 in 10 innings, Minnesota Twins nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3, Washington Senators swept Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 3-2 and Boston Red Sox beat New York Yankees 5-3 and 5-4.

Powell's efforts in the first game backed Steve Barber's five-hit pitching. In the nightcap, the Athletics trailed 6-2 before moving ahead with a six-run rally in the eighth.

Powell pulled Baltimore back into a tie with a two-run homer with two out in the ninth before the Athletics won it in the 11th when Roger Repoz and Stahl doubled. It was Stahl's fourth RBI of the game.

Angels' starter George Brunet allowed only two hits and Boston's Earl Wilson just four through nine innings. California finally broke through against reliever Larry Sherry in the 10th on singles by Tom Satriano and Bob Rodgers around a sacrifice.

OLIVA SNAPS TIE

Tony Oliva and Bob Allison each drove in two runs for the Twins, Allison connecting for a homer off Sam McDowell in the second inning and Oliva rapping a tie-breaking. two-run double off reliever Dick Radatz in the eighth.

Don Lock hammered a two-run homer in the first inning of the opener for the Senators, then scored the winning run in the fourth when he singled and scored on Ed Brinkman's double.

Lock walked and scored the tying run in the eighth inning of the nightcap, racing home when reliever Bob Locker threw Ken McMullen's bunt away. McMullen came home with the winner on Paul Casanova's double.

The Red Sox grabbed the opener on Dalton Jones' two-run, pinch-hit homer in the ninth inning. In the nightcap Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs with a homer and a single that snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning.

Sandy, Juan Head NL Hill Staff

CINCINNATI (AP)—Six usual starting hurlers, headed by Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers and Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry of San Francisco Giants, plus two relief experts, were named Wednesday to the National League pitching staff for the annual major league All-Star game.

The game against the American League All-Stars will be played in St. Louis' New Busch Stadium July 12.

Dodger manager Walter Alston, who will direct the National League team, picked Jim Bunning of Philadelphia, Bob Gibson of St. Louis, Claude Raymond of Houston, Billy McCool of Cincinnati and Bob Veale of Pittsburgh in addition to Koufax, Marichal and Perry.

Bunning, Gibson, Marichal Perry and Raymond are right-handers while Koufax, McCool and Veale are southpaws.

Earlier, Minnesota Twins manager Sam Mele, who will direct the American Leaguers, named Danny McLain of Detroit, Gary Bell and Sam McDowell of Cleveland, Steve Barber of Baltimore, Jim Kaat of Minnesota, Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Jim Hunter of Kansas City and Pete Richert of Washington to his hurling staff.

Unlike Alston, he did not name a single relief specialist.

Going into Wednesday night's game, the National League staff has a 78-31 record. The top men are Perry at 14-1, Koufax at 15-3 and Marichal with 13.4.

Bunning is the leader in times named for an all-star team with seven but two of those were with the American League when he was with Detroit Tigers. He has a 1-1 record in all-star competition.

Koufax was picked for the sixth time. He pitched only one inning last year but was the winning hurler. He is 1-0 in all-star play.

The only newcomers to all-star competition will be Perry, whose record gives him the highest winning average in the majors among regular hurlers.

Marichal, who was the winning pitcher in 1962 and 1964, was named for the fifth time.

He was the National League's starting hurler last year and allowed only one hit in three innings. His all-star earned run average is 1.13.

Gibson (11-1), was picked for the third time. He pitched the Champions Will Watch

Two Top Gymnasts Hurt

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's two top gymnasts will watch from the sidelines as their titles go up for grabs at the Canadian gymnastics championships which open here Friday.

The two-day event, winding up with the selection of six men and six women to represent Canada at the world championships in Dortmund, Germany, Sept. 20-25, has attracted 82 competitors from seven provinces and three U.S. states.

But the two 1965 champions—Gail Daley of Saskatoon and Gilbert Larose of Montreal—will not be able to defend their titles, won in Saskatoon because of injuries.

Miss Daley, 20, four-time winner of Canadian senior women's championships since 1962, has a cast on her right leg following a June 13 knee operation to correct an injury. Larose is limping from a severed tendon in his right foot.

EXERCISES IN WATER

Larose, 24, who competes for and coaches Immaculate Conception Club in Montreal, has been working out in water to get his ankle back in condition.

"The doctor says it will take another two weeks before my leg will be strong enough for competition, but in the meantime I can't defend my title, as much as I'd like to," Larose said in an interview Wednesday.

Gymnastics coach Herb Vogel of Southern Illinois University, where Gail attends school, says the silver medal winner of the 1963 Pan-American Games in Sao Paulo, Brazil, will be out of action at least six months.

Miss Daley will definitely not be on the Canadian team but Larose could be named by the selection committee.

Irene Howarth, 20, of Saskatoon, who goes to school with Daley, is favored to take the senior women's title. Among her achievements is the 1965 NCAA championship in the U.S. and a second-place finish behind Miss Daley last year.

Willie's 3-Run Homer Nips Cards

Pirates Win

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Take a strong arm, add lots of pressure and a portion of self-help and you have a Los Angeles Dodger pitcher. Claude Osteen fits the formula perfectly.

Osteen won his sixth game by a one-run margin this season 1-0 against Cincinnati Reds—and he drove in the run Wednesday night.

In bringing his record to 11-6, Osteen allowed the Reds four hits and went 2-for-2 to raise his average to .261. One of his two singles drove home John Kennedy in the eighth inning. That gave Osteen his second shutout of the year.

Willie Mays smashed a three-run homer to give San Francisco a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals and kept the Giants 1½ games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh Pirates who trounced Chicago Cubs 10-5.

New York Mets beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-5 and Atlanta Braves walloped Houston Astros 8-1 in other National League games.

Mays' 524th career homer and 19th this season, came off relief pitcher Don Dennis with two men out in the eighth. It left him 10 behind Jimmy Foxx who hit 534 homers, second only to Babe Ruth's 714.

Roberto Clemente doubled home two runs and drove in three more with his 13th homer in the Pirates' victory. Donn Clendenon also got his 13th homer and fourth in as many games for the Pirates, a two-run shot.

Jack Hamilton picked up his eighth save in his last 11 appearances for New York. Ed Kranepool knocked in three runs with a pair of doubles for the Mets, who exploded for four runs in the seventh inning.

Joe Torre hit his 21st homer and an RBI single and Mack Jones homered and tripled for the Braves. Don Schwall, making his first start since being traded to Atlanta by Pittsburgh, worked 6 1-3 innings for the victory.

Canadians Score Six Firsts At Bisley

By CARL MOLLINS

BROOKWOOD, England (CP) A Canadian Army marksman, prone in a pelting rainstorm on the sodden Bisley rifle range, turned to a range officer behind him.

"I was just wondering what it would take to have a shoot postponed here," the soldier said.

"We only call off an event if a range officer is struck by lightning," the range officer cracked back.

The soldier turned back to the dripping sights of his semiautomatic FN rifle and squinted toward a barely-visible target 500 yards away.

"I just squeezed the trigger and hoped," said Sgt. Roger McMahon, 36, of Cranbrook, B.C., a member of Lord Strathcona's Horse and the 12-man Canadian Army team at the 97th annual Bisley shoot.

"We don't want to sound like fair-weather soldiers," said Capt. Jack Dangerfield, 28, of Vancouver, like McMahon a member of the Lord Strathcona's Horse based at Iserlohn, West Germany. "But we don't usually shoot competitively in weather like this."

Despite the handicap, Canadians scored impressively in major competitions Wednesday against 500 other marksmen, mainly British servicemen.

Canadians took six of the first 25 places — including third, fourth and fifth—in the Queen Mary Challenge, a four part contest over two days that includes deliberate shooting, rapid firing, snap shooting and firing on the move at various ranges between 500 and 100 yards.

In the service rifle championship, based on an aggregate of scores in seven events, Canadians took six of the top 20 spots.

But the Canadians failed to retain the top trophies won last year by Sgt. Joe Daigle, 35, of the Royal 22nd Regiment. Daigle was back to defend the Queen Mary and rifle championship, but slipped to 22nd in the Queen Mary and 14th in the service rifle championship.

The St. Charles, N.B. native, now based at Werl, West Germany, was the first Canadian to win both trophies—a feat nobody has accomplished two years in succession. "It was too much to hope for a repeat," Daigle said Wednesday.

The Canadians are satisfied that placing so many men so high in the premier events displays more depth than in any previous Canadian team at Bisley.

Reported Half-Million

Leafs Sell Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Hockey League Wednesday approved the sale of Rochester Americans by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

The Americans were purchased by a corporation headed by Robert W. Clarke, a Rochester lawyer, for a reported $500,000. The team will still have a working agreement with the Leafs.

The league tabled for one day a request by Buffalo Bisons to suspend their franchise for one year.

The Bisons, who finished in the cellar of the circuit's Western Division last season, are unhappy with their working agreement with Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL and have been unable to obtain enough players of AHL calibre.

In another development, Lou Pieri, owner of Providence's hockey club, is negotiating for the sale of his team and the Reds' arena, the Rhode Island Auditorium, with a Providence syndicate.

Should the Bisons drop out of the league, it would reduce the number of clubs to eight. The others are Hershey, Baltimore, Springfield, Quebec, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Pinch-Hit Blast Won For Warner

Doug Ellis, Stewart Warner's pitching ace, has more than one formula for winning ball games.

He wasn't doing the pitching last night but he slammed a three-run pinch-hit blast in the eighth inning to give the Warnermen a 7-5 victory over Lightfoot Construction. Officially, Ellis should get credit for a two-run triple with the game ending at 6-5 for Stewart Warner.

Stewart Warner climbed to within two points of the Commercial Softball League lead, held by Point Anne, with the victory.

Lightfoots, trailing 4-0 after three, netted pairs in the fourth and seventh to send it into extra innings. They plated one in the top of the eighth, on a walk and a throwing error, to go ahead 5-4. Then came an error and walk for Stewart Warner and Ellis' hit, scored as a home run.

Junior Day gave up nine hits while hurling the win, striking out three and walking four.

George Young started and gave way to loser John French in the sixth for Lightfoots. Young gave up six of the seven hits, fanning four and walking two. French was tagged for Ellis' homer, whiffing one and walking two.

Gary Gee crashed a home run and single, Doug Ellis his winning blow and Rod Turner a double and single for Stewart Warner. Floyd Crawford added a double and Gary Gow a single.

Gerry Vincent hit a double and single for Lightfoots, Tim Cook two singles and John French a two-bagger. Don Smith, Les Hall, Rusty Garvin and George Young had singles.

First Ace In 3 Years

TIMMINS (CP)—Normie Prest of Niagara Falls, Ont. has scored the first hole in one at the Timmins Golf Club in three seasons.

He accomplished the ace Wednesday on the seventh hole, a distance of 140 yards with a five iron.

Playing with Prest, a former Timmins resident, was Elio Facca, who must be some sort of good luck charm. Facca was the golfing partner of Bill Chaplick, the last golfer to score a hole in one at the local club.

Picton Thumps Juniors

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

PICTON — Ellis Juniors have found out what it's like to play without a regular pitcher in the line up. They probably won't try to find out again.

Last night, Picton whomped Ellis' 13-1 in a B. and D. contest played here. The winners burled three pitchers before the night was out, and if they hadn't tried to speed up the game because of threatening rain, it's likely that they would have scored many times more.

The reason for Ellis' difficulties was the absence of regular pitcher Bob Ethier from the team. They were forced to go with 14 year old Mike Healey, centre-fielder Carl Boomhower and third-baseman Jerry St. Denis as hurlers.

Healey started, lasting two and a third innings. The hometowners got four hits off him, were walked five times, and were hit by one pitch. He fanned three.

Carl Boomhower relieved Healey in the third, and next inning Ron Weese of Picton slammed the first of two home runs. Marv Stacey also smashed what would have been a homer if he hadn't missed third base. The winners had to settle for three runs in the fourth frame.

At this point the game became a battle by Picton to get in the necessary 6½ innings of play, before it started to rain. Boomhower pitched the ball everywhere but over the plate, and Picton swing at most of them, in the fox and goose game that had Ellis' looking for a deluge.

Jerry St. Denis finished off the game on the Belleville mound. He gave up runs on Weese's three-run homer, and another following a walk.

On the Picton mound, Carl Stacey turned in one of his top efforts with a sparkling two-hitter. He blew down 15 on third strikes, walked one, and faced only 30 batters in all. He got every member of the Ellis' team on third strikes at least once. Don Gardiner got two scratch singles to account for the Junior hits.

Ron Weese led the Picton hitters with a triple and two home runs. Marv Stacey smashed a double and single, and Keith MacDonald and Frank Forster blasted two base hits each. Eldon Carson, Keith Stacey and Carl Stacey had singles.

Departmental Softball

Erupting for six and four-run innings, The Intelligencer outlasted Public Utilities 13-9 to regain a share of first place, with City Hall, in the Departmental Softball League last night.

Utilities, with only a slim hope left of catching a playoff spot, led 2-0 and 5-2 in the early going.

Johnny Edwards pitched seven-hit ball, fanning five, for the victors. Ralph Sine and E. MacCormack gave up eight hits in defeat, whiffing two and walking ten.

Maurice Switzer sparked The Intelligencer with a double and two singles while Merv Thompson hit a key two-run homer, Don Wood and Ted Warwick a triple each.

Trudeaus Meet Top Kingston Team

Saturday's Belleville and District Softball League game, Trudeau Motors vs. Ellis Juniors, has been postponed.

Ellis Juniors are travelling to Oshawa to compete in the OASA Junior "A" tournament Saturday.

However, there will be a Saturday night game at Alemite Park.

Trudeau Motors will play host to Smart's Braves, the first place team in the Kingston Senior Softball Association. Bubs VanHooser, well known in this district, is one of the Kingston club's pitchers.

The game is scheduled for 8:30. Trudeaus will play a return exhibition in Kingston at a later date.

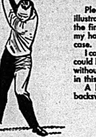
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

HIGH HANDS INDICATE POWERFUL SWING



Please study the accompanying illustrations of me at the top and the finish of my swing. Note that my hands are quite high in each case.

I can recall very few golfers who could hit the ball any great length without swinging their hands high in this manner.

A high hand position on the backswing indicates that the golfer has fully stretched, or coiled, his muscles. It stands to reason that the more fully you stretch your muscles going back, the more power you will generate on your downswing.

A high finish indicates that the golfer has properly lowered his right shoulder on his downswing and thus achieved a "delayed" unhinging of his wrists. It is this delayed hit that produces a full release of maximum clubhead speed in the hitting area.

Pitcher Makes Discovery

'Lip' Has The Last Word

CHICAGO (AP)—Pitcher Bill Faul experimented with a second guess of Leo Durocher and was promptly sent down to baseball's minors Wednesday by the fiery Chicago Cub manager.

Faul, 25, who had a sensational career at the University of Cincinnati and was signed for a bonus by Detroit Tigers in 1962, was optioned to a Cub farm club to be determined later. It probably will be Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League.

Faul's contract was bought by the Cubs from the Tigers in 1965 and he divided time that season between the parent club and Salt Lake City. So far this year he was 1-4 for the Cubs.

"I'm a little burned up at what happened," said Faul.

"It all came about from Tuesday's game with Pittsburgh Pirates when Donn Clendenon hit a homer off me in the sixth inning."

"In the sixth, catcher John Boccabella called for a curve and I shook it off. I was afraid I might hang a curve and I don't have too good control of it anyhow.

"Boccabella gave me the curve sign again so I thought Durocher must have called for it. I went ahead and threw it and Clendenon hit it out of the park."

He said he grumbled about being ordered to throw the curve and was kicked off the team by Durocher, who charged him with trying to run the ball club.

Football Challenge Rejected

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Football League will not accept a challenge from the United States to match the Grey Cup winner against the Continental Football League champions this fall.

Commissioner Sydney Halter said Wednesday it would be impossible to accept the challenge contained in a letter from Sol Rosen, commissioner of the Continental League, for a game a week after the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

"It would be impossible to get two teams, from leagues using different rules and a different size field, to play this kind of game."

last two innings of last year's game and preserved the National League's one-run margin.

Veale was named to the staff last year but did not see any action.

If there were any surprises in Alston's selections it was in the picking of both McCool and Raymond. However, they have earned run averages of less than two as relievers for the Reds and Astros.

In naming them, Alston passed over Cincinnati's Jim Maloney, who has a 9-4 record. The Reds haven't scored a run in the four games he has lost.

The eight starting infielders and outfielders for both clubs already have been named by a vote of the players.

Still to come will be the selections by both Mele and Alston of players to round out the 25-man squads.

Woodstock Reconsiders

WOODSTOCK (CP)—The executive of Woodstock Athletics of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior series has decided to keep the team in a new expanded league.

Dr. John Blackwood, club president, said Wednesday the executive reconsidered an earlier decision to withdraw.

Club officials from Woodstock and Galt announced last week in Toronto they would withdraw their teams during the 1966 season because of a vote favoring the expansion of the five-team league to include Barrie, Collingwood, Orillia, Toronto and Belleville.

Dr. Blackwood's announcement Wednesday came with two days remaining before a deadline given to both teams.

Both Galt and Woodstock officials had complained that travel expenses would be overwhelming.

Dr. Blackwood said the club will seek volunteers to drive the players to away games.

Underdog Scores Knockout

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Underdog Curtis Cokes, 146, scored a 15th-round technical knockout over Luis Rodriguez, 146, Wednesday night and moved a step closer to one version of the world welterweight boxing title.

Referee Pete Giarrusso halted the bout with one minute gone in the final round.

The bout was billed as an elimination match for the welter crown which the World Boxing Association took away from Emile Griffith when he failed to defend it within a six-month period. Griffith still holds the middleweight crown, and is contesting the WBA action.

Cokes wants to fight the victor of a proposed match between San Haywood of Philadelphia and Manuel Gonzales of Houston. But Haywood wouldn't go along with the idea and Cokes' handlers are trying to get the WBA to declare Cokes the WBA champion provided he meets Gonzales within 60 days.

Kings Get Top Gravy

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Memorial Cup champion Edmonton Oil Kings received the biggest share of playoff surpluses from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association this year.

Gordon Juckes, the association's secretary-manager, said Wednesday the Oil Kings got $19,096 from the playoff surplus of about $96,000 earned by CAHA clubs last season.

Estevan Bruins and Oshawa Generals received more than $10,000 each. Estevan lost to Oil Kings in the western junior final and Oshawa lost to Edmonton in the national junior final.

Among senior clubs, Allan Cup champion Drumheller Miners received $10,300. Sherbrooke Beavers, who lost to the Miners in the senior final, received $9,000.

Wings Belt Leafs 8-1, Chiefs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six unearned runs were too much of a handicap for Gary Waslewski to overcome Wednesday and the ace Toronto Maple Leafs right hander was belted 8-1 by Rochester Red Wings in International League action.

Waslewski, the league's winningest pitcher, now is 11-7 on the season. Three unearned runs in the third inning put him behind and the Red Wings knocked him from the mound in the sixth when they added another four, three of which were unearned.

Frank Bertaina, recently sent to Rochester by Baltimore Orioles of the American League, won his second game in two starts with a six-hitter. He lost his shutout in the eighth when a run scored on a wild pitch.

In other action, league-leading Columbus Jets defeated Toledo Mud Hens 5-3, Syracuse Chiefs stopped Buffalo Bisons 3-1 and Richmond Braves shutout Jacksonville Suns 5-0.

Muskox May Soon Be Hunted, First Time in Fifty Years

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — Want a muskoz trophy head for your den? Or perhaps a muskox rug?

The Northwest Territories council will decide soon whether to allow a muskox hunting season, the first in almost half a century.

S. M. Hodgson, N.W.T deputy commissioner, says the results of surveys among Eskimos to determine their feelings about an open season will come before the council Oct. 31.

If a season is declared—and a decision could come from that council session—reaching the hunting grounds and surviving in the cold will rule out casual hunters.

The estimated 10,000 muskoxen are principally in the high Arctic. Air travel will be the only practical means of getting there.

The largest single concentration roams Ellesmere Island, the most likely hunting area. About 4,000 graze in small herds on this most northern of Canadian islands. Ellesmere, whose northern tip is 500 miles from the pole, is covered by snow and ice much of the year.

"This type of hunting will likely be too expensive for all but the really avid trophy hunter, out for experience, challenge and a record trophy," says an official of the Canadian Wildlife Service. "It's not for someone who buys a $17 gun and goes charging into the bush."

Transportation and the services of guides and outfitters will make the expedition an expensive one. And the operation will undoubtedly be carefully licensed, the official says.

He figures a hunting season would attract big-game hunters from Canada, the United States and overseas.

Quarry would be over-mature bulls, some of which stand as high as five feet and weigh up to 900 pounds. These are generally loners or outcasts from the usually small herds.

They provide the largest trophies and are not vital for reproduction, having passed their breeding prime.

Wildlife officials say a hunting season would bring substantial revenue into the Northwest Territories and would boost employment, particularly in the Franklin District and Queen Elizabeth Islands.

The mechanics of hunting muskoxen indicate a challenge to stir the instincts of the big-game hunter. Cover is virtually non-existent, muskoxen have excellent hearing and eyesight, and years of defending themselves against wolves have produced well-tuned danger instincts and polished drill for repelling intrusion.

Dr. J. S. Tener, an official of the wildlife service, said in a recently - published study that the animals invariably run from attacks or intrusions, forming into a defence circle on high ground.

He reported existence of herds starting in the east-central part of the N.W.T., ranging in size from 10 to more than 100 animals, and extending north to the most populous region, Ellesmere.

There hasn't been a season on the muskox since 1917 when the federal government took steps to put a stop to half a century of random slaughter for carriage comforters. Even Eskimos are barred from killing the muskox except for food in an extreme emergency.

Leads British Open

Rodgers Shoots a 66

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) Phil Rodgers, a 28-year-old ex-marine from La Jolla, Calif., shot an amazing five under par 66 today in the second round of the British Open Golf Championship to seize the early two-day lead on 140.

Rodgers' 66 tied the record of Henry Cotton set in 1948 but in fact was a course record for the new 6,887-yard layout. Two new tees were constructed and 31 yards added to the old links this year.

Rodgers had a cautious 74 Wednesday but with continued good weather pulled out the long, daring game this morning and it paid off.

Rodgers dropped a shot on the first hole and another at the 14th. When he birdied the 15th with a good putt for a three he was on his way to the record-equalling performance.

At the home hole he was straight down the middle and onto the green with his second 30 feet short. He putted short by about five feet. As the huge gallery of more than 5,000 sat in a deathly hush, he knocked the ball in and aroused a massive cheer.

IN WITH A 72

Christy O'Connor, the Irish Ryder Cup star, shot a good 72, playing with Rodgers for a 36-hole total of 145. This put him safely into the last two rounds Friday and Saturday when the field of 130 is cut to the low 55 and ties.

Bobby Cole, the 18-year-old South African who won the British amateur championship this year, faded to a 75 for 148 which may just be borderline depending on how the scoring goes today.

MOMENT OF TRIUMPH — Singer Maureen Forrester (left) hugs choreographer Hanya Holm after Miss Forrester's operatic debut in Toronto in Orpheus and Eurydice. Singer Will Move to U.S. But Will Still Be Canadian

By DONALD PHILLIPSON

TORONTO (CP)—Singer Maureen Forrester is moving to the United States but she says she'll still be a Canadian.

The contralto and her husband, conductor Eugene Kash, vigorously affirmed this in a talk with a reporter after a recent broadcast.

"No matter where you live, even in Bogota, if you think Canadian you are Canadian," Kash said.

Miss Forrester has accepted the post of head of the voice department at the Philadelphia Academy of Music and will leave Canada in August, probably setting up a home in New Jersey.

"I simply must be somewhere close to New York," she said. Not only is it the administrative centre of her musical career, but she has three days of rehearsal there for each of 20 concerts next season.

The Kashes have lived for several years in a large rented house in Toronto, where "Opus Five"—Susanna—was born two years ago. They have four other children, Paula, 11, Gina, 8, Daniel, 7, and Linda, 5. Part of the reason for the move is to allow the family to spend more time together.

Besides Miss Forrester's extensive tours there are Kash's own commitments as a conductor and musical talent-spotter. He estimates they have been together with the children no more than 20 per cent of the time in recent years.

SCHOOL DROPOUT

A secondary reason for Miss Forrester's departure is her belief that she lacks the educational qualifications that would prompt institutions to offer her the academic position she has accepted in Philadelphia.

She left school at 13 because it was wartime and few good teachers were left in the rough district of Montreal where her family lived, she said.

"My own children will finish university, if it takes them 50 years," she insists.

Maureen was a regular member of a church choir at 15. Her voice dropped into the contralto range a year later. While working as a typist and switchboard operator in Montreal, she took singing lessons.

At 21 she came second in a CBC talent competition (to June Kowalchuk, now a doctor's wife in Hamilton). She had by then been spotted by Montreal Star music critic Eric McLean, and the newspaper's publisher, J. W. McConnell, underwrote her early years as a concert artist.

The first two years took between $20,000 and $25,000 of the publisher's money besides all her own earnings and savings.

She made her New York debut in 1956. She had already had auditions with conductors Otto Klemperer and Bruno Walter, and the tough New York critics echoed their praises of her voice.

SANG FOR CASALS

The same year Pablo Casals asked her to sing the leading role in his oratorio El Pesebre (The Manger) and her career as a singer of world rank was launched.

Now, 10 years later, her engagement book is filled for two years ahead.

Over the years, Maureen Forrester has sung with most of the great conductors. Hermann Scherchen, for one, said her voice is the only one today which has the special qualities Caruso's had.

A New York Herald Tribune critic said it was like "a stained-glass window with the midday sun pouring through."

Maureen met Eugene Kash in Ottawa in 1953 when he attended one of her recitals. They were married the following year in London.

"And we're still having a love affair after 12 years," said Kash, hugging his buxom, 170-pound wife.

"All our friends said we'd never suit each other but they're all divorced and look at us."

Miss Forrester gives about 50 concerts a year, for fees ranging from nothing to more than $2,000, and is fed up with commuting by air to New York.

WILL BUY HOUSE

"Now we'll be able to buy a house, too," she said. "You know, we've only been in the black for the past few years."

Miss Forrester, now 36, said a few years ago she would probably retire at 40 because most voices have passed their best by then.

But she will remain active, passing on her skills to younger singers.

At the Philadelphia academy she will have half a dozen of her own students, as she had in Toronto, and will supervise the technical training of perhaps 100 young vocalists.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burton Filming 'Taming of the Shrew'

By BOB THOMAS

ROME (AP)—The producers are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burton. The director is Franco Zeffirelli. The author is—shhh—William Shakespeare.

These talents have combined for a large-scale movie production of The Taming of the Shrew, being filmed in a rebuilt renaissance Padua at the modern studios of Dino de Laurentiis.

The words are undoubtedly Shakespeare's, but his participation is being soft-pedalled on orders of the producing company, Columbia Pictures. The reasoning seems to be that Shakespeare might not sell to the mass audience, and masses of ticket buyers will be necessary to pay off the investment in The Taming of the Shrew.

The expense can be seen in the vast sets that have been constructed on the sound stages. The Burtons are playing Katharina and Petruchio for nothing but will take a percentage of the proceeds.

The project was the idea of Franco Zeffirelli, the ebullient Florentine whose vigorous productions of Shakespeare, in Italian and English on the Rome, London and New York stages, have been acclaimed.

"For years I have wanted to bring The Shrew to the screen," he remarks. "It has always seemed to me the Shakespearean play most suited to the cinema. It is funny, violent, full of action and crackling dialogue. I wanted to do it in Italian style and for a time I was talking to Marcello Mastroianni and Sophia Loren. But we could never work it out.

"Fortunately, Richard had seen my Romeo and Juliet in England and admired my work. When he and Elizabeth were suggested for The Shrew, I said it would be impossible; they would cost too much money. To my astonishment, they agreed to defer their salaries. And here we are."

LIKES ACTION

Zeffirelli, a slim, collegiate-looking man of 43 who wears slacks and sweaters with the sleeves rolled up, was directing his two stars in a hayloft scene one day mid-way through the shooting. The scene was typical of the Italian's passion for movement.

Burton was declaiming to Miss Taylor: "Now, Kate, thou must be married to no man but me. . . ." Instead of delivering the lines on his feet, as Petruchios had done since the play was first performed about 1594, Burton was required to speak while swinging from a makeshift trapeze.

Meanwhile, Miss Taylor flailed at him with a long pole and he ended the scene by falling into a mass of sheep shearings.

After three strenuous takes, Zeffirelli was satisfied, and the Burtons were allowed to rest.

"My God, what a workout this picture is," exclaimed Burton, examining his palms for blisters.

"This is only the beginning," Miss Taylor added. "I get beaten, whipped, thrown about. In one scene I have to fall off a donkey into a river. Next week Richard and I have to fall through a roof. Look at these." She displayed black - and - blue marks on her arms.

BANTER WHILE WORKING

Making their fifth film together (others: Cleopatra, The V.I.P.s The Sandpiper, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf), the Burtons, who were married two years ago in Montreal, engage in light-hearted banter while at work.

"I want it known that I receive top billing in this film," Burton announced.

"Of course I protested," his wife said. "I had a sign printed up the way it should be: Elizabeth Taylor—in big letters—starring in 'Taming of the Shrew,' featuring—in tiny letters—Richard Burton."

"But then I had my own sign printed up," Burton said. "It read: A Richard Burton production starring Richard Burton in 'The Taming of the Shrew,' directed by Richard Burton, in Burtonscope and Burtoncolor, introducing—in microscopic letters—Elizabeth Burton."

Best of Treatment Given Lassie on Plane Trips

By RUDD WEATHERWAX
For CYNTHIA LOWRY

Rudd Weatherwax is the most famous dog-trainer in Hollywood and the owner of Lassie and the other collies who help out in scenes too dangerous for the valuable star to play.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Shortly before Lassie and I were to leave on a three-week location in the spring, a repesentative of the airline that was to take us to Louisiana on the first leg of the trip called me.

She wanted to know how Lassie would like to have her steak cooked for our in-flight meal.

It didn't surprise me a bit. That's typical of the attention Lassie has received over the years. As for the airlines, they seem to be happy to welcome her aboard. Hotels often compete with each other for the privilege of housing Lassie. I've even had offers of a suite for Lassie and me on the house—if I'd let them publicize the fact that Lassie was their guest.

I always buy tickets for two seats—one for me and one for Lassie — but she never uses hers. She prefers sleeping on the floor at my feet, in a front seat where there's room out of the aisle.

Lassie and I do a lot of travelling in a year's time—sometimes as much as 100,000 miles.

AT THE PARK — Lovely Nancy Kovak plays "Nellie Bly" to Elvis Presley's "Johnny and Donna Douglas' "Frankie" in Edward Small's Technicolor production "Frankie and Johnny", United Artists release staying until Saturday at the air conditioned Park Theatre. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

But we've never gone beyond the borders of the United States.

Airlines require that their passenger lists contain the full name, or at least the first and last name, of everyone on every flight. Most dog owners never give their pets more than just a single name, but it didn't take much thought to give Lassie a last name to make her acceptable to the airlines.

On the passenger list she is listed Lassie Weatherwax. Why not?

"SPECIAL NOTICE"

ALL OWNERS of land abutting the Belleville City limits and located in The Township of Sidney are hereby notified of the foregoing NOTICE OF THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD UNDER SECTION 30 OF THE PLANNING ACT.

BY-LAW NUMBER 8156

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BY-LAW NUMBER 6495 BEING A BY-LAW TO REGULATE THE USE OF LAND AND THE HEIGHT, BULK, LOCATION, SPACING CHARACTER AND USE OF BUILDINGS.

COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. THAT By-Law Number 6495 be and it is hereby amended by deleting from Section 6:1 the following phrase:

"An office or consulting room for use by a physician, a dentist or other professional person when located in his or her residence".

Clerk

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

July 7th, 1966

EXPLANATORY NOTE

It was very difficult to fully interpret the intent of the draftees of the By-Law when they used the word "or other professional person" in the section which deals with the permitted uses for an "A" district. However, the permissible uses are generally those which might be said to provide services to inhabitants of a residential area and it may also be construed that the intent of the draftees was to allow services of a medical nature to be made available to the householders within a general residential area. But the expression "other professional person" which might include a lawyer, architect, enigneer, chartered accountant, etc., would allow persons who should have their offices in a business district to operate from residential areas. The other uses, which in the past have been by custom permitted, such as barbers, beauty shops, etc., should also be located in business districts or neighborhood shopping centres.

With the amendment to By-Law No 6495 included in By-Law 8156, the permitted medical use allowed would be on approximately the same terms as is the use permitted in the annexed portion of the City covered by By-Law No. 7080

Wants New Parley On Viet Nam

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. and Communist governments were silent today on a proposal by the Indian prime minister for an immediate Geneva conference and the end of American bombing of North Viet Nam.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi proposed Thursday that convening of the conference be followed by a truce and that a settlement include the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Viet Nam and guarantees of neutral independence for Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

There "can be no military solution in Viet Nam", she said in a broadcast before leaving for talks with leaders of the United Arab Republic, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union. She arrived in Cairo today to meet President Nasser.

Most foreign governments, including the United States and North Viet Nam, were informed of Mrs. Gandhi's proposal in advance.

The crux of her proposal was another Geneva conference of the type held in 1954 to negotiate an end to the French Indochina war. The agreements reached at that conference are theoretically still in force and Britain and the Soviet Union remain the conference co-chairmen.

WORKS WITH CANADA

India is chairman of the International Control Commission set up to oversee application of the provisions of the 1954 conference. Its other members are Canada and Poland.

Canadian Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons in Ottawa he felt it would be difficult to reconvene the Geneva conference under the conditions suggested by Mrs. Gandhi.

British Prime Minister Wilson joined Mrs. Gandhi in calling for a Geneva conference and a Viet Nam truce. Wilson goes to Moscow July 16-18 to talk with Soviet leaders and visits President Johnson in Washington later in the month.

Wilson's government Thursday night won support by a vote of 331 to 230 in Parliament for a motion restating its general line of promoting peace talks. Wilson had come under criticism from the left for supporting the United States in Viet Nam at all and from the right for refusing to support bombing of fuel depots at Hanoi and Haiphong.

SUPERVISE TRUCE

Mrs. Gandhi proposed that the commission supervise the truce while the conference was in session. She felt the commission should be strengthened.

The United States did not sign the 1954 Geneva accords but has indicated it considers them a basis for negotiations.

North Viet Nam's news agency announced that Jean Sainteny, a veteran of French government service in Viet Nam, had conferred in Hanoi with President Ho Chi Minh. Sainteny is believed investigating the possibilities of a settlement of the war.

Wanted Judicial Inquiry

TORONTO (CP)—A man who identified himself as Elwyn A. Rogers of Toronto tried to walk on to the floor of the legislature Thursday to deliver a request to Premier John Robarts.

He was removed by police officers and some members of the house.

In a lobby, Mr. Rogers explained he wanted to deliver his request for a judicial inquiry into his treatment in the Ontario Hospital at Whitby and in the courts.

He said he was wrongfully committed for five months to the hospital at Whitby, about 35 miles east of Toronto, and was forcefully given medication.

Mr. Rogers said he was released from the hospital only when his lawyers threatened legal action against hospital officials. He said he had been described as "dangerously ill" only days before his release.

A typewritten statement Mr. Rogers distributed to reporters said the judicial inquiry should be established to determine whether he had been treated properly by hospital doctors, by the Metropolitan Police and by the magistrate who presided at his hearing.

BEGAN WITH ARREST

He said his difficulties began after he was arrested in November, 1964, and charged with exceeding the speed limit by "seven miles an hour" on the Don Valley Parkway.

In other business:

—Maximum fines of $5,000 could be imposed on stores breaking municipal early-closing bylaws if an amendment to the Municipal Act introduced Thursday is passed.

—James Renwick (NDP—Riverdale) said Attorney-General Arthur Wishart had no right to hold his job unless he could substantiate his earlier claims there had been civil disorder among strikers at the Oshawa

The equipment is demonstrated (top) by Les McCoy (left) and Jack de Lestard of the department's Burwash operation. McCoy is shown taking a 200-seedling tray from a rack carried by de Lestard. Canada's Import Duty On Caribbean Sugar Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commonwealth Caribbean - Canada conference has worked out a new trade deal that includes the elimination of Canada's import duty on Caribbean sugar.

Formal announcement of the new arrangements is expected today at the conference attended by Canada and 13 Commonwealth Caribbean countries.

Sources say the new agreement commits Canada to remove the 29-cent-a-hundredweight preferential levy on sugar with the proviso that it is approved by other Commonwealth supplies of sugar to Canada.

Caribbean countries have long sought a better deal in the Canadian marketplace for their sugar, an export staple.

Canada has also agreed to withdraw a clause in the 1925 trade agreement that permitted preferential tariffs only on Caribbean goods shipped directly to Canada. Caribbean delegates had argued the direct-shipment clause was unjustified.

Customs valuations by Canada on Caribbean goods manufactured from imported raw material may also be lowered. Canadian delegates say a law passed recently may allow for the reduction.

Some of the changes will result in a revision of the 1925 agreement by protocol to be made public today. Other agreed-on trade changes include labelling improvements on Caribbean rum sold in Canada.

Canada has also agreed to see what can be done about restoring a subsidized shipping service between Canada and the Caribbean. However, one informed source was dubious about the eventual success of this project. The old service petered out years ago.

Prime Minister Pearson, the conference chairman, offered to pay the bulk of the cost of building a radio broadcasting centre in the Caribbean to help weld the area together.

The offer for the station—to cost from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000

Leiterman Loses CBC Post, Reeves Haggan, Patrick Watson Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Leiterman has lost his job with the CBC and Reeves Haggan and Patrick Watson have resigned from the corporation.

The CBC announced today it has refused to rehire Mr. Leiterman as executive producer of the controversial television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

Mr. Watson, a co-host of Seven Days and producer of the program Document, said he resigned because he could not remain with the CBC "as it is at present constituted."

Earlier, Mr. Haggan resigned as general supervisor of public affairs at the CBC over what he called "the sordid manoeuvres the corporation has been going through," to get rid of Mr. Leiterman.

"It's the end of the road," Mr. Leiterman said. "Seven Days is finished and it's sad, but that's the case."

Mr. Watson said he is "inclined to take a year or two off to study and write."

It was the dismissal of Mr. Watson and Laurier LaPierre in April as co-hosts of Seven Days that triggered this prolonged and intense dispute.

In a statement, the CBC said Mr. Leiterman had attached additional conditions to a renewal of his contract inconsistent with the board of directors' directions. The corporation, therefore, treated his reply to a new contract offer as a rejection of it.

". . . It is the CBC's view that no useful relationship can be continued at this time with Mr. Leiterman beyond the expiration date of his present contract July 31," the statement said.

The CBC board had offered the Seven Days producer a new contract Tuesday for next season on conditions set out by the board. The conditions included that he sign an undertaking beyond the terms of his previous contract that he would accept corporation policies, procedures and direction.

MADE OBJECTION

Mr. Leiterman, however, objected to the "loyalty oath" conditions of the separate statement.

The CBC also said it had discussed with Mr. Leiterman the possibility of an alternative assignment. However, "since he has again without authorization held a press conference, released press statements and has now endeavored to create a work stoppage in the Seven Days area" his relationship with the corporation would terminate at the end of this month.

Mr. Haggan said in a statement he has been considering his resignation for several months and decided to leave because of "sordid manoeuvres" by the corporation to rid itself of Mr. Leiterman.

He said he has not always approved of some of Mr. Leiterman's activities, but added that the producer has "been pushed too far by an intransigent and insensitive senior management."

Mr. Leiterman said he intends to take a rest and then will seek employment "outside Canada."

"There is no possibility of me working for any other television outfit in Canada," he said. He had no definite offers from abroad in mind.

Mr. Haggan said in an interview he intends to think about things for a while but hoped he would be able to continue in the public affairs field in Canada.

In his statement, Mr. Haggan said:

"I have been aware for as long as I have been general supervisor of public affairs that my determination to make CBC public affairs a lively part of the life of the nation is at variance with that of the corporation's senior management.

PRAISES LEITERMAN

"I am resigning tonight because of the sordid manoeuvres the corporation has been going through today to rid itself of Douglas Leiterman, who has spared himself no effort in providing a unique service to the country in his exceptional program This Hour Has Seven Days and in the development of lively television journalism."

The latest developments followed a call Thursday by three CBC producers, including Mr. Leiterman, for new talks with management over the producers' decision to halt production on four TV shows.

However, the CBC refused to acknowledge that any production suspension existed.

Mr. Leiterman Wednesday announced production suspension of Seven Days, which is not due back until the fall.

Meanwhile, Patrick Watson, fired last spring as co-host of Seven Days along with Laurier LaPierre, announced he was halting work on Document, an alternate with Seven Days, and a new show called Quarterly Report.

Jim Carney, producer of Compass, a Sunday night half-hour program which takes part of the Seven Days' time slot, said he also was stopping production.

The CBC dispute flared last April when CBC management announced the dismissal of the Seven Days co-hosts.

LEADS TO INQUIRIES

The dispute, in which members of Seven Days and other Toronto public affairs staff lined up against management's position, led to questions in Parliament, an investigation by Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, and hearings by the Commons broadcasting committee.

The 70-member Toronto Producers' Association had threatened to go on strike unless the issue was resolved.

Mr. Haggan, 43, born in Belfast, Ireland, and educated as a lawyer in London, England, has been described by Mr. Leiterman as being largely respon-

Consumer Price Index Again Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Propelled by higher food and health costs along with a variety of other items, the consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point in June, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Based on 1949 prices equalling 100, the index reached 143.8 in June compared to 143.4 in May. The June index was 3.5 per cent above the June, 1965, index of 139.

Six of the seven main components making up the consumer price index increased during the month. Food and health prices jumped three-tenths of one per cent while housing, transportation, recreation and reading were up one-tenth of one per cent.

Only the tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged from May.

FOOD COSTS MORE

Higher prices for most dairy products, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables pushed up the food index. Prices also increased for tea, coffee, infants' food, honey, most pork products, chicken and turkey.

An increase in prices of men's haircuts helped move up the health and personal care index.

The housing index, which includes both rent and home ownership, was pushed up by the shelter component and clothing went up with higher prices for men's wear, footwear, piece goods and clothing services. The bureau said prices for women's and children's wear were down.

Increases in train fares and running costs of cars put the transportation index up. The boost in these costs outweighted lower automobile prices and cuts in inter-urban bus fares.

Conservatives Win Riding Of Churchill

THOMPSON, Man. (CP)—Victory in the North has reinforced Premier Duff Roblin's majority in the Manitoba legislature.

His Progressive Conservative government, badly bruised two weeks ago in winning a fourth consecutive term, retained northern Churchill constituency Thursday in deferred provincial election voting in the 57th and final seat to be decided.

Gordon Beard, 44, a 300-pound Thompson businessman, successfully defended his seat against a challenge by Wilf Hudson, 37, a nickel-mine mill mechanic and union organizer representing the New Democratic Party.

The Liberals, who held on to their place as the official Opposition despite substantial NDP gains June 23, were left out in the cold in Hudson Bay-bordered Churchill when their candidate was disqualified on nomination day.

With all seats accounted for, the standing compared with the previous election Dec. 14, 1962, is:

	1966	1962
PC	31	36
Lib	14	13
NDPH	11	7
SC	1	1
Total	57	57

With the exception of two vacancies, seats that had been held by the NDP, the 1962 standing was unchanged at dissolution.

Heavy Schedule Still On

OTTAWA (CP)—Although the Commons continued Thursday to whittle down the legislative load holding up a summer recess, MPs face another triple-threat legislative schedule today.

In the race to get away from the capital, the Commons dealt with measures concerning Bank Act amendments, the federal-provincial crop assistance plan, an $825,462,000 appropriations bill covering 1966-67 spending of 10 departments and five minor bills.

Then House Leader George McIlraith announced today's schedule would include the Canada Assistance Plan, still at committee stage after a determined opposition battle to boost the old age pension, an interim supply bill that bogged down late Thursday night, and introduction of the resolution proposing a medical care insurance plan.

Earlier, Prime Minister Pearson indicated he wanted the medical care item handled before the holiday. The possibility of a late sitting today and a rare Saturday session have already been mentioned by government officials. Predictions now are that the Commons will be sitting next week.

The biggest hurdle Thursday was passage of the Bank Act resolution and first reading of the bill based on it. MPs continued criticism of an amendment replacing the current six-per-cent ceiling on bank loan interest with an adjustable formula and eventual abolition.

Finance Minister Sharp's formula ties the adjustable ceiling at a level 1¾ percentage points above the average yield on short-term government securities. If the formula were applied now, the ceiling would be seven per cent.

The rate is to be adjusted half-yearly, starting next Jan. 1. When the average yield on short-term securities falls below 4½ per cent—it was 5.18 per cent in June—the ceiling is automatically abolished.

The resolution carried 86 to 59 on a standing vote with all parties except the Social Credit opposing the government.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo South) put the NDP position on the bank bill this way: "Canada will face the highest interest rates in its history" if the six - per - cent interest ceiling goes.

The 40,000-word Bank Act took a six-hour going-over before the

Haiphong Oil Depot Facilities Believed Virtually Wiped Out

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-voombers blasted oil, rail and missile sites in North Viet Nam Thursday, dodged MiGs and missiles and knocked out four torpedo boats, the U.S. command reported.

Two American planes were shot down. The pilot of one was rescued; the other is missing.

The torpedo boats were spotted by reconnaissance planes near a coastal island about 30 miles southeast of Haiphong.

Attack flights sank two of the torpedo boats trying to flee, heavily damaged another and left the fourth beached and burning. It was the third attack on North Vietnamese torpedo boats within a week.

There were only minor skirmishes in the ground war in South Viet Nam.

The navy also reported that most of the rest of Haiphong's facilities for unloading and storing oil—including two vital oil-pumping stations — were knocked out in the follow-up air attack on the oil depot at North Viet Nam's chief port.

U.S. fighter - bombers eluded three surface-to-air missiles and two missiles fired by North Vietnamese MiG-21s during raids against the north Thursday.

The two air-to-air rockets were the first confirmed use by the North Vietnamese of such weapons in the 17-month-old air war.

The navy said the raiders Thursday destroyed 70 per cent of the Haiphong tanks and other facilities still standing after the initial raid June 29.

After the first attack, officials reported that 80 per cent of the depot—North Viet Nam's major oil gateway—lay in ruins. So presumably 94 per cent of the installation has been wrecked.

U.S. officials said that perhaps more significant than the destruction of storage tanks was the razing of the two pumping stations. They said they were the only ones available at North Viet Nam's chief port to pump oil from tankers in the harbor.

The installation two miles from downtown Haiphong handled 95 per cent of North Viet Nam's oil, all of which must be imported. Most of the oil is believed to come from the Soviet Union.

For the last month U.S. planes have been hammering at North Viet Nam's 12 main oil centres in an attempt to deprive the Communists of fuel for their supply convoys to the south and to make their war effort more costly.

Canadian Drug Firms Ask Aid But Shock MP's by Testimony

OTTAWA (CP)—Fifteen drug companies pleaded for special federal treatment Thursday but ran into stormy weather when spokesmen for them acknowledged some of them may be in trouble with the law and may engage in practices which an MP described as cutting corners on safety.

George F. Wright of Empire Laboratories Ltd., Toronto, dropped a bomb when he told the Commons drug prices inquiry he doesn't believe in listing danger warnings about his drugs in a standard medical reference book unless he's sure the drug is of questionable reliability.

At one point, he told incredulous MPs he's not giving a course in medicine when he lists his drugs in the Vademecum, a private-enterprise publication in which drug manufacturers pay to describe their products.

He said doctors should know more about a drug's dangers than he.

"I'm speechless at what I've heard in the last few minutes," remarked Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon).

Bryce Mackasey (L—Montreal Verdun) touched off the flurry by drawing attention to Empire's paid listing for chloramphenical minus all safety warnings and extensive warnings by Parke, Davis and Co. Ltd., in the same publication about the same drug under the brand name Chloromycetin.

He asked how Mr. Wright justifies this other than by the fact that his company saved about $600 by dropping the lengthy warnings.

Mr. Wright said the drug is a controversial one and if the warnings are included in the paid listing "you would have something of questionable reliability . . . and I don't think you should do so unless you're sure."

Both Dr. Mackasey and Dr Brand referred to the dangers of death from the drug if not prescribed in accordance with the warnings. These include the satements that it should be used only in cases of severe infection and with adequate blood tests because of toxic effects.

Mr. Wright said he doesn't regard the evidence of danger in the drug as reliable. After "soul-searching" his company had included warnings in connection with some of its drug listings.

Dr. Brand said he was appalled to hear Mr. Wright say things will improve when there's a national compendium of drugs as has been proposed to the government.

Mr. Mackasey said he cannot understand how Empire with a sales volume of $1,000,000 a year can cut corners and engage in unethical practices.

Dr. Brand also drew from Mr. Wright information that Empire uses a philosophy student to research scientific literature for warning material which is handed doctors by salesman or

CN Gives Caboose New Look; Even Has Incinerating Toilet

MONTREAL — The freight train conductor's home-away-from-home — the caboose — is being given a new look by Canadian National Railways.

After four years of study, experiment, observation and consultation with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen — the union that represents the men who ride the caboose — CN has come up with a caboose design incorporating a number of new features.

A contract for 150 of the new units has been awarded by CN to Hawker Siddeley, Canada Ltd., Montreal. The firm will build the shells at its Trenton, N.S. works, and complete the cars at its Fort William plant. Delivery is to begin in December of this year.

The "New Look" caboose will be of all-steel construction and five feet longer than those now in use. Roller bearings, specially-designed trucks (wheel sets) and shock-absorbing underframes will be used, and safety glass will be employed throughout.

Electricity also makes its debut in the new models. Lighting, refrigeration, hot plate, marker lights, radio telephones and incinerating toilet will all operate electrically by means of an axle-driven generator.

The Cupola, the look-out compartment, will be located at the top centre of the car to give crews better views of both the front and rear of the train. It will also be equipped with wind deflectors and electric windshield wipers.

In the Cupola and at the conductor's desk there will be fully upholstered swivel chairs, with safety head rests, adjustable for reclining and height. There will be two oil stoves, one of them outfitted for cooking, a high-capacity water system for washing and cooking, and improved facilities for food preparation.

Howard Hallick Takes Gavel Of Rotary Club

TRENTON — Albert Ward, immediate past president of the Trenton Rotary Club handed over the gavel to incoming president Howard Hallick at this week's meeting of the club. Mr. Ward has been appointed zone representative. His jurisdiction covers Belleville, Picton, Colborne and Trenton.

Special guests at this week's meeting were Mrs. Elsie Whitely and Mrs. Mary Haker, who have ably assisted their husbands, "Dick" and Robert in the running of Rotary games' nights. They were presented with gifts by Mr. Ward.

Mr. Whitley presented a cheque for $1,600 to Mr. Ward from the proceeds of the games' nights. This makes a total of $3,100 raised this year. Over the past 13 years, the club has raised $39,000 for benevolent purposes in this manner.

As a case in point of how Rotarians assist in the community, the club recently spent $350 to provide leg braces for a crippled ten-year-old boy, whose family could not afford the expense.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Hallick presented Mr. Ward with his past presidents' pin.

"Bank Clerk" Checked Out By Chamber

TRENTON — The Chamber of Commerce "early warning system" went into effect yesterday after a woman had phoned several business people in town, identified herself as a "bank clerk" and asked questions about the answerer's bank balance.

A call to the bank with which the caller said she was connected established the fact that no one from that bank was authorized to make such phone calls. The woman refused to give her own name to any of the people she contacted.

Chamber secretary, Heather Ridley then phoned all the chamber members in the "warning system" and they were asked to contact police or Bell Telephone manager Robert Carleton if the woman should call. The plan was to "hold" the woman on one phone while the Bell Telephone office was called on another phone and have the telephone men try to trace the number from which she was calling.

But police say today no one came up with an answer.

Three Notices Sent Owner By Commission

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utility Commission, has sent out through its solicitors, three notices of expropriation to Murray Township landowner, Jack Alyea. One, a notice of intent to expropriate; two, an offer for the 12.9 acres of land in dispute and three, sent yesterday, notice that utility workmen would enter upon the land in question on July 19.

This is the third expropriation bid by the PUC for the land which it needs for the construction of a water storage pond. Mr. Alyea has so far failed to come to an understanding with the commission and has said he will evict by any force necessary anyone who sets foot on the land.

Non-ops Vote To Reject Board Report

MONTREAL (CP)—The general conference committee of the Associated Non - operating Railway Unions, representing 52,000 railway workers belonging to 15 different unions, voted unanimously Thursday to reject a conciliation board report handed down Wednesday by Justice Craig Munroe of Vancouver.

The committee also authorized the taking of a strike vote.

Under federal labor law, a strike may be called seven days after the labor minister receives a conciliation report.

A union spokesman said the complicated process of taking the vote across the country would probably last at least a month.

Justice Munroe's recommendations would give the non-operating employees an average increase of more than 47 cents an hour by the end of 1967.

The non-operating unions representing signalmen, track workers, clerks, freight handlers, telegraphers and others—have been seeking a package raise of about 75 cents an hour.

Non-operating workers now average about $2.20 an hour.

Bank of Western Canada Established by New Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill incorporating the Bank of Western Canada was passed by the Senate Thursday. It was the first new bank charter granted by Parliament since 1953.

The bill was passed by the Commons Tuesday after two years of delays in both houses and needs only royal assent to become law. This final step is expected in the next few days.

The new bank — Canada's ninth—will have capital stock of $25,000,000 and headquarters in Winnipeg.

The private bill received third reading unanimously and without debate in the upper chamber. Detailed study took place previously at banking committee meetings.

The two main backers of the new bank are James Coyne and Sinclair Stevens, both Toronto financiers. Mr. Coyne resigned as governor of the Bank of Canada in 1961 after a bitter dispute with the Diefenbaker government over monetary policy.

Other provisional directors are Maxwell Bruce, Toronto lawyer, Edward R. Nesbitt, Winnipeg businessman and John Leslie Bodie, Edmonton businessman.

The act of incorporation requires that at least 90 per cent of the bank's stock be owned by Canadian residents. No individual can own more than 10 per cent of the outstanding shares.

Mr. Coyne, president of the proposed bank, told a press conference Thursday he expects the bank to be operating by Christmas. It will have offices in all principal cities of the Prairie provinces and key staff already has been lined up.

Mr. Coyne said the new bank would be oriented towards customer desires in Western Canada. Banking hours, office locations, and other key questions will be geared to customer wishes.

The new bank will not have offices in Eastern Canada, but will have working arrangements with existing banks in the East for clearing cheques and handling other necessary business. It does not plan foreign branches.

Finance Minister Sharp told reporters he was pleased that the new bank charter had been approved, especially since its head office would be outside of Toronto and Montreal.

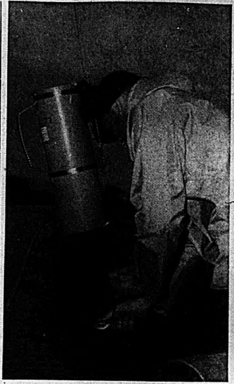
Four Busily 'Fish Water' Testing Lake Ontario Pollution

Fishing has taken on a new dimension for four Ontario Water Resources Commission employees, who "fish" Lake Ontario for water samples in connection with the OWRC's current pollution study of the Great Lakes bordering Ontario.

Jim Schmidt, of Waterloo, and Larry Solsberg, John Witter and John Sweet, all of Toronto, have been living aboard the 65-foot Lac Vancouver since May, carrying out a sampling schedule which covers the Ontario shore of the lake from the mouth of the Niagara River to Belleville. The purpose of the survey is to tabulate the quantity and type of industrial, domestic and surface pollution from the Province which reaches Lake Ontario, and the effect these discharges have on its quality. Other boats are carrying out similar studies on Lake Erie, the St. Clair and Detroit Rivers, and, to a lesser extent, Lake Huron and the St. Marys River, which flows past Sault Ste. Marie.

The "fishing tackle" used by the Lake Ontario crew consists of a weighted steel cable, to which one or more cylindrical sampling devices are attached, and an electric winch which lowers and retrieves the tackle. The samplers can collect water from any specific depth, and in deeper sections of the lake this is done five feet from the surface, five feet from the bottom, and half way between.



A sampler is readied by John Sweet. With this device, it is possible to collect a water sample from any depth. (OWRC Photo)

WORK SWIFTLY

By now, the crew aboard the Lac Vancouver has the sampling operation down to a smooth routine. When Osborne English, of Grimsby, the ship's master, notifies the crew "back aft" that the boat is on one of the pre-determined sampling points or "stations", it takes only a few seconds to fasten a sampler to the winch cable, lower it, trap a sample of water, and swing it on board. A crewman then signals the bridge by means of an intercom that the operation is completed, and the Lac Vancouver heads for the next sampling point, hich could be several yards or several miles away, depending on the part of the lake being surveyed.

Sampling is only a part of the work to be carried out, however. While the boat is heading for the next station, the crew sets to work analyzing the samples for dissolved oxygen, ph, alkalinity, and temperature. Each night the boat is met at port by a driver who takes the samples to a special Great Lakes' section set up in the OWRC's main Toronto laboratories, where they undergo further chemical and bacteriological analyses. Results of all tests will be fed into a computer in Toronto for further examination.

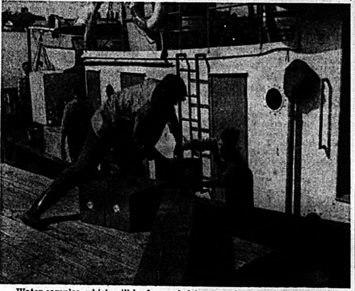
In order to conduct the shipboard tests with maximum speed and safety, a large plywood box has been built on the rear deck, which houses all chemicals and apparatus necessary for the analyses. A thick plastic pad with cutouts for bottle and flask bases, has been installed on the workbench, and the crew members say little glassware is broken now, even on the roughest days.

60 MILES A DAY

Crew Chief Jim Schmidt says the Lac Vancouver covers about 60 miles on an average day, collecting approximately 30 chemical and 30 bacteriological samples. Also, weather observations are reported to the Meterological Branch of the Department of Transport.

In addition to the four OWRC men and the master, there are three others aboard the Lac Vancouver. These include the ship's engineer, Stewart English of Owen Sound, the deck hand, Bert Drake of St. Catharines, and John Auld of Hamilton, who, everyone agrees, is the most important man on board. John is the chef, and with a menu which offers steaks, chicken and roast beef, there is good reason for his popularity.

This year's sampling program is scheduled to end in October.



Water samples, which will be forwarded to a special Great Lakes' section of the OWRC's Toronto laboratories for more complete chemical and bacteriological analyses, are put ashore by John Witter (left) and Larry Solsberg.

Pleads Guilty To Leaving Accident Scene

Buying a car on a Friday the 13th didn't prove lucky for a Belleville youth.

Ross M. Scrimshaw, 18, of 60 S. George St., bought a 1951 model car for $20 Friday, May 13th.

He was fined $50 and prohibited from driving for nine months by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today after he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Scrimshaw hit four parked cars on the Belleville Plaza June 10, causing $1,000 damage to the cars. He left his car there and fled on foot, turning himself in at the police station the next morning.

Scrimshaw told police he left a friend's house on Plaza Sq. and drove across Bridge St. and was driving south on the plaza when he felt a bang on the front of his car. He then realized he'd hit another car and got scared and ran away from the scene. He told police he walked around town all night, and didn't go home.

Magistrate Wills said, "I warn you that if you are caught driving a motor vehicle within the next nine months you will be imprisoned without the option of a fine."

A charge of dangerous driving was withdrawn. Scrimshaw said he had been drinking.

Violators of Early-closing Bylaws by Municipalities May Be Heavily Fined

TORONTO (CP) — Maximum fines of $5,000 may be levied against companies violating municipal early-closing bylaws under an amendment to the Municipal Act presented Thursday in the legislature.

Introduced by Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner, the amendment was added to other amendments to the act brought in earlier at this session of the legislature.

The new provision raising the maximum fine from $300 follows representation from the City of Hamilton and a question in the legislature from Reg Gisborn (NDP — Wentworth East).

"The raise of the maximum fine to $5,000 may be a big deterrent to the large shopping plazas to flouting municipal early-closing bylaws," Mr. Gisborn said in an interview outside the legislature.

"But a 30-day stint in jail for directors of such companies might be a more sure deterrent," he said.

"The best solution for this problem," Mr. Gisborn said, "is that the provincial government might provide legislation covering the whole province."

He compared early - closing bylaws with court injunctions in labor disputes which have been the subject of much discussion in the legislature lately.

Hamilton's first early-closing bylaw, flouted more than a year ago, was declared invalid in magistrate's court but that ruling was reversed on appeal to the Supreme Court. The $300 maximum fine was established by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mr. Gisborn said that Tower's grocery firm had been convicted of staying open last Good Friday in Hamilton and an injunction was obtained forbidding the store's opening on Dominion Day. The courts now are considering a charge against Tower of remaining open on the Victoria Day holiday.

Bank Act Appears Destined For Months of Dormancy and Then Tough Political Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's blueprint to spur competition in banking and finance—which may bring higher bank-loan interest rates next year—appears destined for months of dormancy and then a tough political fight.

Finance Minister Sharp, on the third day of intermittent debate, introduced his long-awaited Bank Act revisions Thursday on an 86-to-59 vote. All opposition parties but Social Credit opposed it.

The bill's main new feature is the detailed formula by which the present six-per-cent ceiling on bank loan interest rates will be raised and, when interest rates generally are lower, will be eliminated.

If the formula were applied under current scarce credit conditions, the interest ceiling would be seven per cent. But the present six-per-cent ceiling prevails until the new Bank Act, if passed, comes into effect early next year.

Assuming Parliament will adjourn shortly for a summer recess, the Bank Act revision will remain on the shelf until fall when it will come up for second reading—approval in principle—and then go to the Commons finance committee.

PASS BY CHRISTMAS?

Lengthy committee hearings are expected, at which the Canadian Bankers' Association and other bodies will present briefs. The bill then will go back to the Commons for detailed clause - by - clause study. Final passage by the Commons and Senate is not expected much before Christmas.

In addition to the formula to first raise and then eventually to abolish the interest-rate ceiling, the bill provides that banks may:

—Continue service charges in addition to interest charges on personal loans. This has "proved beneficial in reducing rates on a substantial volume of consumer credit," said a finance department statement.

—Loan money on property mortgages, up to 75 per cent of the value of residential properties, with no interest-rate ceiling but with a limit as to the total amount they may loan. Some MPs have urged this as a help to homeowners who want to refinance their National Housing Act mortgages.

—Borrow funds by issuing debentures, but these must be for terms of at least five years and be non-callable. An upper limit will be applied to the amount of debenture borrowings, but the device as a whole puts the banks competitively into the money market for funds.

AGREE ON RATES

—Make inter-bank agreements on interest rates to be charged borrowers or paid by depositors. Their directors may not sit on the board of directors of any other bank or loan and finance company. A bank may not have more than five per cent of the directors of any other company on its board.

—Own more than 10 per cent of the voting stock of any other company, domestic or foreign. Their annual reports must disclose the amount of their inner reserves, as well as their profits and losses on investments. Government pension and other funds can own bank stock, but on a non-voting basis, with a 10-per-cent limit for any one government.

On Thursday's debate, before the Bank Act revision bill was formally introduced, George Hees (PC — Northumberland) said the Conservatives would insist that all trust and loan companies be brought under federal banking legislation.

'WILL DISPUTE POWERS'

Mr. Sharp earlier had said Ottawa's constitutional powers to regulate provincially - incorporated trust and loan companies would be disputed.

Ron Basford (L—Vancouver Burrard) said Mr. Sharp's proposed federal-provincial conference on consumer credit likely would find the provinces anxious to have Ottawa take responsibility.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo South) said interest rates will soar if the present six-per-cent ceiling is lifted from bank loans. If the banks are permitted to raise rates by one percentage point, the trust and loans companies would do the same.

The formula for adjusting the interest-rate ceiling and eventually for abolishing it is hinged to the yield on short-term government bonds. For this purpose, short - term bonds are those that mature in three years or less.

Currently, these short - term bonds can be bought on the open market at prices which give investors a return of about 5¼ per cent on their capital. To this figure, the bill would add 1¾ per cent. Thus if the formula were in effect now, the interest ceiling would be seven per cent.

Is Undecided About Action In Police Case

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday he hopes to decide today whether to appoint an arbitrator in a police wage dispute at Pembroke which threatens to disrupt police services across the province.

However, Mr. Wishart said in an interview it may be improper to appoint an arbitrator while the matter is before the courts.

The Town of Pembroke has started an action in the Ontario Supreme Court against the Pembroke Police Commission which last year signed a contract with the town's 18 police officers. The town council later refused to ratify the contract.

Dennis Latten, administrator of the 2,300-member Ontario Police Association, said Thursday police throughout the province are unhappy at the Pembroke council's refusal to ratify the agreement and are threatening to book off sick. Police are forbidden to strike.

WANT ARBITRATOR

Mr. Wishart said he received a letter Thursday from the Ontario Police Commission requesting an arbitrator.

If Mr. Wishart decides against appointing an arbitrator because of legal action started by the town, Mr. Latten said the association will seek a Supreme Court writ setting aside the action.

Mayor William Kutschke of Pembroke said earlier the action will be withdrawn if the Ontario Police Association agrees to have the dispute arbitrated by the Ontario Police Commission.

Bank Rate

When does Finance Minister Sharp plan to raise the current bank rate of six per cent — and by how much? And when does he plan to do away with it entirely?

These are two of the main issues at stake in the minister's plans for revising the Bank Act. But Mr. Sharp is not telling. Rather, he says the best guide is to fix the amount and timing to credit conditions and watch the average market yield on short-term government bonds.

In other words, he believes the maximum interest rate should be adjustable to reflect changes in the general level of interest rates.

No one will quarrel with Mr. Sharp's statement that the present bank interest ceiling, "which appears to some to protect the smaller borrower in fact only protects those who are fortunate enough to be able to obtain bank credit, and forces the others to seek funds from other sources at higher cost."

The effectiveness of the finance minister's plans regarding interest rates will now be measured by this period of adjustment which he envisages, when the interest rate will fluctuate according to market conditions.

Mr. Sharp calls it an "objective test," in lieu of removing the 6 per cent ceiling, and it is aimed at reducing "some of the distortions and injustices stemming from that ceiling.

Those Pacific Breezes

It is always risky to make assumptions where the weather is concerned. So that anyone imagining that Vancouverites have been wilting under burning skies like our own is misinformed.

Indeed, The Vancouver Sun carried a picture the other day of two cold and desolate-looking lifeguards huddled in blankets on a deserted Pacific beach. Yes sir, it is different out west; the weather is different, the scenery is different . . . and the people are different. For one thing it is so far away, as witness the fact the west coast newspaper takes about a week to reach us!

Sure, they are Canadians out there, but to them eastern Canada might as well be Outer Mongolia; and Ottawa, Ulan Bator. As for Quebec, well a fellow called Lesage paid the westerners a visit some months ago and he might as well have been the Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon for all the impression he made.

But to return to the weather. Well, even the visiting Soviet agricultural delegation, led by the indefatigable Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky, was feeling the 93-degree heat in Winnipeg the other day. Then came Vancouver and what a Toronto correspondent described as "the heavenly Pacific breezes of a 57-degree evening."

Which well illustrates the paradox of weather — that extremes of heat, under a supposedly health-inducing sun, are not only exhausting but dangerous if exposed to them for too long. Where does one's energy go on a hot day, and why? Yet step into a region of cool breezes, after being wafted magic-carpet fashion from the steaming prairies to the shores of the Pacific, and even the most exhausted body feels uplifted, alive, with all systems go.

This brings us to another aspect of fitness and physical well-being, whatever the state of the weather. And that is exercise. It was clear from the remarks of some correspondents following the Soviet delegation that some of the former were close to being carried off on stretchers. Mr. Polyansky on the other hand was reported a model of physical fitness and intelligent interest at all hours of the day.

Which makes us wonder if Mr. Polyansky is a "jogger," after the fashion of the folk "down under," or one of those chaps who swims in the Moscow river summer and winter and ultimately expires in bed at a ripe old age, and not prematurely because he has never learned the value of regular exercise.

Ghost Story

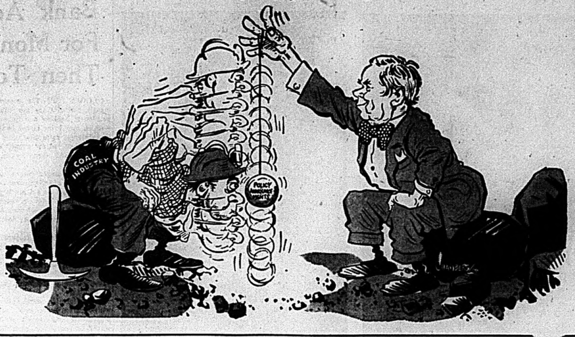
The supernatural is a subject of endless fascination. Most people read ghost stories at some time in their lives, anything from the writings of Edgar Allan Poe to Henry James, or even contemporary records of inexplicable happenings, of which there are many.

Look Magazine for example tells the story of the haunted California home of film actress Elke Sommer and her husband, newsman Joe Hyams. A man of about 50 makes frequent "appearances" in their dining room, then disappears, chairs in the same room rattle at night after the couple has retired, windows and doors are found open in the morning after being securely locked the previous night, and lights switch on and off mysteriously even when the house is "unoccupied."

Another intriguing story of the moment concerns Dame Sybil Leek, 43, a British witch. On a recent visit to the United States, Dame Sybil had three magic rings and $450 in money stolen from her motel room in St. Louis. Oddly enough, Dame Sybil had had a premonition of disaster that day, causing her to cancel her plane passage home.

As for the thief, it may be tough on the fellow if Dame Sybil does not get her rings and money back. She is threatening him with a hex if they are not returned within three weeks.

acing Many Ups And Downs



Strictly Personal

The Making of America

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

During a college commencement address last month, I happened to mention that eight signers of the Declaration of Independence had been "foreigners."

Afterwards, some of the students came up to me in astonishment and disbelief; in all their civics and history classes, they had never been informed that some of the most illustrious signers of our Declaration were "immigrants" who had been born in Europe.

Actually, as if to symbolize the relatedness and interdependence of peoples, it is an historical fact that many leaders, heroes and even patron saints have sprung from alien soil — which we too easily forget.

It is widely known by now that St. Patrick's original name was Succat, and that he was born in Britain, not in Ireland. Less knwon, however, is the fact that St. George, the patron saint of England, was born in France, on the coast of Brittany.

Abraham, the progenitor of the Hebrew people, was a Babylonian, born in Ur. According to the Old Testament, his name was changed by the Lord when he was selected to be the "seed" of the Hebrew people.

(Incidentally, Freud, in his "Moses and Monotheism," insisted that Moses himself was not a Jew, but an Egyptian. His evidence seems persuasive to some scholars, and flimsy to others; at any rate, it is undeniable that Moses chose a Midianite, and not an Israelite, maiden to be his wife.)

The original Buddha, Siddhartha, who has been revered for centuries in China and Japan, was neither a Chinese nor a Japanese but an Indian, born in Nepal.

And, of course, Jesus the Man was born a Jew, lived a Jew, and died a Jew. He had no knowledge of a new religion called Christianity, and sought to reform the old church rather than found a new one.

If one detects any kind of thread running through human history, it must seem more than a remarkable coincidence that the Irish have enshrined a Briton, the English a Frenchman, the Hebrews a Babylonian, the Chinese and Japanese an Indian, the Christians a Jew — and, doubtless, research could bring more such examples to our notice.

We too readily forget that America was begun wholly by "foreigners"; that our great folk-hero of the Revolution, Paul Revere was of French Huguenot descent, whose father had changed his name from "Revoire." When Providence seems to have chosen so many "aliens" to do noble deeds for their adopted lands and peoples, the bigots still among us must be condemned for ignorance as well as for malice.

Why Keep Old Folks Apart

Peterborough Examiner

From several experiences in Peterborough we know that old people can fall down, lie injured and unattended for days because they have little or no contact with other people. We also know of nursing homes and homes for the aged where old people are consigned to live out their last days with nominal care and no affection of any kind.

The ready assumption has been made since the introduction of the old age pension that old people, because they can support themselves, become magically independent. This is manifestly not so, and the supposition of this independence frequently leads to old people being treated as apart from the community altogether — except on special occasions. It has also led to those clinical communities entirely for old people which, from all accounts, are a success, though we cannot conceive of them being the best answer to the problem.

The fact is that youth, adulthood and age are all essential parts of a healthy community. To separate any of these stages totally, works to the disadvantage of all three. One of the major adjustments of immigration, for example, is getting used to the remoteness of parents for the immigrant and what is more important, the robbing of his children of grandparents wthn close reach.

One of the major problems of our society is not what to do with old people, as the problem is most often categorized, but what to do about a community which does not value the combined activities of youth, adulthood and age when it is appropriate to do so.

Flying Now a Popular Sport

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Recently 52 pilots received their wings as private airplane operators in a ceremony staged by the Waterloo-Wellington Flying Club.

They move into the ranks of some half-a-million people on this continent who fly airplanes, exclusive of several thousand in the national air forces.

There are more than 100,000 airplanes flying in Canada and the United States and 98 percent of them are non-military, flown by people like those who got their wings at the flying club party.

Nearly 4,000 fixed-base operators served these flyers, selling them millions of dollars worth, perhaps as much as $120,000,000 in all, of gasoline and lubricants.

Many communities are belatedly realizing that flying is a sport not just for the rich but for all lively people with some skill and a pinch of adventure.

The Waterloo-Wellington club now has 175 active members and seven cadets, and its prospect is for continued growth in an area where the idea of private flying has long been established.

How to Read A Newspaper

Jackson, Miss., Clairon-Ledger

For greater information and more enjoyment in reading your daily newspaper, a journalism professor has suggested these "Ten Commendments" for readers:

Read your newspaper fully each day. Make it a habit.

Don't be headline-happy. Heads are just the menu: You must eat the food itself to get a satisfying meal.

Don't be page-one happy. Your most interesting items could be on the inside.

Don't be one-subject happy. Sticking only to sports, comics or society news is like picking up pennies and ignoring the dollars.

Be a fact-seeker. Get the facts from the news columns, then read the comment of editorial writers and columnists. You may find that you are the better thinker (at least in your own opinion).

Read with both eyes. Note the qualifying words and also "who says so." Don't take an accusation for a conviction, rumor for fact, nor confuse plans with accomplishments.

Don't be a reading coward. Don't be afraid to weigh opinions in complete conflict with your own.

Get out of any reading rut you may have fallen into and read at least one thing a day completely apart from your normal interest to give yourself a mental jog.

Plan your shopping and buying at home with the help of the advertising columns of your daily newspaper.

Relax and enjoy the fun every day. There is a lighter side of life and your newspaper covers it—so give yourself a break and join in the enjoyment.

Collar May Reduce Pain From Bad Discs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My X-rays reveal a degeneration of the cervical intervertebral discs. Why is it that I can do my housework during the day and have no pain, but when I go to bed within two or three hours the pain in my right shoulder is so great that I have to get up and sleep in a sitting position? — Mrs. M. B.

• • •

The X-ray report tells the story. Nerves to the shoulders and arm branch out from the spinal cord in the neck.

These nerves, obviously, have to pass between the spinal bones of your neck. Normally the discs (cartilage) between the bones protect these nerves and prevent pressure on them.

When such discs degenerate—that is, are worn thin, or out of shape, or are damaged in some way — the nerves can be pinched between the bones of the spine.

The pain seems to be in your shoulder. What really happens is that the sensory (pain) nerves leading to your shoulder are being compressed in your neck. Nothing you do to your shoulder is going to correct the pain. The trouble is in your neck and that is where the treatment will have to be.

Medications sometimes provide relief, but fundamentally a way has to be found to protect these nerves, and a small fraction of an inch can be the difference between comfort and pain.

It is characteristic of this trouble that it tends to be worse when you are lying down than when you are upright, because of the shift in position of the bones of the neck.

A collar which provides neck support and thus relaxes the muscles slightly, can compensate for the worn and narrowed discs. You may find that wearing such a device at night will be sufficient.

In more severe cases, it sometimes is necessary to wear a supportive collar all the time, or to have surgery to fuse together two (or more) of the neck bones. This, of course, cuts down the amount of movement possible in the neck, but the fusing provides a permanent space between the bones to eliminate further painful pressure on the nerves.

Neck traction does much to relieve the condition, and should be tried before surgery is considered.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my wife's doctor told her that her blood pressure was approaching the 200 mark. Here are my questions:

Do or don't travel? Would the tension of preparations, flying, etc., be offset by rest and relaxation at the other end of the line?

Do or don't sunbathe? Will the sun have an effect on her blood pressure? On past trips, sunbathing has been almost a must. At home we have a swimming pool and suntanning area. — N. S

Flying in modern pressurized, comfortable planes should not affect her blood pressure. (If she also has a heart condition, it would be wise to get her doctor's advice before making the trip.)

The exhilaration of travel is not necessarily tension. If she is somewhat nervous about flying, or travel, then a mild sedative or tranquilizer may be in order.

I've always contended that moderate exposure to the sun is not harmful. However, if your wife gets a dull feeling in the head, or a headache, then seek the shade.

Note to Mrs. G. M. K.: Diabetes is not "catching." You cannot possibly get it from any of the things you mention, and using the clothing of a person with diabetes is equally harmless.

Letter to the Editor

Stratford and the Bard

The Intelligencer.

I write with regard to your editorial in the July 4 issue of The Intelligencer entitled "Speaking of Names". I do not wish to find fault with your comments as such but perhaps, better acquaint you with the Stratford public schools and their identification by Shakespearian names. If this is a trend it is certainly not a new one as you have been led to believe.

As a former Stratford citizen, I am quite familiar with the "background atmosphere" of street names and school names which were borrowed from the works of William Shakespeare long before Mr. Tom Patterson ever visualized a Shakespearian Theatre or Arts Centre for Stratford.

Back when the city was called "The Classic City," it strove to bring a taste of Old World charm to southwestern Ontario by its connection with Stratford-on-Avon, England and its famous bard.

Today, the connection still exists in the quaintly English and modernly Canadian "Festival City" with its beautiful parkland, the Shakespearian Horticultural Gardens, Exhibition Halls, and of course, the majestic theatre-building itself, overlooking the Avon River.

School and street names from the old "Classic City" have been kept too, blending into the aforementioned "atmosphere" which is Stratford today .These names, I'm sure, will sound somewhat familiar to you — Hamlet School (which my mother attended as a girl), Falstaff School, Avon School, Shakespeare School, King Lear School, Anne Hathaway School, Juliet School (which I attended for four years) and Romeo School, where my two sisters and I received the balance of our grade-school education.

So it is evident that the naming of the new Romeo Public School is not in any way a latter-day stroke of genius, but is quite in keeping with tradition.

I would like to take this opportunity before closing, if I may, to tell you that my wife and I have thoroughly enjoyed our residence in Belleville to date, since our transfer here (with the Service) two years ago from Ottawa. The Quinte area has a distinct charm of its own, both in scenery and its people, and we look forward to several more years here with you.

In closing, if I may be of further help on the subject of my home town either to your fine publication or to your readers, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Doctors are just beginning to notice what experienced travellers have known for years—that flying the Atlantic in six or seven hours is a great way to get from North America to Europe if you don't mind what happens to your digestive and mental processes.

Official notice has now been taken of this by the U.S. State director warns that "serious Department, whose medical errors of judgment are conceivable if a diplomat reaches decisions when plagued by fatigue compounded by physiological upsets."

This might be a charitable explanation for some of Uncle Sam's foreign policy decisions; after all, Red China is half a world away behind the International Date Line.

Perhaps all diplomats and generals sent half-way around the earth should be ordered to go to bed and stay there until their thinking systems have become synchronized with those of the natives.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Uranium issues continued their feverish advance in morning trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange while the rest of the market was mixed to lower.

Analysts attributed the interest in uraniums to expected increased sales to the U.S. in the late 1960's and early 1970's and higher prices.

Denison paced the group, climbing 1¼ to a high of 59. Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison shares, rose ⅛ to a higher of 14⅞ and Rio Algom added ⅜ at 27¼, also a high.

Banks continued their retreat as Finance Minister Sharp's bank bill, recommending sweeping changes to the Bank Act, was expected to be held up.

Royal fell ¾ to 74. Toronto-Dominion ⅜ to 62¾, Nova Scotia and Imperial-Commerce ¼ each to 70¼ and 63½.

Among other industrials, Walkers, which slid 1⅛ Thursday, decline- 1 to 30½. The company is facing a possible $26,000,000 tax payment in the United States because of disallowances of certain interest payments and selling expenses between 1958 and 1962.

Distillers dropped ¾ to 32¼ and Bell Telephone ¼ to 51½.

In speculative mines, Jaye Explorations, which dropped 40 cents in the last two days, was down 1 to 4 cents on 108,000 shares.

On index, industrials were down .39 to 162.52 and the TSE .25 to 154.61. Golds were up .18 to 172.23, base metals .86 to 96.09 and western oils .39 to 105.16. Volume at 11 a.m. was 780,000 shares compared with 734,000 at the same time Thursday.

Thursday uraniums continued to attract investor interest while banks turned downward in profit-taking.

Analysts say uraniums are being bought for long-term investments in expectation of greater sales in the early 1970s to supply the increased number of nuclear reactors being built in the United States.

Denison paced the group, climbing 1½ to 57 after it had reached a 1966 high of 58½. Rio Algom added ⅜ at 26⅞.

Roman Corp., which holds a large block of Denison shares, moved up ⅜ to 14.

Among other base metals, Falconbridge rose 1⅛ to 95 and McIntyre Porcupine, which holds a large block of Falconbridge shares, gained 3½ to 95.

Banks, which rose 2.76 on index Wednesday following Finance Minister Sharp's proposed changes to the Bank Act Tuesday, suffered fractional declines.

Walkers slid 1⅛ to 31½ and Distillers 1 to 33. Walkers is facing a possible $26,000,000 tax payment in the U. S. because of disallowances of certain interest payments and selling expenses between 1958 and 1962.

Golds were fractionally lower with Dome down ⅞ to 46⅞, Kerr-Addison ⅛ to 10⅛ and Giant Yellowknife ¼ to 12⅜.

On index, industrials were up .19 to 162.91, base metals 1.25 to 95.23, western oils .68 to 104.74 and the TSE .26 to 154.86. Golds were down 2.64 to 172.05. Volume was 2,940,000 shares compared with 3,398,000 Wednesday.

Cannifton Man Pleads Guilty To Theft Charge

Cecil Edward Stone, 30, of Cannifton, was remanded for one week by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today for a pre-sentence report before sentence is pronounced. Stone pleaded guilty to a charge of theft.

Police testified that about midnight Saturday, June 25, an off-duty detective was sitting outside his house on First St. when he saw a person walk toward a car on Bay Drive, open the trunk and put something in.

The detective said the person took a heavy coat out of the car, put it on and walked over towards the hospital. In a few minutes the detective heard a sound like a piece of lumber being broken and he called police.

A police cruiser came and the officer and detective sat in the cruiser. They could hear the sound of metal. About 1:15 a.m. the man came back, put something heavy in the back of the car, and drove to the rear of the Cheese Producers' building. At 1:40 a.m. police observed the car come out from behind the building and go north on Foster Ave. Police stopped the car at Queen Street and arrested Stone. There were several pieces of copper pipe on the rear seat and Stone was soaking wet with perspiration.

Police said there were 14 14-foot lengths of copper pipe. They had been broken in two so they would fit into the car. Value of the pipe before damage was $303.68.

Stone had worked on the hospital construction site for two and one-half months and had been released from the job a week before the incident occurred.

He said he didn't know what he was going to do with the pipe.

He is married, has four children aged 12, 10, 8 and 3 years, and moved to Cannifton from Bancroft two years ago. He plans to return to Bancroft and work there.

30,000 Ford Workers Idle Due to Strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — More than 30,000 Ford Motor Co. hourly employees at 13 plants in five states and Canada were idle today as a result of a strike by some 8,600 employees at the company's three suburban Cleveland plants.

Two engine plants and a foundry were struck Wednesday by Local 1250 of the United Auto Workers following an all night bargaining session. A company spokesman said the union rejected a Ford offer "in the final minutes before a strike deadline."

The company said operations at its other plants must be halted during the strike in order to adjust parts production and assembly activities to the reduced availability of engines. A spokesman said more plants would be closed if the strike continued next week.

The three Cleveland - area plants manufacture most of the company's 289-cubic-inch V-8 engines, all of its 240-cubic-inch six cylinder engines, and some truck engines and component parts.

with a smooth new bottle and a celebrated taste... that's how a gin should be!

That's how White Satin is. Still made to Sir Robert Burnett's original 1770 London Dry formula; still exactly as dry and satin-smooth today as it ever was. After all, when great taste can keep a gin famous for generations on both sides of the ocean—we wouldn't dream of changing it. What we have done, though, is change the White Satin bottle. It's the best way we know to salute a celebrated gin. Have a look. Have a buy. White Satin! That's how a gin should be.

Ann Landers

Ideas Are Caught Rather Than Taught

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just overheard a telephone conversation which disturbed me. I am not an eavesdropper and our son, who is in the 7th grade, made no attempt to keep his comments private.

ANN LANDERS

In a 10-minute phone call with a friend, Phillip made negative comments about six people. I counted them. I believe I know why Phillip is like this.

The minute his father gets into the car he begins to criticize every driver who passes him. He grumbles about the condition of the streets, the attitude of the police officer. He finds fault with the car and cusses out the manufacturer.

Every time we leave church he criticizes the pastor, runs down the choir, and has a few knocks for the family seated ahead of us.

Is it possible that Phillip has picked up his critical attitude from his father? — MIGRANE.

DEAR MIGRANE: Not only is it possible, it's extremely likely.

Children are imitators. They take on the values, concepts, character traits and, yes — even the mannerisms — of their parents.

Ideas and attitudes are contagious. They are caught — not taught. Parents should always be sharply aware that they are setting examples for their children every living minute of the day. Many of the unattractive qualities that parents dislike in their children are tthe very ones their children learned from them.

DEA RANN LANDERS: I have a married daughter who calls her mother-in-law "Mother" and her father-in-law "Daddy." She calls me "Mom."

My husband died a few years ago and it tears me up when I hear my daughter call her father-in-law "Daddy." I feel that "Daddy" is a very special name, and that it should be reserved only for a blood father. Also, every time I hear my daughter call her mother-in-law "Mother" I get a pain in my heart. I am her mother, not that other woman.

Don't you feel that out of respect for me and the memory of her blood father, my daughter should call her in-laws "Mother and Daddy Jones"? — SHOVED INTO THE BACKGROUND.

DEAR SHOVED: It is apparent that you are hotly competitive with your daughter's in-laws and I hope you will change your tune before your daughter stops calling you, period. The manner in which married children address their in-laws is a fairly good clue as to how they feel about them. Obviously, your daughter is fond of hers and you should be pleased — not envious.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbor's 14-year-old daughter is keeping company with a 28-year-old man. The girl's mother is extremely proud of the courtship and talks about it constantly.

The man has never been married and is notorious for his affairs with women of poor reputation. Will you please tell me, what would a 28-year-old man talk to a 14-year-old girl about?

My husband says, "Mind your own business," but I'd like to tell the girl's mother that she is making a big mistake. What do you say? — N.C. READER.

DEAR READER: Your husband gave you excellent advice. Take it.

Women who encourage their young daughters to go out with older men are trying to relive their own girlhood. This is a sick thing and you cannot help her. She needs therapy.

As for your "talk" question — I doubt that he is interested in her conversation.

Ontario Salad Queen Welcomed To City, Tours Various Food Stores

"Just terrific" was how Miss Verna Libman, Ontario's Salad Queen expressed delight at the welcome she received upon arrival in the city, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Libman, a native of Toronto is accompanied on the tour by Pat Taylor of Presentation of Canada Limited and son John. This week the pretty blue-eyed blonde is visiting here; also 16 other centres on her tour of the province. The salad queen promotes salads on the retail level and brings fresh Ontario fruit and vegetables to the public's attention.

Soon after her arrival in the city the salad queen was presented with a gift on behalf of the city by His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis on board County Warden Harold Bonter's cruiser docked at the Belleville Yacht Club for the occasion.

Following the initial presentation Miss Libman was guest of honor at a dnner at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel which was attended by civic, provincial and federal dignitaries along with representatives of the local wholesale and retail food trade. At this time the queen presented Mayor Ellis with a huge tray of assorted fruits and vegetables as prepared by Sun Valley chef Herb Mueller.

RECEPTION DINNER

Mr. Harold Bonter as chairman of the committee was master of ceremonies at the reception dinner. Mayor Ellis welcomed the guest on behalf of the city and local Member of Parliament Lee Grills also brought greetings.

Paris Posting Said "Frosting On Cake"

OTTAWA (CP) —If you're around the Canadian Embassy in Paris next fall, you may run into Michele Laperriere. Besides showing Parisians what a pretty Canadian girl looks like, she'll be doing such things as promoting Expo and arranging cultural exchanges.

The fair-haired 22-year-old is an administrative officer with the external affairs department. After two years in Ottawa she uses words like fascinating, stimulating and exciting to describe her job. The 3½-year Paris posting is frosting on the cake—"fantastic" she says excitedly.

A small, slim girl with big blue eyes and freckles, Michele wanted to be a teacher when she came to Ottawa in 1964. But her best friend was applying to the government and external affairs had been a high school ambition, so she went for an interview.

"After four weeks in the department I was hooked."

She has worked in the information, protocol, government hospitality and cultural exchange sections and met such people as the Shah of Iran and the late Indian prime minister Shastri while helping arrange their visits to Canada.

Right now language training takes up most of her time. She isn't a student — she speaks English, French and Spanish already. Her job is arranging timetables for external affairs personnel taking courses in everything from Chinese to Swahili.

"The language schools are very patient with us. Our people are always missing two weeks because they have to go to the United Nations or leave in the middle of a course because they've been posted."

People are always coming and going, and that's one of the hardest things about the job.

"You have to get used to losing your friends after you've just got to know them. But I admit the chance to travel was one of the things that attracted me. I can't stand staying in one place."

Travel has been the story of her life so far. An "army brat" who had lived in Quebec City, Saint John, N.B., Washington and Germany before she was 12, she attended a French-speaking high school in Ottawa and the English-language Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Her job could be the career path to an ambassadorship. The other route, for experts in economics or politics, leads through the foreign service officer ranks.

CHALLENGE VOLUNTEERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Volunteer social service workers must be given more challenging jobs, says Mrs. D. Boyaner of the Junior Jewish Welfare League here, "otherwise they will drop out and find satisfying paying jobs to occupy their spare time. They then become a permanent loss to the organization."

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I have a heavy aluminum omelette pan which I bought in England. It is six inches in diameter on the flat bottom with rounding sides which slope up to a nine inch diameter at the top. I live alone and would like to be able to make an omelette (not puffy) for one person in this pan. Mine looks like scrambled eggs.

Marion R.

ANSWER:

Here is my favorite which I sometimes cook in a similar omelette pan for myself when I am alone.

TWO-EGG OMELETTE FOR ONE (not puffy)

The French call this Omelette aux Fines Herbes.

1½ tablespoons butter,
2 eggs,
2 tablespoons water,
1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley (fresh or bottled),
1 teaspoon finely chopped chives (fresh or bottled),
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce,
⅛ teaspoon salt,
shake of pepper,
shake of garlic salt.

In a bowl beat the eggs with a rotary beater until they just begin to foam then add the water, parsley, chives, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and garlic salt and beat until just mixed. Do not overbeat.

In the heavy aluminum omelette pan melt the butter until it turns a deep yellow and is bubbly.

Turn in the egg mixture and tip pan to spread up sides a little. Cook on high for 30 seconds then reduce heat to low. As the egg mixture sets, with a spatula, lift cooked sections at sides and tip pan to make uncooked portion flow under cooked portion, but still retain unbroken round shape.

When omelette is softly set run the omelette under your hot broiler to dry off top. Fold over and serve on hot plate.

Note: I like this variation:

Just before passing omelette under hot broiler to dry off top, if desired, place five or six thin slices Cheddar or Swiss cheese on top to heat through and melt a little under broiler. This is a highly satisfying and nourishing and economical supper for "live-aloners".

Registered Nurses Asked To Reconsider Adopting Collective Bargaining

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Immediate adoption of collective bargaining by nurses might lead to a work stoppage and loss of the strong public support now held by the profession, Dr. Brian Williams of Edmonton said Thursday.

Dr. Williams, an associate professor of business administration and commerce at the University of Alberta, was addressing some 1,500 nurses attending the Canadian Nurses' Association annual meeting.

One of the current aims of the association is to obtain certification for collective bargaining agents on the provincial level.

To date, British Columbia is the only province with a certified body to bargain for its nurses.

Quebec, Ontario and Alberta have bodies to bargain for various groups of nurses in those provinces, but have no province-wide body.

Dr. Williams said he was disappointed that the association had not given more consideration to alternatives to collective bargaining.

SUGGESTS COMMITTEES

He suggested labor management co-operation committees which would represent the hospital administration and the nursing staff. The purpose of these committees would be to work out a voluntary agreement between the employer and the employee.

Another alternative was a joint educational workshop, at the local, regional or provincial level, to establish a "more direct dialogue" between the hospital and the nurse.

A third possibility was "getting pickets and parading before the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa to make your cause known to the public."

The nurses are seeking higher wages, better working conditions and a re-organization of existing nursing education systems.

"There has to be a certain passage of time before collective bargaining will work," Dr. Williams said. "The hospitals must assess themselves and find funds."

He explained that the hospitals have the power to conclude agreements with nursing staff, but that they often do not have the funds to cover concessions granted.

CITES PROBLEM

He said the main problem involved with collective bargaining is that it is designed for profit-oriented industries, which do not include hospitals.

He suggested the nurses "sponsor and conduct courses on collective bargaining to understand the process and recognize its limitations."

In an interview following Dr. Williams' speech, Evelyn Hood of Vancouver said she does not think the voluntary discussion between the hospitals and the nurses advocated by the speaker would work.

"No employer is going to bargain unless he has to," said Miss Hood, director of personnel service with the Registered Nurses' Association in British Columbia.

Successful Living

Unemployed Daughter Resents Working Mother

DEAR DORIS: My mother has recently started working again for three or four days a week after a long absence from work. She knows I don't like her to work but says she really should because my father has to have an operation soon.

I have been sick and staying home. I help some with housework now, but I think I could get a job as a typist again soon. Please tell me how to convince her that it would be better for her to stay at home.—NINETEEN.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NINETEEN: Why would it? Does she seem to you so old and helpless that you feel guilty if she carries the expenses? Or have you been a little slow about getting back up on your own two feet and finding work?

Do two things:

1. Try to decide whether your mother is not, after all, enjoying working outside of her home, both for the new interest it gives her and the income it brings in; and

2. Pull up your socks and take a definite step in the direction of becoming a going concern yourself. I expect you don't plan to swing the lead for life.

DEAR DORIS: I wonder if anyone can help me. I am 13 years old and in Grade Seven.

I am the biggest girl in the class. My bust is 36 and I am ashamed. My mother tells me not to be but no other girl I know is so big.

Maybe I am not the only with this problem. — ASHAMED OF MYSELF.

DEAR ASHAMED: At 13 it's a worry to feel different, isn't it? Yet all that has happened is that you have begun developing into a young lady a little sooner than some of the other girls.

Do three things:

(1) Get a proper, well-fitted bra.

(2) If you are overweight all over, begin a gentle reducing program (with your doctor's consent. The bust measurement will decrease along with the rest of you.

(3) Wear the simple, straight styles which do not accentuate the bust.

By next September your schoolmates will be showing symptoms of catching up with you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I was reading your column and you gave a lady information on playing a piano, so I decided to write and ask you about money-making ideas, primarily how to work with a delicatessen.

I would like to know how I could prepare delicatessen items and sell them through local stores. — BORN COOK.

DEAR COOK: At one stage in my checkered career I was the sales force for a family business. We were making specialty soups and canning them.

I made my surest sales by calling on the trade at 11 a.m. In my trusty thermos I carried the soup I wished to introduce; and I sampled it, hot, to the grocer and any customers who were standing at his counter, in little sampling cups. Tasted marvellous.

Moral: Make up your best item; serve it fresh to the manager of the delicatessan you wish to work with just when he is starving for lunch. You'll bowl him over.

Once he has one item going well, do same thing with next one, say about a month later.

Legal troubles of some of the companies which have formed an association called the Canadian Drug Manufacturers came up when MPs questioned the practice of making pills to look like those of rival firms.

Mr. Mackasey said Lukas Pharmaceuticals of Toronto produced one drug in white pill form at $17 a thousand and the identical drug in pink, heart-shaped form at $24—the latter an exact look-alike of the drug as marketed by rival Frank W. Horner Ltd., Montreal.

Dr. Brand said Empire does the same thing with a pill identical in appearance to one produced by Smith, Kline and French.

Mr. Mackasey suggested look-alike pills are made to confuse the doctors and Dr. Brand said the practice seemed to be aimed at taking advantage of a rival's marketing investment.

Leslie L. Dan of Toronto, chairman of CDM, maintained such practices aren't typical of the group. Any which do not measure up to a code of ethics being drafted will be cut off from membership by the fall.

Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L—Gatineau) said another of the group, Barlow Drugs of Cap Rouge, Que., is going to appear in court on charges of unethical practices.

In written and oral submissions, the group urged federal financial and other aid to increase the group's share of the Canadian market from 10 to 25 per cent. Mr. Dan said the group is Canadian-owned while 90 per cent of the market now is controlled by foreign-owned companies who are members of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

It brings to $75,000,000 the amount of aid Canada has promised the Commonwealth Caribbean countries in the next five years.

Earlier, Canada announced the number of trained West Indian domestics permitted into Canada each year would be doubled to 500.

Canada also promised to loan money to West Indians immigrating to Canada to pay their passage. The no-interest loans would be repaired after the immigrant settles in. The system is already used for European immigrants.

However, there was no indication of major adjustmentt to Canadian immigration law, which favors the skilled and educated as immigrants.

Forbes Burnham, the Guyanese prime minister, invited immigrants to his under-populated country from other Caribbean countries.

Mr. Pearson told the delegates he hoped for an expansion in cultural contacts between Canada and the Caribbean.

He suggested ballet companies, individual artists, photographic and other exhibits might comprise the Canadian contribution.

Salvation Army Head Pays Visit to Roblin Lake Camp

The commissioner of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda, Commissioner Edgar Grinsted, and his wife, visited the Salvation Army Camp at Ameliasburg yesterday, the first time the Canadian leader ever visited the camp.

Commissioner Grinsted arrived at the mid-Ontario Division's 1966 Music Camp at Roblin Lake yesterday afternoon to review the camp and spend a time of fellowship with camp leaders and music students.

The camp, which opened Monday and closes Sunday, is governed by Music Director, Capt. Bruce Robertson, A.R.C.T., Camp Director, Capt. James Reid, and Divisional Commander Brig. W. T. Hawkes.

Over 100 students, aged 10 to 18 years, are attending the camp. The students all come from the various corps of the mid-Ontario division, which extends from Whitby to Gananoque, from Picton to Fenelon Falls.

The camp students have a busy day, beginning with reveille and cabin clean-up at 7:15 a.m. and lights out at 10'30 p.m. After breakfast, the students have Bible classes, instrumental and vocal classes, theory classes and a recreation time.

After dinner, students have a rest period, instrumental and vocal classes, theory classes and a recreation period.

Following supper, there are student band and vocal group rehearsals and, from 8 p.m. to 9:15 p.m., the nightly vespar program is held. In the vesper program, the students of the different cabins put on skits.

Saturday the students write an examination on theory and instrumental work. In Fraser Hall Sunday, there is the music camp finale and presentation of awards.

Throughout the week there are instrumental and vocal competitions, and winners of these competitions receive their awards and trophies during the ceremonies Sunday.

This is the 16th year the Salvation Army has held the camp at Ameliasburg.

Western-Style Day Staged For Polyansky

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) It was a big day, western-style, for Dmitri Polyansky Thursday.

The touring Russian deputy premier started in Regina, where the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration presented him with a white stetson hat.

He drove to the Kalium Chemicals Ltd. potash plant, 20 miles west of Regina to see the only mine in the province that uses the solution method. This pumps brine more than a mile under the earth to dissolve the mineral, then brings it back to the surface where the potash is recovered by a drying process.

Mr. Polyansky then went to the federal agricultural experimental station at Swift Current, Sask.

He made a flying visit to grain and cattle farms in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Arriving for his overnight stay in Medicine Hat, he was greeted by Mayor Harry Veiner in western garb and riding a pony.

vote — an indication of much more debate when second reading comes up, likely this fall.

Agriculture Minister Greene shepherded the crop assistance plan changes through the House. Under the changes the federal government will pay 25 per cent of premiums paid by farmers under provincial crop insurance plans. Ottawa now pays 20 per cent.

Coverage is to be extended to a maximum of 80 per cent of long-term average yield on each farm insured. Coverage now is limited to 60 per cent of yields in a large area.

Fruit trees and annual plants are added to crops that can be insured but MPs from areas where such trees and crops abound peppered Mr. Greene for assurance that all such crops are covered.

The minister said much of the fine detail had been left out of the bill to make the scheme more flexible in its application by the provinces.

The Commons gave fast approval of five private members' bills that change or incorporate four religious organizations and one medical group.

An interim supply bill, introduced late Thursday night, turned into another heated attack on the federal milk-support program. As the debate passed the usual 10 p.m. adjournment, Mr. McIlraith proposed extending the sitting to 11 o'clock.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste-Lapointe), unhappy with Mr. Greene's explanation of the dairy policy, declined unanimous consent. Mr. McIlraith forced a vote and 11 MPs from the NDP and Creditiste parties opposed the motion, ending the day's sitting.

NORTHERN ELECTRIC PRESENTS FIRST AID AWARDS — A number of presentations were made at a special banquet held at the Belleville Works of Northern Electric last night. The banquet honored 79 Northern employees who successfully completed St. John Ambulance first aid courses held this spring. Shown, from the left, are A. J. Eady, who received his instructor's certificate and a gold pin; T. N. Davidson, Manager of Belleville Works; B. R. Waters, awarded a gold certificate for 20 years first aid training; F. F. Fulton of Montreal, Northern Electric's Vice-president of Administration; J. R. Sproule, who has successfully completed 13 years in the training program; and Dr. J. S. Stock, who acted as an examiner for trainees in the course.

N.E. Company Honors Graduates in First Aid Training Course in Plant

The most successful Northern Electric first aid training session since the program's inception in 1954 was brought to an official climax last night with a banquet honoring course graduates held in the plant cafeteria.

For the past 12 years, the local Northern Electric has been promoting spring and fall St. John Ambulance courses of seven weeks' duration, with participation reaching a peak when 79 Belleville Works employees graduated from the recent 1966 spring training session.

Under the St. John program, certificates are awarded for the successful completion of one year's first aid training, "vouchers" for two years, medallions for three, and "labels" are presented for completion of each year's training after three years in the program.

Last night, Belleville Works Manager, T. N. Davidson, presented 48 certificates and 10 vouchers, following which Mr. F. F. Fulton, vice-president of Administration from Montreal, awarded four medallions and 17 labels to deserving recipients. Mr. Fulton also presented several special awards for achievements made in the training program.

INSTRUCTORS HONORED

The instructors for the 1966 sessions. B. R. Waters and J. R. Sproule, each received special recognition during last night's program. Mr. Waters received his 17th label and a gold certificate, emblematic of the completion of 20 years training in the St. John Ambulance program, while Mr. Sproule was presented with his 10th label for 13 years first aid training.

Another special award went to A. J. Eady, who received his instructor's certificate and a gold pin for completing 10 years in the Northern program.

On display at last night's dinner were two trophies donated by Northern Electric as a stimulus for the first aid training program. The Dr. B. T Rogers Trophy, for fist aid competition between Ontario Northern Electric plants, and the R. H. Keefler Trophy, competed for by plant teams from Ontario and Quebec and symbolic of the company championship, were both recently won by the team from Belleville Works.

There's good news for harness-racing, golfing and speedboat buffs.

Seasonally speaking all's well with the Quinte Driving and Riding Club. The sultans of the sulkies return to their chariot wars come tomorrow night with a field of thirty-five bangtails in a renewal of the summer card.

The mist of uncertainty has dissipated and the directorate board is breathing easy again. Word has arrived that the powers-that-be which govern, control and kick around franchises, have dug deeply into the dates hat and awarded our operators of the greenbine ten more racing nights.

The ten dates are exclusive of tomorrow night's card and include the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes scheduled for the week of the agricultural exposition.

Golfing bugs have their innings down Kingston way July 14-16 when the Ontario Open tees off.

And amateur Nick Weslock hopes, this year, to add yet another feather to his already-crowded champion's cap when he hopes to become the first golfer in the 44-year history of the Open to win the event three years in succession.

He took the Carling Cup in 1964 and in 1965 when he shot a record 204 (68-67-69) in 54 holes. Weslock also won the Open in 1946, 1949, 1959 and 1962.

The six-time Ontario Open winner, six-time Ontario Amateur winner and three-time Canadian Amateur title-holder will not, like most golfers at the Open, be competing for a seat on the Canadian team travelling to England for the 1966 Carling World, August 31 - Sept. 3rd. Weslock has already qualified. He was low Canadian in last year'sAmateur and low amateur in 1965 Carling World.

I met the amiable Dr. Armand Clairmont, honorary life Commodore Canadian Boating Federation and of Le Club Nautique de Valleyfield, Inc. at the Prince Edward Yacht Club races over the weekend.

There was pride in the doctor's mien when he spoke of the regatta being held at Valleyfield July 16 and 17th. "For 28 years we have presented the best organized regatta in Canada," he said. And not a few racing buffs thisaway will vouch for that.

The annual Valleyfield Regatta is a household word in speedboat racing circles. Many of the world's top drivers have raced there and not a few will be on hand this year.

Take a staff of one hundred racing devotees banded into one organization, working in full co-operation and what else should come up but one of the finest speedboat events in the country. That's the situation down Valleyfield way.

The club overlooks the beautiful and picturesque Baie St. Francois said to be one of the finest nautical raceways in Canada.

The club's racing secretary, Dr. Clairmont said, has arranged the best program since the club's inception which will see all classes racing in some 40 heats on Saturday and Sunday.

The Valleyfield club has been honored by "Expo '67". Its course has been selected at the site for the 1967 World Exhibition Powerboat Regatta. Outboards will race July 7-8-9 with the inboards taking over July 14-15-16.

And the boys are not sparing the horses of expense and effort to make the events a noteworthy success. They have spent $75,000 thus far in the renovation of the clubhouse.

Some 50,000 racing buffs attend the annual regatta. Beautiful Sauve Park bordering the course provides ample parking space.

There will be varied entertainment for those attending this years regatta, Dr. Claremont said. Saturday night, July 16, the Aquatic St. Francis Club will give a water-ski demonstration and present a luminous parade on the bay. There will be dancing for teens and "squares" with a brilliant pyrotechnic display set for after dark.

Cementmen Grab 3-2 Squeaker

Blanked without a baserunner for the first four frames, the Commercial League's frontrunning Point Anne Cementmen netted one in the fifth and two in the sixth to shade Belvedere Hotel 3-2.

The tight victory shoved the red-hot Cementmen four points ahead of the runner-up Stewart Warner. The other four clubs are bunched close behind.

Mike Cook pitched a fourhitter for the Cementmen while Jim Nichols deserved a better fate on the Belvedere mound, allowing just three hits.

Cook struck out two and walked none. Nichols claimed five on strikes and passed three. Both were strong in the clutches.

Point Anne broke the scoreless tie in the fifth without the aid of a hit. A hit batter, Detlor's sacrifice and two passed balls made it 1-0.

They moved ahead 3-0 on a walk, Cook's sacrifice, E. Maher's double and Rosebush's single in the top of the sixth.

Belvedere ripped back with their pair in the bottom of the frame. Muir singled, Hughes doubled him home and scored on a passed ball.

Both clubs came close in the seventh, getting men on base, but the pitching and a double play by the winners kept the score 3-2.

Eric Maher's double and singles by Rick Rosebush and Vern Whalen looked after the Point Anne safeties.

There was but one miscue in the game, that by the winners.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Pat Remillard, who started a new career as a trainer this year after retiring as a jockey at 60, had his first winner at Woodbine race track Thursday as Win-T-Bird of Hamilton's Goldcrest Stable won the eighth race.

Win - T - Bird was ridden by Noel Turcotte, who with his brother Ron was taught to ride by Remillard.

The daily double of Vicinity and Nonie B. Good returned $26.50. The exactor of Chopolis and Carodana in the fifth paid $24.90.

Mickey Mantle, who has trouble adjusting to Yankee Stadium after returning from a road trip, adjusted just in time to save the Yankees from further embarrassment.

MICKEY MANTLE

"I never like coming back here," Mantle said after New York defeated Boston Red Sox 5-2 Friday night. "It's tough adjusting to this park. You always try to pull the ball."

Try or not to pull the ball, that's exactly what Mantle did with two out in the ninth inning, and it sailed into the right field seats for a three-run homer.

The blast, only Mantle's second hit in 18 at bats since returning to New York July 4 after a road trip in which he hit eight homers in six games, kept the last place Red Sox from sweeping the four-game series.

In the only other Al action, Chicago White Sox defeated Washington Senators 8-5 and Detroit Tigers edged Minnesota Twins 4-3.

HITS 16TH HOMER

Going into the bottom of the ninth, the Red Sox had a 2-0 lead. Then, after one out, Rollie Sheldon walked two Yankees and Don McMahon came in to pitch. Pinch hitter Jake Gibbs singled home a run and moved the other runner to third. Tom Tresh followed with a sacrifice fly to tie it. Then after Bobby Richardson singled, Mantle unloaded his 16th homer of the season.

Bill Freehan singled in the sixth and scored on a ground out as Detroit ended a five-game losing streak and snapped a three-game winning string for the Twins.

Al Kaline hit a two - run homer. his 18th, and Willie Horton doubled home a run for the Tigers. Rich Rollins hit his sixth homer and Harmon Killebrew belted his 16th and doubled home another run for the Twins.

The White Sox built up an 8-0 lead behind Tommy John and then held on to edge the Senators, who scored three runs in the seventh and a pair in the eighth.

John Romano hit two doubles and drove in a pair of runs and Don Buford and Tommy Agee each got three hits for Chicago. Don Lock homered for the Senators.

World Tournament In Britain

3-Week Soccer Binge Over 'Ome

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—Britons are going on a three-week binge starting Monday as host to the World Cup tournament in soccer.

Up to 100,000 foreigners are converging on Britain to take part in the hysteria.

The World Cup is the symbol of soccer supremacy—but more than that is at stake.

For teams representing 16 countries it is a battle of national honor. Millions are spent yearly in quest of this trophy—a statuette of winged victory valued at about $3,000.

The World Cup is a big business - promotion staged every four years—on a scale that makes the American baseball World Series seem like a county fair.

The Brazilians, two-time winners, are favored again to capture the cup.

MADE A MILLION

Brazilian star Edson Erentes de Nascimento—known as Pele—is a national hero and a budding millionaire at the age of 25.

Nations have brushed aside differences to stay in the running.

When North Korea was named one of the 16 qualifiers, the British foreign office blinked an eye about granting visas although Britain does not recognize that country.

North Koreans brought along a dozen mystery men, identified as official cheerers.

Portugal has brought its own chef and selected a hotel with cellar space for 600 bottles of wine.

Two ships—one from Brazil and the other from Spain—will be floating motels for their fans.

Sell-out crowds for the 32 matches—in six key English cities—are predicted for a total attendance of well over 2,000,000.

Scalpers are asking - and getting—about $30 for the finals in Wembley. This is three times the ticket price.

The British Broadcasting Corp. has set aside 50 hours viewing time for soccer during the tournament.

More than 1,600 newspaper men are covering the matches, including 60 from the Soviet Union.

Souvenirs are expected to rake up at least $6,000,000.

Lloyds of London is covering about $75,000,000 in insurance risks. Each of the 352 players is insured against personal injury—with Pele reported to be insured for about $750,000.

The 16 teams in the running—chosen from more than 100 in the International Federation of Football Associations—makes a good cross-section of the United Nations:

England, France, Uruguay, Mexico, Argentina, West Germany, Switzerland, Brazil, Bulgaria, Hungary, Portugal, Chile, Italy, North Korea and the Soviet Union.

Wrestling At Arena Tonight!

Wrestling returns to Memorial Arena tonight with a card featuring three new faces for Belleville fans.

Headlining the card will be that old meanie, the one who chased Golden Boy Dupree out of town, one Terry Garvin.

Garvin tackles good guy Billy Cash in a 60-minute, two-of-three falls affair. Cash, a close friend of Dupree's, will be out to help even the score but it will take some doing against the unwieldy Garvin.

The semi-final is also two-of-three falls, pitting newcomer Jack Daniels, from Detroit town against Bill Williams. There's a 45-minute time limit on this one. Daniels brings quite a reputation with him and this match could steal the main bout thunder.

In the opener, Al Bell and Larry Trainor hook up in a half-hour clash. Bell and Trainor are also making their first appearances here.

The show gets under way at 9:00 p.m.

Tosses Brilliant One-Hitter

Stacey Tames Tabbies

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Officially they may be the Picton Kinsmen but it was an old "Bloomfield Yankee" performance that whipped the league-leading Bobcats 9-1 before a big crowd at Alemite Park last night.

Carl Stacey, cast and all, handled the pitching, a superb one-hitter coming on top of his two-hitter the previous night.

The Stacey brothers, numbering three once again, Ron Weese and Keith MacDonald, led a solid hit parade that totalled 13, giving them 25 in two nights.

Picton's victory boosted them into a second-place tie with Trudeau Motors in the Belleville and District standing. The two victories came after a slump that dropped the club from first into a last-place tie.

Bobcats jumped ahead in the first when Carl Stacey handed out his only two passes and Paul Zakos rapped a clean single to centre for a 1-0 score.

Stacey slammed the door from then on, striking out nine. Twin errors put him in a hole with one out in the third but he got out unscratched and only one Tabbie reached base after that. It was a tight 2-1 game in the sixth when LeSage was safe on an error leading off. A fly ball and ground out eased the pressure but Jim Whyte slammed what looked like a homer to the right field fence. Frank Forster raced over and back to make the catch.

The Kinsmen took it from there, scoring four in the seventh and three in the ninth.

C. Stacey, forced to bat with one hand because of the cast on his left arm, ignited his own winning rally with a lined double. MacDonold singled him home and Clair Leahy was replaced by Bob Lott on the Bobcat mound.

A too-late fielder's choice and a hit batter loaded the sacks. Gray's ground out scored and two more came in when M. Stacey's grounder was booted. Weese and Gray singled and M. Stacey doubled both home in the ninth. Lockwood's single upped it to 9-1. Merve and Keith Stacey hit singles to tie it back in the second. MacDonald's. hit, Weese's double and an error made it 2-1 in the third.

Loser Leahy gave up nine of the 13 hits, fanning three and passing one. Lott whiffed four and walked none. And despite the score, the Bobcats came up with several excellent fielding plays, as did the county boys.

Ron Weese had a double and two singles, Keith MacDonald three one-baggers, Marve Stacey a double and single, Dave Lockwood two hits, Carl Stacey his double and Eldon Gray and Keith Stacey a single each. Ten of the total figured in the scoring.

Pte. Enfield Passes

They Buried 'Ole Lee'

BISLEY, England (CP) — They've buried the old Lee Enfield No. 4 rifle with full military honors in this sacred ground of the sharpsbooters.

At a mock military ceremony in which a coffin containing the rifle was lowered into the ground Thursday, a graveside officer entoned:

"We are gathered here today to mourn the passing of our valued friend, the manually-operated musket.

"In spite of the advent of the gas-operated gadget, it has continued to demonstrate that it is the man behind the gun that counts."

DABS HIS EYES

An RAF officer dabbed his eyes with a handkerchief, stepped to the grave and scattered cartridge cases over the coffin.

A wreath of laurels was placed by the grave; two army officers planted a cross and a bugler sounded the Last Post.

The rifle, now being replaced by NATO's Belgium-originated Fabriqu Nationale automatic, was solemnly conveyed to the burial ground abroad a military - escorted gun carriage. A piper played a lament.

At the end, the 26-man escorting party, using the old, reliable Lee Enfields, pointed them to the sky and fired a volley of blanks.

It was a joke but in its way it marked the passing of a military age.

Giants Place Six On All-Star Squad

By DON BANDY

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League's 25-man All-Star squad was completed Friday with the selection of 10 more players.

Jim Lefebvre of Los Angeles Dodgers was chosen to replace the injured Joe Morgan of Houston Astros as the starting second baseman.

The selections were made by Dodger manager Walter Alston, who picked Felipe Alou of Atlanta Braves as a reserve first baseman although he received votes as an outfielder in the players' poll. Alston will manage the Nationals in the game Tuesday at St. Louis.

Alston named outfielders Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh Pirates, Curt Flood of St. Louis Cardinals and Richie Allen of Philadelphia Phillies to back up the starting outfield of Hank Aaron of Atlanta, Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh.

Additional players selected were shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles, second baseman Ron Hunt of New York Mets and third baseman Jim Ray Hart of San Francisco, and catchers Tom Haller of the Giants and Tim McCarver of the Cardinals.

The starting fielders and pitchers were announced earlier.

Lefebvre, Haller, Hart and McCarver will be making their first All-Star appearances.

Morgan was the first choice in the voting for the starting team by players, manager and coaches, but broke his right kneecap and is still out of action. Lefebvre was the second choice.

Alston passed over Bill White of Philadelphia in naming Alou to back up starting first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco. White was second in voting to McCovey. In the players poll, Alou was sixth in the balloting for outfielders with 34 votes. He also has played first for Atlanta.

Tradition has been that All-Star managers select the substitutes who were second in voting. But Alston made another exception, besides Alou, in choosing Hunt for second base. Hunt was sixth in the players' balloting. Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh was third behind Morgan and Lefebvre.

Alston also named San Francisco manager Herman Franks and Pittsburgh skipper Harry Walker as his coaches.

Wills will be making his fifth appearance on the All - Star team. The Dodgers base-stealing artist was the starting shortstop last year.

Stargell made the squad for the third time. Allen, Alou, Flood and Hunt will be making their second appearances.

The completed roster gives San Francisco six All-Star representatives, the most of any National club. Atlanta, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh have three each, Philadelphia and Cincinnati two each and New York, Chicago and Houston one each.

British Open

Thomson Has Early Lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP) Defending champion Peter Thomson of Australia sank a curling eight-footer on the 18th green for a 69 today, a 54-hole total of 217, and the early lead in the third round of the British open golf championship.

Thomson, five times winner of the open, started the third round 11 shots behind pacesetter Jack Nicklaus. Dave Marr of the United States also had a 69 today, giving him 218. Neither man appeared to be close enough to seriously threaten for the title.

Marr was the only one of the first 20 off the tee to beat par and the stiff west wind on the outward nine.

The 1965 PGA champion had a one-under-par 35 going out and coasted home with a one-under-par 34.

Barry Franklin of South Africa, playing with Marr, had a disastrous 79 that left him back in the ruck at 228.

Sixty-four players who shot 150 or better over the first 36 holes make up the field for the 18-hole rounds today and Saturday.

Leading the field by one stroke at 137 after 36 holes was big Jack Nicklaus of the U.S.

England's Peter Butler was next, at 138, after smashing the course record Thursday with a 65. Two shots back of Butler were Harold Henning of South Africa, Ken Nagle of Australia and Phil Rodgers of the U.S.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

All game fish seasons are now in full swing with every lake stream and body of water in the Quinte area crowded with fishermen.

West Lake, East Lake and Consecon Lake resorts are filled to capacity with American tourists.

Pickerel pike and bass are being caught in fair quantities in all of these waters although sizes are not large.

Moira lake is producing good quantities of fair sized pickerel. Frank Domenico and the Ridley Brothers who know where to fish and how have been catching their limits every time out.

When the water is warm like it is now fish are hard to find. It takes a very persistent fisherman to seek out the colder water, where they are in this weather. This takes lots of time and patience which very few of us have especially when it is hot and humid.

Best bait on Moira Lake is the minnow, not a very large one at that.

Bass fishing was excellent Point Traverse way, the past weekend. Mepps and Abu spinners taking most of the fish.

Lake trout fishermen in Algonquin Park had very good luck. Many Bellevillians enjoyed the long weekend in the North country.

Each year hundreds more families enter the camping fold and now we need more Provincial parks to accommodate all these people.

A very nice place to camp close to home is Red Cedar Cove which is located at Massassaga Point in Prince Edward County about 6 miles from Belleville.

The fishing is good here as you are in Muscote Bay. Boating is also good and the camping area itself is excellent. A very good place for a family that has to commute to work.

Bass fishermen this weekend would be well advised to take a good selection of bait along to assure themselves of catching fish. Live bait such as minnows, crabs, frogs and worms, artificials including topwater lures the likes of Jitterbug, Hula Popper, Crazy Crawler and underwater spinners and plugs including Mepps, Rebel, Beno and Canadian wiggler. A good weeless lure is Johnson minnow.

Try the deep holes of your favorite spots in the day time and surface fish in the shallows early morning and evening.

Channel cats are being caught at Latta and Chisholm's on worms in the evening. These tough fighters are a lot of fun on a spinning outfit.

This weekend promises to be another good fishing weekend, you better try your luck while it's good.

Vancouver Divers Win Titles

HAMILTON (CP)—Larry Folinsbee and Kathy McDonald, both of Vancouver, won Canadian one-metre diving championships Thursday.

Folinsbee, junior diver at the University of Oregon, scored 389.20 points, holding off a late drive by Peter Emond, 17-year-old Montrealer who finished second with 377.8 points.

Folinsbee competes for the Hollyburn Swim Club of Vancouver.

Miss McDonald, 18-year-old diver with Vancouver's Amateur Swim Club, chalked up 358.2 points after a close battle with Beverley Boyes, 15, of Pickering, Ont., and Nancy Robertson of Vancouver.

Miss Boyes, diving for the Leaside Swim Club of Toronto, finished second with 341.5 points. Miss Robertson, another member of the Vancouver Amateur Swim Club, was third with 335.7.

The divers take today off for practice but resume competition Saturday in the Canadian three - metre championships. Also at stake Saturday are possible berths on Canada's diving team at the British Empire Games in Jamaica Aug. 4-13.

World Trot Two-Horse Affair

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Defending-champion Pluiver III of Sweden is a doubtful starter in Saturday night's $100,00t0 International Trot, matching the best of Canada, Europe and the United States at 1¼ miles.

Pluvier, who left his native land with temperatures between 60 and 70 degrees and arrived here last week in a 100-degree heat wave, suffered a mild sunstroke Wednesday.

Almost to a man, foreign drivers and trainers figured the race as a two-horse affair between Canada's Armbro Flight and France's great five-year-old, Roquepine.

Armbro Flight, owned by the Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, is finishing his training at Goshen, N.Y.

AHL Delays Decision On Bisons

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Hockey League Thursday adopted a playing schedule for the 1966-67 season which includes Buffalo and delayed until July 15 a decision on the Bisons' request to suspend their franchise for one year.

The Bisons, who finished last in the Western Division in 1965-66, have been unhappy with their working agreement with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League. They claim they have been unable to obtain players of AHL calibre elsewhere.

The AHL action climaxed two days of special meetings during which the status of Buffalo's franchise was reviewed by the league's board of governors.

The 1966-67 AHL season will open Friday, Oct. 14, and close Sunday, April 2.

Drysdale Batting Eye Beats Arm

Hits Win Game

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale's hitting overcame the throwing and enabled Los Angeles Dodgers to overcome Atlanta Braves Thursday night.

* * *

DON DRYSDALE

In the first 4½ innings, Drysdale threw wild twice and hit a batter once. But in the last four innings he rapped three singles.

Drysdale led off the bottom of the fifth with a single and reached second, then led off the seventh with a single and reached third. But Los Angeles didn't get a run either time.

He persisted, though, and one of his hits finally produced a run. With the game tied 2-2, Wes Parker at third and two out in the eighth inning, Drysdale grounded to short and beat it out for a run-scoring single and a 3-2 victory.

In other National League games, San Francisco Giants outslugged Cincinnati Reds 7-5, Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 and New York Mets topped Philadelphia Phillies 9-6.

Drysdale, winning his sixth game against 11 losses, left for a pinch runner after his third hit. He allowed five hits in eight innings, and Phil Regan stopped Atlanta in the ninth.

Cincinnati grabbed a 5-0 lead over San Francisco, but the Giants roared back on two-run homers by Tito Fuentes, Willie Mays and Cap Peterson. Tom Haller added a bases-empty homer for the Giants while Leo Cardenas connected with two on for the Reds.

Pittsburgh led Chicago 3-0, but the Cubs came from behind too. A three-run rally in the seventh gave them a 5-3 margin. Ernie Banks doubled in the first run, and Byron Browne singled across the second and scored the third on Randy Hundley's sacrifice fly.

New York blew a five-run lead, saw Philadelphia tie the game 6-6 on Bob Uecker's eight-inning homer, but then won it with three runs in the ninth. Al Luplow doubled in the tie-breaking run for the Mets, and Larry Elliot's double brought in, two more runs.

Mantle Missing From All-Star Lineup

By DAVE O'HARA

BOSTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees' ailing but still dangerous slugger, was left off the American League All-Star team for the first time in 13 years today as the squad was filled for the annual classic with the National League next Tuesday at St. Louis.

Minnesota Twins manager Sam Mele, who will direct the American All-Stars, named Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox, Rocky Colavito of Cleveland Indians and rookie Tommie Agee of Chicago White Sox as reserve outfielders.

Mantle, 35, seventh in baseball's all-time home run derby with 488, was omitted by Mele at the request of the Yankees, it was reported.

Bothered by a shoulder ailment and a chronic knee condition, Mantle got off to a slow start this season and was hitting only .250 when players, managers and coaches voted the starting fielders June 22.

Then he got hot and, despite a pulled groin muscle along with his other physical troubles, set a major league record of eight homers in six games. That raised his season home run total to 15.

PLAYED 11 TIMES

Mantle appeared in All-Star games from 1953 through 1962, and then again in 1964. He was named to the 1963 and 1965 squads, but withdrew because of injuries.

Yastrzemski, struggling to end a prolonged slump which dipped his average to the low .260s, was fourth in the balloting which named Frank Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Al Kaline of Detroit Tigers as the starting outfielders.

Yastrzemski appeared in the 1963 All-Star game and was selected last year but withdrew because of injury.

Colavito, eighth in the voting, was named for the third straight year and the seventh since 1959. Agee, 23, was chosen as the lone White Sox representative despite his 10th-place-choice by opposing players, managers and coaches.

Mantle was sixth in the balloting, one spot behind California's Rick Rzichardt.

BACK STARTING CATCHER

Mele picked the Twins' Earl Battey and Baltimore rookie Andy Etchebarren to back up starting catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit.

Mele followed the voting in picking Norm Cash of Detroit as his first baseman behind rookie starter George Scott of Boston; second baseman Bobby Richardson of New York behind California Angels' Bobby Knoop and Minnesota slugger Harmon Killebrew as understudy to third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore. Killebrew was named for the sixth year and Richardson for the fifth.

The Twins' manager selected Jim Fregosi of the Angels as his No. 2 shortstop behind the Tigers' Dick McAuliffe.

Bypassed in favor of Fregosi were Luis Aparicio of the Orioles, Bert Campaneris of Kansas City Athletics, Zolio Versalles of Minnesoto and Rico Petrocelli of Boston, all of whom led the California player in balloting by opponents.

Detroit placed five players on the 25-player team, Baltimore and Minnesota four each, Cleveland three, California, Boston and New York two each and Chicago, Kansas City and Washington one each.

Mele named Baltimore manager Hank Bauer and Cleveland pilot Birdie Tebbetts as his coaches.
